FEC siding may be relocated

BY BOB FRYER

If Florida East Coast railroad officials wanted to do it, they could erect a barricade, on FEC land, that would block the fire trucks from pulling out of the Jensen Beach Fire Department.

FEC could also block drive-in window customers at Jensen Beach Bank from driving out after driving in, and could likewise stop U.S. postal service trucks from pulling in or out of the loading platform area at the Jensen Beach Post Office.

All of that is highly unlikely, but county and FEC officials both agree that if the FEC wanted to do so, it could.

That's because FEC right-of-way along its track through Jensen, from Church Street south to Commercial Street, extends beyond the east side on Palmetto Drive in front of the above locations.

Except for a spot where Ricou Blvd. intersects Palmetto, the paved portion of Palmetto falls within FEC property.

County and FEC officials hope to remedy this situation, and while they're doing that, the county hopes to work out an agreement with FEC to move the railroad siding that is parallel to the main FEC track from the east side of the track to the west side. If that happens, the county and some affected landowners will likely be paying for some of the work.

Though nobody seems to be exactly sure when it was built, County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha says the siding has been here about 100 years, as it was once used to load pineapples into box cars, then later used for loading fish from a fishhouse in Jensen for shipment up North.

In more recent years, the siding has primarily been used by Porter Lumber Company and Florida Power and Light Company, and since it is on the opposite side of the track from the lumber yard, the firm has had to use fork lifts and trucks to carry shipments down Palmetto to Commercial, then down Candice Avenue to the lumber yard.

Apparently, about nine months ago, FEC and county officials got together to discuss the proposal of switching the siding and also having the county and/or individuals buy much of the FEC right-of-way on the east sideof the tracks. Such a deal would insure the county that Jensen fire trucks could keep rolling, that drive in bank customers could drive out, and that postal workers could get to and from the loading platform at the post office. And since a map of the FEC right-of-way also shows the right-of-way runs through a portion of a two-story building on the corner of Palmetto and Commercial, it would insure The Tiger Touch gift shop would not some day have a portion of the store claimed by the FEC.

When County Attorney Jack Carmody was asked this week about the proposed right of way acquisition and switch of the railroad siding, he said it has been a good eight or nine months since he'd been in on any discussion about it. However, he said the county did file a "maintenance map" in February to strengthen its claim to Palmetto Avenue, and he commented that since the county has maintained the road for years, he felt the county had a pretty good case for keeping control of the road. As for FEC closing off access to the fire department, drive-in bank facility and post office, carmody said that was "a very remote possibility" since the county and FEC were not in an adversary position over the matter. He said it was his understanding that FEC's right-of-way agent was to look into the proposal and get back with county officials, but said he had heard nothing new on it for months.

County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha has worked closely on the proposal and says he feels it will benefit the industrial businesses along the west side of the tracks, as well as the public, since the northern portion of the proposed west siding will be available for public use. Wacha and Jensen Beach realtor Ransom Tilton both agreed that FEC is not likely to block fire department, bank or post office access.

Wacha said if the proposal goes through, the FEC right-of-way on the east side of the tracks would be moved back to a point on the west side of Palmetto.

Nobody questioned seemed to know exactly how much financial participation the county or individuals may have to come up with to obtain the right-of-way and change the siding location, but Carmody and Wacha agreed that it would involve some county funding.

Wacha said Monday that he was waiting to hear from the FEC right-of-way agent before further action could be taken on the matter.

FEC official T. J. Algard of West Palm Beach said Monday that there apparently was a crossing of wires in communication between FEC and the county.

"He's [Wacha] waiting on us and we're waiting on him, I think," said Algard. He explained that it was his understanding that the county would have an appraisal of the value of the land involved, but said he thought perhaps Wacha felt it was FEC that would make the appraisal.

Algard said he planned to be in the area Thursday and would contact Wacha or Carmody to tell them that the county should go ahead with making an appraisal. And, he said, "We would, in all likelihood, accept their appraisal."

Presently, the siding to the east of the tracks cuts off from the main track a little north of the industrial buildings along Candice Road and runs southward to a point opposite the Palmetto and Ricou Blvd. intersection. He indicated the new siding would start in about the same place, but, of course, on the west side of the main track. And, he said the new siding would run to a point near the intersection of Sunview Road and Candice. He said FEC already has enough right-of-way on the west side of the tracks to install the new siding.

When Charlie Porter, owner of Porter Lumber, was asked about the matter, he said he was not up to date on the latest details of the proposal, and said he would have to research it before he would be sure he favored or opposed the idea. "There are advantages and disadvantages to it for the public and the industrial people," he commented.

"If we barricaded our east property line, they couldn't get their fire trucks out of the fire station," Algard said Monday, but he indicated FEC has no intention of doing so, and said FEC wants to work with the county to get the right-of-way and siding switch matter resolved.

FIT receives Evinrude grant of $150,000

Ernest E. "Tim" Tealey, Executive Director of Florida Institute of Technology's Jensen Beach Campus, announced today that a grant of $150,000 had been received from the Ralph S. Evinrude Foundation, Inc.

The check was presented to Mr. Tealey by Dr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Evinrude on the behalf of the Foundation for the completion of the Jensen Beach Campus Marine Maintenance and Dock facility.

In making the announcement, Mr. Tealey praised Dr. and Mrs. Evinrude for their work and support for the continuing success of F.I.T. and the completion of the marine facility at Jensen Beach.

Mr. Tealey noted that this grant was the latest of a series of grants from the Foundation which have contributed significantly to the success of F.I.T. and the development of its programs.

Sally Latham fund is set for medical bills

Sally Latham, editor emeritus of The Mirror Newspapers, and former lifestyle editor of the Ft. Pierce News-Tribune, is ill. Four months ago she learned that she had cancer, and has been undergoing treatment for the dread disease since then.

LATHAM

Due to the number of friends in Martin and St. Lucie counties who have sought to help, and the high cost of treatments, the Sally Latham Fund has been established at The Jensen Beach Bank to assist in meeting the expenses of treatments, and give an opportunity for friends to help the popular writer.

The fund will be administered by Richard E. Campbell, editor of The Mirror, and Marvin DeBolt, publisher of The Ft. Pierce News-Tribune. All donations received will be used to make Sally Latham as comfortable as possible and for her medical expenses.

Donations can be made to the Sally Latham Fund, care of Jensen Beach Bank, Jensen Beach, Fl. 33457

Ren Tilton is now Boat House manager

Opposing attorneys in a lawsuit filed recently by Ransom Tilton against The Boat House in Jensen Beach have reached agreement on a settlement of the suit.

As of last week, Ren Tilton took over management of The Boat House from former tenant Judson Prasch.

Tilton has brought suit against The Boat House in a bid to oust Prasch, claiming that $2,000 a month rental fees for the in-out boat storage marina were past due since May 1. The suit also sought an injunction to prevent the occupant of the facility from selling or mortgaging any of the equipment on the property.

A breach of lease was alleged in the suit, and the suit states that the occupant of The Boat House has been served with a notice on May 15 to pay the rent or get out.

Ransom Tilton said his attorney, Norris Tilton, and Prasch's attorney, Tom Wacteen, have reached agreement on a settlement of the suit and he expected an order spelling out that settlement would be issued by a judge soon. Ren Tilton took over management of The Boat House on Tuesday, June 26.

Chicky hopes to change Commercial

Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce President Jon Chicky plans to meet later this week with County Planner Tom Mumpford in hopes of changing the comprehensive land use plan for the north county area before state officials review it.

When the north county plan was under consideration for county commission approval earlier this summer, the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce objected to a proposal to have a 300-foot wide strip on both sides of Commercial Street designated for commercial use.

The proposal, which called for the commercial-use designation along land that was previously designated for residential-use, would, in effect, result in a commercial designation for most all land along Commercial Street from the Indian River to U.S. 1. Chamber officials have said in the past that they feel this would be too much commercially designated land along the road.

The county commission has approved the north county land use plan with the commercial use for Commercial, but Chicky is hoping he can persuade Mumpford to help him get much of that commercial designation removed from the plan before state officials take final action in their review of the plan.

If Chicky is unsuccessful, it's likely he'll seek support from other Chamber board members at their meeting Monday night, July 9, to have the chamber formally file an objection to the plan with state officials in tallahassee.

Chicky said that when a plan for the north county area was under consideration a couple of years ago, the commercial use designation was not included in the plan. Chicky said back then, Chamber board member Fred Meeker worked with Mumpford and other county officials to come up with a plan the Chamber liked. But, somewhere along the line, when the new land use plan was drafted, the commercial use designation was inserted for Commercial St.

Chicky said he felt the old plan would be best for the area because it would keep the commercial businesses in Jensen in a concentrated area. "It would help keep the old part of town vibrant and keep the area looking decent, instead of giving us that strip effect," he said, adding that under the new plan, there would be so much land for commercial use that many businesses may not be able to stay in business.

Chicky said the old plan would have resulted in a green area along Commercial Street as persons were driving to Jensen Beach from U.S. 1, and said this would have given the visitors "a nice, relaxed feeling" as they came to town.

He further stated that he did not know the land use plan was to be changed until one day County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha invited him to a Rio Civic Club meeting, where the plan was discussed. He said it was at that meeting he discovered the change in plans.

Chicky said he felt the Chamber should have been asked to provide input for the new plan before the change was made, and he further complained that once the chamber knew of the change in the plan and sent a letter to county officials objecting to it, the Chamber never received a reply from county officials.

Though word that Edward DeBartolo is reviving plans for a huge regional shopping mall at U.S. 1 and Commercial Street did not come until after the county commission adopted the north county land use plan, Chicky said the coming of the mall is one more reason for less commercial-use land along Commercial St.

Commission Chairman Wacha favors the commercial-use designation for the land along Commercial St. he said if the Chamber wants to appeal the plan "that's their prerogative."

"Mr. Chicky has attended several public hearings and has offered no comment," Wacha said, adding he did not know what Chicky's objection was. "I feel the [new] plan is a good one; it matches the throughfare plan for the area," Wacha said.

Wacha said he did not consider the 300-foot wide designation of commercial land "strip development" because of the depth of the land planned for commercial use. he also pointed out that the road plan calls for four-laning of Commercial Street, with parallel access roads to the commercial areas on each side of Commercial Street. he said this would mean traffic on Commercial Street would not be congested by persons going shopping, and he said the commercial-use land along the stretch of Commercial would allow persons to come from different directions to go shopping without all congesting at one place.

It's that beauteous time of the year...

Myers says industry can mix

On Thursday, June 28th, a large crowd of Martin County residents came to the Chamber of Commerce meeting at Howard Johnsons to listen to Representative Dr. William G. Myers speak on events that have recently transpired in the Florida legislature.

Myers opened his speech by commenting on the way Florida residents take advantage of their representatives. "These people come through. We appreciate and need the input from local businessmen and women."

Although Myers is a newcomer to the legislature, he says he's "finding out how the game is played. What the leadership wants is what the leadership gets."

What Florida has recently gotten is a One Stop Permit bill which will enable industry to come into the state within a span of 13 months as compared to the three year incubation period previously required. He further added that "The legislature is moving to a cost-benefit ratio and getting away from hard-line environmentalists." Dr. Myers agrees that a better balance is needed, and contends that by working with developers, industry can be lured to Florida without sacrificing the ecology.

Myers touched on a number of subjects that the legislature had either endorsed or were presently considering. One such issue was the new ceiling of 18% put on interest rates by savings and loan associations. Because of the new found governmental investment in these institutions, money will become more available, however at a higher premium. In addition, interest charged by department stores on appliances can now be raised to 21%.

Tax relief will soon come to Martin County residents. A bill giving a 1.25 mill reduction in Educational taxes passed the legislature with the Governor asking for a 2 mill reduction in general taxes.

Additionally, homeowners will have the option of determining whether or not they want to raise the existing $5,000 homestead exemption to $25,000 when they go to the polls in March. This quasi-proposition 13 measure could be due in part to the $500,000 surplus in the budget. However Myers added that "everyone immediately wanted to start a myriad of programs." The growth of government is spiraling with 3,073 new positions to date and a $15.78 billion appropriations for the next two years.

Myers ended his speech on an optimistic note, stating that "people want de-regulation on most issues," and there are many in government working toward that end.

Crowds light at watch, second is Saturday

Though in past years there have been 2,000 to 4,000 spectators attending the turtle watches sponsored each summer by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, the first of two watches this year only produced about 250 persons.

The first watch was last Saturday, and the second—and final—watch is set to start at 9 p.m. Saturday, July 7.

Chamber officials advise spectators to gather at Jensen Public Beach. While the spectators are gathering, persons in four-wheel drive vehicles will cruise up the beaches until they spot a giant sea turtle laying eggs on the beach. Once a sighting is made, they'll call officials at the public beach to direct spectators to the scene. If you're planning to attend the watch, take along insect repellent just in case the mosquitoes or noseeums are out.

Should you venture onto the beach at night unescorted by chamber officials, be sure to remain quiet, keep lights out and keep your distance until the sea turtle has crawled ashore, dug a nest and has started laying eggs. Once that happens, you can approach closer and turn on lights for a better view.

Sandra Macfarlane to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Macfarlane of Cheri Drive, Jensen Beach, Fl. and Acton, Me. announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Joyce, to SFC Bennett Daniel McCarthy, son of Mrs. Ruth B. Remick of Terrace Way, Jensen Beach, Fl. and Acton, Me.

The couple plan an August 11 wedding in Center Ossipee, N.H.

The bride-elect graduated from Portsmouth Senior High School, Portsmouth, N.H. and attended the University of N.H. and Indian River Community College. She is self employed.

The groom-elect graduated from Portsmouth Senior High and attended the University of N.H. He is currently serving with the U.S. Army at Fort Carson, Colorado.

I-95 expected to open July 9

The opening of the extension of I 95 has been delayed but is expected to open by July 9.

A Department of Transportation spokesman said that they will start work on A1A July 5 as some of the equipment has already been moved from the I 95 site.

Paving I 95 has been completed but the stripping and finishing of the road will not be completed until the first of the week, the spokesman said.

The new extension of I 95 goes from Indrio Road, north of Ft. Pierce, to Okeechobee Road in Ft. Pierce.

It is not known how long it will take to complete repaving of a 10 mile stretch of A1A from the south St. Lucie County line on Hutchinson Island to a point north of the nuclear power plant.

Bang-up Fourth

A bang-up Fourth of July celebration is taking place throughout the day and night on the Jensen Beach Causeway this Independence Day.

For years, Jensen had had a reputation for putting on the best fireworks show in the state and this year should prove to be no exception. The fireworks start around 9 p.m. but there are plenty of daytime activities the whole family will enjoy at the causeway.

The official opening of the ceremony is at 1 p.m. and from then on there will be races for the kids, a watermelon eating contest, and inner tube paddling contest, and a greased pole climb.

Lots of local civic groups are participating in the Fourth of July festivities, with the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce sponsoring the celebration.

Sailfish Club Summer Tournament

Marlins seemed to be the big catches this time as results were reported for the Sailfish Club Summer Tournament.

Carl S. Slear of Butler, Pennsylvania pulled in a 283-pound Blue Marlin while on Captain Pat Kenny's Golden Falcon.

A 68-pound White Marlin was caught by Jack Schultz of Stuart, on the White Cap.

Davidson catches black bass

It was a quite usual fishing week, according to Ron Ellis at the Snook Nook in Jensen Beach, but in the case of Alex Davidson, it was unusual.

Davidson caught an eight pound, three ounce large mouth black bass in the Jensen Savannas last week, a "quite unusual catch," Ellis reported. Davidson was using a jelly worm for his fresh water catch.

Charlie Areni & Jensen Beach also had a good week, snarling a 5½ pound trout along with Bill Smock. They were night fishing on June 27, and achieved their catch with mirror lure.

Areni also caught 14 sea trout going up to three pounds, with Ed Wagner, using trout touts.

Other notable catches included; Ron Osler, Reg Sutcliffe and Nick Kavanagh, 13 trout wading in the Indian River, using trout touts; Roy Greenwald and Jack Prell, 6 trout (up to six pounds), wading in Indian River, using mirror lures; Jim Baker, 18½ pound snook, a 9½ pound bluefish, on the Evans Crary (ten cent) bridge, using live mullet; John Schneider, 9 pound 9 ounce snook, in the surf at Jensen Beach, using live whiting.

Tom Deodato, a six pound trout, a 3½ pound trout, one grouper and two snook, wading in Indian River, using mirror lures; Bob and Betty Collins (with guide Russ Bolton), four snook, South Fork of St. Lucie River, using ny-lures tipped with shrimp.

Walter Neff, one snook in the surf at Jensen Beach, using a plug; Mike Romano, one snook, wading in Indian River, using trout touts; Tom Hargrove, 12 whiting in the surf at Jensen Beach, using cut shrimp;

Off-Shore: Roger Neitzke and Bob Halberkamp, 6-foot, 7¼ inch sailfish, 27¹ dolphin, trolling balleyhoo; Bill Evans, 42-pound blue marlin, trolling balleyhoo; Ray Kordeeth, five dolphin, trolling balleyhoo; Augie Panell, 50-pound amberjack, trolling balley hoo; Romeo Gonmogeo, 5-foot, 6-inch sailfish, trolling balleyhoo; Duke Essex and Fred Moller, two large bonita, one large barracuda, trolling balleyhoo.

Gary Kleinseld caught 8½ pound permit, in the surf at Jensen Beach, on a live shrimp Monday afternoon, July 2.

Also, a special recognition goes to Stacey Schaefer, only 6 years old, who caught a 19½ pound wahoo by herself. She was fishing with her father, Alan, as well as with Bob Gilespi and Wayne Kendal, in 300-foot water offshore, in Kendal's boat.

The weather did not seem to affect the fishermen at all last week, as only 1.39 inches of rain fell all week. Our weather gauge showed only 0.07 inches of precipitation on Saturday, when play inthe Florida PGA-General golf tournament was halted for an hour and thirty five minutes by rain.

BY ALLEN F. BREWER

Independence was born on a hot steaming day,
At a time which "tried men's souls";
When the Declaration was put to a vote
Of the delegates there enrolled.
When the states were called, from north to south,
New Hampshire to Georgia, they cried
"Aye!" to the question from Hancock,
For "Independence" they replied.
They met at a time when the outlook was grim,
When Liberty seemed but an ideal;
When Washington's army was rough and untrained,
But they made up by patriot's zeal.
So the back-bone was there,
They fought for a cause, two hundred years ago,
What we have today, how far we have come,
Is the tribute to them we owe.

Lest we forget

Tonight on the Jensen Beach Causeway a panoply of fireworks the like of which this or any other area has ever seen will widen the eyes and bring the oohs and aahs of everyone from tots to teens to oldsters.

The Fourth of July every year is the grand exhibition of the birth of our nation, and it signifies the most important event in our heritage. To the youngsters and the oldsters watching our display it has one meaning, but to me, it brings back memories lasting through a lifetime of childhoods.

It means puttee-booted legs which I could barely see the kneecaps of, it means "Over there caps" worn by men who had been over there. Men who had come home...some wounded, some to walk again, some blinded by tear gas lethally legal during that first world war. It meant marches, speeches, and all the meaningful drama encumbent with "the war to end all wars."

Our house was on the public square where all important functions were held. The big cannon, though never shot, was decorated and honored. The band played vigorously from the decorative bandstand. Special services were held to honor the dead, and marches were staged around the block.

Of course, no celebration could be held without food, and of course there was plenty. Huge tables filled with goodies, sticky fingers ripe with strawberry pie, and a few dresses went home to the washing machine in need of thorough cleaning.

Yes, there has been a second war and two incidents since those catastophies--major, catastrophic incidents. But never how far back, how serious the event, we should never forget, with every candle that each candle means it should never happen again.

ON WINGS OF LOVE

One calm, sunshiny day an Angel ventured out of heaven to find the most enduring of all things on earth. He roamed field and forest, city and hamlet; and just as the sun went down, he plumed his wings and said "Now my visit is over, and I must go back to the heaven of light. But before I go I must gather some mementoes of my visit on earth."

He looked over into a beautiful flower garden, and said, "How lovely and fragrant these flowers are." And he plucked the rarest roses, and made a bouquet, and said, "I see nothing more beautiful and more fragrant than these; I will take them with me."

But he looked a little farther, and saw a little bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked babe smiling into its mother's face, and he said, "Oh, that baby's smile is prettier than this bouquet; I will take that, too."

Then he looked just beyond the cradle, and there was a mother's love pouring out like the gush of a river toward the cradle and the baby, and he said, "Oh, that mother's love is the most enduring thing I have seen on earth; I will carry that back with me, also."

With the three treasures he winged his way to the pearly gates, and said, "Before I go in, I will examine my mementoes."

He looked at the flowers, and they had withered; he looked at the baby's smile, and it had faded; he looked at the mother's love, and there it was in all its pristine beauty and fragrance.

The Angel threw aside the withered flowers and the faded smile, then winged his way through the gates called all the hosts of heaven together, and said, "Here is the only thing I found on earth that would keep in fragrance all the way to heaven--a mother's love."

UNTIMELY SETTING

You sallow fellow, skulking through the sky,
Belying day and robbing from the night,
What is your business with the sun? Why try
To pit your puny magic 'gainst her light?

The lovers of the other hemisphere,
In darkness, wait to worship at your feet;
You're needed elsewhere, while, redundant here,
You are outshone. What folly to compete!

Oh truant moon, at night you're all the rage.
Today — an actor, caught without his stage.

—S. R. Latham

BACKLANDS

The lens of life peers into dawn
A fleeting flash of startled fawn.
The mist a lazy parting veil
Reveals a cast of dove and quail

The mocking bird, a sassy ape,
Records an avian woodland tape
This land, where Ponce once sought the truth
About the legend font of youth
Indeed is life forever new
But guarded for the chosen few.

The tourist, in his pleasure quest,
Will never see the eagle's nest,
Will never hear the yawning 'gator
Say, "Sunning now, so call me later."

He'll never hear the baby Brahma
Request a meal from aching mama.
He'll miss those joys that cannot cease
Whence come, not seeking youth, but peace.

IDIOTS OF HOPE

I stand on my tippietoes,
Stretch into space
Reaching for heaven—
And fall on my face.

I know with the dreamer
I know with the clown
The higher the up,
The deeper the down.

But knowing's not learning
The lesson it's teaching;
More fools be we three—
We never stop reaching.

Fireworks donations

It might seem presumptuous to seek donations for fireworks after the show is over, but the Jensen Beach fireworks fund is short of the price of this year's show, and the usual "kitty" to form a financial base for the show next year is non-existant.

Donations for fireworks haven't come in as well as they did in past years.

It is easy to take for granted the fantastic, home-made extravaganza put together by Jensen fireworks volunteers, who work from now to next year to put on the two-hour show. The men and women, service clubs and firemen volunteers, have done the job a year after year.

They should not, nor should their efforts, be taken for granted. It is that availability of funds that frees them to be creative in their work.

We hope that all residents send a few dollars to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce fireworks fund so that we will be assured that the fireworks can continue. Checks can be made out to the Fireworks Fund, and sent to the Chamber of Commerce, 1910 N.E. Commercial Street, Jensen Beach, Florida 33457.

We're growing up

The tentative, first-step move of Edward DeBartolo's development of "Stuart Square, a planned total development and regional mall with five department stores plus 129 additional stores" indicates that our area is taking off in grand style.

With two other malls already in various stages of development, there will be a massive commercial development of shopping areas along U.S.1 in Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie.

Residential development has proceeded with good planning. We believe the people are here to support the needed commercial development.

If anything, the wide range of choices offered by so many shops in three regional-type malls will enhance our already good shopping potential, keeping many from traveling to Palm Beach county for their major department store purchases.

The development is a challenge to all shopkeepers in our area, a challenge that can be met forcefully with broader selection of merchandise and services, and updating of their public relations and advertising for customers.

It also is a challenge to governmental officials to move with more dispatch on applications for regional impact. Smithport mall has not yet received approval of its application, though it has been in the governmental mill for over a year. Port St. Lucie's Village Green was held up over eighteen months while the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council studied and local governments fiddle-faddled over this and that.

Remembering the delay-delay-delay in the original 1974 attempt by DeBartolo to get approval of a plan, we urge the responsible government agencies to be responsible and get the plans moving when they are presented.

There must be growing pains, but small businesses are injured by too much government red tape as they await their chance to open a store.

We are growing up, and the quality of development of our commercial areas indicates that our residents will have a fine selection of stores at which to shop, keeping our dollars at home.

A week of sun, sand, quiet

I read three books last week, the first since almost a year ago. I went on vacation, two days of hectic walking, and seven days of doing nothing but what I wanted to do.

The first two days eased me into the vacation. We went to Miami to visit all the showrooms, looking at fabrics, specialty furniture (one-of-a-kind, far-out stuff), and built-in types of things that turn Salli on.

Staying at the Marriott, near the airport, we traversed much of decorators row, walking in the hot sun, getting chilled stepping into the air conditioned "trade only" places we were sent to by architect Phil Braden, who is planning our new home.

I read all the Miami newspapers, and stayed up with the gas problem, bought a gas cap with a lock on it for Salli's car, and dined sumptuously in the Marriott's rooftop dining room, watching the 747s and 727s land at Miami International.

On Saturday morning we boarded the Air Florida plane for our week at Club Med in Eleuthera.

To explain Club Med, it is a resort with everything. There are clubs all over the world. We have already been to Guadeloupe and Playa Blanca in Mexico, and Eleuthera is our third.

There are no newspapers, no radios, and no television.

We brought four books, two mysteries for me, and two woman-type books for Salli.

The entire place is informal. We wore bikinis day and night. It was two days before I stopped getting cramps holding my stomach when a pretty girl walked by.

I slept late, until eight or eight-thirty each morning. Then, I played tennis, took a swim, read during the afternoon until about four, and went out to play tennis again until seven.

The food is fantastic. Tables and tables of fresh fruit, cheeses, juices, and salads. Red and rose wine was served in pitchers at every table. In the evenings a six course dinner was served, each specialty an excellent repast when it is considered that the chef was serving 600 persons in the dining room.

Each evening there was a major production, all shows being in both French and English, much pantomime, singing and outstanding sets created by the 150 bilingual youngsters who came from 42 countries around the world.

The tables sat eight, and each night we were seated with different couples who came to Club Med for their vacations. They were from France, Germany, Italy, Tunesia, Quebec, and the U.S. We only met two from Florida.

By Monday, I stopped worrying about The Mirror. I did have a twinge on Tuesday night, and thought I would call the office to see how things are coming, but since it takes about four hours to get a call through, I abandoned the idea.

Eleuthera is a one-hundred mile long piece of utterly beautiful real estate, with white, white sand, clear, exciting waters for snorkling and scuba diving, sailing and water skiing.

I tried the water skis one day and actually got up on them. It did wonders for my macho. We went sailing for several hours, and I found it was like riding a bicycle...once you learn it stays with you.

By Friday, I had run out of reading matter and took up Salli's book, "Vivian Leigh," finding it hard to get into, but difficult to put down. I finished it on Saturday, before we were to leave.

Salli wanted to see the Club Med on Paradise Island, so we flew to Nassau one day for a look-see, just sixty miles away. It was a one-day trip, gave us an opportunity to see Nassau, and have lunch in a charming English style restaurant called Graycliff, across the street from the government building.

While dining, I couldn't help but overhear a Washington banker bribing a government official with free trips and lodging in the nation's capitol as they worked out final details on a loan to the government. It added more charm, and a little intrigue, to the meal. I don't think that the banker was an American, as he had little kind to say about our government. (Then, too, he might have been an American banker, come to think of it.)

Late Friday night, Salli caught a goodly portion of the 24 hour Bahamian flu, and I caught the sniffles. We recovered enough to make the evening flight back to the states, arriving home after midnight.

The week gave me a rest I've needed, but, again, provided me with an insight into The Mirror staff that I found myself offended by. The paper actually got out without me here, and it looked excellent.

Here's to you, Dad

This column is for my father.

It's not a Father's Day column, though I'm usually so late doing things that he wouldn't be surprised to hear me wish him a happy Father's Day a few weeks after the fact.

It's not for his birthday either. That's not until November.

Though I hope he knows I think of him as a special person in my life on more than just special days, my father just had a once-in-a-lifetime sort of day, and I want to say congratulations to him. Since he gets The Mirror every week, I figure this is a good way to do it.

Last Friday, after years and years of being a breadwinner, my father retired.

Until about a month ago, he didn't think he was going to retire until next January. But NASA offered him an "early out," and he took it.

So, for the rest of his life, he's free to do whatever he wants. No more getting up early for work, no more worrying over NASA budgets, and no more late nights at the office.

Last Friday evening, a few hours after getting off from work for the last time, he and my mom came through town on the way to visit a friend in Miami. I asked him how he liked retired life, and he said it was too new to tell. But I know it will suit him well. That's because I know he'll know how to stay active.

About five years ago he bought a piece of land in North Carolina, and since then he and my mom have dreamed of replacing the mobile home on the land with a more substantial cottage. When I talked to them Friday, they said after their visit in Miami, they were going up to North Carolina to begin work on their dream.

I wish I could join them up there to help with the construction work, but I also know he'll have a ball doing it even if he doesn't have me as a carpenter's helper.

He loves woodwork about as much as he loves the mountains, and I know he'll enjoy the combination of the two.

But I didn't start this column to tell about all the things he's going to do in retirement. Instead, I want to say how much I appreciated all the long years he put in as provider for our family.

There are four kids in our family, and though we've never lived a life of luxury, he's always seen to it that we had all the essentials we've needed, even if it meant many sacrifices on his part to do so.

He is and always has been a family man, and it was through his guidance (and my mom's) that he's produced a close-knit family.

I know lots of times when I'm done with a hard week of work, I'm ready to have the weekend to myself. But, in spite of all the long hours my dad worked for NASA, when he came home from work, he always put my family first. When my brother and I were in scouts, he joined too, and took us and all the other kids in the Cub Scout pack, then the Boy Scout troop, on a wide variety of outings.

When he went fishing, he took us kids along, and we played baseball or went rollerskating, or did most anything else, my parents were always around.

My father is a gentile man, and never forcefully imposed his set of values on us. Yet he never took up activities that excluded his family. He was always there to lend a hand when any of us kids needed it, and through example more than lecture, he gave us guidance.

I'm not a father and I have no one else to depend on me, but I know being a dad must at times be a thankless task. I know there have been times when we took his role as breadwinner for granted, and took his constant attention and concern for our well-being as a thing to be expected without question.

Now, all his kids are grown and out on their own. For the past seven or eight years, he hasn't had to worry about providing for us. But when we needed it, he was there, working as hard during his hours away from work as he did during those at work to see that we got not only the basics we needed, but the care we needed, too.

My dad isn't the type who will be likely to find retirement a lonely life. When he had to work, he worked hard. But he's always made sure that he kept his work in perspective with his life outside work.

Now that he no longer has to work, I'm sure he'll find plenty to do to fill his hours with rewarding activities, even if he won't always have us kids there to help him fill those hours.

Dad, you've been far more than a provider for all of us kids, and now that your days of working for the space agency are over, I want you to know I appreciate all you did for me. I'm sure my brother and two sisters feel the same way. So, here's to you. Thanks for taking care of us when we needed it, and enjoy yourself. You've earned it.

Independence Day calls for sacrifice

BY DICK CAMPBELL

Independence Day, 1979, just two years after the all consuming, heartening bicentennial celebration that filled our nation with fervor and pride in two hundred years of survival against all odds.

The great experiment of a democratic republic is, and has been a success.

It wasn't supposed to work. The founding fathers almost didn't achieve what they set out to do.

Little did they know that their preoccupation with the wrongs of the British Empire rule would produce a document that would offer the checks and balances to make the experiment work.

Throughout it all, there was trial. The American people met each trial with a ferocious dedication to the original principles of both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

Liberal and Conservative worked within the spirit of those documents to refine the republic. When challenge came from without, the nation responded with a togetherness that astounded those who thought the United States would be easy prey because of internal bickering and political infighting.

The speeches of Independence Day will be the same as those given over 201 previous years. All will ask for a more patriotic dedication to flag and country. All will speak of those who have fallen on fields of battle to preserve the independence and freedom we enjoy.

Few will talk of the personal sacrifice necessary to make the country continue to be a great power, self-sufficient, and economically and politically sound from within and without.

It is a troublesome Independence Day that we see. The nation faces a fuel crisis, and with it the crisis of spirit that all see. We have become fat, fat with the good life that we do not wish to give up.

We use too much fuel, we keep our homes too cool in summer and too warm in winter. We want "the other guy" to reduce his fuel consumption first. We can afford to waste, not knowing the waste of many is what injures the quality of life for each and every one.

Sacrifice is needed, by everyone, if we are to really make a commitment on Independence Day.

There will be happier Independence Days in the future, when times again are good, when times again let us live a free and unfettered existance with the guidelines of what we can consume.

But those timesare not here yet.

Our government wrangling about energy has not ceased, and liberals and conservatives have not yet wrought a middle-road plan that will again prove that our Constitution works, and will continue to work.

As our leaders battle, the people themselves have no one to lead, and thus cannot follow. One cannot follow a leader without a plan, who preaches of sacrifice without telling us what to sacrifice in line with an ultimate goal.

Through it all, the people search aimlesly for direction, a direction that has not yet come to light. They have become apathetic toward their standard of life. With the total national debt exceeding any criteria of good common sense, how can the people be expected to curtail their spending. Credit has surpassed levels of common sense.

The people are becoming a "me first" generation, young and old alike, spending without fear of tomorrow because they do not know what tomorrow will bring.

Debt limits are surpassing as the people concern themselves only with the lowering value of the dollar, buying now before inflation further erodes their buying power.

All, however, is not doom and gloom. The day of accounting will come, true, and many will lose their life savings as a result of their foolishness today. But, they will become statistics of an era of responsibility.

As it is with America, the responsible will prevail. The leadership will rise above political and economic philosophy, offering the direction so badly needed.

And, Americans will rise up, making this nation even greater. The strength of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States will bring even more strength to the nation.

The sacrifice of today may be made tomorrow. It is needed badly in all areas of life so that there will be a life tomorrow.

The American people will, themselves, hand together to achieve the compromise needed to withstand the temptation of "me first" in life. That is the spirit of this great nation.

Our love of freedom will bring the responsibility to preserve that freedom.

Boating accidents are on decline

The Coast Guard Boating Safety Office in Miami is happy to announce that the number of accidents involving recreational small boats is on a decline.

In 1977 there were 808 accidents, and for 1978 the total number of accidents was 734.

Coast Guard records show that many of the boaters involved in these accidents had over 500 hours of operators experience, although the leading number of boating accidents involved people with no formal instruction of operation.

The Coast Guard feels that many of these boating accidents could have been avoided and urges the public to take advantage of one of the many FREE Coast Guard Auxiliary Boating Safety courses. For more information on boating safety, contact the Coast Guard Boating Safety Office in Miami, Fla., 305-350-5758.

HOUSES VS. APARTMENTS

QUESTION:

I have been considering investing in a five- to ten-unit apartment house, or buying a few modest houses and renting them out. Which makes the better investment – apartments or houses?

ANSWER:

Either one could prove lucrative for you. However, I think that you should recognize the advantages and disadvantages of both.

Apartment investments offer the economies of "bulk purchasing." It is generally considered less involved to manage one ten-unit apartment building than ten single-family houses. Advisors will often point out that a vacancy in a house leaves you 100 percent vacant while a vacancy in a ten-unit apartment building leaves you 10 percent vacant.

Houses generally appreciate at a more rapid rate than apartment buildings, but with equal proportions of leverage the rent from a house often cannot pay for its expenses (including financing) as well as rent from apartments.

As a general rule, investors acquire single-family rental houses more for potential appreciation. Apartment houses, on the other hand, tend to provide more potential for cash flow and tax savings although they appreciate at a slower rate.

Your own goals should dictate which direction you choose. Be sure that whether you choose houses, apartments, or both that you purchase only after a thorough analysis of the potential income and expenses and a realistic evaluation of the risks and rewards.

Swim class makes muscles feel young

Many area residents have been taking advantage of the Hydro Therapeutic course offered by Indian River Community College.

Classes meet three times weekly for one hour, during which time students have the opportunity to strengthen muscle tone, improve lung capacity, or just concentrate on keeping in shape. Whatever the intent, this course is designed to offer something to all levels. Because of this, the year-round sessions, initiated five years ago by Pete Otovic, have met with great success.

One of the first things participants do when they get in the water is to limber up through planned exercises. Watching 15 people standing in the pool laughing as they attempt to squirt water through their fingers may seem like fun, but Pete points out that this is extremely beneficial to the hand muscles and to people with arthritis. After the preliminary warm ups, class members break up and concentrate on their personal goals established at the onset of the course. Pete states that although some may not fully achieve their final goal, everyone improves drastically. "People need warmth to combat joint ailments, and just being in the heated pool helps." In addition, Pete also offers therapeutic instruction to those in need of rehabilitative work.

It's taken many years of effort to achieve the experience necessary to initiate a course with as wide a scope as this, but to Pete, it's all been worth it. Originally from Salem, Mass., he chose Florida to get away from what he calls the winter hibernation period. Happily transplanted, Pete talks about some of his future goals. One such hope is to establish a local health center where older people with ailments could participate in a long-term rehabilitative program.

For the time being, his students are pleased with the type of program presently offered. Even those with no specific ailments come out of the pool refreshed and better able to just get around. One participant's daughter who had been trying to get her 80 year old mother to swim was impressed to see the marked improvement in the short period of time her mother had been in the course.

Whether you're in need of rehabilitative help or just want to get in shape, this program is flexible enough to offer something for everyone.

For further information on how to join the classes, contact Dorothy Peterson at the Adult Education Department of Indian River Community College. Fee is $5.00 per student.

Muscular Dystrophy Clinic now open

Through the generous support of the community and tireless efforts of hundreds of volunteers, the dream of a Muscular Dystrophy clinic is now a reality.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association proudly announces the opening of the Greater Palm Beach Muscular Dystrophy Clinic at St. Mary's Hospital 901 45th Street, West Palm Beach, Florida, on July 13th. The dedication and ribbon cutting ceremony will commence at 11 a.m. in the facility housing the clinic, the Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Department. The event will be hosted by our Telethon Emcee, John Matthews of WPEC.

This outpatient clinic offers, as a community service free initial diagnosis to all individuals suspected by their physicians to be suffering from any of the 18 muscle disorders covered by MDA. More than 70 persons currently in the association's program from Palm Beach, Martin, St. Lucie, and Okeechobee counties will be seen in the clinic at least twice a year by a team of professionals.

The team will consist of a neurologist, a physiatrist, physical therapists, a social worker, an orthopedic surgeon, an orthotist, a medical equipment supplier, and respiratory therapists.

The residents of Palm Beach, Martin, St. Lucie, and Okeechobee counties have made the clinic a reality.

New book features Hobe Sound Wildlife Refuge

Florida's Hobe Sound National Wildlife Refuge is featured in a new book, "Guide to the National Wildlife Refuges," being published by Anchor Press-Doubleday in July.

According to the book, Hobe Sound, established as a national wildlife refuge through efforts of local citizens aided by The Nature Conservancy, supports the densest sea turtle nesting habitat on the Atlantic Coast. Three species of endangered turtles, the loggerhead, the green and the leatherback (largest turtle in the world) use it for their crawls from May to August.

Hobe Sound is one of almost 400 U.S. national wildlife refuges described in the book.

U.S. national wildlife refuges, which were begun as a national project when President Theodore Roosevelt proclaimed tiny Pelican Island as a wild bird sanctuary in 1903, now cover more than 30 million acres in almost every state, including Alaska and Hawaii. They harbor wildlife called by President Russell Train of the World Wildlife Fund - U.S. "as diverse and interesting as that of any country in the world" — an extraordinary array of more than 220 species of mammals, more than 600 of birds, 250 of reptiles and amphibians, over 200 species of fish and uncounted numbers of plants, from wild orchids to unique kinds of palm trees.

The book, by Laura and William Riley, is the first comprehensive guide ever published to these refuges, and it tells how to get there, when to go, and what are the outstanding natural residents in each place.

FPL's fuel adjustment to go down

Florida Power & Light Company's fuel adjustment for the month of July will drop to $8.65 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours (KWH) from a record high $9.78 per 1,000-KWH in June, power company officials said today (June 28).

According to a utility spokesman, the $1.13 decrease in the fuel adjustment was due to an increase in nuclear generation of electricity in May (the month used to calculate the fuel adjustment for July). Nuclear accounted for almost 12 percent of total generation that month, versus seven percent in April.

The company estimates its customers saved moree than $9.5 million—representing approximately 662,000 barrels of costly fuel oil— through nuclear generation in May. Had nuclear not been available, July's fuel adjust ment would have been $11.62 per 1,000 KWH, FPL says.

Approved recently by the Public Service Commission, July's fuel adjustment will mean that a typical 1,000 KWH residential bill that month will be $46.24, excluding franchise fees and local taxes.

Ask Helen Richardson

HELEN RICHARDSON

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce offers you a friendly and hospitable welcome, and offers to help you in any way possible to make your stay in our wonderful area more pleasant."

This is the way the welcome pamphlet, put out by the Chamber, begins. People coming to the area from all parts of the country turn to these brochures for answers to their many and varied questions.

Helen Richardson is the woman largely responsible for answering those questions as well as solving the many dilemmas people confront her with daily. A petite, 74 year old woman who has been a resident of Jensen Beach for 24 years, Helen has remained with the Chamber for eight of those years. Never having worked at a paying job until she was 65, she nevertheless decided one day it was time she started. Her qualifications did not include such things as typing, shorthand, or dictaphone experience, but fortunately for those involved with the Chamber, she did and does possess a clear head, a quick mind, and an innate sense for averting disaster.

For eight years she has sat behind her desk, smiling as people come in and ask her whether Jensen Beach water will hurt their goldfish or answering inquiries as to the possibility of the Chamber filling out Income Tax returns. She has not only solved arguments, but told people where they could board their pet bird, how to get a worm off their tomato plant, where to get tatooed, and what the exchange is on English money.

Truly, this is a woman who loves people and enjoys helping them and solving their often bazaar dilemmas. A day in the life of Helen Richardson would read like a Walter Mitty story, with her taking on a myraid of sometimes slightly erratic situations.

To look at her, however, composed and serene behind her uncluttered desk, calmly coping, one cannot help but wonder if she secretly takes Rolaids. Helen listens to troubles people have and quietly does her best to rectify the situation. Whether it is calming red, blotchy tourists who come in ranting about those little blankety, blank "I-see-you's" who have tortured their bodies, or just helping someone find a place to rent a beach umbrella, she'll always come up with a solution to one's problems.

Some of the various and sundry problems that Helen has solved over the years are:

Is there a cement mixer union? Where can I get cremated? How to stop the garbage truck from going around the corner so fast? How to spell Savanna? Where can I find a clean taxi? Where can I find a taxi? Is the water safe to drink on the causeway (called after they drank it)? Where can I get bed springs fixed?

Do I have to have an occupational license to deliver 2 loads of hay? Do I have to have a Florida drivers license to drive an ambulance?

How to stop my neighbor from walking on my grass? Will the Chamber fill out Medicare forms? The name of the place that makes teeth in South Carolina? Why doesn't the city put chlorine in the river to stop the smell?

Someone looking for easy street? How do I address the President of the United States? Where can I find a ham holder? How do I call Germany?

How do I impeach the Governor? IS IT TODAY WE GO TO VOTE?

And so it goes, with Helen taking time out from her hectic schedule to solve the sometimes "different" problems. Through it all, Helen maintains that she loves her work.

"It's interesting and challenging. I love people and here I feel I can serve in a small way," she says.

Again today, a few minutes will be spent answering one more inquiry asked by Laurel and Flynn from Gaithersburg, Maryland. It reads:

Dear Sirs:

I would like to see how much it costs to go to Florida. Would like to see Jensen Beach. Does the beach connect to the Atlantic Ocean or the Gulf of Mexico? Please send me information.

Heat waves threaten heart patients

Deaths from heart disease literally soar during the summer heat waves, particularly among elderly people, according to the American Heart Association (AHA).

While heat exhaustion and heat stroke itself accounts for a number of these deaths, Dr. J. Russell Green, Jr., President of the American Heart Association, Florida Affiliate, notes that the effect of heat on patients with heart and respiratory diseases accounts for the greatest morbidity and mortality.

The reason for this, he says, is the key role which the cardiovascular system plays in the regulation of body heat.

The body temperature of warm-blooded animals like man is regulated by a tiny control center in the brain called the hypothalamus. When man's blood rises above 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit, the hypothalamus sends chemical messages that tell the heart to pump more blood and the blood vessels to dilate, especially the tiny capillaries in the upper layers of the skin.

More blood flows through these surface vessels so that excess heat will drain off into the cooler atmosphere by heat conduction.

This works reasonably well so long as the air temperature is considerably below normal body temperature, and the humidity is not so high that your sweat cannot evaporate rapidly. When the temperature of the air is near normal body temperature, there is no conductive cooling of the blood as it circulates through the skin. And when the relative humidity rises above 60 per cent, even sweating becomes a poor cooling device; at 75 per cent humidity, it stops.

Dr. Green advises severely disabled patients to remain especially quiet on very hot, humid days. For some, air conditioning is as essential as any other aspect of their heart care—diet, drugs, for example. When air conditioning is not available, large fans, loose, light clothing, and other methods for facilitating loss of body heat are recommended.

Good heart care during the inevitable Florida hot months of July, August and September, according to the AHA, includes adequate fluid, proper clothing, rest, diet, and frequent small meals as important factors in helping prevent further damage to the cardiovascular system.

College prep school eyes new educational trends

Howey-in-the Hills, Fl. —(Special) Headmaster Theodore A. Huber of Howey Academy is on tour of major eastern prep schools to evaluate new teaching, athletic and textbook trends for possible integration into the curriculum of the Central Florida coeducational college prep school when it opens its 24th year fall semester on September 9.

As a director of Continuing Education at both Pennsylvania State University and Upper Merion Township Schools, Mr. Huber has expertise in evaluating new programs and integration of them into existing ones.

His versatility extends to dramatics and operettas. He wrote the stage guide for Amahl accepted by Menotti and Toscanini and used nationally and internationally.

Holder of the American, European and Pacific Area ribbons from World War II, he was discharged as a Senior Grade Lieutenant in the Coast Guard, serving ashore as Battalion Commander at the Manhattan Beach Training Station and at sea as gunnery and navigation officer aboard the AP General Weigel and AP General Gordon.

Insect bite can bring death

Most Floridians are merely annoyed by the bite of an insect, but for thousands of others, a single insect bite or sting can cause a medical emergency resulting within 10 to 15 minutes.

April through October is the season in Florida for the stinging insects responsible for the most serious complications - the Hymenoptera order - bees, yellow jackets, hornets, wasps and ants. One in every 1,000 Floridians are allergic to the attacks of these insects, and half are severely sensitive.

Docotors of the Florida Medical Association warn that more Floridians suffer medical emergencies as a result of insect bites and stings than as a result of snake bites. Avoiding an encounter and knowing your sensivity is key to protecting yourself.

Nests of insects in the Hymenoptera order should be destroyed when still of manageable size, and if an encounter occurs, do not swat at the insects, but move away slowly. Bright flowery clothing, jewelry and buckles and scented toiletries all attract insects and should be avoided.

BEWARE! the "RUST MONSTER"
He works 24 hours a day
QUESTION

If rust can start anywhere, including inside parts, then how can a body repairman detect all the rusted areas?
ANSWER
He can't! He doesn't have X-Ray vision, so it's impossible for him to detect rust that has started in hidden places. A body shop operator can not be held responsible for a rust condition which was undetectable at the time of a repair. Because of this, rust may appear at any time, even within days of when a vehicle was refinished.

Fire destroys mobile home in Jensen

Fire destroyed a mobile home at Bishop Cottages along Indian River Drive on Sunday evening, but no injuries were reported.

Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department Joe Luciano reports he got the fire call at 9:02 p.m. and was on the scene in three minutes. When he arrived, he found the mobile home, rented by James Turner and owned by Harold Bishop, engulfed in flames.

Three minutes after Luciano arrived, the first truck from the Jensen Fire Department arrived. After six more minutes, the fire was under control.

A total of three fire trucks, with 17 men, were dispatched to the blaze.

Through a bedroom in the trailer, the heat from the blaze was so intense that it removed the mercury from the mirrors in the bedroom and melted and twisted a fan in the room.

Luciano estimated a total value of $4,000 and firemen say it was a total loss.

The cause of the fire is said to have been in the wiring of the television set. Turner said he left the mobile home about an hour before the fire started.

Luciano praised his men for keeping the fire contained to the mobile home, as there are other mobile homes nearby.

FIRE DESTROYED this mobile home at Bishop Cottages on Sunday, even though Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen were on the scene just minutes after the call came in. The trailer, valued at about $4,000, was owned by Harold Bishop and rented by James Turner. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Feakins graduates from Dartmouth

Robert L. Feakins of 38 Fieldway Dr., Sewall's Point, Jensen Beach, was among more than 1,000 students to receive the bachelor's degree at the 209th commencement exercises of Dartmouth College, held recently.

Dartmouth College is the ninth oldest institution of higher learning in the United States and the northernmost of the eight-member Ivy League group. It was the last to receive a colonial charter from King George III of Great Britain.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Feakins, he participated in an Administrative Intern at the Hopkins Center. Feakins is an English major and a former student of the Delharton School, where he was on the Headmaster's List.

Feakins was awarded his degree with distinction in his major subject, English.

MRS. VINCENT L. BURKHARDT

Evinrude garden wedding joins Haynes-Burkhardt

BY DICK CAMPBELL

The garden hut area of the Ralph Evinrude estate was the picturesque setting for the wedding of Sharon Ann Haynes and Vincent G. Burkhardt last Saturday.

The afternoon setting sun shone through the clear air as the Rev. Paul Arnold married the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Haynes, of Hutchinson Island, Jensen Beach, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Burkhardt of West Palm Beach.

The bride is a graduate of Horsehead High School, the John Robert Powers School of Modeling, and Florida State University in Tallahassee. She is employed by Shaeffer and Co., CPA, in Boynton Beach.

The groom is a graduate of Forest Hill High School and the University of Florida, Gainesville. He is owner of Burkhardt Construction Company of West Palm Beach.

Marilyn Haynes, sister-in law of the bride, from Boynton Beach, was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids, both from West Palm Beach, were Mrs. Lorelle Haynes and Mrs. Marsha Burkhardt. Mrs. Haynes is a sister-in law of the bride and Mrs. Burkhardt is sister in law of the groom.

Miss Susan Haynes, niece of the bride from Boynton, was the junior bridesmaid.

The ring bearer was Bryan Allen Haynes, nephew of the bride from Boynton.

Serving as best man was Michael Burkhardt, the groom's brother, from West Palm Beach. Ushers included L. Allen Haynes, brother of the bride from Boynton Beach, Scott Birdsong, nephew of the groom from Virginia Beach, Va., Dennis E. Haynes, brother of the bride from West Palm Beach, and two nephews of the groom, Chip Birdsong of Virginia Beach, and Adam Penny of Valdosta, Ga., were junior ushers.

A champagne buffet was catered by the Outrigger Restaurant.

The couple plans a wedding trip to San Francisco, after which they will be at home at 1080 Mango Drive, West Palm Beach.

Cadet Kuyk at Army ROTC camp

The six-week training includes instruction in first aid, communications, marksmanship, orienteering, weapons, weapon systems, defensive and offensive tactics, recondo techniques and numerous other areas.

Most cadets are fulfilling their advanced camp requirement during the summer between their junior and senior years in college. The successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from their respective college or university will result in the student being commissioned a second lieutenant in the Active Army or the U.S. Army Reserve or National Guard.

Mirror Magic Menu

by Lee Hicks of Lucieland

Southern hospitality is shown when visiting Dottie and John Forest, 662 S.E. Chapman Ave., Port St. Lucie. Their barbequed ribs, barbequed onioned potatoes and soaked corn on the cob, served with fresh fruit in season is tempting indeed!

Celebrate the holiday weekend in style by getting out your grill and letting the "man of the house" do the cooking! John Forest's specialty is barbeque sauce!

You're always welcome to "party by the poolside" at this delightful couple's beautiful new home. Dottie has designed her kitchen for the pleasure of cooking.

Son Cory, 13, who has many artistic talents, enjoys the open spaces and relaxed atmosphere of our village, too. Originally from Wisconsin and New York, the Forests recently moved from the hustle and bustle of Fort Lauderdale and thoroughly enjoy dancing, golf, bowling and especially their membership in the Elks.

Our weather is great for John's position as superintendent for Vander Linde Construction Company and Dottie keeps accounting records for McAlpin Curtis Associates in Fort Pierce.

Try this terrific meal our holiday hosts are sharing with us .....

JOHN'S BARBEQUED RIBS

Mix about 1½ cups Open Pit Original Flavor Barbeque Sauce with ½ cup brown sugar, ¼ cup vinegar, couple drops tabasco sauce and worcestershire sauce. Stir and bring to slow boil for 5 to 10 minutes. PRECOOK ribs covered in oven with foil about 1 hour in slow oven. Put on grill, browning both sides 15 minutes each. Spread barbeque sauce on each side browning each side 15 minutes. Serve additional sauce in bowl at table.

BARBEQUED ONIONED POTATOES

Slice potatoes (1 medium per person). Use heavy duty aluminum foil and spread oil generously over foil. Put sliced potatoes on top. Add salt, pepper, onion salt, and sliced onion. Dot generously with butter. (Fold foil in double folds to prevent leaking.) Put on medium hot grill. Cook 20-30 minutes turning several times. Serve in foil.

SOAKED CORN ON THE COB

Cut small end off of corn. Peel back husks and remove hair. Soak in water or beer several hours. Wrap each cob separately in foil and place on medium hot grill. Cook about 30-40 minutes. SERVE FRESH FRUIT IN SEASON! ENJOY!

Penrod is fuel allocation officer

State Energy Director Lex Hester is encouraging Floridians experiencing hardships because of gasoline supply problems to call their County Fuel Allocation Officers for assistance.

"The Fuel Allocation Officer is much more familiar with the local supply situation than the State Energy Office is," Hester said.

Citizens experiencing harships involving health and safety should first contact their local Fuel Allocation Officer. "The County Allocation Officer will provide assistance and get in touch with the State Energy Office where appropriate," he said. The primary responsibility of the State Energy Office is to provide for the equitable statewide allocation of supplies. The agency is receiving close to two-hundred calls a day from gasoline distributors and retailers and the public. In most cases, the callers are referred to their County Fuel Allocation Officer. Hester indicated that citizens with hardship problems will save time and money by making the local call first.

The Energy Office emphasizes that inconveniences, such as problems involved with routine daily activities, are not considered hardships. Director Hester is encouraging the citizens of the state to conserve gasoline by driving less and taking necessary operational and maintenance steps to produce the maximum number of miles per gallon. "Carpools, vanpools, and public transportation should be utilized whenever possible," Hester said. "The public should not call the Allocation Officer unless it is really essential."

The Fuel Allocation Officer for Martin County is Paul Penrod and his telephone number is 283-6760, ext. 181.

Night blooming cereus

Of the many fragrant Cacti; most interesting are the nocturnals that occur like comets in the night with a season of mere hours in a span of 365 days. The plant commonly called night-blooming cereus is not a cereus, but Epiphyllum Oxypetalum. Many a gathering of neighbors has sat vigil on late summer evenings as the annual drama of the buds unfolds to reveal the large, white, bell-shaped flowers.

If you sneak out these nights, especially along the Indian River Drive, you'll see one of the area's most spectacular phenomena. The tall trees are a riot of night blooming cereus, an unforgettable nocturnal show. The big, clustery wax-like flowers, which come and go with genie-like magic, are a type of lotus, and well worth being eaten by a few mosquitoes for. But nature can't always be cereus, can it?

A SPECTACULAR bloom of the magnolia grandiflora was caught by the camera Sunday afternoon. The handsome tree can grow to 60 feet in height, and the delicate blossoms last only a day or so. (Fred Meissner photo)

FINISHING TOUCHES—Workers from EWK Paving corporation apply finishing touches to a new parking lot at the Mirror Newspaper offices on Sunview Road in Jensen Beach. The work was completed last week, and should make parking much easier for visitors to the paper. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

SUMMER EVENINGS often provide pretty sunsets, thanks to the trend in South Florida for a build-up of clouds in the afternoon. Those clouds often produce thundershowers a few hours before sunset, but when the fading sun plays its light against them, it makes getting wet worthwhile. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Sutorius' celebrate golden anniversary

After 50 years of marriage, the bride and groom looked as happy as they must have on their wedding day.

Walter and Johanne Sutorius of Rio Pine Lane in Rio were both beaming broad smiles last Friday as they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the Anchor Line Yacht Club.

It's not every day that a couple celebrates such a milestone in their lives, and this couple had plenty of friends and relatives at the yacht club to help make it a very special occasion. The club was packed with well-wishers who enjoyed cocktails, a fine dinner, and, of course, a piece of anniversary cake.

It was on June 29, 1929, that Walter Sutorius took Dr. Johanna Asmus as his wife in a ceremony at Kalurah Country Club in Binghamton, N.Y., and it was 50 years to the day that they celebrated their anniversary.

Mrs. Sutorius said she was pleased that so many relatives and friends could come down to Florida for the big event, noting that she had 14 houseguests who stayed with her and her husband for the occasion.

Mrs. Sutorius's sister, Mrs. Gordon Bedell of Chandler, Arizona, was on hand for the celebration, as was maid of honor at the wedding in 1929. The sister to the groom and junior bridesmaid at the wedding, Leona Cash of Rio, was at the party, as was Gordon Bedell, who was an usher at the wedding.

The Sutorius' son, Walter, Jr., along with his wife and their two daughters, were at the party. They're from Oakdale, L.I.

Others attending the party were the Sutorius' two daughters, Nancy Holland of Erie, Pa., and Barbara Sutorius of Baltimore, Md.

Marianne Leavitt of Dover, Del., came down for the event. She is Mrs. Sutorius's niece. Her nephew, Eddie Bedell of Scottsdale, Ariz., along with his wife Noby, came over for the party, as did Marion Bedell of Bellport, L.I. She's not related to the Sutorius', but her husband was best man at the wedding.

Motorcyclist critically injured

A Jensen Beach man, Jared Kaiser, 20, of 720 S. Indian River Drive, was found at 8:15 a.m. on Saturday, June 30 lying in a ditch beside SR 707, just east of SR 723, on top of his 1978 Yamaha.

Kaiser had been traveling west on SR 707 between 1 and 2 a.m. on Saturday when he failed to make a curve in the road, causing him to swerve and travel another 90 feet before landing in the ditch on top of his motorcycle.

Kaiser is in the surgical-intensive care unit of Martin Memorial Hospital in critical condition.

Monkey Business in Jensen Beach

A monkey was terrorizing a Jensen Beach neighborhood before the Animal Rescue League officers finally caught the animal.

Richard Atchinson, Martin County Deputy received a call just before 5 a.m. Monday from the dispatcher who said that the residents of 2220 Sunny Acres Way were attempting to catch a monkey on the loose.

When Atchinson appeared on the scene, he witnessed the monkey, later identified as a stump-tailed macaque, sitting on top of a van with a bowl of cottage cheese, a cucumber and a blanket. The neighbors had been trying those various items to lure the monkey into captivity.

Aiding in the rescue were Luther and Tamilee Edmonson, shelter manager and dogcatcher for the Rescue League. Monica and Donnie Bullerwell also joined in the chase.

Edmonson said the Animal Rescue League is investigating to determine whether the owner had a permit to keep the animal and have him properly caged. The monkey had apparently eaten through cages before.

EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

We are sorry that Marrin Bruns has had to be in Martin Memorial Hospital for a few days but are glad to hear that he is recovering and hopes to be home soon.

Betty and Bob are delighted to have their daughter, Mary Lou Lorbetski and grandchildren Mia here with them for a two day visit.

Genny and Vince Scrudato left for a trip up north. They are hoping to get as far as Ontario for a big walk but it will all depend on the gas situation.

Heard from Dot and Andy Donnelly. They are O.K. but Dot's recovery from the surgeries is still frustratingly slow.

Mary and Bill Cameron wrote that they had a very busy June with many family birthdays, anniversaries and a very special celebration for their grandson, Greg's graduation. Mary did not say whether it was high school or college from which Greg was graduated but they are very proud of him.

Martha and Jim Lewis wrote that they started wheelbarrow training meets on June 3rd at Carey Park where they had a big turnout and many somersaults in mixed. Martha and Jim entered the Pre-game for the first time and got second consecutive prize. The following week they went to Springfield Ohio and Martha placed third in the mile event in the ladies singles which earned four points toward the Roll of Champions top ten for her. This week they will be competing in the State singles three day competition here at their club in Akron. They haven't seen Arthur.

Reg and Pat Turner of Maine have spent a delightful week in Richmond, Virginia being entertained by family and friends.

The day after arriving at their Washington home they joined a group of friends at the duPont Country Club for a bus trip to Washington D.C.

The morning was spent on a guided tour of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts where programs reflect many facets of American culture. The Center was created by Congress as the national cultural center and as a presidential memorial. It has established itself as a major force in the arts nationally and internationally.

The interior as well as the exterior is Carrara marble a gift of Italy. The designer was the noted architect Edward Durell Stone. One enters The Hall of Nations where flags of all countries recognized by the United States are displayed. Nearby are the colorful flags of each state.

In the red carpeted Grand Foyer, which provides access to all three theaters are chandeliers gifts of Sweden. Mirrors gifts of Belgium. Planters gifts of India. The Eisenhower Theater named in honor of the late President and Mrs. Eisenhower has an oil portrait of "Ike" by the artist J. Anthony Wills at the entrance door. The theater is paneled in East Indian laurel and the stage curtain is a gift of Canada. The Opera House curtain is a gift of Japan, and the chandeliers with more than 130 crystal burners a gift of Austria. A bronze sculpture on the Box Tier of the Opera House is a gift of France. The President's Box at the Opera seats eight, and has the colorful Presidential Seal over the door.

The stage in the Concert Hall is in memory of John Philip Sousa and the chandeliers were a gift of Sweden. The south Opera Lounge has a brilliant Waterford Crystal chandelier, a gift of Ireland as well as tapestries reproduced from original paintings by Goya, a gift of Spain.

The Israeli Room on the Box Tier of the Concert Hall was a gift of the State of Israel, the wall in walnut by the sculptor, Nechemia Azaz. The African Room represents a unique gift from many nations of Africa. The Chinese Room displays Oriental screens and The Ching dynasty Temple Bell.

Of very special interest was a room displaying in glass cases the exquisite Porcelain Birds by the artist, Edward Boehm, who died in 1969, a gift of his widow Helen. Replicas of the two Boehm porcelain birds are there, which President Nixon took with him on his historic trip to China, as a gift from our nation to the Peoples Republic of China. These gift to us was two giant pandas, now housed in the National Zoological Park in Rock Creek Park.

The group enjoyed lunch served on the Roof Terrace of the Kennedy Center, overlooking the Potomac River, after which they explored the next door Watergate Complex, with the International shops on the ground floor.

The afternoon was spent at the East Wing of the National Gallery of Art. Funds for the construction of the east wing were given by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. I. M. Pei is the architect of the two triangular sections. From pyramidal skylights in the space framed roof to triangular patterns in the marble floors, the crisp lines and clean surfaces create a delicately crystalline quality. There are sculptures by the noted English sculptor Alexander Calder, James Rosati and David Smith.

The National Air and Space Museum, a showcase for the evolution of aviation and space technology was of special significance to the Turners. Exhibited there is the Bell X-S-1 which first exceeded the speed of sound, as a major scenic breakthrough. It was flown by Capt. Charles E. Yeager, Oct. 14, 1947. Peg's brother, Col. F.

Kendall Pass of the Air Force Flight Test Division was the pilot of the modified Boeing B-29 Superfortress which dropped the X-1 at 25,000 feet at 250 miles per hour. Col. Pass had been a member at Holiday Out and his widow Alice continues to come there each summer.

Winnie Orr Blake wrote that Marion and Bob Hedges spent the weekend [illegible] in Fitchburg Mass.

Boe Barnes is busy cleaning fish and Erma is cooking them. In the Maine waters he caught salmon and says are trout sounds yummy.

Freedom of Sam Tucker will be happy to hear he arrived in Mass. Rose & Wes Arms had breakfast with him as he left the open four hours in lines from Washington to Mass.

A family affair from Goerdy & Erma St. Louis. They [illegible] start from Rochester. Had no A/C their van was stripped [illegible] time leaving Newark, N.J. But have been going for two weeks now. To Pres. Fountainbleau, Cannes, Nice, Monte Carlo Pisa and Florence and will go on to Rome. The weather has been lovely when leaving Holland where it was cold and even snowed one night. Boat are fine and so far no trouble except the airplane food. Send to all their friends.

Nenie and Franz Paar are still traveling, going from the Gaspe thru New Brunswick to Nova Scotia. They drove 185 miles over the Canso Trail and said the scenery was just beautiful. They intended to take the boat to Newfoundland but to their disappointment discovered that reservations had been made months ago so they had to cancel that trip. They are now headed for a six hour boat trip to Bar Harbor, Maine, and back to U.S.A.

News received by Carry Ullmann—Bertha & Roy Lamon write that their raspberries are coming right along and before you know it it will be shortcake time. The Mass weather is now cooperating. They have been able to get many yard chores done, and have planned a trip to beautiful Lake George, N.Y.

Lena Black has joined some of the activities now in full swing at Greenwood Village. She is on a shuffle board league a bowie league and plays cards on Mon.

Alice Perrault writes that she is still knitting a couple of sweaters. Then she walks around the lake. She has been doing a lot of sewing and playing some cards with friends.

Jean & Mac McCabe left for a three week tour up to home in Delaware and N.J. If the gas holds up it seems harder there than we have it here.

Mac McKeever writes he had a delightful flight to Hartford, Conn. Weather bounces back and forth from 60 to 70 degrees. He & Vicki visited Jerry & Jenny Belmore in Mass and they are in a beautiful spot. The McKeevers are getting ready for a wedding in Sept. Their son will tie the Knot then.

Berryle & Cecil Roy write of their many activities. Their son visited them from Calif. while on a business trip nearby. Ralph & Jean Taylor stayed for a few days with them. Weather is unpredictable in March too.

Al Ray & Lonny Inman went fishing on the river in Lonny's boat, report is the fishing wasn't too good. But both enjoyed the trip.

Harold & Jean Meissners write like it's all work and no play since they returned to Conn. They had better return to H.Out for a rest.

Friday the Al Rays & George & Lil Bares had a lunch and a lovely boat ride at Lee & Marvin Terry's Circle Bay Condo. They are charming hosts and we miss them since they moved from the Park.

George & Lil Bares are enjoying their new screened porch and our beautiful ocean. Lil hates hot weather but finds the weather here delightful because of the breezes we always have.

The Lee Prices had a threatening on their porch. The Al Rays enjoyed a watermelon.

Bob & Kay Wiley left Monday for Germany and we hope we will hear from them as they travel for the month.

Mable & Hal Theimers finally came up from West Palm for a short stay. Also their neighbors, the Rileys came up to enjoy their new porch.

Bob & Rita Royal came up from Miami for the week. They both enjoy it here.

Fred & Eleanor Quaderer had a enjoyable day with several friends from Kingswood and Port St. Lucie. They had lunch on the patio, then

Coordinator, Harriett Price

A meeting was held at the Rec Hall Friday morning and plans were made for a 4th of July picnic. At least 20 people will attend, grill steaks and later watch the fireworks on the causeway. We will report on it in the next issue.

A letter from Winnie Windlake from Mass said Sam Tucker arrived safely but tired from his auto train trip. His sciatica was still bad and his doctor said he must have complete bed rest for at least two weeks. It will be quite a chore to keep Sam quiet and happy for that time. All are wishing him a quick recovery.

Barbara Clark writes that Stanley is home from the hospital and doing well.

A call from Betty Drinkard on Sunday said they send greetings to all. Paul is busy working around their place. The weather there is rather dreary and cold. We offered to send them some of our extreme heat.

Also heard from Pat and Larry Belt, who are very busy. Larry is doing some fishing and bringing home the fish. Pat says the clamming on their lake front is excellent. Their cottages are full in spite of the gas situation which is bad up there on Long Island. They hope it doesn't worsen. They also send their regards to all.

Jane and Guy Richdale's daughter Janet and son-in-law George are visiting for a few days. They are from Orlando and Janet works at Disney World.

Jane's brother, Philip Englesbe and wife Cynthia, from Wayne N.J. are spending a few days here too, in their trailer.

Bob and Grace Murphy got to Virginia with no gas problems, and are on the way to Vermont.

Mike, Barbara and Jennifer Price came up from Jupiter in their boat to spend two days at Grandma and Grandpa Price's. Jennifer enjoyed the little pool and the ride up. She looked real cute in her tiny-size life jacket.

Kay and Howard Koepka went to River Ranch for a week-end of square dancing and visiting many old friends from Miami.

Bud and Yvonne Wiencke say they are sleeping under blankets and have a fire now and then. Then the weather changes and it gets hot.

Roger and Shirley Miller wrote to say they are going to Canada to fish for a week.

Keep our American flags flying. Did you know ours was upside down for a short time on Sunday, till someone from Holidays Out spotted it, and put it up right?

Fran Tener returned from her trip to Washington. She had a very good time, but was happy to get back for a daily dip in the pool.

Not much news, and although many say they enjoy reading the news, there can be no news unless you write or call Harriet Price or Jessie Shaver to pass on what you know. Please do.

Happy Birthday to Sam Tucker on July 2nd and Fran Tener on July 9th. Gail and Frank Lawson got to Las Cruces, N.M. for the Airstream Rally. Frank is on the parking committee. They head for Canada and the North west, then to Mexico for the Happy Back Caravan.

Shermans celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sherman of Union Lake, Michigan, and Ocean Breeze Park, Florida celebrated their Golden Anniversary at a reception given by their two sons and families at the Elks Lodge in Rochester, Michigan on June 2. The Shermans were married on June 2, 1929 at Pontiac, Michigan. They have two children, Robert A. of Troy, Michigan, and Richard G. of Rochester, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

We love to get letters

Thank you, Arnold Sherman.

Dear Leta: As we are celebrating our Golden Anniversary, I thought it would be nice to send a small article for our paper in Florida. We do hope that all of our friends down there are well and happy. Things are okay with us and we are having normal Michigan weather, some extra good and some not so good. Margaret has had some letters from friends and we watch the news and Florida weather report. So, by reading the Mirror we try to keep up with the news.

Hazel Wilson to Ellen and Jim Nixon: "I have been in Alexandria, Virginia with my daughter Jean for six weeks. She brought me up to Kingwood, W. Va. on June 12. Jean will be with me another week, then she will have to go back to Alexandria to work. We are getting my little house unbuttoned and polished up. Then I will go from there. It's lonely up here now. Love and best wishes, Hazel."

Another missive from Ernie and Marion Cuevas: "Here we are at Stone Mountain. We came for a day and stayed ten. We are having a ball, however, getting here wasn't easy. Five years as homebodies we sure forgot some things. When we opened the travel trailer door we found a mess of Wesson Oil, Crisco, and stuff on the floor and rug. Marion sputtered and Ernie put on a catch. Pulling off on soft sandy shoulders means getting out the mats and shovels. Sailing down the highway with TV antenna extended resulted in a tent up affair. Oh well, we now know better so on we go to Rock City for a few days before heading for our Campgrounds. Host duties at Lake Sherando. Va. Senior Citizen booklet is offered by Bafalis

Retired residents of Florida's 10th Congressional District may find some interesting information in a new publication now available from U.S. Rep. L.A. "Skip" Bafalis.

The publication, "1979 Information Source for Senior Citizens," is a 20-page pamphlet outlining details of Social Security benefits, Medicare, Veterans benefits, Supplemental Security Income program benefits and other services available to senior citizens, Bafalis said.

In addition, the pamphlet lists addresses of state agencies assisting the elderly and provides addresses and phone numbers for every Social Security Administration office in the 10th District, the Congressman noted.

The pamphlet, prepared by the staff of the House Republican Research Committee, is being made available to senior citizens by the Congressman.

To obtain a copy of the booklet, senior citizens need only contact either of Bafalis's district offices—700 Virginia Avenue, Fort Pierce, Florida 33450.

The 3,000 pamphlets will be distributed on a first come, first served basis.

Mowry's 272 wins PGA

BY DONNIE WILKIE

In past seasons, Maitland golf professional Larry Mowry has skipped the Florida PGA-General Development Open, instead playing in the richer Colorado Open, which until this year was played in the same week.

This year, however, with the two tournaments separated by two weekends, Mowry, armed with a nation-wide reputation, decided to come to Port St. Lucie and try his hand in the Open.

It proved to be a wise decision.

The 42 year-old Mowry emerged from a strong field of 370 golfers, including almost 100 amateurs, to capture the $4000 first prize Sunday, outdistancing Boynton Beach's Laurie Hammer by two strokes.

The credit for the victory, reflected Mowry, belonged to his wife of nearly seven years, Karen.

"She woke me up on Tuesday and told me she dreamt I'd shoot a 16-under par (272) in this tourna ment," said the champion. "I really didn't think about it much until today when I came up to putt on the eighteenth green. Then, she came up to me and reminded me about the dream. I thought, 'Hey, I'd better not miss it now.' Otherwise, my great story would be spoiled."

Hammer, who led after Saturday's third round when he shot a five-under par 67 for a 202 total, struggled on Sunday, unable to sink crucial putts that could have helped him keep the lead. Instead, it was Miamian Gary Baker, along with Mowry, who dueled it out in the Sunday sunshine.

Baker trailed Mowry by only a stroke at the midway point of the tour nament, but faded on Saturday with an even-par-72. On Sunday, he made a thunderous rush at the leaders, scorching the first nine holes in just 31 strokes. At one point, after the twelfth hole, he was tied with Mowry for the tourney lead.

But a costly bogey by Baker and the sudden realization by Mowry that he, in fact, had a chance to win the tourna ment told the story in the final five holes.

"I was beside myself yesterday," admitted Mowry after the completion of the event. "I thought I might be able to shoot 66 or 67 on Saturday, but I just couldn't get any birdies on the back nine. I really thought I had blown it."

"When I birdied the fourteenth hole, i realized I might have a chance to win. i just didn't want to do anything stupid the rest of the way. Then, when I birdied sixteen, I really began to think I could win it."

Asked if he was helped at all by the news of Hammer's downfall (Hammer was playing just ahead of him on the course), Mowry responded: "I don't really like to keep track of where I am in the standings. When you get that far along, you just like to know if you're close, and then you have to settle down and worry about your own shot. No matter what happens to the other guy, you still have to play your own round."

Thundershowers plagued the tour nament on Friday and Saturday, at one point delaying play for an hour, thirty five minutes on Saturday. But when thefinal round came, the clouds departed, making for an exciting and worry free finish for the ever-growing event.

Mowry's 272 was a record for the event since it has moved to Sandpiper Bay, but according to Florida Section executive director Roger Ganem, it "is impossible to tell if it's a record for the tournament," because of some of the out-of-the-way places and courses it visited in its 30-year existence.

Behind Hammer and Baker at 204 and 205, respectively, were Keith Parker (St. Augustine), with a 206, and low amateur Mark Calcavecchia of West Palm Beach with a 207 total.

Among local linksmen, Larry Rinker of Stuart finished highest, shooting a seven-under par 281 and winning $1000 in his second profes sional effort. Low ares amateur was Stuart product J. D. Murchison, who attends Indian River Community College. Murchison recorded a two under total of 286.

Sandpiper Bay holds the rights to the event for the next two years, and Ganem adds that "we may find a way to keep it here indefinitely."

Cunningham is not satisfied with 300

BY DONNIE WILKIE

While Larry Mowry of Maitland and Laurie Hammer of Boynton Beach fought it out for the championship in the 1979 Florida PGA-General Development Open last week at Sandpiper Bay, Jensen Beach's lone entrant, Steve Cunningham, was playing in virtual obscurity.

Now in most cases, that would not be unusual. But in the case of a player who has been at the brink of PGA tour success, it is—or it was. And while Mowry and Hammer each shot better than last year's winner, Tony Valentine, who posted a 275 to win the 1978 Open, Cunningham ballooned to a 12-over-par 300, leaving the 29-year-old Jensenite less than pleased with his effort.

"I'm just trying to get back into golf," remarked Cunningham Monday. "I've been off for a while (almost four years! trying to get the financial end of things back into shape, and now I'm ready to start playing seriously again."

In Cunningham's case, playing serious golf isn't hard.

"I grew up on golf courses," he commented. "I caddied when I was nine years old at Sunset Hills in Edwardsville, Illinois, just off the campus of Southern Illinois University. Then, I kind of drifted around. I went to the St. Louis area and worked at a club until I went into the service."

Cunningham was stationed in Vietnam from October, 1969 to January, 1971.

"I was in the service for exactly three years, nine months and one day," tells Cunningham. "I played some golf, but I didn't really get going again until I started working at Deerfield CC (in Illinois). I worked there for a year, then in Aurora for four years more."

He even tells of when he discovered Sandpiper Bay professional Chuck Johnson was from Aurora.

"I came down here once to play the winter tour, and I was playing at Sandpier. I started talking to Chuck, and all of a sudden I found out he played at Phillips Park (the golf course in Aurora) just like I did."

In the last few years, though, Cunningham has come to realize that it takes a lot more than desire to be successful at the game of golf—namely money.

"It's so competitive, you can blow $30,000 to $35,000 in a year trying to play the tour, and if you play your head off and get hot, you might make some money."

Cunningham didn't. At least not enough to survive, so he came to Jensen Beach and opened Morano's Pizza in September, 1976. The name of the business, he says, came from the maiden name of his wife, Donna, who recently gave birth to a baby boy.

"I started the pizza place to try to get back on my feet," said Cunningham. "But now, I've got the bar and snack bar at F.I.T., so I decided to sell Morano's"—which he did on May 29 of this year.

And now, well now is a new beginning for Cunningham, who dreams of "establishing a driving range and a putt-putt golf course in Jensen Beach." He finished eleventh at a tournament at Dodge Pines in Vero Beach two weeks ago, and plans to enter the Palm Beach County Open (36 holes) this weekend in Palm Beach Gardens.

But last weekend was not a happy one. Cunningham shot rounds of 76-72-73-79 for his 300 total, and the last round especially irritates him.

"I went out and tried to shoot zero on the last day," he said. "I figured I needed a 67 to make any kind of money in the tournament. I had a quick chance for birdie on the first hole, but missed the putt, and then I three-putted the second hole."

In all, Cunningham bogeyed eight of his next nine holes, leaving him too far behind the leaders to catch up. But he played the final seven holes in one-under par, showing flashes of the Cunningham he knows he can produce.

After the round, Cunningham echoed the comments of the rest of the field.

"The greens are too slow," he said, as did about 300 other golfers. "Most of your quality players are used to faster greens. What made it worse was when you had to play a morning round. Everything would still be wet, and when you put grass and water between your putter and the hole, it will mess up the good putters. The funny thing is, it usually makes the lousy putters do good."

Does Cunningham have any more PGA tour aspirations?

"No, I don't think so," he answered. "If I get a job as a golf pro at a Country Club, I'll automatically be able to enter tournaments, but the only ones I would want to play are the ones in Florida (Jacksonville, Tallahassee, Miami, Fort Lauderdale and Orlando) and maybe the Western Open (in Chicago, where he often played before). I was going to try to qualify for the Danny Thomas-Memphis classic this past weekend, but with the baby coming and all, it's been a very hectic month."

But no matter how hectic his month is or how high a score he shot, Steve Cunningham holds the bragging rights in Jensen Beach after the 1979 Open. And what about 1980:

"I'm just going to do a lot of practicing for about six months," added Cunningham. "Maybe next year I'll shoot 270 instead of 300.

"I really think I can win the Florida Open."

Two amateurs break record at Sandpiper

NEW SANDPIPER RECORD: Amateur Mark Lettman of Jacksonville, playing in his first Open tournament ever, grabbed the first round lead, shooting an incredible round of 65. His effort was proven even more remarkable when it was announced that it marked the lowest score for an amateur in any single round of the Open since it's been at Sandpiper Bay.

Alas, records are made to be broken (or at least tied), and Stuart amateur J. D. Murchison tied Lettman in that category a day later when he carded a likewise brilliant 65. While Murchison finished as the seventh lowest amateur in the event, Lettman struggled after Thursday's record round, shooting 65-74-77-73, for a total of 289.

Bond takes fourth in six-hour race

Tilton winds up 10th

BY BOB FRYER

Rusty Bond and Ren Tilton of Jensen Beach normally share driving duties in their Porsche 911 when they go racing, but on Sunday, both drove in separate cars, and both finished well in the Champion 6 Six-Hours of Daytona.

Bond, who served as co-driver for Mike Meyer of West Palm Beach in Meyer's Mazda RX-3, finished fourth.

Tilton, who got an unexpected last-minute chance to co-drive with James Reeve of Atlanta in a Buick Skyhawk, moved up from 60th place at the start of the race to lead the race after eight laps. He held the lead until the 65th lap, but a gearbox problem eventually slowed the car and the Skyhawk wound up 10th when the checkered flag fell.

Don Whittington and Dennis Shaw won the race in an AMC Spirit; Lyn St. James, Buzz Carson and Tom Waugh were second in an AMC Concord, and Roger Mandeville and Diego Febles were third in an RX-3. Bond and Meyer were only one lap behind the winners when the race ended.

The endurance race was sanctioned by the International Motor Sports Association (IMSA), and it was for Radial Sedan class cars. Rules for that class require street radial tires on the cars, rather than race tires, and the rules require stock chassis and parts for the cars.

Normally, Bond and Tilton compete as a team in their Porsche 911 in another IMSA class for more exotic cars than the Radial Sedan variety. But many top-name drivers from other IMSA classes hopped into the little RS cars for the race in order to compete for points in the driver's standings for the series of World Challenge for Endurance races. For instance, Whittington recently teamed up with his brother, Bill, and a German driver to take a victory in a Porsche turbo at the famous 24 Hours of LeMans in France, but the chance of more endur ance points in the six-hour race lured Whittington to enter it.

Originally, Bond was to co-drive for Meyer in the Sunday race while Tilton was planning to skip that race and come to Daytona on Sunday to help Bond prepare their Porsche for the 250-mile Paul Revere Midnight Ride race beginning Tuesday night at midnight. But Tilton got to Daytona before the start of the six-hour race Sunday and Reeve asked if he'd like to co-drive the Skyhawk. Tilton agreed, and though a secretary at the Tilton real Estate office in Jensen reported that Tilton was not used to the Skyhawk at all and had trouble reaching the pedals, he apparently drove an excellent race.

Meyer's car was new and untested, with preparation of it completed only a few days before the race. Since Meyer and Bond didn't know how the car would perform, Bond said before the race that he was not overly optimistic of a good finish. Instead of the normal strategy Bond and Tilton use for endurance races—of running a slow but steady pace and hoping competi tors will drop out with mechanical problems—Bond and Meyer decided before the race to run the new Mazda as hard as they could. They figured with that strategy they may get lucky enough to finish in top five, or the car would break and they wouldn't finish at all. Apparently, the car ran well.

The Paul Revere race began a few hours after The Mirror's press deadline, but a report on Bond and Tilton's entry in the event will appear in next week's issue.

A Palm Beach Post account of the six-hour race stated that Bond and Tilton "used to be partners." They're still partners, and plan to enter their Porsche 911 in several more IMSA races this year.

Americans win first two games

Playing with a renewed spirit after eleven consecutive losses, the Martin County Americans, Jensen Beach Post 126's entry in the American Legion circuit, recorded their first two victories of the current campaign over the weekend.

Shortstop Julie Quesada, of Clewis ton, smashed a 410 foot home run over the right-center field fence Saturday night as the M-Americans nipped Palm Beach Post 12, 2-1, in the second game of a doubleheader at Hobe Sound.

The doubleheader, as well as a single-game loss to Lake Worth Post 47 last Wednesday night, was played at Hobe Sound due to what MC Manager Pete Howanitz termed "unacceptable playing conditions" at Sailfish Park, the M-Americans' usual home.

Post 126 split the Saturday night twin bill (7-inning games), losing the first game, 8-3, before bouncing back to take the nightcap.

Sunday, the M-Americans made it two in a row with a convincing, 7-1 thrashing of Lake Worth Post 47, at Palm Beach Junior College.

"We were up to our old tricks," said Howanitz of the Saturday loss to Post 12. "We committed six errors, and all of them were those picky, little mistakes that you just can't have. The little things are what hurt."

Brent Laycock "didn't pitch a bad game," according to the M-Americans' skipper, giving up only one earned run. Martin County gathered just four hits, while Post 12 collected six.

Randy Smith opened game two with a walk, and Quesada followed soon after with his tape-measure shot that gave the M-Americans all the offensive support they needed to post their first victory.

Steve Raxroad, tabbed by Howanitz as the team's "stopper" the rest of the way down the stretch, pitched a complete game, allowing just three hits.

"He's been away for awhile, so I haven't been able to use him," commented Howanitz. "But he throws the ball hard and I'm really pleased with him so far. I'm mainly counting on him as an ace reliever as we head toward the playoffs."

Sunday's victory could be called "easy," the first time the M-Americans could so brag this year. Rick Bright, of Jensen Beach, threw six good innings before opening the seventh with a walk and two more balls. Howanitz turned to Bobby Jones to wrap up the victory, and the latter recorded the save.

Post 126 quickly jumped to a 5-0 edge before Bright faltered in the seventh. Lake Worth scored its only run of the afternoon in that frame, and it was charged against Bright.

Martin County turned three double plays and for the second game in a row, made only one defensive miscue. At the plate, Quesada continued his hot streak, notching three hits.

"We've got to play twice as hard as our opponents to win," said Howanitz. "We've got by far the youngest team in the league."

Out of the M-Americans' 15 players, ten will return next year, while six of those can play for two more years. It is a quite unusual American Legion baseball roster.

Howanitz also pointed out that of the M-Americans' eleven defeats, seven of them have been by one run.

"I was worried about pitching when the season began, but I think we're improving. I've got four guys (Jeff Blair, Bright, Raxroad and Laycock) who are throwing well."

"Laycock has been the biggest surprise. It's incredible how much he's improved just in the last year. he's probably been our most consistent pitcher this year."

"It really doesn't matter what we do in our last five games," concluded Howanitz. "We just need to improve. We don't have as much talent as the other teams, but if we can go into the playoffs with a winning attitude, it would certainly help."

The young athletes

Age doesn't bother tennis youngsters

This is the second in an in-depth series of articles featuring the "Young Athletes" of the Jensen Beach-Port St. Lucie area. This week, The Mirror focuses on a group of tennis youngsters at Indian River Plantation, all of whom are under 17 years of age and most of whom are 10 or under.

BY DONNIE WILKIE

A group of tennis aspirants is lined up near the net on Indian River Plantation's Center Court. One by one, they step away from the group, each getting three chances to hit a basic tennis forehand. Most of them either miss the ball completely or hit it a foot over somewhere over the fence surrounding the double-court facility. Yet, none of the mistakes or no-hits seem to faze the kids at all.

Suddenly, a pudgy, happy figure emerges from the line. It is the frame of 9-year-old Bryan Turnbull. Three times BIP assistant pro Bryan Harper hits the small, yellow ball at young Turnbull and three times the little one swings mightily.

All three times, the ball rolls meekly into the net just five or six yards in front of Turnbull.

It's all part of the third annual Martin County Indian River Plantation Summer Tennis Clinic, conducted by BIP pro Tom Falkenburg.

Falkenburg feels it's now the Cleveland Cardinals become a part of the 1979 game.

"We found out there was one boy with no racket so we gave him one to use and subsequently he started watching to make the way his partner was playing tennis and then got a ball chasing it and he had his racket that he wanted to start trying to play with."

Bryan Harper was out on the court each day from 1 to 4 p.m. playing the tennis I believe growing game and taking the time to tell the kids.

The new Boynton resident master's Falkenburg who once was a 9-year-old boy is one of his campers. "The important thing is that the kids be able to learn how to control the ball and make contact with it. You'd be surprised, though, I have some students that are 40 or 45 years old that can't do that."

MISCUE? Falkenburg watches as Bryan Harper tosses a ball to young Turnbull and then misses it completely. Harper is one of several BIP assistant pros helping Falkenburg with the tennis clinic.

The instruction from Falkenburg seems to rub off on his young charges. Turnbull, for instance, has been playing tennis for only a few weeks and he's improved one hundred percent."

Fire fizzles; showdowns next week

Carl Kriskol ripped three hits and scored three runs, leading The Deck to a season-ending 20-5 rout of the Jensen-Rio Fire Department.

The loss, coupled with a 14-9 setback last Wednesday night against First Federal of Martin County, left the JB Rio Fire with a dismal 0-7 record for 1979, despite a respectable team batting average of .339.

Don Wilkie came on in relief of starting and losing pitcher Will Bowman in the fifth frame, and ripped two hits to help his own cause, but the other bats only served to pour water all over his fire.

Mark Poormon had three runs batted in for the winners (3-4), who scored seven runs in both the fourth and seventh innings and recorded at least one tally in every frame of the fiasco.

Mike Rogge, Don Lindh, Mike White, Forrest Moore and Poormon all smacked two hits for The Deck, who came away with 18 hits on the night. Chris Slater was the game's winning pitcher, although he needed seventh inning help from John Conway.

Fletcher Smith smashed four straight singles to help Headquarters to a 12-10 upset of the First Baptist Church of Stuart, eliminating the Baptists from contention for the regular season championship and the top seed in the post-season tournament.

Kirt Brautigam brought in four runs with a two-run sacrifice fly ball in the first inning and a two-run single in the sixth inning. His final hit proved to be the game-winner.

Bob Komara had Monday night's only extra base hit, a first inning double, and he finished with two hits on the game. Teammates Steve Zelenski, John Smith, Randy Enloe and Alan Morris each contributed two hits, while for the Baptist Church, Bill Hascup had three hits.

Headquarters raised its final league record to 2-5 with the victory. Its only other win came in an 11-0 whitewashing of the Jensen-Rio Fire Department.

First Federal 14 JB-Rio Fire 9

In one of last Wednesday's games, Greg Sprauer and Nick Barker each banged three hits, leading First Federal of Martin County to a 14-9 victory over the Jensen-Rio Fire Department.

Donnie Wilkie smashed three hits in three times at bat, including a sacrifice fly and four runs batted in, and his father, Don, chipped in with three hits of his own, but the family feud wasn't enough to knock FFMC off their undefeated second-place perch.

The Fire led most of the night, but withered in dismay as Frank Knott slammed a three run home run in the fifth inning to cut the margin to just 9-7.

Then the roof caved in.

After two were out in the sixth inning, FFMC scored the tying run on an error at third base by Arnold St. Clair. Then, Doug Hughes singled with the bases loaded, and ended up scampering all the way around the bases when outfielder Lou Stockbower overran the ball. This gave FFMC a 13-9 edge, and moments later, Steve Coy belted an inside-the-park home run to give First Federal its final run of the night.

WSTU Radio 9 Headquarters 1

In the week's most no-hum game, WSTU Radio easily disposed of Headquarters, 9-1, in last Wednesday night's featured game at Langford Park.

Gary Shelt had three rbis batted in for the Radio Wonders, who upped their record to 3-2, while teammate Dave George smacked four hits in four trips to the plate, giving him the second highest batting average in the Civic League, according to The Jensen Beach Mirror's latest statistics, released Tuesday, July 3.

In addition to swinging a heavy bat, Shelt pitched a wonderful game, allowing just two hits. They were back-to-back shots in the third frame, as Kenny Fields tripled and scored on Randy Enloe's single.

WSTU exhibited a tremendously improved defense, forcing Headquarters to fly out 14 times while grounding out seven times. Shelt walked only one batter, and committed but one error.

HANDSOME SIGN—It took a lot of work to erect this sign, both before and after the fact. First, of course, the Martin County basketball Tigers had to win the state AAAA championship in Lakeland, which they did, with a 72-67 win over Lakeland High in the final game. Then, Ed Norton and his crew of Stuart Kiwanians had to put the signs in the ground, saluting the championship effort. This sign, which stands near the Florida Power and Light Sub-Station on U.S.1 just north of the Jensen cut-off road, is one of the three of its kind. One was scheduled to be posted at the South County Line and another at the Stuart Turnpike exit.

NORTH CAROLINA MOUNTAINS

Mountain cabin with fireplace. Dandy garden spot. This is a handy man special because it is not finished inside, roughed wired and plumbing completed. Water and the outside is completed. Large deck overlooking mountains. You can live in it while you finish it up. 5 Miles from Murphy. $22,500.00, $5,000 down assume loan.

4.9 acres secluded with real good access. About 1 acre garden area or pasture. Plenty of room to build 3 or 4 houses. Lays gentle. Large trees cover this tract. Plenty of privacy. $9,950.00, $1,500 down payment. Plenty of wild game and good fishing in this area.

2 Acres for a camper trailer or anything you desire to use it for. All wooded, borders a good gravel road which gives good access. Plenty of Mountain Laurel, plenty of wild game in the nearby forest. Owner needs to sell this tract $4,450.00. Terms $1,000 down assume loan.

These are a few of over 2000 listings. We have all types of property from $500.00 per acre and up. We have small tracts, we also have several cabins, houses, old farms, etc. Write or call today for a free listing brochure. You can call free by dialing 1-800-438-7421. Write or call today.

Valliant effort fails to save man's life

Lisa and Paul Toffoli of Farmington, Michigan, made a valiant but unsuccessful effort recently to save the life of a man stricken by a heart attack on the beach just south of Oceana condominium.

The Toffolis were walking on the beach around 10 a.m. Sunday, June 23, when they spotted Vincent Horbon of Lot 160 in Windmill Village lying on the beach. While Lisa administered cardi pulmonary resuscitation, which she learned in a high school class, her brother, Paul, ran frantically for a phone to call an ambulance.

Ruth Bowes, Holiday Out columnist for The Mirror, reports young Paul had difficulty in locating a phone, but finally found one at Holiday Out. She said Lisa had no idea how long Horbon had been stricken, but said the girl tried for about 30 minutes to revive him before the ambulance crew arrived.

After placing the call for an ambulance, Paul waited along A1A to direct the ambulance to the scene.

Lisa and Paul are the niece and nephew of Palma and John Smaniotto. The Toffoli's own a lot in Holiday Out and were here for a two week vacation before returning to their Michigan home. Mrs. Bowes said the park residents were proud of the valiant effort the two youths made.

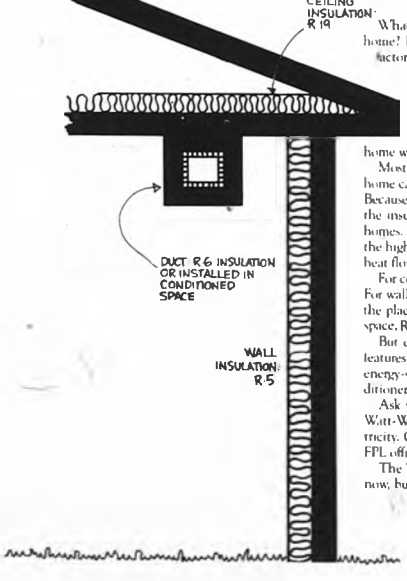
How new Watt-Wise Living™ homes save up to 25% on electricity.

EXAMPLE 2:

Insulation.



What makes a Watt-Wise™ home a Watt-Wise home? Proper insulation, for one thing. It's a big factor in conserving energy.

When you're running your air conditioner you obviously don't want any outside heat coming in. And when you're heating your home, you don't want that heat to get away. That's why you'll find your new Watt-Wise home well insulated.

Most experts estimate that a properly-insulated home can substantially cut heating and cooling costs. Because of this, there are recommended standards for the insulation used in all areas of new Watt-Wise homes. They're based on R (resistance) values. And the higher the R-value, the greater the resistance to heat flow.

For ceilings, the Watt-Wise recommendation is R-19. For walls, it ranges from R-5 to R-11, depending on the placement and type of wall. Floor over a crawl space, R-19. Duct insulation, R-6. Entrance door, R-5.

But effective insulation is just one of the many features of a Watt-Wise home. Others can include an energy-saving water heater, a higher-efficiency air conditioner, treated glass and more efficient appliances.

Ask your builder to show you how a certified Watt-Wise home can save you up to 25% on electricity. Or pick up a Watt-Wise Living folder at your FPL office.

The Watt-Wise Living home. It costs a little more now, but in the long run it costs a whole lot less.

Question:
My daughter told me that the ... for my Medicare medical ... has gone up. Was it?

Answer:
Yes. The basic medical insurance ... increased from $8.20 to $8.70 ... for the 12-month period ... July 1, 1979. The increase is necessary because medical insurance costs have risen as a result of higher charges for medical services. By law, however, the premium increase cannot be more than the percentage increase in social security cash benefits during the previous year.

Question:
I didn't work long enough under social security to be entitled to Medicare hospital insurance, so I'm thinking of buying it. How much is the monthly hospital insurance premium now?

Answer:
The basic hospital insurance premium is $68 a month (up from $63) for the 12-month period starting July 1, 1979. This premium represents the current cost of Medicare hospital insurance protection. Under the law, the hospital insurance premium cannot be changed more often than once a year.

Question:
My next-door neighbor told me that SSI payments went up this year. What are the new payment amounts?

Answer:
Effective with July 1979, the basic Federal SSI payments are $208.20 for an eligible individual and $312.30 for an eligible couple, up from $189.40 and $284.10, respectively.

Question:
My mother gets SSI payments. I know she's supposed to report any changes in her income to social security. But, do all kinds of income have to be reported?

Answer:
Under SSI, income includes anything a person receives–even items that do not have to be reported for income tax purposes. Some examples are wages received as an employee; net earnings from self-employment; food, shelter, and clothing; annuities and pensions; VA compensation or pension; railroad retirement benefits; unemployment insurance; rents and interest; support and alimony payments; strike pay and other union benefits; and gifts and inheritances. For more information, contact any social security office.

Question:
I get monthly SSI payments. Next month, I am going into the hospital. Do I have to report this to social security?

Answer:
Yes. You should notify social security promptly if you enter or leave a hospital, skilled nursing facility, nursing home, intermediate care facility, residential institution, or correctional institution.

SKYLAB MODEL -With the determination brought about through the proper construction and security of the guaranteed Mirror/Skylab Deflection Kit, Mirror editor Dick Campbell models the patented device. It can be saved for future such fallout of government satellites, not just Skylab. It is another use of The Mirror, the newspaper that works beyond reading.

The Mirror Skylab deflection kit; free and it is guaranteed

BY DICK CAMPBELL

Residents of this area need not fear "The Skylab is falling." The Skylab is falling." Through good old Mirror ingenuity there has been created The Mirror Skylab deflection kit.

We believe our subscribers come first, on land, on sea, on the St. Lucie and Indian Rivers, and in the air.

The only cost of the kit is two Mirror newspapers. If you are already a subscriber, just buy one more. Of course, if you want a touch of nostalgia, you can use a week old Mirror.

We urge all residents not to use this week and last week newspapers, however, as the colors clash. Orange and red do not blend well, and the distraction of non blending colors might attract a higher amount of Skylab particles than the deflection kit can withstand.

The Skylab deflection kit is guaranteed by Mirror consumer testing department. (Bob Fryer stood on the Mirror second floor, throwing paper clips down on Editor Dick Campbell's deflector kit. Not one penetrated the kit. Fryer was subdued by The Mirror Security Force when he tried to test a concrete block.)

To construct the kit, take two copies of The Mirror. Remove the second section and the hurricane Section, produced by The Mirror Special Section Production Department.

Roll two sections to fit head size. (If there is more than one member of your family, go out and buy two issues of The Mirror for each person. (One issue can be used for children if you don't mind a hurricane floating around on their heads.)

Make a "captains hat" out of the other by folding in the two corners of the fold. Scotch-taping each. Fold the sides up over the two folds, making certain to keep the name "The Mirror" on the outside. (If the name is not on the outside it will not work.)

Scotch tape the two parts together, and see if it fits on your head. If it doesn't, go out and buy two more copies of The Mirror and start over. Practice makes perfect.

The Mirror Consumer Testing Department has created this kit to offset the expensive and foolish items now being sold. They are just making money for the people who invent them, and aren't worth the paper they are made of.

The Mirror, on the other hand, is useful. You can actually read the ads as you go shopping wearing your Skylab Deflection Kit.

If the Skylab has already fallen by the time the new paper arrives, save it. There will be another satellite falling soon. The Post Office Department has not endorsed the Skylab Deflection Kit, nor has it guaranteed that the newspaper will arrive on the date that the Skylab will fall.

Two finalists

The field of candidates has been narrowed to two for a new Martin County Civil Defense director.

County commissioners voted Tuesday to recommend the names of two persons to state Civil Defense officials for the job and to allow the state officials to make a final decision. The two finalists are Jack LaMar, a resident of the county, and William O'Brien of Port Eustis, Va.

Acting Civil Defense director Steve Wells applied for the job but apparently wasn't favored by the commissioners.

Turtle watch dispute is brewing

BY BOB FRYER

There were more turtles and fewer people at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce turtle watches this year, and a dispute between chamber officials and turtle researcher Ross Witham may mean an end to watches in future years.

Chamber board member Fred Meeker noted that only about 500 persons showed up for the first turtle watch of the season on Saturday, June 30, and only about 300 persons were on hand for the second watch last Saturday. In the past there have been 2,000 to 3,000 persons attending turtle watches.

Meeker said after a question and answer period for spectators at Jensen Public Beach at the first watch, local sea turtle researcher Witham "took spin in front of about 500 people and proceeded to make a relative spectacle of himself."

Meeker said Witham asked the watch organizers if they had a permit to conduct the watch. Meeker said he did not have a permit, but that he explained to Witham what he had gone through in trying to get the blessing of the state Department of Natural Resources for the turtle watch.

Meeker said prior to the turtle watches this year he had called the state Department of Natural Resources office in Tallahassee five times to ask for DNR approval of the watch, but said he never got the man he was calling for, even though he asked the secretary for a call-back. Chamber President Jon Chicky said he called the offices of U.S. Representative L. A. "Skip" Bafalis and state Representative Chuck Nergard. He said he finally got told by Nergard to go ahead with plans for the watch. Chicky said Nergard told him the DNR was in chaos.

Meeker said he notified the Sheriff's Department so deputies could be on hand, but when the watch was to be held he learned that wires had been crossed and deputies thought it would be July 30 instead of June 30. Meeker said that once the lawmen found out the correct date, deputies were quickly on hand to direct traffic.

Meeker said a message to the Florida Marine Patrol office to request patrolmen there for the first watch was lost and that the patrolmen were busy chasing a boat full of pot instead of at the watch. Chicky said marine patrol officers did attend the second watch.

"There has been a big problem between the DNR and the chamber. The DNR was supposed to contact the chamber, but the individual in charge of it did not do it," Meeker said.

Meeker said that apparently one of Witham's objections to the watch was the use of four-wheel drive vehicles on the beach. he said the chamber had four such vehicles on hand for the first watch, which was held after the discussion with Witham, and said at the second watch a three wheel motorcycle type vehicle, similar to one used by turtle researchers, was used.

Meeker said Witham threatened two persons who work for Florida Institute of Technology who were on hand to help out with the first watch—with their jobs. Later, in relating the problems with the watches, Meeker commented, "The DNR people I've talked to have all used threats."

Meeker said a meeting is planned within the next two weeks between chamber officials and Witham to see if a solution to the problem can be worked out, and added, "It is inevitable changes will have to be made in future watches."

When board member Gene Greenwood of FIT asked Meeker, "Is a permit required?", Meeker said last year one was not required and that he didn't know one was required for this year's watches. However, he later said that a federal law prohibits the molesting of an endangered species and that green sea turtles are on the endangered list. He said federal officials have the right to stop the disturbance of the habitat of an endangered species and that this is done through permits. He said the state has been asked by the federal government to enforce the law.

"He's a caustic, nasty old son of a gun, but he's a damn good research er," Meeker said of Witham.

Meeker noted that there is a possibility of having the DNR operate the turtle watches in the future, but asked fellow board members if the chamber would be willing to give up its autonomy in conducting the watches. he commented that one problem may be that the chamber gets more notoriety from its watches than the turtle release program conducted by Witham gets.

Witham was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Meeker noted that in spite of the problem with the watches, the second watch, last Saturday, was by far the best ever from a spectator's point of view. He said there were more turtles making nesting crawls up the beach that night than he'd ever seen before.

Several weeks prior to the first turtle watch this year, Charles Futch of the DNR's bureau of marine science and technology was contacted by The Mirror to see if that department planned to stop the watches. Futch said at that time, "We have never issued a permit in the past," he said that while the chamber had in previous years asked for a DNR opinion on the watches and that the DRN frowned on the idea, "As far as I know, we're not going to stop it."

"It would be stretching the point to say it's [a turtle watch] molesting," Futch commented on the law against molesting engangered species, but said the DNR objected to the carnival atmosphere of a turtle watch.

Fireworks fund is still short

Though final figures are not yet in, it looks like the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce will be able to pay its fireworks show bills, but won't have much left over for next year's show.

Chamber board member Stan Wampler noted that after last year's show, money collected from contributions made at the causeway left a balance of $1,262 in the fireworks fund. Wampler said at the Monday night board meeting that there is now a $2,008 balance in the fund, but he said there are still bills to be paid and indicated there may not be much left over when the payments go out. $1,000 of that money is to be returned to the chamber's general fund, which was tapped earlier to pay for some of the fireworks materials. Also, the total cost of this year's show is expected to run about $4,500, compared to about $3,800 last year.

Wampler said it will be hard to tell how much money the chamber will have as carry-over for next year until next month, when all bills should be paid.

Wampler said had it not been for publicity from The Mirror about the need for fireworks funds, there would have been even less money in the fund. "A lot of the small donations were a direct result of The Mirror publicity," he said.

Barn Theatre auditions are set

Auditions are being held at the Barn Theatre, East Ocean Boulevard, Stuart, for their production of "The Madwoman of Chaillot."

A cast of 35 actors and actresses, all ages are needed, as well as a street singer and a juggler.

Audition dates are July 30, 31, and August 1 at 7:30 p.m.

The play will be directed by Ray Hilton. Scripts are available at the Martin County Library, Stuart.

Mirror Cooking Show is planned for July 20

PAT GEDDES

The Mirror Cooking Show, long a staple in the summer social season of Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie is returning. The Mirror Cooking Show is planned for July 20, with two sessions, at 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

Co-sponsoring the cooking show is the community center, and Publix Markets.

The show will be a gourmet delight, as top area chefs perform their culinary delights in cooking demonstrations. Nick Medelis, popular owner of Hilltop Restaurant, will show the preparation of a rack of lamb, and his famous dinner rolls.

Thomas Lum, Chinese chef at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant, will demonstrate wok cooking. Alan Holley, Outrigger general manager, will be the interpreter for Lum.

Yvon Claustre, assistant maitre d'of Sandpiper Bay, will demonstrate flambe cooking at the table.

There will be a demonstration of microwave cooking by a representative of Whirlpool.

Pat Geddes, popular Florida consumer relations manager of the Sperry and Hutchinson Company (S&H) will give a short talk on shopping tips and how to save money while shopping.

There will be many displays of appliances and homemaker tools in the lounge of the community center. Displayers will be listed next week, along with over $1,000 in prizes that will range from bags of groceries to appliances to gift certificates. The prize list will be published next week.

Samaritans kept busy July 4th

The Jensen Area Samaritans were kept busy on the Fourth of July, making several runs onto the cause way to pick up persons injured during the Independence Day festivities.

Two boys were injured in a minor auto accidents and were picked up by ambulance personnel. One had a cut on his lip and another had a bump on his head.

Jamel Sposato of Croton St., Jensen Beach, was picked up for a cut on his left lip. The injury came as he was wading in the river and cut his foot on shale.

A sad and ruin accident on SR 707 near the causeway resulted in injury to Helen Taylor of 700 Cleveland Ave., Fort Pierce. Samaritan spokeswoman Vivian Hayslip said the woman had a dislocated left wrist, minor abrasions on some fingers and a possible fracture of her left wrist.

Jerry Draper of Euclid Lane in Port St. Lucie sustained a laceration on his foot when he reportedly stepped on a broken bottle.

Tom Driscol of 229 Indian Court has a cut on his left thumb, apparently from getting it caught in the spokes of a bicycle.

Kentucky Trees of E. Sixth St., Stuart, had a swollen left eye, a headache and dizziness from a bump on his head.

Mrs. Hayslip said in addition to those picked up by ambulance, there were many more who received on the spot treatment at the causeway for a variety of minor injuries.

READY, SET, GO! These anxious youngsters are lined up at the starting line awaiting the whistle in the boys' potato sack race at the Jensen Beach Causeway last Wednesday. The races were part of the giant Fourth of July celebration on the causeway, and were sponsored by the Jensen Beach Lions Club.

YOU CAN DO IT—That's what this youngster's mother was whispering as the Jensen Beach Lions Club foot races began last week. The tiny, frightened one is Jason Jaynes, and the mother is Sharon Jaynes. Mom wasn't wasted, though, because moments after Jason chickened out she got away long enough to run in the Mothers' 50-yard dash, winning one of the Lions top place prizes. See what you could have done, Jason!

Banks plan merger

Stuart's National Bank and Port Salerno National Bank may soon be merged with and into a national bank to be organized as a subsidiary of Florida National Banks.

An agreement in principle to do that was announced last week by John H. Mantry, Jr., president and chief executive officer of Florida National. Robert E. Greene, chairman of the board of Stuart National Bank and Duane Luce, chairman of the board of Port Salerno National.

Under the agreement in principle, shareholders of Stuart National would receive $95 in cash in exchange for each share of Stuart National common stock owned by them and shareholders of Port Salerno National would receive $31.67 for each share of Port Salerno National common stock owned by them.

Greene and Luce said that the terms of the proposed transaction were found to be fair and reasonable by committees appointed by the respective Boards of Directors of Stuart National and Port Salerno National to negotiate the merger transaction.

Bailey Boat marina request is withdrawn

Before Martin County commissioners had a chance to act on it Tuesday, a request from Bailey Boat Company in Jensen Beach to excavate 7,700 cubic yards of fill from navigable marina waters at the boat yard was withdrawn.

The request was for the purpose of upgrading and improving the navigability of the existing marina, with the fill to be deposited on adjacent land.

A request by Hanson Tilton to rezone a small tract next to Pinelake Village mobile home park, from residential to a trailer park category was not acted on, but will be up for a public hearing on Aug. 14.

Rowdyism at causeway

Despite the typically breath taking array of colors seen bursting above the Jensen Beach Causeway this past Fourth of July, complaints of rowdy behavior and lack of supervision were circulating among local spectators.

Mrs. Millie Altino, wife of Anthony Altino, who became the holiday's hero after rescuing a little girl from a near drowning in the Indian River during the celebration, commented that "There were no lifeguards present, and no deputies to speak of. Also, there was no one to direct the boat traffic. Those boats were coming very near swimmers." Although Mrs. Altino did not notice any rowdy behavior on the east side of the causeway, she mentioned, "A few people did get carried away with firecrackers."

Martin County Sheriff James Holt said "We had more problems this year than we've ever had. had two extra shifts of people working, but if this is any indication of the years to come, we'll have to plan on even more." According to the Sheriff, several arrests were made due to rowdy behavior, but no serious fights took place.

Winner of the unofficial "hero of the day award," Tony Altino, had this to say of the Causeway celebration, "I would never take my wife and kids into a situation like that again." Altino explained that if something had gotten out of hand, the chances of bringing it under control were slim.

"From A1A all the way down the Causeway—wall to wall people. Now, no one expects it to be perfect, but if that many people are going to be drinking and having a good time, you need closer supervision," believes Altino.

Altino commented that he did not see a single marine patrol boat, and that when a neighbor with a CB tried to get the attention of a deputy, he was unable to get through to any.

Improvements or no, however, Altino says plans not to make a reappearance at next year's celebration on the Causeway.

Though there seem to be few official reports of rowdyism at the causeway, one Fort Pierce youth who made it a day at the Causeway said he was involved in a minor scuffle himself and heard of several other fights. He said he heard there was a flashing of knives by angry parties near the fireworks ground display area, and said there was a fight near a concession stand between a Fort Pierce and a Stuart youth. The Fort Pierce youth reportedly sustained a bloody nose and mouth before a crowd gathered and the fighting was stopped.

A Jensen Beach youth said he heard of a fight, perhaps the same one mentioned above, in which a Fort Pierce youth suffered a broken nose and cuts above both eyes. That fight was reportedly over an argument about who was allowed to drink from a keg of beer.

"There were six or seven fights that I heard about but didn't see," said the youth from Fort Pierce who declined to be named. He said he got hit in the face and stomach and got in two punches against his adversary before calm was restored. "It was just a mix up, he thought I was somebody I wasn't," he said, adding that "there were lots of drunks at the causeway."

The Jensen Beach youth said he heard of another July 4th fight, but wasn't sure whether it occurred at the Stuart or Jensen Beach causeway. "I got this fifth hand, so I'm not sure of the details, but I heard this guy from Fort Pierce made some remarks about the girlfriend of this big guy from Jensen Beach. The big guy let it slide at first, but then the guy from Fort Pierce said something more about the girl and the big guy tore him apart."

The Fort Pierce youth reportedly retreated to a truck, got a shotgun, and fired it, peppering several persons with shotgun pellets. "I hear a couple of people from Stuart took the gun away after that and beat him and left him in the water and the deputies had to drag him out of the water."

Martin County Sheriff's desk sergeant Jessie Taylor said he had no records of call-in complaints about causeway troubles, but said that's because there were no phones on the causeway.

Fire Chief Joe Luciano said he had a minor run-in with a group of guys over a sign they had posted in reference to female anatomy. Luciano said he asked the men to remove the sign, and said "there were four or five guys ready to swing fists," but said he succeeded in keeping calm and talking them into removing the sign. The fire chief said there was also a problem with a man who was tossing hot sparklers into a crowd, and said he took some verbal abuse at the greased pole-climbing event when some of the first climbers were allowed to use towels to wipe off some of the grease.

A short time before the fireworks display began, the Jensen Beach Fire Department got a call of a fire at the Jensen Beach Women's Association. Jensen firemen not helping out with the fireworks show rolled two trucks to the scene but could not find a fire. Luciano said the Rio and District II county fire departments covered for the local fire department during the fireworks show.

Though some locals who have seen a number of July 4th fireworks shows said the one last week didn't seem as spectacular as some in past years, Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce President Jon Chicky said he hadn't heard any complaints about the show. "I think it was even better than last year," he said, but added, "unfortunately the crowd didn't go so well. I've had complaints about behavior of the crowd. Their behavior left a lot to be desired."

I-95 link was opened on Monday

A four-mile link of Interstate 95 was opened to traffic Monday, bringing the superhighway into Fort Pierce.

Until Monday, I-95 ended at Indrio Road, but now has been extended as far south as Orange Avenue in Fort Pierce.

The Mirror erred in a story last week stating that I-95 was to have been opened on Monday as far south as Okeechobee Road in Fort Pierce. State Department of Transportation officials say it will likely be October before the two-mile stretch of road will be opened from Orange Avenue to Okeechobee Road (SR 70).

Local motorists will be happy to know that work has begun on a project to repave a 10-mile strip of A1A from the south St. Lucie County line to a point north of the nuclear power plant.

Rug rats grow

Some 18 years ago I walked rather hesitantly into the Fort Pierce home of my new boss, Bob Enns. I'd just been hired as the new woman's editor, a job I'd accepted upon leaving the Oak Ridger, and I was meeting for the first time my new professional family.

I couldn't tell one from the other—there were rug rats ranging in age from two to brown-eyed kids of un nameable age. There just seemed to be Enns's of every stage and variety.

That was one of my few visits, because I left after two years to take jobs elsewhere, including Pompano Beach and Chattanooga. It took me ten years to find myself back in Fort Pierce, again as woman's page editor.

But my return was with a difference. The Fort Pierce News Tribune office was now covered with Enns big and small. Michael, when not studying with famous artist Beanie Backus was shutterbugging for the Tribune. And pretty blonde Cater could be found at camera, typewriter, women's desk or wherever needed.

The Enns family, under publisher Marvin DeHolt, was all Tribune, and I felt very much a part of the family.

So it was with special tears in my eyes when, Friday night, before the orthodox altar of St. Anastasia Catholic Church that I watched Catherine Mare Enns become the bride of John Daniel Grigas. Needless to say the bride was beautiful and the bridegroom handsome. But the bridegroom will forgive me when I say that he was the only man in the crowd who wasn't a look alike. The Enns men are special, all handsome peas in a pod, all touched with their own brand of looks and talent. Mike did all the gorgeous decorations for the reception, including pink flamingoes search ing for food in a non-existent bayou.

Mom and Pop Enns raised a beautiful brood through their 25 years. When I first met that bunch of runny-nosed rug rats I added a dimension to my life for which I will always be grateful.

But the real Cinderella was neither the bride nor the groom. It was the dress. Never was a gown put together by such a bevy of godmothers, all of the fairy variety.

On Monday, Marg Paris decided I didn't have anything elegant for the wedding of my old boss's daughter. It's got to be fit for a full fledged lady, she decided. And when Marg decides something, it stays decided.

Thus started the beginning of the miracle. First I was whisked to Marg's shop on Hutchinson Island, where Marge held in hand the most gorgeous confection of a gown ever viewed by woman.

Then came the fitting—Marg wield ing pins, Helene Vogel tucking here, Peg Meissner basting there, all of them playing Seven Dwarves to this Snow White.

All the while this was going on they were dressing my illness thinned looks with a crown of fake glory to put the queen's tiara to shame.

Then Cinderella was sent home for a nap so she would be in pristine liveliness in time for the gala.

Yes, it was the first time I was a work of art. If my gown lit up with the "Paris Inn Shopp," it's well to be understood.

A step in the right direction

Efforts to change the offensive commercial zoning of Commercial street from Warner Creek to U.S.1 are under way. The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce is trying to get the county commission to change the plan, and Jon Chicky, chamber president, has taken the first step with discussion.

There is no reason for that area to be zoned commercial, unless it is to raise the value of the land for future sale.

Commercial Street leading into Jensen Beach should be a beautiful, grassy approach. Even with four-laning, Commercial should not be a series of shopping centers.

We have no idea how the Commercial Street plan got that commercial zoning on the map. It makes no sense.

With the major thrust of commercial services centering in downtown Jensen Beach and at South Savanna Road and Commercial Street there is enough commercial area to serve the projected population of the area, including the residents of Hutchinson Island.

We were disappointed as SR 707 began becoming a series of small shopping centers all along its roadway from Stuart through Rio. There are too many little stores, and there seem not enough businesses to fill that many stores.

Traffic problems are already cropping up along the winding, narrow road. Continued building up of those strip-shopping centers will do nothing more than create more traffic problems.

There is no need for the beauty of Commercial Street to also be ruined by bad planning.

Commissioner Frank Wacha states that there would be feeder roads along the four-laned Commercial Street to handle the traffic. That may be so, but there is no reason to expect that three full miles of commercial shopping centers could ever expect to be built, or even to be occupied, as there are only so many people who will be living in Jensen Beach, and with the present commercial shopping center areas added to the proposed DeBartolo mall, the General Development Village Green and the Smith shopping centers now nearing construction the area would be overbuilt for shopping and services.

There is no reason behind a master plan that does a good job on densities for residential development while blowing the whole job on commercial development.

The only thing that makes sense in it is that the red-lining of Commercial Street three hundred feet deep on each side of the road for three miles is nothing more than zoning for profit.

It should be changed.

Hurricane warnings

BY ALLEN F. BREWER

We should believe in signs, because
They forwarn from the past,
To tell us of the dire effects
Of tides and "huracan" blasts.
They tell us how we ought to act.
When Storm King's fury bursts,
When the weather people warn us,
What could face us at the worst.
So let's all be realistic,
Don't be ostrich-like and hide
Nonchalently, and do nothing,
Till too late to get in stride.
Life's been charmed these many years,
Luck never seemed to end,
But let's not push this luck too far,
Heed the dangers signs portend.

IN GOD WE TRUST

BY ALLEN F. BREWER

When the States were divided in Sixty-four,
By a war which was fought for ideals,
The Faith of our Fathers was given strength
By four simple words of appeal.
One hundred and fifteen years have passed,
But this faith will never fail,
For "In God We Trust" is as strong today
When our faith in him prevails.
America's Beautiful, but it's more than a song,
Trust in God must be inborn and real;
Then we'll keep America strong and true,
With loyalty, faith and zeal.
Tho we need no reminder, it's there today,
Every time we make payment in cash;
Be it paper or coin, there set forth in print,
Those four simple words seem to flash.

Congress authorized "In God We Trust" on the 2-cent coin in 1864, later on all gold and silver moneys as well as the Lincoln penny. In 1955 these words also were used on our paper money. Now the Anthony dollar continues this tradition.

Protection on the fourth

It was a beautiful fireworks display. All the hard work and many hours of detail paid off for the fireworks committee in the hour long show that was seen by an estimated 25,000 persons who packed the Jensen Causeway and lined A-1-A, Indian River Drive and Skyline Drive.

The people were packed like sardines on the causeway. Deputies stopped more autos from entering early in the afternoon when the traffic became impossible.

The games and the food concessions run by the local civic clubs were also great.

Now that we have dealt with the praise that is highly deserved, it is time to look at what didn't go well.

There are too many drunks on the causeway. The non-enforcement of the no alcoholic beverages law wasn't the case of it, for many drank their beverages responsibly. The few, and there are always the few who ruin things for the many, drank too much in the hot sun and threw bottles and beer cans indiscriminantly around.

The Causeway looked like a battlefield after the people went home following the fireworks show.

Probably twice as many autos could have been accomodated on the causeway if there had been a parking plan devised and enforced.

By 10 a.m., vans and autos were parked shoulder-to-shoulder along the road, cutting off access to the areas that could have held more autos. As the day continued, the traffic problems increased.

Sheriff's Department deputies did a good job moving the traffic as best they could, and did a fine job of slowing boats to reduce wakes in the river, but the traffic men had no plan for parking, and not enough men to move people on and off the causeway with dispatch.

For next year, volunteers could be added, and a traffic plan instituted that would give the deputies the power and the organization to set up traffic flow and parking.

As far as the drunks are concerned, it is a matter of police action. No one wants to deny a cold beer in the hot sun to anyone, but it would be easy to spot potential troublemakers and move them off the causeway before trouble starts.

The placing of more garbage drums up and down the causeway would help.

The various clubs and organizations work too hard to have a perfectly beautiful evening turned sour because of the lack of planning. The deputies work too hard with too few men to have some inconsiderate people make their job impossible.

A planning committee could take the pressure off, and avert problems by dealing with those areas that need control.

More garbage cans for trash, a controlled parking of cars, and a well trained special crew of deputies to move drunks off the causeway before they cause trouble could do a lot to make the Independence Day celebration more complete.

We compare the causeway after the Sons of Norway Leif Erikson Day celebration in October. The Vikings finish their celebration with everyone cleaning up the causeway so that it is cleaner than when they arrived.

Letter to the Editor

To all home owners, mobile home parks, trailer parks, condo and apartment dwellers, or managers of any of these, renters or whatever your status may be, this message comes to you from the emergency services; the ambulance squads, fire departments, and sheriff's department.

Please, and we ask this almost with tears in our eyes, be sure every street, lane, avenue, court, terrace, or whatever in your immediate area is plainly posted with the exact name or number. Now, having made sure these are correct, turn your attention to your own house or other dwelling number. Is it plainly posted at eye level so personnel in all vehicles or pedestrians can see the number plainly from the street?

The instructions given when the new numbering system went into effect were to post your new residence number beside your main entrance facing the street, placing it preferably to the right side of the door, and again, I repeat, at eye level.

Please, also be sure you have your new and correct number.

It is most frustrating to find old two or three-digit numbers mixed with the new three or more digits which have been updated.

This is vacation time for many, so before you leave, please take time to attend to this matter.

If you have already returned, please, after reading this, make a note on your priority list to attend to this matter.

Think about these situations: The time lost looking for a number could be time for a smoldering fire to become a hazardous blaze. A person having difficulty breathing could become a code blue, be in cardiac arrest, or could even be D.O.A. (dead) on the vehicle's arrival. If there is a suspicious character seen in your neighborhood, prompt arrival of the sheriff's deputy could save a break-in, vandalism, murder, or any of the crimes so prevalent today.

This matter of the names of streets and house numbers is serious, and can only be handled by each individual for his or her own safety.

This is of special interest to those living alone. Get your number, post your number, then memorize it, so whatever your emergency, it can be covered by the right service in the shortest time possible. Thank you.

It's tough to lose him

It's not an easy job to see the seamy side of life all day long, day in and day out for years.

But that's what Coy Isaacs did.

Coy was a desk sergeant at the Martin County Sheriff's Department for nearly a decade, and in that time he saw a constant stream of miserable people, both victims and perpetrators of crimes. He handled heartwrenching complaints of child abuse, and talked to tourists who came to soak up sun on our beaches, but instead got robbed of every cent they had. And, he'd often be subjected to first one side, then the other, of woeful tales of marital troubles.

Some folks came in angry and vented their anger at him. Some expected him to work miracles, to instantly solve domestic quarrels that had been brewing for months, or to find a way to suddenly make unruly youngsters straighten up—when the youngster had had no parental guidance at home for years.

There was practically nothing that people didn't expect him to do, and quick, to solve a major crisis in their life.

And if it wasn't sad news Coy had to bear, it was sad news he had to tell. That's because part of Coy's job as desk sergeant was to give out information from the Sheriff's Department to the press.

He had to tell us reporters of horrible murders, or brutal rapes, and of heartless robberies. He told us of child abuse cases, and one, of a little girl who'd been raped and stabbed and left out in the cold to die in a field near Indiantown.

He did it all with an amazing degree of self control. When others got angry or impatient, he curbed his anger and kept his patience. He rose above the pettiness, and through it all maintained an amazingly clear perspective on life. Others of weaker spirit would have been crushed under the weight of despairing news Coy had to bear, then later relate to news hungry reporters.

I'd been covering the Sheriff's Departm[illegible] for about a year when Coy ass[illegible] desk sergeant. Prior to that, he'd been a road patrol deputy. But one Sunday, when responding to an emergency call in Stuart, he'd raced toward town down U.S.1, with blue lights flashing and siren wailing. An elderly couple, returning home from church, pulled a car into his path. They were apparently too old to hear the siren or see the blue lights. As memory serves me, one died instantly and the other not long afterward. And even though the officials who investigated the wreck said Coy was not at fault, I know it hurt him deeply that it happened. More deeply than the physical pain he suffered as a result of the wreck.

Coy injured his back in that wreck, and it was a source of recurring pain in the year that followed.

But he never complained about it. Coy wasn't the type to complain.

I don't know how he managed to put on a happy face every morning, and how she kept his pleasant disposition throughout the day as he heard all those miserable complaints. But he did, and was always quick to offer me a cup of hot coffee and a warm greeting when I'd come by the Sheriff's Department each day for the crime report.

When Coy first became desk sergeant, it was on the heels of a dispute I'd been having with the sheriff about access to information I felt the department ought to be allowing reporters access to. I figured Coy was a token gesture to appease us reporters, and didn't expect to get along with him or to get much information from him.

But Coy quickly overcame my doubts, and quickly became my friend.

Oh sure, there were times when I was working on deadline and needed information faster than it came to Coy, and I got hopping mad when I didn't get it. I remember one time when I wrote a story that didn't exactly put the Sheriff's Department in a good light. Coy jumped all over me, and I retaliated with a venom that I didn't know I possessed, then stormed out of the office.

For several days we weren't on speaking terms.

But Coy was too irrepressable to stay mad at for long, and one of the happiest days of my life was when we sat down for a long talk and straightened out our differences. I used to think it was that he'd gained respect for me when I stood up to him, and that that's why we got to be so close after our talk. But the more I think back on that incident, I believe the reason we became so close to each other was because we both realized that the friendship we'd been building up to that point was far more important than whatever it was I and I've truly forgotten what it was we quarreled over) that touched off the fight.

In spite of all the terrible things that Coy heard about each day, he maintained a cheerful and courteous attitude. But there was a toughness beneath all that.

He was a keen judge of character, and seemed to know when to be receptive to the complaints he heard and when to be stern.

When it came to dealing with reporters, Coy was always fair—it's just that he was more fair to some of us than others.

It all depended on how much he could trust you. For anyone he'd tell them the basics of whatever story they asked about. But there were times when he'd know more than he'd tell. Like when he knew of a big pot bust coming up, or knew some more details about a crime than were in the reports he'd received. If he knew a reporter could be trusted not to blow an investigation by blabbing more than the department was ready to release at the time, he'd give that information out—but only in exchange for a promise not to write that information until the time was ripe. I gained his trust by refraining from reporting a big "scoop" when doing so would be premature and damaging the hard work the deputies were doing on the case. In return, when there were things he could tell me that I could write at a later date, he'd tell me. I never betrayed his trust, and it resulted in me being first with far more good, major crime stories than I'd have ever gotten without him.

Even after leaving my beat as crime reporter and leaving the paper I worked for then, I remained friends with Coy, and have fond memories of some election night victory parties at his home for his wife Louise, our circuit court clerk.

There is much to be said about what a loving husband and father Coy was, and about how he touched the lives of so many people by the exemplary life he led. But this column isn't long enough for that. I guess about all I can say is he was one of the finest men I've ever known.

After his funeral Saturday, I spoke briefly with Sheriff James Holt, and I think he summed it all up. "It's tough, very tough, to lose him."

IMPUTED INTEREST TAX TRAP

QUESTION:

I am considering an offer for my small income property. Surprisingly, I'm thinking about accepting terms by which I receive a second mortgage at 5 percent interest. This may sound insane but I'm getting a price that everyone agrees is much more than I could obtain if I were unwilling to agree to such a low interest rate. On top of that, I think that I'm going to get an installment sale. What do you think of the deal?

ANSWER:

Based on the information you've given, I can't provide you with an overall evaluation of the transaction – but I can share a couple of thoughts.

First, there may be a good logic to taking back financing at a very favorable rate if it results in a significantly higher price. In effect, you are lowering your ordinary income (interest) and increasing your much more favorably taxed capital gains.

However, be careful of that 5 percent interest rate. If your purchase money note doesn't call for an interest rate of at least 6 percent, the IRS can impute interest at the rate of 7 percent.

This poses two potential problems: 1) You may have to report your interest income as though you were receiving 7 percent while only receiving 5 percent; and 2) You could create a problem with your installment sale – particularly if you have taken a down payment of close to 30 percent. The IRS could reallocate the amount of your purchase money mortgage thus affecting your total sales price and your down payment ratio.

Be sure to consult your tax advisor regarding the implications of a low-rate mortgage. As a rule of thumb be sure that the interest you receive is at least 6 percent to avoid the imputed interest rule.

IRP promotes Brian Webb

Brian Webb has been given the additional duties of resident manager at Indian River Plantation, it was announced by company president F.I. Nebhut, Jr.

Nebhut said Webb, a British-born and educated hotel executive who joined Indian River Plantation as director of group sales last February, will also continue his responsibilities in that area of the resort's operations.

Webb, who was born in London just before World War II, is a graduate of that city's Bournemouth Hotel and Catering College and began his career in hotel management at London's Whitehall Hotel. Prior to joining Indian River Plantation, he held executive posts at the South Seas Plantation on Captiva Island, Florida, the Innisbrook resort in Tarpon Springs, Florida.

Girls tourney is this week

The girls' state tournament at Pierce Park this weekend when the 1979 District 11-15 softball championships are held.

Twelve teams from Key West to Vero will highlight the schedule which begins Thursday night at 7 p.m. The finals are slated Sunday morning.

From the local area comes the Fort Pierce Hawks, the official Sub District champions, the Martin County Pete Arnold Plumbing All Stars, and Jupiter Tequesta.

Martin County received a bye in the Sub District, where the hosting the district.

Also this weekend, the Men's A Sub District tournament will be held at the park. This time 10 host teams were expected at press time. Action beginning Friday night and the finals tonight for Saturday night.

Skip Jaskosky coaches the Martin County team, which will include players from all the Martin County teams in the girls Sub Pitch Softball League. Players included Jensen Beach's Laura Mann at shortstop.

Fort Pierce won the Sub District title by defeating Jupiter Tequesta in three games winning the first 14-3, losing the second 4-9, and taking the decisive third game 7-1.

The Hawks are 9-12 on the entire year, but have been in the tournament every year. Coached by Marie Rivera, the Hawks

'Hitless Wonders' zapped in Bradenton

BY DONNIE WILKIE

Frank Hagedt realizes that his 16-16 record softball squad First Federal of Martin County cannot yet compete successfully at the Men's Softball level.

"We know what we have to do to play better.

"We know where we are going in ways our heads said the FFMC coach after the Bankers returned from a one-game-in-one-day effort in Bradenton over the weekend.

But there's no excuse for the way we're playing the ball. And we've got to start playing that better. First Federal lost the second tournament game. The Bankers dropped a 9-8 decision to Ne Way English of Bradenton in the opener.

Consequently, FFMC was eliminated from the Hondas double elimination tournament in just two games.

The Bankers were defeated by Ne Way English of Bradenton 16-1 in the opener.

The game was called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Ernest McIntyre, who pitched a one-hitter against Jupiter Tequesta in the Sub District championship game, was the starting pitcher for First Federal.

But McIntyre was touched for 10 hits and 10 runs in the first three innings.

Ne Way English 16 First Federal 1

Frank Hagedt managed just two singles but the rest of the First Federal offense consisted of the bats of Ne Way English's starting pitcher Jim Stufflebeam smacked a three-run homer.

Stufflebeam also had a double in the first inning, while Tony Milledge ripped a double and two singles.

The game was called after five innings of play because of the 10-run rule.

Pitcher Phil Wilkman had a pitcher's dream going for four innings in Saturday's second game—a perfect game.

Wilkman retired the first twelve batters he faced in those four innings, but Ernest McIntyre spoiled the show in the fifth with a single up the middle. Unfortunately for Dave's Body, outfielder Tim Dunbar missed the ball and McIntyre raced around the bases, equaling what little offense Dave's had produced up to that point in the game.

With the game now tied 1-1, First Federal seemed to have a chance. Malcolm Delaney followed McIntyre's hit with a single and he advanced to second on a fly ball. But after that, the Bankers did not get another hit.

In the sixth inning, Dave's broke loose. Chuck Jensen and Dunbar reached on errors, and Rick Lynch singled. Phil Wilkman hit a home run. Two more singles were hit, and before the Bankers could recover, five runs had been scored, and the game was virtually over.

McIntyre and Delaney got the only FFMC hits of the game, while Dave's whacked eight. In all, it was a game that FFMC should have won.

"It's these games that bug me," said Hughes after the game. "We should have won this one. We might not have gone very much farther in the tournament, but we should have at least won today."

First Federal hoped to get the necessary experience for the state tournament in their age group later this month. The next step for them is the tournament, and whether they received enough experience in eight tournament games this year and two last year remains to be seen.

"I guess we have to go back to Jensen and beat the Optimists, then go win at Satellite Beach," summed up Roger Welker.

Bond-Tilton finish 4th at Daytona

BY BOB FRYER

A fourth place finish at the Pabst-Sebring Midnight Ride 250 mile race at Daytona last week moved Jensen Beach driver Ren Tilton up two notches in the drivers points standings, but co-driver Rusty Bond didn't advance any in the standings.

Both drivers shared duty behind the wheel of their number 60 Porsche 911, and both received 16 points for their fourth place finish.

Prior to the race, Tilton was ranked in sixth place with 46 points in the International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) points standings for drivers in the small-engine GTU class of road racing cars. Bond, who has driven in fewer GTU races this season, began the race in eighth place with 39 points and remained in eighth place but with 46 points when the race ended. However while the 16 points Bond picked up didn't improve his ranking, it did close the points gap between him and several other drivers ranked ahead of him and put a lot of distance between him and ninth place driver Roger Mandeville, who finished out of the top 10 at Daytona and added six points to his total of 31. A good finish by Bond and Tilton at the 250 mile "Mid Ohio" race at Lexington, Ohio this Sunday could mean a jump in the standings for both.

"We were the fastest Porsche 911 out there, and had all others lapped, but we just couldn't keep up with the Datsun and the Mazda RX 7s," Bond said of the Daytona event.

The Jensen team finished one lap behind Datsun Z driver Don Devendorf, who recorded his fourth GTU class win of the season at the Daytona race. he now has 96 points and has just about sewed up the GTU driver's crown for this IMSA season. The Daytona race was the ninth of 16 events on the IMSA calendar, but Bond says unless Devendorf's car is destroyed in one of the races, he'll be hard to catch.

Walt Bohren finished the race third in his Mazda RX 7 but the 12 points he collected for that finish kept him in second place in the drivers standings with 72. Bill Koll, a Porsche 914-6 driver took fifth and collected enough points to raise third in the standings with 59. Then comes Tilton with 56 points, while RX 7 driver Bob Bergstrom and Porsche 911 driver Dennis Aase are knotted at fifth with 52 points. Aase didn't race at Daytona, but Bergstrom did, and finished second. For that he got 15 points to add to the 8 he had going into the event. Datsun driver Sam Posey didn't enter the Daytona event, but is ahead of Bond with 51 points.

Bond said he and Tilton had no problems with their car, except for minor rear-end damage when the car got bumped early in the race by another car. He said the Porsche could hold its own against the Mazdas and the Datsun in the curves, but could not keep up with them on the straightaways.

After the Mid Ohio race, Bond and Tilton plan to enter several, but not all, of the remaining IMSA events which are at various tracks throughout the nation.

Little League District Tourney Thursday

The opening game of the District Tournament for 14 and 15 year old PSL Senior Little League players is scheduled for Thursday, July 12 at Sportsman's Park Field One.

This crucial game is the first in a series of deciding playoffs to determine which All Star team will represent District 7, of which Port St Lucie is a part, in the upcoming State Tournament.

Following this, 11 and 12 year old Little Leaguers will open their division playoffs on July 16 at Field Two. The 13 year old senior division will travel to Palm Beach Gardens for their Monday night playoff.

Those players chosen as All Stars to represent Port St. Lucie in the District Tournament are the following 11 and 13 year olds: Scott Bartz, Jeff Benton, Mike Curran, Dave Green, Drew Hetseth, Paul Jenkins, Dave Larres, Rich Loratta, Mike Morgan, Mike Ravert, Vince Valicenti, Jeff Yeager and Brian Zubek. Alternates will be Ed Francis and Bob Harris. The 14 and 15 year old division is under the direction of Coach Tony Valicenti and Manager Bob Bartz.

Little League Secretary Mary Ann Bartz comments, "The 14 and 15 year olds are a strong team. We expect them to take the regional without too much difficulty."

Senior League All Star 13 year olds include such local players as: Joe Carvelli, Mike Chambers, Frank Danna, Brendon Ellis, Doug Goff, Jimmy Hardison, Charles Hiatt, David Keaney, David Lachmicht, William Patrovich, John Pineiro, Eric Semmler and Scott Vanduser. Alternates are Danny Larres and Shayne Phelps. Acting as Coach and Manager are David Riley and Ed Kennedy respectively.

The Junior Little League Division consists of 11 and 12 year old players: Matt Blair, Robert Browning, Dan D'Loughy, Billy Gray, Brian Green, Jeff Hawkins, Robert Le Compte, Rich MacKlein, John Phillips, Frank Schaeffer, Steve Raylor, Pat Valicenti, Tom Waite and John Yeager. Alternate players are Gary Fairroth and Monty Peters. The Junior Little League Coach is Lyman Johnson and the Manager is William Gray.

Speaking of all divisions of the PSL All Star team, Little League President Dewey Hudman believes, "We have a pretty talented team this year. We may not be as strong as past years, but I think we'll put up a fine showing for the tournament."

With the kind of faith that only comes from a Little League mother, Mrs. Bartz confided, "We have aspirations that they will go all the way to the Little League World Series in Indiana." Either way, an exciting tournament is predicted and as Mr. Hudman stressed, "Everyone is welcome."

Junior golf program is offered at Crane Creek

STUART - Crane Creek Golf and Racquet Club at Martin Downs will host a special summer golf program for juniors, ages 16 and under. The three week program commencing July 9th will consist of a series of clinics dealing with the fundamentals, etiquette and equipment of golf, as well as individual instruction. At the end of the session, a 9 hole junior tournament will be held.

Classes will be conducted each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 to 12 a.m. under the direct supervision of Jay Pyle, golf pro at Crane Creek Golf and Racquet Club. A registration fee of $35.00 covers all instruction as well as a supply of range balls. Call Jay Pyle at 286-3660 for registration and placement.

Stuart National wins title

Led by the red hot bat of Harry Green, Stuart National Bank defeated Freddie Gary's in two consecutive games last week to capture the 1979 Martin County Men's Slo-Pitch softball championship.

It was the fifth title in five league efforts for the Bankers, who were led by Green's four home runs, two in each game. The Bankers won the first tilt, 12-8, and won the second meeting as well, 12-6.

Rich Moore and Tim Rodibaugh stroked home runs for SNB, while Harold Jones' second game blast for Gary's was the only round tripper of the doubleheader for the losers.

Dennis Rinaldi pitched complete games in both efforts.

Hawks win

The Fort Pierce Golden Hawks' girls softball team won their two-out-of-three sub-district playoff series with Jupiter-Tequesta last weekend.

Both teams advance into this week's District championship tournament at Langford Park in Jensen Beach, with the Hawks (38-12) seeded first.

Baptists split Civic doubleheader

BY DONNIE WILKIE

The First Baptist Church of Stuart scored eight runs in the final three innings of the opening game to defeat WSTU Radio, then went flat again, losing to undefeated First Federal of Martin County.

The split assured the Baptists of third place in the final Civic standings, although WSTU could still tie them at 13.

In the second game, First Federal used the Jensen Beach Optimist Club for first place in the league (both teams are 6-0), making tonight's (Wednesday) showdown between the two the league title game. There will be a post season round robin to determine the overall champion.

Baptists 8, WSTU Radio 7

The Radio Wonders appeared to have all but clinched third place when they raced to a 7-0 lead in the fourth inning against the Baptist Church. But then, things started to crumble.

Dave Malheiro, the Baptists' leading hitter, led off the fifth frame with a triple, and scored on a ground ball. An outfield error allowed another run to score, and David Marlow also tallied a run when John Hascup grounded out.

Now trailing just 7-3, the Baptists came to life. Third baseman Bob Rice made a throwing error to first base, and Joe Quick hit a baserunner with his throw, giving the Baptists two more runs in the sixth inning. Still, WSTU clung to a 7-5 edge.

In the seventh, Marlow singled. After a fly ball which sent Marlow scampering to second, Richard Connellee singled, scoring Marlow, cutting the gap to just 7-6. Connellee was able to advance to third on an outfield error, putting the tying run at third. Pinch hitter John Pederson then singled, scoring Connellee and tying the game.

The Baptists had done all this damage with the bottom of their order, and now, with the 3-4-5 hitters to follow Paul Nassar, the Wonders were in severe trouble.

Nassar, though, made sure that WSTU pitcher Gary Sheit wouldn't have to face the meat of the order.

He doubled over the heads of the outfielders, sending the aging Pederson only to third. But on the throw in to the infield, the ball got away from second baseman Lionel Biladeau, and Pederson took off for the plate. With an unbelievable Pete Rose-headfirst slide, he made it, winning the game for the Baptists.

For the first four innings, though, it had been all WSTU. Tim Beagle sacrificed a run in to give his team a 1-0 edge in the second frame, and the Wonders jumped on pitcher Marlow for four more tallies in the third.

An Ed Russell single turned into a bases-clearing two bagger when Bill Hascup mislayed the ball in the outfield, making it 4-0. Moments later, Russell scored on an error.

WSTU added their final runs of the night in the fourth when Hamp Elliott and Dave George provided singles, and runs scored on a Charlie Beam fly ball and a Jeff Webber groundout.

George went three-for-three on the evening, improving his batting average considerably.

First Federal 5 Baptists 1

First Federal Manager Frank Hughes was the first to admit that his team played a lackluster game against the First Baptist Church.

"We were terrible," he said after the victory. "We lack the desire on the field. Sure, we like to play ball and we'll go anywhere to do it, but we don't have the winning desire on the field."

Henry Harriel opened the game with a single up the middle, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Chris Crook. Malcolm Delancy reached on a fly ball error and scored on Steve Coy's triple down the right field line. Coy later scored on another error.

It proved to be all the offensive punch the "Hitless Wonders" needed.

Except for a couple of singles and a sacrifice fly ball in the third which resulted in the Baptist Church's only run of the game, FFMC pitcher Doug Hughes virtually shut them out. The Bank defense was its usual self, too, stopping repeated attempts by the Baptists to get baserunners into scoring position.

First Federal scored its fourth run in the sixth inning, when David Bocchino reached on an error, advanced to third on a pair of fly balls, and scored on another single.

Perhaps the Bankers simply wanted to get the game over with so they could look toward their arch-rivals, the Optimists. It seemed that Doug Hughes, the manager's son and one of FFMC's two pitchers, said it best.

"I can't wait."

Team competition cures golf course 'blahs'

Mimi Lamont proved the point and the enjoyment of playing in her Summer Golf League at Dodger Pines Country Club, Vero Beach, on July 6 when 112 entries participated in Ladies's and Men's Divisions for merchandise certificates.

It was hot and humid with only a slight breeze but all were enthusiastic about the course, the facilities of the club and the dividend of a free buffet in the late afternoon. The winning scores supported her contention that competitive players, in twosomes or foursomes, get very little pleasure in the game when the temperature reaches 90° or higher, despite the claims made to relatives and friends in Northern States.

Golf carts and air conditioned club houses have made golf possible the year round but, she says, there's nothing like team competition to rival the player's attitude on hot and windy days.

That's the essence of the Summer Golf League, which headquarters at Sandpiper Bay Resort. Three tournaments have now been played (French mans Creek, Sandpiper Bay and Dodger Pines) with more to follow (Eastpointe C.C., Breakers Hotel and Mariner Sands).

The word has gotten around to several Treasure Coast Clubs and, in this last tournament, entries were accepted from Sandpiper Bay, Yacht & C.C. of Stuart, Mid Rivers C.C., Turtle Creek, Indian Hills, Dodger Pines Port Malabar and Martin County C.C. The season extends only through October, after which clubs are unable to schedule one day tournaments of this nature but, in the opinion of Chuck Johnson, Jr., Carmen Ceo and Roger Botts, Head Golf Professionals at Sandpiper Bay, Frenchman's Creek and Dodger Pines, this is the nicest thing that ever happened to Florida golf in the summertime.

The format of these tournaments is simple, make your own foursomes, handicaps and net to prevail by Mimi, two best n-t for each hole.

There were six team prizes in the Men's Division at Dodger Pines—winners Lou Papadero, C. Sloat, C. alfrey and M. Douglas, all from Martin County Golf Club, with a net score of 117. Second—T. Magno, D. Swanson, J. Link and J. Krueger, registered from Sandpiper Bay, with a score of 118.

Three teams tied at 123 and, by matching cards, the Sandpiper foursome of M. Thomas, B. Jenkins, E. Hoffman and D. Estes copped third place. They were followed by K. Simmons, R. Wolf, T. Chapman and J. Stark (fourth) and B. Sheehan, C. Knudsen, B. Larson and A. Tanney (fifth) from Dodger Pines.

Sixth place was taken by the Sandpiper team of H. Hendron, C. Purcell, C. Skinker and J. Lamont by matching cards with the Port Malabar team of R. Blasser, F. holden, H. Rhode and L. Hayden. In the Men's Division, Col. Don McConnell, U.S.A ret., posted a gross score of 71, two under par.

Led by Jane Grant of Mid Rivers C.C., the winning score in the Ladies Division was a sparkling 123 net, all of the foursome (Rita DiStefano, Yacht & C.C. of Stuart; Jan McGavock, Y.&C.C. S.; and Marge Means, Turtle Creek) contributing along the way. In second place, at 128, the Sandpiper team of Mary Kuhn, Chris Cook, Lorraine Swift included A. Urban from Indian Hills and they combined to give the front runners a real challenge. Third place was taken by the team of V. Ellsworth, M. Simmons, S Barnwell and M. Kennedy, all from Sandpiper Bay Resort.

Wegler needs four at-bats

Mike Wegler of the Jensen Beach Optimist Club continues to lead the Jensen Beach based Civic League batting race but an asterisk probably should appear next to his name.

The outfield slugger has only batted ten times, and with the league winding down this week, players must have 14 at-bats to qualify for any titles in hitting. In pitching, players must have at least 14 innings pitched.

Wegler needs to bat four times in tonight's (Wednesday) collision with First Federal of Martin County, and he must also stay ahead of WSTU Radio's Dave George, who has the official league leading average, .647.

Here's how this week's Civic stats look:

Sandpiper men to play on Wilderness

The American colors of red, white and blue will be the theme for play in the Sandpiper Men's Golf Association activity Thursday with action on the Wilderness 18-holer.

Since the front nine of the Saints course is undergoing a revamping program and will not be ready for play until mid-November, all men's play will include the back nine of the Saints and the nine holes of the Wilderness course.

The color scheme will be slightly altered this week as the men will be required to tee off the first hole from the blue markers, followed in order by the white markers and from the red tee on the third and following in that order throughout the 18 holes of play. The event is listed as Two Best Balls of a foursome.

In last Thursday's action, programmed as Partner's Best Ball using the red, white and blue tees in that order of play, the team of Walter Wilmas and Clete Kling hoisted the winners colors with a best ball score of 59.

Only two shots off the pace was the combo of Dick Lundin and Dr. J. R. Arture with 61. Six teams deadlocked at 63 found Tom Ryan and Harry Hendron taking the third slot by virtue of a match of cards. Also listed at the 63 count were these partners: Wes LeCour and Dr. Oscar Rosetti; Bill Flanagan and Fred Grodsher; Norm Nardone and Bill Griffin; Jim Oram and Adm. Bill Jenkins.

The tricky nine holes of the Wilderness played havoc with most of the swingers as Oram was the only player to achieve a low 74 tally.

Fitzpatrick wins Optimist golf

Frank Fitzpatrick of Jensen Beach shot a one-over par round of 64 to win the Club section of the Jensen Beach Optimist Club golf tournament, held at Indian River Plantation.

Fitzpatrick's score was equalled by Herb Seal, also of Jensen Beach, but since Seal had a greater handicap, he had to settle for second place.

The same thing happened in the Open section of the tourney, where Mike Pescatelli and Larry Scott shot identical 65's. Pescatelli had a lower handicap, so he was given the victory.

Johnson back from golf camp

Rick Johnson of Jensen Beach returned recently from a golf camp, the PGA National Academy of Golf, held at Boca West, Fla.

Rick benefitted from a full week of instruction at Boca West, an Arvida resort community with three championship golf courses, under a faculty of blue ribbon PGA golf professionals whose subjects ranged from golf swing analysis to the history and lore of the game of golf.

The latest in video and electronic teaching techniques were employed, including the Swing Analyzer, Putting Computer, Polavision color video-tape and the Mitchell sequence camera. Lecture periods were conducted at nearby St. Andrew's School where the students were housed for the week.

Other top name guest instructors scheduled during the three, one week sessions were Ben Crenshaw, Tom Kita, PGA Hall of Fame member Chick Harbert and LPGA tour veteran Barbara Romack.

Youngsters ranging in age from 12 to 17 were afforded the full use of facilities at St. Andrew's School, including dormitories, dining rooms, swimming pool and tennis courts.

This was one of three sessions at the third annual National Academy of Golf conducted by the PGA of America under the guidance of PGA Academy Director Gary Wiren.

Builders meeting at Sandpiper

Two hundred builders and housing industry professionals from around the state will converge on Port St. Lucie beginning Saturday for the Florida Home Builders Association's Summer Builders Conference at Sandpiper Bay.

The Conference runs through Wednesday morning July 18, when the 9,500 member organization's Board of Directors convenes.

The Treasure Coast Builders Association is host for the event at which the organization will probe for answers to today's serious housing challenges.

Dynamic Charley Pell, charged with changing the football fortunes at the University of Florida, will be featured speaker Sunday at a special "Sports Night" event sponsored by the association.

Pell became the Gators' new football coach, replacing Doug Dickey, last December when he left a Clemson team he had guided to a berth in the Gator Bowl. He previously held assistant coaching positions at Kentucky, Alabama and Jacksonville [illegible].

Among the subjects to be explored at a special "Mid-Year Industry Update" seminar on Monday are improved consumer relations, economic outlook for housing, problems related to community growth, the cost and availability of mortgage money in the state and changes in how builders are marketing their housing products.

Several members of the Treasure Coast Builders Association will be involved with the meeting. HBA president Arline Signore is a member of the FHBA executive committee and vice-chairman of the public affairs committee.

Builders Pat Kelly and Joe Johnston will conduct a housing tour for visiting builders on Tuesday morning while builder Philip Nisa and building material supplier Frank O'Neill will handle the tennis and golf tournaments, respectively.

Other members of the local convention coordinating committee are Pat Nisa, ladies events; Will Brown, fishing tournaments; Bill Koehkle, publicity; Dixie Lee Moore, Grayce Ashburn, and Ed Halloran, hospitality.

DIANE McCORKLE AND DAUGHTER NICKI

Diane McCorkle, new Port St. Lucie homemaker teaches us the preparation techniques for ROLY POLY PUDDIN' English Style! Nicole, 2, prefers a cool dip in her wading pool. Daddy Brian is at work in Fort Pierce at the Johnson-Chrysler Plymouth Inc.

"What I like most about Florida," states Brian McCorkle, "is waking up every morning to this glorious sunshine!" "We've only been here six weeks and there is so much to do," chimes in Diane. Little Nicki has developed a healthful looking tan and like her Mumma and Poppa thinks our summertime clothing and relaxed way of life is tops! Nicki is the "apple of her grandparents' eye." Donna and Duane Halderman, also of Port St. Lucie. Even Aunt Darla, 15, is a terrific babysitter.

The McCorkles live at 281 Fairing Avenue. They've been busy decorating with light airy tropical furnishing and unloading their "tea boxes" of supplies from England. Brian hails from London while Diane spent 10 years abroad.

Describing their impressions of our little city they both seemed excited over our friendly, helpful people, our social activities, our many carry-out food places... our happy lifestyle!

Diane says this ROLY POLY PUDDIN' English Style is a heavy dessert she serves with a light summer meal. Offer this real taste treat to your family and friends real soon!

ROLY POLY PUDDIN' English Style

2 cups flour
1 tsp. salt
2 T sugar
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. ground cloves
½ cup shredded suet
2-3 cup currants
1-3 cup sultanas or seedless raisins
6 to 8 T water
6 T strawberry jelly
3 T milk

Sift flour, salt, sugar, baking powder and cloves into a large mixing bowl. Stir in suet, currants and sultanas. Gradually add 6 T of water to the mixture and knead lightly until the dough is light and pliable. Add more water if necessary, spoonful by spoonful, if the dough is too stiff.

On a lightly floured surface, roll out the dough to a rectangle ¼" thick. Spread jelly evenly over the surface, leaving a margin of about ¼" all around the edges. With a pastry brush, brush the edges with the milk.

Roll up the dough Swiss (jelly) roll style, pressing the edges together to seal. Wrap the roll loosely in greased aluminum foil, making a pleat in the foil to allow for expansion.

Half fill a large saucepan with water and place it over high heat. When water comes to boil, put in the pudding, reduce heat to moderate and steam for 2½ hours, replenishing the water when necessary.

Remove the pan from the heat and lift out the pudding. Unwrap pudding and transfer to warmed serving dish. Serve immediately. 6-8 servings.

"Midsummer Gateau"

Cooking time 12-15 min. Main cooking utensils, 2-7" sandwich tins (rather deep ones) or 2-8" shallow tins. Oven temperature 375 degrees, oven position about center. For 8 portions you need:

For the filling you need
½ pint thick cream (whipped cream unwhipped)
1 lb. strawberries little sugar
3 eggs
4 oz. castor sugar
2½ oz. self rising flour (or plain flour with ½ tsp. baking powder)
½ oz. cocoa

1 Whisk the eggs and sugar until thick. Fold in sieved dry ingredients.
2 Pour into well greased and floured sandwich tin.
3 Bake at 375 degrees till firm to touch (approximately 15 min.)
4 Cool then split each cake through center.
5 Whip cream until it holds its shape and spread between cakes with sliced strawberries and sugar to taste. Top with cream and whole strawberries.

Women Aglow speaker

The July luncheon of the Stuart Women's Aglow Fellowship will be held on Saturday, July 14th, at the Woman's Club of Stuart beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Special guest will be Jackie Mitchum of Virginia Beach, Virginia. She is the guest coordinator of The 700 Club, a talk show hosted by CBN's Pat Robertson. As guest coordinator she scouts for talent, and screens potential guests booking their appearance on The 700 Club.

Jackie was raised as a "preacher's kid" in California. She rebelled against "legalism and religiously." She accepted Jesus Christ as her Savior at age 33, and since then she has worked in three international ministries: Youth With A Mission, George Otis' High Adventure Ministries, and now the Christian Broadcasting Network. During her ten years of ministry she coordinated and arranged the annual Holy Land tours hosted by Pat Boone and George Otis.

Both men and women are welcome. For reservations or information please call Helen Griner at 334-8434.

Coy Isaacs dies

The Aycock Funeral Home in Stuart was filled beyond capacity Saturday as hundreds of Martin Countians came to pay their last respects during a funeral for popular Martin County Sheriff's Department desk sergeant Coy Dean Isaacs

Isaacs died early Thursday morning, July 5, at the Miami Heart Institute after emergency heart surgery

The 43 year-old desk sergeant, who handled complaints and public relations matters for the Sheriff's Department, became ill about 10 days prior to his death, and had been transferred to the institute after initially being admitted to Martin Memorial Hospital

Surgeons performed four coronary bypasses during an operation on Wednesday night, July 4th, and Isaacs was said to be recovering well from that when complications developed Thursday morning, necessitating the emergency operation which failed

News of Isaac's death stunned personnel in the Sheriff's Department as well as at the courthouse, where his wife Louise works as Clerk of the Circuit Court Flags were at half mast for the latter part of the week in honor of Isaacs

He was born in, Boone, N.C., on March 3, 1936, and after working for awhile with an insurance company in Florida, he served on the Boone Police Department, then became Chief of Police at Blowing Rock, N C

Isaacs and his wife and two sons moved here about nine years ago, and Isaacs became a road patrol deputy for the Sheriff's Department He injured his back in a bad automobile accident in 1972, and after recovery from that was appointed as the department's desk sergeant

The Rev Richard Conrod of the Community Baptist Church officiated at the funeral service, and burial was at Forest Hills Memorial Park in Palm City

Isaacs and his wife and one son, Kenneth Dean, lived a few years at a home along Skyline Drive in Jensen Beach before moving to a home in Lighthouse Point several years ago

Virtually every lawman in the county plus many more from surrounding counties, attended the funeral

He was Worshipful Master of the Acacia Masonic Lodge 163 having also served as Junior Steward, Senior Steward, Junior Deacon, Senior Deacon, Junior Warden, and Senior Warden As a member of the Unity Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star 37, Mr Isaacs was a Sentinel, Associate Patron and Worthy Patron Mr. Isaacs was also an active member of the Stuart-Jensen Beach Elks 1870, the V F W. Post 10132, Hobe Sound, Amara Shrine Temple, the Scottish Rite and the Community Baptist Church of Stuart

Survivors include his wife Louise Isaacs; two sons J Kenneth Isaacs of Boone, North Carolina and Kenneth Dean Isaacs of Lighthouse Point, one grandson James K Isaacs of Boone, North Carolina, three brothers Kenneth L Isaacs of Boone, North Carolina, Roy Isaacs of Lexington, North Carolina, and Lowell Isaacs of Hudson, North Carolina; one sister Mrs Pauletta Smith of Boise, Idaho; and his father Paul Isaacs of Hudson, North Carolina

Funeral services were held on Saturday at 11 a.m. at the Aycock Funeral Home Chapel in Stuart with the Reverend Richard Conrod, Pastor of the Community Baptist Church, officiating

An Elks service was held on Friday at 6:45 p.m. at the Aycock Funeral Home Chapel conducted by the Stuart-Jensen Beach B P O Elks 1870 At 7 p.m. Eastern Star services were conducted by the Unity Chapter 37 of the Order of the Eastern Star Following were Masonic IServices conducted by the Acacia Masonic Lodge 163 of Stuart

Retired pastor builds boat

BY TRUDI SHIELDS WARD

It's not that the Rev. Edmund Moec[illegible] is expecting a second great flood [illegible] he is building boats on the banks [illegible] the St. Lucie River, but that, [illegible] from active ministry after [illegible] heart attacks followed by a [illegible], he has a great need to continue [illegible] useful. Right now he is specially [illegible] as vice pastor of Prince of Peace [illegible] Church while the pulpit [illegible] search[illegible] for a permanent [illegible].

Pastor Moeckel is a man of [illegible] drive. Combine that with [illegible] imagination, a keen sense of [illegible], and the tenacity of a bulldog, and it is easy to realize how he has [illegible] seven handicaps.

To see this slight, energetic man [illegible] up the scaffolding of the [illegible] sailer he is building to listen to [illegible] excellent sermons in which he [illegible] his imagination full rein, to talk [illegible] him and look into his brown eyes [illegible] with joi de vivre, it is [illegible] difficult to picture him as a [illegible] individual.

Yet Pastor Moeckel never attended high school. He was born in Cheshire, Conn., in 1915, the son of a manufacturer who was the son of a German tobacco merchant. During his formative years the family moved a great deal. But he had an insatiable desire to learn and studied on his own with some help from his father, a fact which was of great importance in his later years.

As a young man he was a guitarist, playing with bands in Waterbury, Conn., on the local radio station, and for local organizations. He became a ship repair man and a naval architect, and it was natural for him at 25 to enlist in the Navy in the second world war.

Moeckel served in the navy for 15 years, winding up as a Lieutenant Commander. Most of his service was in the South Pacific. He particularly remembers the Fiji Islands, and the [illegible] nudity of the young girls [illegible] the family wash in the local [illegible] and deplored the sudden [illegible] in their awareness when they heard the admiring and provocative [illegible] of the G.I.s.

During his navy service he continued to study, achieving 35 credit hours. Upon his discharge he was employed by the U.S. Rubber Company in Naugutuck. He gave that up when one of the workers got his arm caught in a clicker press and badly mangled it. There was no doctor in the plant so Moeckel applied a tourniquet and took the injured man to the nearest available medical facility.

He says the job with this company was the only one he didn't like. After that he was self-employed as a naval architect and had his own ship repair business.

A recent issue of Motor Boating appraised the Gallant Lady, which he designed and which was built in his boat yard, at a half million dollars and called it "the near perfect boat." Gallant Lady was 63 feet long and originally cost $225,000. The biggest boat Moeckel built was an 85 foot motor yacht. He also modernized a boat for Arthur Godfrey.

Perhaps it was prophetic that as a child he built a pulpit in the chicken house on his grandfather's farm and preached to the chickens.

When Moeckel was 39 years old he felt the call to enter the ministry. His credits from courses earned while in the navy enabled him to enter Wittenberg College in Springfield, Ohio, and later Hamma Divinity School, also in Springfield, which now is combined with Capitol University in Columbus, Ohio. He was originally an Episcopalian, but became a Lutheran.

He had been married in June, 1937, and his wife, Emma, went along with his decision, although it meant selling his business and living on a greatly reduced income. Ordained in 1957, Pastor Moeckel served the Concordia Lutheran Church in Buffalo, N.Y., which was the first church to be integrated; then he went on to St. Paul's in the Bronx, N.Y. and later to Trinity in Philadelphia.

Heart attacks forced him to give up the active ministry and he moved to Ft. Lauderdale where he rebuilt a handsome house. Always fascinated by flying, he built an airplane and bought five acres of land near an airport west of Stuart.

In 1971 as he was planning to go to an air show he suffered a stroke. Again, his innate drive helped him to recover, though it left him with a limp and a useless left arm. He had sold the airplane.

Though he had been left-handed, he taught himself to draw with his right hand, and built another airplane, and sold that. His third airplane was two-thirds completed when he discovered he was unable to pass the physical for pilots, so he sold that one too. He still flies with friends when ever he can.

In 1970 he moved to the Stuart area, selling his house so he could build a boat on the banks of the St. Lucie River.

Pastor Moeckel sold the first motor sailer he built and is now working on a 44 foot boat on which he and his wife intend to live—at least for a trial period to see if they like it. Again his willing wife is going along with the plan, though she has her doubts about life at sea. He began building the boat in September of 1977 and expects to complete the project soon.

An active member of Prince of Peace since he moved to Stuart, he conducts Bible study classes after the worship service when Sunday School is in session.

Asked when of his several careers was his favorite, Pastor Moeckel listed the ministry first, the navy second, and boats third.

"The one thing I miss," he said, "is not being able to play the guitar."

CONSTRUCTION—The 44-foot boat now under construction by Rev. Edmund Moeckel is well on its way to completion. It was begun in September of 1977. (Photos by Susan West)

HE BUILDS—Combining a love of life, boats and the ministry has brought Rev. Edmund Moeckel a fulfillment in life

Independence Day Classic

Though it was only last year that Martin County recorded its first frisbee-golf competition, the sport seems to be growing quickly in popularity.

Last year the sport came to this area when a 9 hole event, The Seminole Shores Invitational, was played over a course now destroyed for development of Sailfish Point.

Mark and Chris Perry of Stuart hosted their second frisbee-golf tournament of the year on Wednesday, July 4, when they staged the "Independence Day Classic" on the grounds of Florida Oceanographic Society. Earlier in the year, on May 5, they hosted the first annual James Rand Spring Classic for a field of 10 enthusiasts. At the July 4th tournament, the field swelled to 19 competitors, and would have been larger had a crowd from Melbourne arrived in time for the 2:30 p.m. disc-off.

As it was, the expanded field of entrants made for keener competition for the top four prize-bottles of Rhum Barbancourt of various vintages. A new course record under tournament conditions was set when Marshall Smith shot a par 56 to walk away with some 15-year old rum. He finished a full four strokes ahead of Chris Perry and Jack Gregory, who tied for second at 60. In a sudden-death playoff that went to the fifth hole, Perry edged Gregory for second spot.

Craig Edwards, who had lost first to Perry in a sudden death playoff at the Rand Spring Classic, shot an incredible 25 on the first nine holes. But a disastrous 36 on a repeat of the nine hole course gave him a total score of 61. That was the third best score of the tournament, but when Gregory was moved from second to third, it meant a fourth-place bottle for Edwards.

Tied for fifth at 62 were Bob Fryer and Chip Turknett. Chip had that same score in the Rand Spring Classic, but in that tournament, it was good for third. Fryer's 62 was an eight point improvement over the Rand event, when he finished eighth.

Dennis Walton, who had fired a 71 for ninth place at the Rand tourney, also improved by eight strokes. He finished the July 4th competition in sixth place, at 63.

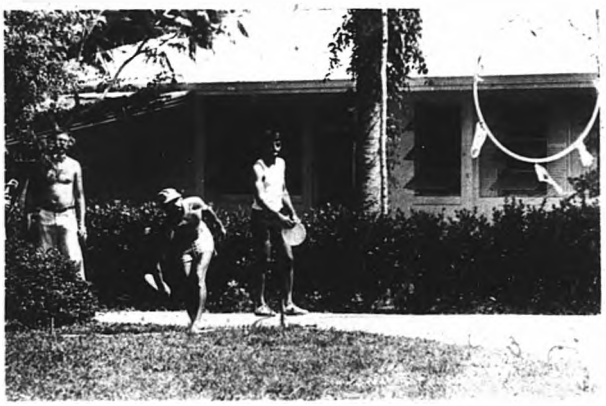
Mark Perry, host of the event, also improved from the Rand competition, in terms of score, but repeated with a seventh place finish at 64.

Chuck Dobbins tied Mark for that position with his 64, and Hugh Evans was right behind at 65. Bob Fenton, veteran of all three frisbee-golf tournaments in the area, fired a 66 for 10th place.

The course for the Independence Day Classic was the same as for the Rand event, except for a new hula hoop on the eighth hold. The course was nine holes, but two rounds were played to make up a regulation 18 holes for the tournament. The course requires pinpoint tossing around and between palm trees, a capacity for endurance at the boat house hole, and an ability to avoid water, though it should be noted Chris Perry and Bob Fenton both had excellent recoveries while treading water. Most difficult shot of the day was made by Fryer from atop a palm tree.

Frank Wacna Jr. was awarded a bottle of wine for high gross score of the day at 78.

RIBBON CUTTING--Mark Perry, in center with both arms raised, cut the ribbons at the Florida Oceanographic Society gate to officially start the Independence Day frisbee golf tournament.



CHRIS PERRY takes aim at the hula-hoop at right on the eighth hole of the frisbee-golf course at Florida Oceanographic Society headquarters in Stuart. Perry finished the Independence Day Classic in second place with a score of 60.

LETTING GO--The Boat House hole had one of the longest fairways on the nine-hole course at Florida Oceanographic Society, requiring a powerful tee shot.

THERE WERE PLENTY of pretty spectators at the Independence Day classic to cheer on the competitors.

LOTS OF WATER surrounded a portion of the course at Florida Oceanographic Society in Stuart, and sometimes made for a soggy off-course excursion for competitors in the Independence Day Classic frisbee-golf tournament.

KEEPING SCORE at the Independence Day Classic was a job shared by several women, including the one above.

THE HOT WEATHER on July 4th resulted in casual attire for the Independence Day Classic frisbee-golf tournament.

Potluck set for July 20

BY LETA KEITH

There will be another potluck supper in our clubhouse on Friday, July 20, at 5:30 p.m. Please start at 5 o'clock and make your entree. They need to know how many tables and chairs are needed, so prompt appreciate knowing if you have

We Get Letters.

To Jim and Elsie Nance, Marian and Ernie Curtis are at Sherwood Lake Recreation Area, R.R. 1, Lendonville, Pa. 17354. Hostess Trailer. It's a beautiful place. More than 2 treatment a week to Grace Manor.

Beverly and Elmer Ralph, Pocatello, Ida. say the corn and beans look so good. Recently from 25 acres of strawberries and they were delicious. They were rainbows with God and their hearts, and winter residence.

The Max Georges, Sam and Marian Gilpin are on a short visit to Lake Mon. Max George is "hooking and hooking" hooks for the future.

From Hope Whitney, Polo, Missouri. Dear Pals: I just went down the first week and on the 4th I received some letters and cards from you. Thanks a lot. Barry and family weren't fair. The boys, 6 and 4 years, are such a comfort. Betty drives the 18 wheeler on extended (sorry) is going to summer school getting his Master's degree and is so busy he is driving his dad's heart at night.

The postcard said Cliff would arrive 300 miles a day so he got to Mt. Rushmore on June 21 miles south of Atlanta the weather day. After resting in Salt Lake Mormon for more we plan to be in the Yellowstone for our second week ending and nothing.

I was sorrowful to our mom. Cliff sat on the edge of the bed and I heard a sound as he lay on the floor and he was gone. He is several more rooms and was the room was full of more people, some paramedics, nurses, doctors, and nurses, etc.

A more peaceful and the coroner's aide wanted me to leave with them that night but I wanted to be alone in my home. I stayed in my chair all night. Cliff left me about 7:30 p.m.

Barry arrived the next day in Atlanta to make and was met by the minister and prayed at us. We drove to Nashville over 500 miles the next day's home. Those friends became people [illegible] Nashville.

Cliff's funeral was June 16 and attended by about 4K people — Barry's friends were all so wonderful to us! Our 43rd anniversary was June 25.

Barry will drive me home August 8 and stay a few days with me and then go on the last lap to Woodstock. The boys will take the airplanes all and meet us the last.

We appreciate the place in the Good Samaritan Apartments there and also the Pal Club of Vero Beach Senior citizens. Barry's apartment is wonderful and we have met some very nice people and so will be there just two months more and all so helpful to me. It gets down to 40 degrees for the nights and when the warmth up in the daytime.

Love, Hope

Followed the news that last week we spend Mr. and Mrs. Lou Bowers in Connecticut. [illegible] spent a week here with Lucille and Mary. Sure were glad to see that they spend most of their time on the beach.

Mary Dehart has flown to the Canadian to visit a while.

Our sympathy belongs Mrs. Frederick Rusk in the loss [illegible] Rusk on Friday, June 11. Mr. Rusk was the brother of Fred Sonnenthal, longtime [illegible] her place on Vista Drive. Fritz and Bunny have been so busy cleaning bushes and caring for the grounds.

Ursula Toensen, just received a letter from Berta Dehn — "We have had a real busy time of it since we returned. We were ready to go back to O.B.P. just a week after we got here.

"George goes into the hospital for surgery on his knee Sunday. He tore a cartilage when he was down there. After many xrays and tests they found a tear in the cartilage. He will need a lot of therapy.

"Our middle daughter, Patti, had a hysterectomy last week and I was babysitting with her two and running into the hospital. See you the last week of September. Mr. & Mrs. Geo Dean, R.R. 2, Box 88, New Comber and Pa. 17079."

A few more days to joke and say like Chicken Little, "The sky is falling!"

Overeaters meet

Overeaters Anonymous meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Environmental Center, Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. Men and women are welcome. No fees, dues or weigh-ins are necessary. For information call 334-6542.

Community Bridge Club

The Community Bridge Club of Saint Jensen met July 7 for a tea. Mitchell game and the average score was 138.

The North-South winners were Ann Moore and Irv Eberlin with 139. Ruth Hanson and Al Mason 130. Dot McKee and Lauren Frost 117½ and Polly Schulman and Bob Garcia 117.

The East-West winners were Al and Betty Dreger 138; A. Smith and Earl Wagner 137; M. Hamilton and Fitzgerald 127 and S. Marvin and H. Tobias 114.

Duplicate is at 1 p.m. on Mondays at the Harry Blake Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Jensen Beach. All players are welcome and a partner is usually available.

The Magic Mass

Where do they come from, and where do they go?

It's a magical crowd, appearing for a few hours, then disappearing as magically as they arrive. The crowd, like the fireworks, shows briefly their excitement, and then are gone.

Unfortunately, the pricetag for all that loveliness is equally as evanescent and equally hard to meet. One hopes that, in the weeks to come people will show their appreciation for the best show in the area with their dollar and donations.

ABC group meets Thursday, July 12

The monthly meeting of Animal Birth Control will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 12 at the Langford Park recreation center in Jensen Beach.

Mrs. Linda Anderson will talk about an educational program on animals which will be presented during the coming school year in grades K-6 in local schools. Mrs. Anderson is a teacher at Port Salerno Elementary.

A progress report on the spay/neuter program as well as on the animal attic thrift shop will be given at the meeting. Anyone interested in animal welfare is welcome to join the meeting.

Venture Three

Everybody out of the pool

Please note: The pool will be closed for repairs 6 p.m. July 22 thru July 28. Venture Three is welcome to use the Hoidays (but pool. Venture Three I.D. badges are required.

Sorry to report that Doris Day was back in Martin Memorial Hospital for more tests. She should be home when you read this and we all hope that it will be her last trip there and they will know what her problem is.

A group of 12 Venture Harbourites enjoyed a 4th of July cocktail hour and cookout at Bruce and Cathy Farmer's home last. Later all viewed the fireworks from the Prews and Bertram's boats.

Lou Prew reports that by the time you read this Kitty Hufnagel will be home from the hospital after surgery. For her many friends who wish to send her a card, address is 3011 San Clara Drive "B" Delray Beach, Fl. 33445.

A letter from Winnie Widlake said Sam Turner was in the hospital in Fitchburg, Mass. He went in on July 3rd for a few days for complete bed rest. We all are hoping he is out now and doing much better. All send their greetings to their friends.

Margaret and Carl Carter from Key Biscayne in Miami stopped by to spend the night with Harriet and Lee Price. Carl is Harriet's cousin.

Fourteen hungry people had a covered dish supper at the Price's on July 4th. Then all watched the fireworks from the seawall and swatted mosquitos.

Also a letter from Louise and John Campbell. Her very cute card listed what they were doing. It was a gag card, but one we enjoyed very much, as we are doing about as many interesting happenings as was listed. They were going to Indianapolis to visit daughter's family and then take 3 year-old Megan home with them. They will be busy then. So good to hear from them and others who share their news of the summer with all who read the Jensen Beach Mirror.

A note from Jean Van Wiligen saying they were still in Tomahawk, Wisc. They will be taking a trip later in the summer. They also send greetings.

Millie and Bob Chveja have returned from a two month cruise on their sail boat—The Cro-Chek. They were at the Keys and the Bahamas.

Bruce Parmenter killed a five foot snake in the Capras breezeway last week. It was a harmless one, but Millie wouldn't go in the house till it was dead.

The 4th of July pot luck at the Rec Hall was fun. The grilled steaks were large and juicy. Many took some home in plastic bags. Twenty two attended and we so enjoyed being together we decided we should plan some more social affairs. Plans are being made to have a B.Y.O.B. and snacks at 4:30 on Friday, July 13. Everyone still in the Venture Three Park are urged to attend. Just bring your beverage and a plate of your favorite snacking food.

Several boats cruised in the river to watch the fireworks, but most of us watched from the sea walls and sprayed the mosquitos.

Lo-and behold! now that there is a gas shortage, the State has started the long delayed paving of the road in front of the park. Bud Prew has started stock piling the materials for the completion of the Rec Hall in the Fall. The patio is full of cement blocks. He is anxiously awaiting the return in the Fall of his "Crew." New volunteers are always welcome.

Anniversary congratulations to Una Belle and Ernesto Ravinet on July 12, and Pat and Larry Belt on July 13. Happy birthday greetings to Millie Capra on July 11, and Betty Jones on July 14.

"Every customer's different. It keeps me on my toes."

"I make sure there's a big variety of sizes and cuts out there in the beef case — both U.S.D.A. Choice and ProTen. But not all my customers are big beef eaters, so I'm just as concerned with our pork, ham, chicken, lamb, veal — everything else. I think we've got better variety than any place in town."

Beef with Almonds and Olives

Carne Machada a la Anduluza

To serve 4 to 6

2 lb. beef round or chuck roast, cut 1 inch — 1kg. (2½ cm.) thick
½ cup slivered, blanched almonds — 125 ml.
½ cup green olives, pitted and chopped — 125 ml.
Salt
1 tsp. ground cinnamon — 5 ml.
Olive oil
1 onion, quartered — 1
1 tomato, peeled and quartered — 1
1 garlic clove — 1
½ cup dry red wine — 125 ml.
Beef or veal stock
Pepper

Make cuts on one side of the meat and fill them with a mixture of the almonds, olives, salt and cinnamon. Roll the meat, tie it up and brown it in hot oil in a heavy casserole. When it looks golden brown all over, put in the onion, the tomato and garlic. Add the wine and about an equal amount of stock to cover. Season well, cover the casserole and cook on very low heat till the meat is tender — about 2 to 3 hours.

To serve, slice the meat and strain the sauce over it.

NOTICE

A public hearing will be conducted before the City Council of the City of Port St. Lucie on Tuesday, July 24, 1979 at 8 a.m., City Hall, Morningside Boulevard, Port St. Lucie, Florida on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE № 25

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING CHAPTER 8 OF THE PORT ST. LUCIE CODE PROVIDING A CHANGE IN TITLE; PROVIDING A DEFINITION OF FENCE AND WALL IN SECTION 8.1; PROVIDING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION 8.16 REGARDING CONSTRUCTION; AMENDING SECTION 8.17 PROVIDING A MINIMUM HEIGHT; PROVIDING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION 8.18(c) ADDING A MINIMUM HEIGHT IN THAT SECTION; PROVIDING FOR REPEAL OF SECTION 8.21; PROVIDING FOR AMENDMENT OF SECTION 8.23 BY DELETING CRIMINAL PUNISHMENT AND PROVIDING CIVIL PENALTIES FOR VIOLATION; PROVIDING A PROCEDURE FOR APPROVAL OF FENCES OR WALLS LESS THAN THE MINIMUM HEIGHT IN SECTION 8.23; PROVIDING FOR A FEE; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. That the Title to Chapter 8 of the Port St. Lucie Code is hereby amended to read as follows: Fences and Walls.

SECTION 2. That Section 8.1 shall provide as follows: Definitions. A fence or wall as herein defined shall mean a structure or device which serves to restrict access to or from residential property.

SECTION 3. That Section 8.16 of the Port St. Lucie Code is hereby amended to read as follows: Residential fences in the City, except as otherwise provided, shall consist of the following materials: chain link, wood, masonry or stone, and posts shall be the same material as the fence. No metal fencing other than chain link shall be permitted.

SECTION 4. That Section 8.17 of the Port St. Lucie Code is hereby amended as follows: No residential fence shall be of a height greater than 5 feet nor less than 4 feet from the ground level.

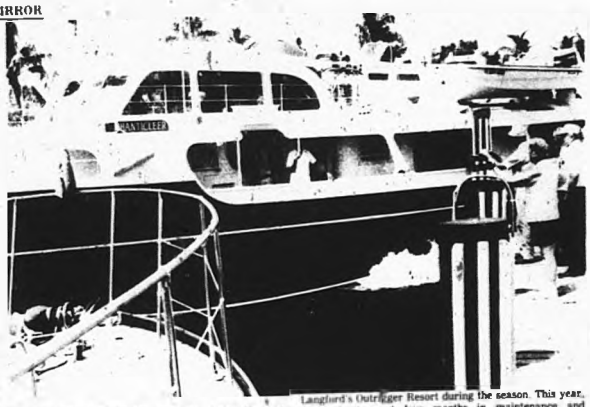
SECTION 5. Section 8.20(c) of the Port St. Lucie Code is hereby amended to read as follows: (c) The requirements of this Section shall not apply to those residential lots wherein a residential fence, otherwise complying with all of Article 2 of this Chapter, and being at least of a height of 5 feet from the ground level has been constructed.

SECTION 6. That Section 8.22 of the Port St. Lucie Code is hereby amended to read as follows: The building department shall notify the record owner of the property upon which the violation is occurring by sending a letter describing the violation by certified mail, return receipt requested. If, after 30 days from the notice being sent, the violation has not been abated, the City may proceed with all remedies available by law to correct the violation. The owner of said property shall be fined not more than $250.00 by the court upon conviction of a violation of any of the terms of this Ordinance. In addition, the City may proceed with injunctive or other relief and may recover costs of a suit and a reasonable attorney's fee from the property owner upon a finding that a violation has occurred.

SECTION 7. Section 8.23 is hereby adopted to read as follows: REVIEW OF PROPOSED FENCES OR WALLS LESS THAN MINIMUM HEIGHT. Any proposed fence or wall less than the minimum height as defined in Section 8.17 shall be subject to review by the City's Site Plan Review Committee and review and approval of the Planning and Zoning Board. Such proposals shall be submitted in accordance with Section 5.4.b., Procedures for Review of Site Plans, Appendix A - Zoning Ordinance, of the Port St. Lucie Code.

SECTION 8. Section 8.24 is hereby adopted to read as follows: FEES. Applications submitted pursuant to Section 7 shall be accompanied by a fee of $20.00.

SECTION 9. Section 8.21 of the Port St. Lucie Code is hereby deleted in its entirety and shall have no further force and effect.



OFF TO THE NORTH—Sr. and Mrs. Ralph Evinrude departed Tuesday morning for the northland aboard their yacht Chanticleer. The 118' yacht is the mainstay at Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort during the season. This year, however, it spent four months in maintenance and refurbishing. The Evinrudes plan to cruise and visit in Milwaukee and in Canada until October.

NORTH CAROLINA MOUNTAINS

Mountain cabin with fireplace. Handy garden spot. This is a handy man special because it is not finished inside, roughed wired and plumbing completed. Water and the outside is completed. Large deck overlooking mountains. You can live in it while you finish it up. 5 Miles from Murphy. $22,500.00. $5,000 down assume loan.

4.9 acres secluded with real good access. About 1 acre garden area or pasture. Plenty of room to build 3 or 4 houses. Lays gentle. Large trees cover this tract. Plenty of privacy. $9,950.00. $1,500 down payment. Plenty of wild game and good fishing in this area.

2 Acres for a camper trailer or anything you desire to use it for. All wooded, borders a good gravel road which gives good access. Plenty of Mountain Laurel, plenty of wild game in the nearby forest. Owner needs to sell this tract $4,450.00. Terms $1,000 down assume loan.

These are a few of over 2000 listings. We have all types of property from $500.00 per acre and up. We have small tracts, we also have several cabins, houses, old farms, etc. Write or call today for a free listing brochure. You can call free by dialing 1-800-438-7121. Write or call today.

RUN, RUN, RUN: That's what most of the parents were shouting last Wednesday at the annual Fourth of July celebration at the Jensen Beach Causeway as the little ones took part in the Lions Club foot races near the pavilions on the South side. Here tiny Holli Pucino carries the potato sack toward the finish in the potato shuffle.

BIG MOUTH: Five-year-old Angie Chanes of Port St. Lucie reaches for one of many bites into her slice of watermelon. She was a part of the festivities on the Jensen Beach Causeway last Wednesday, July 4, and took part in the Jensen Beach Optimist Club Watermelon Eating Contest for pre-schoolers five and under.

Opera returns

Although it may seem that the Treasure Coast Opera Society has gone dormant for the summer, nothing could be farther from the truth. Many Treasure Coast residents have just this week received membership applications in the mail, arrangements for the 79-80 season's productions are being made, guests are involved in weekly workshops, and the chorus is again rehearsing on a weekly basis. Hundreds of hours go into such activities, hours which are reflected in the high quality productions you have come to expect from this newcomer to the culture scene.

Many exciting thrusts are being planned for the upcoming season.

Three major productions will be featured beginning in the fall. The highlight of the season will be the performance of Puccini's La Boheme at the Fort Pierce Civic Center complete with the Florida Symphony orchestra and sets and costumes from Sarasota, New York.

The Florida Symphony Orchestra is always well received in our area and will certainly add a thrilling dimension to the production. Guest professionals for this production include the beautiful Rose Wildes Prather.

If you are not on the TCOS mailing list and would like to be kept "au courant" of the latest happenings, plus the opportunity to participate in the ongoing work of the society, please call 465-6294, 464-6588, or 878-1767.

Weather was sunny for the fourth

As if someone placed an order two weeks in advance, it began the Fourth of July were turned out bright, sunny and dry.

Causeway celebrants did not get rained on at all last Wednesday, and there was no rain during The Mirror's weather week until Saturday, after our equipment registered .47 inches of precipitation.

Sunday saw an incredibly small amount of moisture recorded—0.01 inches.

In any event, here are the highs and lows recorded in the past week with the amount of rain on each day:

St Andrew's groundbreaking is planned this Sunday

On Sunday, July 15, a groundbreaking ceremony for the new St. Andrew Lutheran Church will be held at 9:30 a.m.

Participants in the ground breaking at 295 N.W. Prima Vista Boulevard, Port St. Lucie will be Mayor William McChesney, Pastor W.H. Winkler, Pastor Emeritus O.G. Grotefend, building committee members Sheldon Pederson, Roland Benway, Paul Holden, Robert Jensen, Coolidge Karns and Gary Wahl. Sunday school superintendent Barbara Kammer said. Luther League representative Kelly Benway, senior Choir representative Thelma Sewell.

Also participating will be representatives of the finance committee, Church Council, American Lutheran Church Women, Faith, Peace and Prayer Circles, Tri M's and Cherub Choir. The president of the Church Council is Roland Benway.

When the new sanctuary is built, the old one will be used as a fellowship hall.

Five directors picked for Ft. Pierce-PSL Chamber

The Fort Pierce Port St. Lucie Chamber of Commerce elected five new directors when ballots from chamber members were tallied this week.

A chamber secretary said ballots were sent to all chamber members in June and that they were counted on Monday. The five persons receiving the most ballots were selected as directors for three year terms to begin on Oct. 1. They are Mike Driscoll of Haynes and Haynes Insurance Company, Dr. David Seymang, Richard Hawley of Hawley Hobbs Funeral Home, John McCarty Jr. a coral rancher, and Dr. Nolan Skinner, superintendent of the county school system.

Officials hope 1928 toll is never repeated

In an area that's been ravaged by the second worst hurricane in U.S. history, you'd think folks around here would be very wary of such a storm but disaster preparedness officials feel this may not be so.

In September of 1928, the monster storm began forming off Africa and swept westward through the Caribbean before lashing into Florida. In those days, weather forecasting was in a primitive stage and there was scant warning of the big blow coming.

The hurricane made landfall around Palm Beach then moved directly over Lake Okeechobee, literally pushing the water from the lake onto the surrounding lands. U.S. Department of Commerce information on the storm lists the official death toll at 1,836 persons--most of whom lived near the lake. Some local residents say that death count is low, and that as many as 3,500 persons died in the storm.

The only hurricane to claim more U.S. lives than the 1928 cane was one that struck Galveston, Texas in 1900. That one killed 6,000 persons.

Since the 1928 hurricane, a series of canals and levies were built to help prevent Lake Okeechobee from overspilling its banks. The 1949 hurricane that blasted our coast moved inland, with the eye of the storm passing over the lake. Great damage was expected, but the levies held and prevented the flooding experienced in 1928.

Since 1949, Martin and St. Lucie counties have not been hit by a real bad storm, and the same holds true for much of the rest of Florida.

While weather forecasters aren't anxious for the drought of hurricanes in South Florida to end, history tells us that another bad blow coming our way is inevitable. And the forecasters say we're overdue for a bad one.

That scares many disaster preparedness officials, because it is now estimated that about three fourths of the persons living in Florida have never witnessed the massive destruction and killing power of a hurricane. Because many folks here have never lived through a cane, disaster officials are deeply concerned that residents will take the hurricane warnings too lightly and that as a result, lives will be lost that need not be lost.

Steve Wells, acting director of the Martin County Civil Defense office on Tower Road in Port Salerno says he's heard estimates that as much as a third of the county's population could be killed by a bad hurricane. He and other disaster preparedness officials are doing all they can to make sure emergency officials are as ready as they can be for a hurricane. But he says the most important thing that can be done to prevent the loss of life is for residents to heed the warnings issued and to evacuate the flood prone areas.

Of particular concern to the officials is the evacuation of Hutchinson Island. Wells urges ALL residents to leave the island if a hurricane is headed this way, and says it's important to leave well in advance of the storm, as it may be difficult or impossible to leave when the storm gets close.

In this special hurricane issue, a map of the evacuation routes from the island is included. Island residents should study that map, so they'll be sure to know what route to take.

PALM TREES were tossed about like toothpicks when the 1949 hurricane struck this area in September of that year.

National Weather Service watches out

Hurricane warning operations of the NOAA's National Weather Service begin when the storm is first detected.

A potential hurricane picked up in satellite images is usually the first in a series of advisory messages issued by the National Center at six hour intervals.

This set of messages is aimed at shipping and aviation personnel, as they are still out at sea. They tell where the disturbance is located, a little about the winds, central pressure and when it can be expected over a period of the next 12 to 24 hours.

When and if the storm progresses further, it is given a name. This year the names for hurricanes will be alternating between female and male names starting with Ana.

The advisories then become more comprehensive, adding new information from aircrafts flying through the storm, satellites, ships and radar.

As the hurricane begins to approach the coastal areas, the advisory begins to focus on inland effects and the 6-hour advisories are interspersed with intermediate advisories. These will be more specific about probable dangers that may affect certain areas.

A hurricane watch becomes a part of the National Weather Service advisories. A watch does not mean that a hurricane will strike any given area, but that residents should keep in tune for further information of the storm's progress. Any safety precautions that take more than 12 to 24 hours to perform should be started in case the watch turns into a warning.

A hurricane warning is added to the advisory when conditions such as winds of at least 74 miles per hour, high water, and storm tides are expected within a 24 hour period.

There are other important elements that come with hurricane advisories. The area swept by hurricane-force winds may only be a hundred miles of coastline but for some distance on either side of this area are gale warnings and other information that may pertain to small craft operators containing hurricane warnings also spell out probable flood danger in coastal and inland areas and the expectation of hurricane-spawned tornadoes.

A gale warning is for those winds on the outskirts of a hurricane that may reach from 39-54 miles per hour, or a storm warning that takes in wind from 55-73 miles per hour.

Although most hurricanes give 12 to 24 hour notice in advance to area residents, a hurricane with an erratic path can reduce the notice substantially.

In most states, a landfall of a hurricane means the storm will begin to lose its source of energy, the warm ocean, but in the case of Florida, it may lose a little veracity but gain it back in the waters of the Gulf, as it could pass right over the state.

Hurricane survival demands planning

Your best protection from Hurricane damage is using good common sense. Before, during and after a storm. The following tips are offered to further assist you in protecting your home and family:

1. Listen to the radio (have a battery powered back-up in case of power failure) and TV for up to date information concerning storm development.

2. Collect and place indoors or closed garage, all loose objects, such as garbage cans, potted plants, yard tools or furniture. Anything that can be blown about.

3. During or after a storm, NEVER touch fallen or low hanging wires of any kind and avoid pools of water with wires in them.

4. If you feel insecure in your home, or live in a mobile home or in a low lying area subject to flooding--go to your nearest American Red Cross Shelter.

5. Fear creates panic. If all precautions and instructions are heeded, hurricanes need not be feared. Nevertheless, pay the storm the greatest of respect. Seventy-five to ninety percent of casualties result from water. The winds are of secondary importance.

Board over and tape windows which are not protected by awnings. Keep tools handy for repairs during the storm.

Dangers in barometric pressure could cause windows to blow out from the inside. It is advised that a window be kept partially opened on the downwind side of the house and internal doors be kept open. When winds change during the storm, keep clear and close the opposite side of the house.

If you happen to be directly hit by a hurricane, the "eye" will pass over you. It may even pass, it will seem as if the storm has ended. Really, it is only half over. Do not go outside for a prolonged period of time because the wind and rain will resume probably within a half hour.

There are a number of guidelines for home or those who plan to go to a shelter.

Shelters will be announced during a hurricane watch and are usually opened during the warning period.

Personal items, including pillows, blankets and other supplies should be taken along with food for the first meal in shelter.

Parents of babies should bring baby food, formulas, diapers and other necessary equipment.

Once inside a shelter, do not walk outside unless an emergency arises.

Make arrangements to store pets at shelter prior to leaving, because no pets will be allowed in a shelter. Kennels of friends, houses. Because no Alcoholic beverages are not permitted.

Women in the last stages of pregnancy or sick persons should have arrangements made to go to a hospital or a shelter depending on the advice of a physician.

Store water in a sterilized bathtub before leaving the house in case it is needed after the storm.

If you choose to leave the area, make sure you have a shelter. But remember to go to a safe area to stay. Select a good motel, as a room in areas or stay with friends who live in a safe location.

After the storm has passed, when permission is given to return home be very careful to avoid all fallen or overhanging

Beware of cane's eye

Many people have been through hurricanes but few have experienced the eye of a hurricane, the calm interlude between surges.

The eye can be void of wind and rains or there may simply be a letup in the storm to be followed by another heavy surge without much of a time difference coming in the opposite direction.

The time period between the first strong winds of a hurricane and the rain squalls and a return to moderate winds is often about 24 hours. But this varies greatly depending upon the size of the hurricane, its speed and how close to the area the eye of the storm is.

There are two factors to a hurricane, wind and water.

The storm strikes in the following manner: the storm surge, which is the general rise in sea level, wind damage, possible tornadoes and inland flooding.

The storm surge begins out over the ocean. The low pressure and strong winds around the eye of the storm cause the water to raise the surface a foot or two higher than surrounding area water forming a dome that can be as much as 50 miles across. As the storm moves into shallower waters, decreasing water depth transforms the dome into a storm surge which can rise 20 feet or more above the normal sea level, causing flooding and destruction.

Just as the storm surge is superimposed on the normal tides, the high wind-driven waves are superimposed on the storm surge, creating an invincible wall that shatters anything in its path.

The highest and most dangerous part of the surge is located near the center of the hurricane, some 50 miles along the coast in the quadrant of the hurricane where the winds are blowing toward the shore.

Some Florida hurricanes have brought storm surges of 10 feet or more. For example, the 1935 Florida Keys storm brought an 18 foot surge. Tampa Bay had 14 feet in 1848 and the 1926 hurricane raised a 13.2 feet of storm surge in Biscayne Bay.

The combination of water and wind can be extremely lethal in areas. The worst hurricane death toll in Florida took place in 1928 when the water was blown out of Lake Okeechobee flooding several communities and killing 1,836 persons officially, though some locals say the toll was more like 3,500 deaths.

Wind speeds vary greatly in a hurricane and within each storm. Wind gusts may exceed sustained winds by 25 to 50 percent. For example a storm with 100 mile per hour winds may have gusts up to 150 miles per hour.

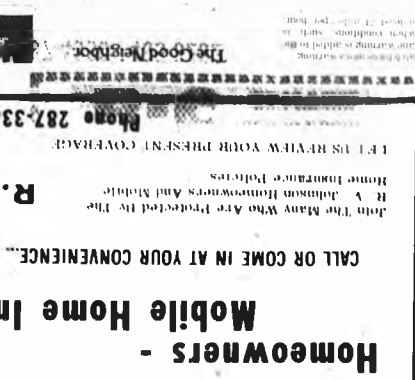
Because South Florida's building codes demand protection from winds in an average hurricane there will be less extensive damage sustained by the buildings. However structures built to hurricane specifications may be damaged if forced to endure winds of very powerful hurricanes.

The wind causes damage because of the force of the gusts and the rapid increase in wind force as the storm increases. Wind forces increase with the square of wind speed, meaning that when the wind speed doubles, four times as much pressure is exerted on structures.

That is why reducing weak spots in windows and glass doors will reduce wind damage.

Another threat that accompanies hurricanes are tornadoes, known as the most violent winds on earth, and often the most destructive. Tornadoes are often on the outer part of hurricanes and although not as strong as some of the tornadoes of the midwest area, they are still destructive, causing death and damage.

Rainfall varies with each hurricane, depending upon size and velocity. But there are some relative constant features. During the average 24-hour hurricane, five to ten inches of rain may fall, flooding low-lying areas. There are plenty of hurricane rainfalls from 12 to 20 inches in Florida climatology, causing major flooding and general inconvenience.



MOTHER NATURE has restored the sand which eroded from Jensen Beach when hurricane Betsy's fringe lashed our coast in 1965, but another big blow could take it back to sea again. Note the old bar which used to be a familiar landmark at the beach. A fire in the early 70s claimed it.

Hurricanes and himicanes

Women may not have won approval of the Equal Rights Amendment yet, but they have won a victory of sorts among the weather forecasting fraternity.

Since 1954, forecasters have been naming hurricanes after women. But this year, in a move to bring equality to the attaching of names to hurricanes, the forecasters will be alternating male and female names for the big storms. Hurricane Bob will be the first storm to bear a male's name.

Here's a complete list of names to be assigned to this season's hurricanes: Ana, Bob, Claudette, David, Elena, Frederick, Gloria, Henri, Isabel, Juan, Kate, Larry, Mindy, Nicholas, Odette, Peter, Rose, Sam, Teresa, Victor, and Wanda.

STAY OFF THE STREETS--Flying timbers struck this car down on the streets of Stuart in the 1949 hurricane, a grim reminder for people to stay off the streets in the event of a hurricane.

BOATS ON LAND--Hurricane waves carried this boat from the water and left it high and dry in the middle of Indian River Drive in front of a Jensen Beach home. The waves also battered the home, broke windows, and left the boat high and dry. The boat was carried from the water by the hurricane waves and left high and dry in the middle of Indian River Drive in front of a Jensen Beach home. The waves also battered the home, broke windows, and left the boat high and dry.

USE THIS CHECK LIST WHEN BLOW NEARS

Here, in brief is a suggested list which should be filled before the big blow hits. Pasted to a small piece of cardboard and hung in the kitchen, it will provide an immediate reference during the rush-around period the day before a hurricane hits.

Skip the non-essentials, except such things as a favorite doll or a toy for the children. Leave the 'portable' TV set at home. There won't be enough power for it and you might find you enjoy talking to your family or neighbors.

In the event the storm is of such intensity that your family decides to take shelter in a Disaster Center, take with you:

( ) Battery radio, with spare batteries
( ) Flash lights (2) with spare batteries
( ) Electric lantern, with spare batteries
( ) Three to five gallons of water per person
( ) Canned meats, soups, etc.
( ) Canned fruit juices
( ) Special foods for babies, the aged, and invalids
( ) Can opener - not electric
( ) Dried cereals
( ) Crackers, cookies
( ) Milk, powdered and evaporated
( ) Sterno or other self-operating stove
( ) Matches
( ) Cot or sleeping bag (there may not be enough to go around if the shelter is jammed)
( ) Flashlight or lantern of your own
( ) Any special foods and the utensils to prepare them
( ) Small quantity of water
( ) Change of clothing
( ) Blankets
( ) Mops, rags and buckets
( ) Up to date and "refreshed" first aid kit
( ) Paper plates (to conserve water)
( ) Small tools (brought in from carport) such as screwdrivers, pliers, nails and hammer

Roti: PSL in good shape for hurricane

Wells recounts local cane history

Red Cross outlines steps to take

The Martin County Red Cross chapter has issued the following list of procedures local residents should follow in the event a hurricane comes this way.

If a tropical depression grows to hurricane proportions listen to southeast Florida radio and TV stations for frequent advisories concerning the hurricane's progress.

When a hurricane watch or warning is announced for Martin County tune to WSTU (1450AM) or WSCF (92.7FM) or Perry Cable Channel 11 for local government and Red Cross advisories. These are official—do not listen to rumors. Each resident of Martin County should have in mind a course of action if a hurricane threatens. Actually there are only three alternatives. These are:

1. Stay at home and weather it out
2. Leave the area.
3. Go to a Red Cross shelter, a motel/hotel or a friend's home.

The following are some factors to consider:

a. If your home is built to withstand strong winds, is in good condition and is not in a low lying area, you should be perfectly safe in your own home.

b. Know the elevation of your property above mean sea level. If you don't know ask your County Engineering Department. Another consideration is that even though your home may be on high ground, access roads might flood and isolate you for several days. If you are in a low lying area which is certain to go under water you should plan to leave home early. Prestorm tides may cut you off. 75% to 90% of casualties result from water — winds are of secondary importance.

c. If you live in a trailer, boat or mobile home, or if your residence is old or not in good repair, or you feel insecure in your home, you should by all means plan to leave home early.

Whatever your course of action, there are certain basic precautions you should take:

FOR THOSE WHO STAY AT HOME

1. Lay in a supply of food—particularly canned foods and other items that do not require refrigeration. Check your first aid kit.
2. Your water supply may fail. Sterilize your bathtub and other containers by scrubbing and then swabbing with ordinary bleach and fill with water. Boil water before drinking.
3. Check emergency cooking and lighting facilities, and be sure that adequate fuel, batteries, candles, etc., are on hand.
4. A battery operated radio is essential for receiving weather reports after the power fails.
5. Turn your refrigerator and freezer to the coldest setting. Open only when absolutely necessary, and close quickly. Most home freezers will maintain food preserving temperatures up to 48 hours or more, if left closed. Electric service may be damaged or shut off as a safety precaution when winds reach hurricane force. If there is considerable damage to the electric system, restoration of power could be delayed several days. Find out beforehand if, and where, you can get dry ice.
6. Fill the gas tank of your automobile and keep the tank topped. Gas pumps are operated by electricity and useless during a power failure.
7. Secure or take indoors everything that could be picked up by the wind and used as a missile. Anchor or bring in lawn furniture, garbage cans, trash cans, outdoor lights, etc. They have a way of becoming high speed missiles during hurricanes. Half empty swimming pools and lower TV. antennas.
8. Most windows will withstand high winds but it is the flying objects, such as tree limbs, roofing materials, etc. that cause the damage. Storm shutters and awnings must be closed and secured and unprotected windows should be boarded up or taped inside. A supply of materials, such as boards, nails and a hammer should be kept on hand for emergency repairs.
9. Keep a window partially open on a side of the house opposite from which the wind is blowing. All internal doors should also be kept open. During hurricanes the barometric pressure outside could become so much lower than inside that windows blow out by themselves. As the storm passes the wind will shift to the opposite direction. Don't forget to close the window and open one on the other side of the house.
10. If the storm center, or "eye" passes your area there will be a calm period or lull lasting from several minutes to a half hour. Wind and rain will cease and the sun may even shine, but do not be fooled. Do not go out except to make quick emergency repairs. The wind will resume from the opposite direction, often with greater force than before.

FOR THOSE WHO GO TO SHELTERS

1. If you live in a mobile home or trailer or you feel insecure in your home and can't leave the area for one reason or another, go to the nearest Red Cross Shelter as soon as they open. Evacuate exposed beaches and islands early. Pre storm tides may cut you off.
2. As a rule Red Cross Shelters are not opened until the Hurricane Warning is announced. However, during the Hurricane Watch period you will be informed of the shelters that will be opened should a Hurricane Warning be issued.
3. Food, such as sandwiches, etc. for the first meal which requires no cooking should be taken to the shelter along with blankets, pillows, medicine, and personal items for the family.
4. Parents of babies must remember to bring formulas, baby food, diapers and ice chest to keep formula.
5. During the storm no one will be allowed to leave the shelter unless an emergency exists.
6. No alcoholic beverages or pets will be permitted in the shelters.
7. Sterilize and fill your bathtub and other containers with water. The water supply may fail or be contaminated for sometime after the storm subsides and you return to your residence.
8. Tie down or place indoors all loose objects. Secure your home and turn off all power and fuel supplies.
9. Fill the gas tank of your automobile and keep it topped.
10. If you have a sick person you feel should be evacuated consult your doctor to determine if evacuation should be made to a shelter or to hospital. This also applies to to women in their last stages of pregnancy.

FOR THOSE WHO LEAVE THE AREA

[illegible] loose [illegible] turn off all power and fuel supplies. If you leave behind a trailer or mobile home be sure it is as securely anchored as possible. It might still be there when you return.

2. If you live in a trailer or camper on County, State or Private Park, plan to leave as soon as possible after Martin County has been placed on a Hurricane Watch. This is to reduce the possibility of traffic jams and high wind problems, which will surely occur if everyone delays their departure until the Hurrigane Warning is announced. This particularly applies to persons pulling trailers.
3. Where you go to escape storm danger is a matter of personal choice and a factor always to be considered is the direction the storm is moving. The north central part of the state appears to be a good choice. Unless you have friends to stay with, select a good motel/hotel and "hole up" for the duration.

AFTER THE STORM

1. Avoid all fallen or low hanging wires.
2. Do not tamper casually with wreckage. A harmless looking carton may harbor a snake. Animals and reptiles are driven out of lowlands by high water and are as distraught and probably hungrier than you are after the storm.
3. Use your phone for emergencies only. If the damage is widespread, do not jam the telephone system to report interruptions in individual electric, gas, water and telephone services. Utility companies have plans for complete service restoration. Report individual trouble to utility companies only after services are returned to normal in your neighborhood. Jammed switchboards may prevent emergency calls for police, firemen, doctors ambulances. Do report immediately to police or utility companies any hazardous conditions such as downed live electric wires, broken water mains and overturned bottled gas tanks.
4. Don't get in your car immediately after the storm and drive around to see the damage or how your neighbors made out. This contributes to the inevitable confusion, delays utility restoration and could be downright dangerous.
5. Remember that streams and rivers may rise higher after the heaviest rain has ended.
6. If you intend to file any insurance claim, don't repair anything until your insurance man has had a chance to see it.
7. It's wise to boil drinking water until it has been determined that the water supply hasn't become contaminated.

BOATERS, Save Your Investment

Dangers...

High winds, High tide waters, Rain waters

For Boats Left in Water

1) Remove all canvas, wind will tear off
2) Have fully-charged batteries on automatic bilge pump
3) Anchor in sheltered area-such as creeks
4) All lines used for securing should be inspected and double-lined, one shorter than the other in case of chafing.
5) Criss cross stern lines for lines for high waters
6) Remove all loose equipment and store

1) Tie boat to trailer
2) Tie trailer down if possible
3) Block wheels
4) Remove all canvas
5) Open all drain plugs
6) Tilt trailer so water will drain out of boat
7) Remove all loose equipment and store

Cycle could send big blow to local coast

In 1977 and 1978 Florida and the rest of the South was hit by wave after wave of cold weather, but hurricane specialists say that pattern which kept most of the Atlantic hurricanes away from the country has ended.

Our nation may be in for a change in hurricane cycles that's been expected for three years, and the change could bring vicious storms to millions of Florida residents who have never before experienced one.

In the last 16 years, most severe hurricanes formed over the deep Atlantic waters between Africa and the Leeward Islands, then moved west into the Gulf of Mexico. But forecasters feel that cycle may be over and a cycle may be beginning which will send major hurricanes slamming into the populous Atlantic Coast.

A survey taken after hurricane Eloise hit the Gulf Coast in 1975 showed that it's not new residents to the coastal areas that disaster preparedness officials have to worry about, because they seem to have a healty respect. But those who have lived along the coast for the past seven or eight years, who may have had a minor brush with a cane, but not felt the fury of a major one, are worrisome to emergency personnel. It's the latter group of folks who hurricane officials say may be most prone to take a big blow too lightly.

There are 28 to 36 million persons estimated to be living along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts "who have never been through a major hurricane." Of the 55 million persons residing in Florida coastal counties, it is estimated that 4.2 million have never experienced a major hurricane.

History has shown that advanced weather forecasting techniques have helped reduce the number of fatalities from the big storms, but history should also have taught us that those who take mother nature too lightly often never live to tell about it. Preparation, not panic or apathy, is the key to survival, officials say, and they urge all coastal residents to be prepared.

ROAD DAMAGE.—Indian River Drive lost part of its pavement and was littered with toppled trees when a nasty hurricane hit this area in 1949.

Boaters should seek safe harbor

The Hurricane Season, no time of year for the timorous, began officially June 1.

Those who are unfamiliar with these awesome tempests will take little note. Neither will those who dwell in areas unlikely to suffer assault by a hurricane or its nasty little sister, a tropical storm.

But wise old salts from Texas to Maine, and well inland, pay heed and ponder the inevitable question: "Will there be a hurricane this year?"

The answer is yes. But no one can tell where it might strike. There have been identifiable Gulf cycles, and Atlantic cycles, and we seem to be in an Atlantic cycle now.

Hurricanes will arise in the tropics, and may never approach land, but there's always a good chance one or more will storm ashore somewhere on the seaboard. Throw a dart at a wall map. It's as good a system as any for selecting a possible target.

South Florida, unfortunately, doesn't fit into any cyclic pattern. The area can be clobbered by either Gulf or Atlantic storms. And it can escape entirely. It's in the laps of the storm gods, notoriously malevolent and unpredictable.

Those wise old salts referred to earlier will take steps to protect their craft.

Owners of larger boats arrange in advance to tie up at some snug harbor, in the more protected upper reaches of some creek or river.

Experienced trailerboat owners may seek out a stormproof building contracting to store their boats if a hurricane threatens.

In some coastal areas subject to hurricanes, warehouses and dry storage marinas may provide such space on a contract basis. Now is the time to sign up. There may be no room at the last minute.

Trailerboat protection at home is chancy. Smaller boats may fit in a garage or carport. If even partially exposed, the smart skipper will block the springs, let a little air out of the tires, plug the transom drain and add a little water to the boat for extra weight, strip it of all gear and take it inside.

Small outboards can be "launched" off the trailer onto the ground, stripped, plugged and will fill with storm rains. That extra water weight keeps them in one place — but all bets are off with a super storm.

Few people will pay serious attention to the opening of hurricane season. But as an old saw goes, they'll "stand by in July," and then two months later, "September — remember."

Seek shelters or not?

If your home or mobile home or apartment is anywhere in the questionable flood plain area, it's best to plan on going to an official shelter, says Steve Wells, acting civil defense director for Martin County.

The flood plain maps are located in all post offices, he said. No matter how sturdy your home, it is senseless to take the chance of being trapped by the inevitable flooding which accompanies hurricane winds along the coastal areas.

In the Jensen Bch. area, there are five designated shelters, with varying capacities. In Port St. Lucie, farther inland where the flooding threat is less intense, there are three.

The Jensen area shelters, their capacities and telephone numbers are as follows:

Jensen Beach Elementary School, 710 — 334-1660

Jensen Beach Community Church 400 — 331-0716

Jensen Beach Bowling Lanes, 300 — 334-2733

First Baptist Church, 400 — 334-2202

First United Presbyterian 400 — 287-2511

People are asked to remember that the shelters open only after a hurricane warning is officially announced. Transistor radios should be kept on during the watch period to listen to the advice and information from the civil defense headquarters.

Mirror cooking show is Friday at PSL

The specialties of three local chefs will be featured at the Mirror Cooking Show Friday at the Port St. Lucie Community Center. The over 400 attending the two sessions, at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., will learn the culinary secrets of Thomas Lum, Chinese chef at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant, Nick Medelis, owner of Hilltop Restaurant, and Yvon Claustre, assistant food and beverage manager of Sandpiper Bay Resort.

Lum will prepare egg foo young and fried rice on the afternoon show, and Curry Mi Fong (Chinese spaghetti) on the evening show, demonstrating the use of the wok in cooking.

Medelis will demonstrate the specialty rack of lamb, and give his secret manner of baking the famous Hilltop rolls.

Claustre will show how to make dinner more exciting, preparing flaming cherries jubilee on one show and crepes suzette on another.

There will be a demonstration of microwave cooking by representatives of Whirlpool.

One of the highlights of the show will be the appearance of Pat Geddes, consumer relations manager of the Sperry and Hutchinson Company (S&H). She is consumer advisor to more than 600 Florida retailers, including the Publix supermarket chain, coordinates hundreds of group stamp savings projects for schools, churches and civic clubs, and is in demand throughout the state as a speaker on consumer affairs.

Ms. Geddes will talk on shopping, nutrition, the future of food shopping and on how to save money at the food store.

Before and after the shows there will be information booths located in the community center lounge. Publix Markets plans to have both a deli and a bakery display; TNT Appliances will have a microwave display; Sears plans a display of appliances; Florida Power and Light Company will have a display on energy saving.

Seating will be limited to 430 persons at each show. The doors will open at noon for visiting the displays.

Battle brewing over commercial Commercial

BY BOB FRYER

A fight to have much of the vacant land along Commercial Street in Jensen Beach developed with homes rather than businesses is brewing.

Last month Martin County commissioners approved proposed land use plans for various sections of the county, including one for the north county area, and sent the plans on to state officials for review. Once that review is made, county commissioners will again review the plans and take a final action on them.

The proposed north county plan calls for a 600-foot wide strip of land along much of Commercial Street to be in a commercial-use category. Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors have gone on record against the magnitude of the commercial-use designation. On Monday, two chamber board members began laying the groundwork for a fight to get the plan changed to provide for homes, rather than businesses, along much of the land now vacant along Commercial St.

Chamber President Jon Chicky and board member Fred Meeker met Monday night to begin work on building a case for changing the proposed plan and they are expected to request Chamber board approval of a stance against the 600-foot strip commercial-use designation along Commercial St. when the board meets next month.

About half a dozen board members were asked to attend the meeting Monday night, but only Chicky and Meeker showed up.

Both Chicky and Meeker said that until a short time before the county commission took a vote on the north county land use plan now up for review by state officials, the north county plan did not include the 600-foot-wide commercial-use designation for commercial St. They said they're not sure who came up with the idea for the strip of commercial land for Commeggial St., but at their meeting, they came up with several reasons for opposing it.

One point in their case against having the commercial strip–to be 300-feet wide along both sides of most of the land now vacant along Commercial Street, is that the soil along the road is not compatible.

They pointed out that according to other information in the proposed land use plan, much of the soil along Commercial St. is in a category with a rating of severe limitations for most all uses except improved pasture land and truck farming. And, they pointed out that the proposed land use plan now up for state review sets a policy that "strip commercial development shall be discouraged."

Another argument Chicky and Meeker discussed using in the fight against the commercial strip is pointing out that a map of lands originally proposed for state purchase for protection of the Savannas wetlands included a large tract of land along the north side of Commercial St and a portion of land to the south of that road.

Still another argument they may use in their case is that a goal of the proposed land use plan for the county states commercial area designations should be used "as a means of revitalizing existing and historic downtown areas." They echoed each other's sentiments in stating that the proposed commercial strip would harm, rather than help, revitalization of the downtown Jensen Beach area.

Meeker and Chicky noted that back in 1976 the county planning staff, community leaders and other citizens formulated a land use plan that called for a residential-use designation on most of the land now vacant along Commercial St. Though that plan would have meant rezoning of some land now zoned for businesses along Commercial St. to a residential category, the plan won Chamber of Commerce approval and was included earlier this year in the proposed land use plan. But somewhere along the line the 600-foot wide commercial-use designation along Commercial St was added and was approved in June for forwarding to state officials in June.

Chicky commented that the Chamber was asked to provide input for the land use plan and that it provided it, but was not consulted about the change to the commercial strip. He added that the chamber has still not received a reply in response to a letter the chamber sent to county officials objecting to the commercial strip.

Meeker noted that the latest plan not only retains a business-use designation for what is now zoned for such purposes, but expands the commercial use category to a deeper depth along the road and includes some land now zoned residential. He said that the county commission is apparently "taking the easy way out" by not only retaining the existing business zoning, but expanding it. He also said there is no guarantee that if the commercial strip is retained that a proposed four-lanning of Commercial St. and construction of parallel access roads on each side of Commercial St. will come before the commercial development comes.

RAINY DAY BLUES—This great blue heron seems to have the rainy day blues as he sits atop a piling in the Indian River waiting for the liquid sunshine to cease. Afternoon thundershowers have made for wet conditions around these parts lately, and while us humans can generally find shelter from the storms, this heron just has to sit them out. Witham reluctant to comment on turtle flap

"My business is not to be in arguments, but to work for the welfare of sea turtles," commented state marine researcher Ross Witham of Jensen Beach when asked Tuesday for his account of an apparent flap over the Jensen Chamber of Commerce's recent turtle watches.

Last week, chamber board member Fred Meeker criticized Witham for actions the researcher took during the first turtle watch, on June 30. Meeker said Witham made a "relative spectacle of himself" when asking the turtle watch organizers if they had a permit to conduct the watch while about 500 persons were gathered at the beach, ready to watch.

Meeker said Witham voiced objections to four-wheel drive vehicles being used on the beach for the watch and said he threatened the jobs of two persons who work with Florida Institute of Technology over their participation in the watch.

Meeker noted that a meeting will be held soon between chamber officials and Witham to attempt to iron out differences over the watch, and he added that there may have to be changes made in future turtle watches.

Witham said he did not want to engage in a personal argument, either in public or private, and thus would not respond to Meeker's criticism of him. However, he did say that as his work concerns the welfare of turtles, he has objected and will continue to object to actions anyone takes to disturbing the turtles. He said his objections to the turtle watches organized by the chamber are that the crowds of spectators may disturb the turtles and that the four-wheel drive vehicles used on the beach for the watches create ruts in the sand that may trap turtles or tear up nests.

Witham noted that both state and federal laws protect the sea turtles which annually crawl up on local beaches to lay nests of eggs. As to whether or not a state permit is required for the turtle watches, Witham said this is something persons "higher up the line than me" would have to decide and said the state Department of Natural Resources legal department would likely be the place where a decision is made.

"We encourage people to be interested in turtles, but where an activity involved is detrimental to turtles, we oppose it," he said. Witham also commented that such activities would have to be judged on a case by case basis.

Barnhill pleas to two charges

Two charges of sexual battery have been dismissed against Timothy Barnhill, one of two men who allegedly raped and stabbed a Jensen Beach teenager on May 8.

Barnhill pleaded "no contest" to charges of kidnapping and attempted murder on Monday in Martin County Circuit Court. William Calloway, suspected accomplice in the crime, will be tried August 8.

The victim, a teenaged girl, was taken from the parking lot of a local store to a wooded area in south Martin County, where she was raped and stabbed. She was discovered by a passing motorcyclist sometime after her attackers fled the scene.

Fidelity Federal wants branch in Jensen Beach

Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Association of West Palm Beach has filed an application with federal authorities requesting permission to build a branch office in Jensen Beach.

The application filed with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta states the branch office site is to be at the Commercial Street-Savanna Road intersection. Dave Hochstetler of Fidelity Federal said the firm is still in the process of negotiation for purchase of a site. There are two available, one on the southeast corner and the other on the northwest.

Citizens who wish to file a written comment in favor of or opposed to the branch office have until July 29 to send them to the Federal Home Loan Bank, 260 Peachtree Street, N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30303. Six copies of the comments are required, and an additional 20 days to file comments will be granted if that time is requested by the July 29 deadline.

Hochstetler said the application could be approved within a month or two.

NO BIG DEAL—Lightning struck a palm tree in a wooded lot between Jeanette St. and Indian Drive off Sunview Road in Jensen Beach Monday, but firemen were on the spot in minutes and quickly doused the blaze before it spread to nearby homes. The lightning came during a rainstorm that aided the fire fighting process. Jensen Beach Volunteer Fireman Mike Quinn is the man handling the hose. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Hilltop House party proceeds will go to Sally Latham Fund

Nick Midelis, owner of the Hilltop House restaurant on U.S. 1 north of Fort Pierce, has announced that all bar proceeds collected at his restaurant on Thursday, July 26, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. will go to the Sally Latham Fund.

Midelis, a long-time personal friend of veteran journalist Sally Latham, says everyone is invited to the "Sally Latham Fund Day, and says he'll be offering complementary hors d'oeuvres for the event.

"Sally Latham has donated her entire life to journalism. She wrote it as it is—for 50 years," he says, adding, "Rather than go for the neon lights of the big city, she chose our tri-county area to use her gifted talent and to do what was in her heart—to write about the people (and they are legion). This has made the Indian River area what we now enjoy. 'The greatest place this side of heaven,' if I may quote her phrase."

Mirror Newspaper editor Richard Campbell and Fort Pierce News Tribune publisher Marvin Debolt are administrators of the fund, which they set up at Jensen Beach Bank to help pay the cancer-stricken writer's medical bills and to provide for her comfort. Donations thus far have passed the $1,000 mark, but much more is needed, according to Campbell and Debolt.

Ms. Latham is editor emeritus of the Mirror Newspapers and was a writer for the News Tribune for years. Donations may be sent to the Sally Latham Fund in care of the Jensen Beach Bank, Jensen Beach, Fl.

THESE BIG TRUCKS along A1A were the first big trucks in ages that were a welcome sight to motorists. For years, trucks carrying heavy loads along A1A to the nuclear power plant have added to the deterioration of the road and made it one of the worst in the area to drive on. However, a resurfacing job on the road began a couple of weeks ago, and when it's finished, the road should be smooth for a 10 mile stretch from the south St. Lucie County line to a point past the power plant. All writers are welcome to attend.

Indian River Landing gets county approval

In spite of objections from Indian River Drive Freeholders Members, St. Lucie County commissioners voted four to one Tuesday to approve a 68-unit townhouse development along Indian River Drive.

The project, to be known as Indian River Landing, is located about a mile north of the south St. Lucie County line, between Netherby Road and Edenlawn Plantation. It was originally proposed for 78 units, but Freeholders President Robert Mayer said he feels pressure from his group may have brought about the reduction to 68 units.

Townhouse units in the project will be priced from $58,000 to $78,000 according to a spokeswoman from the development firm, Sunblest Development, Inc. She said most units will be two-bedroom apartments.

Original plans called for locating units on a strip of land that is at the end of Netherby Road, which is a private road. However, the plans approved Tuesday showed no units for that area, and there was also a stipulation made that no development will be allowed west of the FEC railroad tracks. A sewage treatment plant is to be located west of the tracks though.

The land was zoned for multi-family use, but Freeholders objected to use of the land under that category, saying it is incompatible with the single-family home residential character of the drive.

Mayer said the Freeholders objected to the idea of the sewer plant west of the tracks because it will be close to the ecologically sensitive Savannas. He also said the group objected to the added traffic that the development will bring.

The future land use plan proposed for the county gives a low density classification to land along the drive, allowing no more than four units per acre. Mayer said the project does not conform to that plan and that this was a point his group made against the development.

We lost, but I guess there's not much we can do about it now. We're glad they cut the number of units from 78 to 68, but it's still too much," Mayer said.

Commissioner George Price cast the only vote against the project.

The Sunblest spokeswoman said she was not sure when construction would begin. The land had already been cleared of some trees and under growth for the project.

Chuck Nergard to speak to Indian River Freeholders

State Representative Chuck Nergard will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Indian River Drive Freeholders at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 19.

Nergard will discuss some of the items acted on in the recent session of the state legislature.

The Freeholders welcome new residents of the Drive to attend the meeting and join the organization. The meeting is to be in the Walton Community Center.

Stewart's Tip: snook at night

BY DONNIE WILKIE

The hot weather of the past week has taken a bit of a toll on area fishermen, but considering the blistering temperatures, says the Snook Nook's Jim Stewart, "fishing has been pretty good."

"Usually, the hot weather has more of an effect on the fishermen than on the fish," joked Stewart, while calling last week ending Monday, July 16 a "good fishing week."

"Offshore, the fishing has been pretty consistent, at least," said Stewart. "Almost every time out, a fisherman gets three or four good catches. There have been wahoo, dolphin and king out there, and there have been some bonita, too."

In the river, "there are plenty of trout, as the log indicates down here," informed Stewart.

But the hottest tip of all was discovered when Stewart suggested that area fisherman interested in catching snook try the ten-cent bridge at night.

"The snook fishing there at night—I mean from about 2 a.m. to 8 a.m.—has been very good."

In the surf at Jensen Beach, Stewart said there are "a few whiting and some large schools of tarpon have been sighted, too."

Bal Russell and Henry Lorenzo snared 46 croakers and a whiting in the surf just north of the Holiday Inn oceanside, using cut shrimp in the surf.

Joe and Kay Foxall caught 20 whiting in the surf using cut shrimp, while Henry and Mary Boyer grabbed 25 whiting in the same manner.

Offshore, Fred Horsley and Mike Beattey shared an 18 pound dolphin and a 42 pound wahoo, using bally ho. Howard Byers, Aaron Johnson and Marvin Mariner reported the only other offshore catch: nabbing seven dolphin up to 16 pounds while trolling bally ho, as well.

It was a busy fishing week in the Indian River, though, as Ed Wagner, Charlie Arent and Harold England caught ten trout and a snook using trout touts; Andrew Popovich nailed a 7½ pound trout in the river using ryans popper; Jack Prell got four trout with touts; and Mike Levko pulled in an eight pound snook using touts.

Hal Kelsey and Tom Deodato hauled in eight trout and two snook, with one of the trout weighing nine pounds, eight ounces (Kelsey caught it). The two used ryans popper, fishing just north of Walton Road north of Jensen Beach.

Eric Zeiss grabbed one channel bass and a trout using touts; Jack Myers caught a 22 and three quarter pound snook in the surf using live shrimp, and Oscar Dishman took three snook up to ten pounds, along with one mangrove snapper, fishing off the ten cent bridge and using live shrimp.

Finally, John Nash took 131 caught an 11 pound snook in the surf with a mirrolure. Johnny Crawford and Charlie Kessler grabbed twenty mangrove snapper, two sheepshead and two jacks in the river using live shrimp, and Maynard Reghi got a 25½ pound snook off the ten cent bridge on a live bunker.

NEW RECORD – Bob Klingsporn, of Stuart, set a new record when he caught this 29-pound eight-ounce African Pompano about four miles offshore last week. "It took us four hooks just to figure out what it was we had caught," said Klingsporn of the rare fish. "We used squid in about sixty feet of water with 20 pound test line," he said. His catch beat the old record by four pounds, but he also brought in a 6-foot, eight inch sailfish, using 40 pound test line.

Spot market ripoff

Any gasoline or diesel distributor can get product if he is willing to pay for it. There is no shortage, there is a "spot market."

It is blackmail.

No one seems to be interested in finding out, in a supposedly controlled price situation, just who is ripping-off the people.

It is not the station owners who pump gas and diesel. They cannot raise their prices indiscriminately. Their prices and profits are fixed.

The same is true of the distributors. Their markup and profit is fixed.

Somewhere above the distributor someone is getting rich off "spot market" gasoline and diesel fuel. No government agency seems to be interested in finding out who it is. No one seems to know, and distributors will be the first to tell that somehow it is perfectly legal.

Local gasoline stations buy their "allocated" gas, as the distributors do, at a certain price. If they want more, they can buy more on the spot market, only at an inflated level. It is twenty to thirty cents more.

It can be bought in Ft. Lauderdale, from so-called independents. The price is theft set by the price paid on the spot market.

Local dealers could sell such gasoline, but the public uproar over a twenty to thirty cent differential would cause too many enemies. Thus, local dealers just close down, or limit their sales, to stay within allocation.

We wonder if anyone is investigating who is beefing up the price of spot market fuel? Who is making a killing ripping off the public?

Tom Crook...patience

The appointment of Tom Crook to the office of tax collector of Martin County was a good move by Governor Bob Graham. If there is one thing needed in the tax collector's office, it is patience, and Crook has that.

The former principal of Julian D. Parker Elementary School and former eleven year supervisor of education, Crook has been out of the public eye for many years.

It is good to have his quiet determination and affable manner back in the courthouse.

Don't feed alligators

It is that time again, and as the alligators begin to seek out their mates, they become more protective of their preserves.

An alligator in Port St. Lucie almost got a small child. Several dogs have been lost to alligators when they strayed too close to the water's edge.

For a short distance, an alligator can outrun a dog.

Many newcomers think that feeding alligators is fun. It is not only dangerous, but also against the law.

When a person feeds an alligator, the animal wants that food on a regular basis. It moves closer and closer to the home, eventually moving into carport to sleep and wait for a victim.

Several of the alligators along the fairways of the Sandpiper Bay Saints, Sinners and Wilderness courses have had to be captured and taken to western areas after becoming a problem. The problem was that people kept feeding the gators.

It is also against the law to kill an alligator.

We urge citizens to not feed alligators, and report the names of people who do to the Florida Game and Fish Commission at their toll free number, 1-800-432-2043.

If there is a problem of immediate danger, call the local sheriff's department at 911.

Skylab was deflected

There is something about community service that just goes along with The Mirror and its staff. You have to like people and want to do something for them. They respond in kind.

It is just like the Mirror Skylab Deflection Kit. Some people said, "Ho, ho, ho," when the delicately engineered chapeau appeared last week. They berated the thought that a newspaper could be used to protect oneself from the dread Skylab falling to the earth in flaming chunks.

The Skylab has fallen.

Not one piece of Skylab fell on Jensen Beach or Port St. Lucie.

While The Mirror doesn't take full credit for averting the disaster, the prime fact is that not one piece of Skylab fell here. Just another community service of The Mirror.

Cooking up memories

The Mirror Cooking Show this Friday is renewing a long-time practice of our newspaper, though on a smaller scale.

Dick Lundin, head of the growing Port St. Lucie Community Center, asked us to put on the show to offer more entertainment and activity for the people of the area, and additionally to preview the nearly completed Lundin Hall there.

We held cooking shows for about 12 years in a row, before the energy crunch, and the anger of the people at high rates for electricity, forced Florida Power and Light Company to abandon its participation.

It seemed funny, the home economists at FPL were telling people now to save money through better use of appliances, and giving excellent information and cooking tips, but the mood of the public was such that some were insulting the economists for just being up on the stage doing their job.

I guess you can't blame FPL for being gun shy. At that time, everyone was blaming the utility for the higher rates. That isn't true now. The people seem to have rationalized that the rates are based on fuel costs, and nobody seems to know who to blame for that.

We began our cooking shows in 1962 in the Old Jensen Community Center on Commercial Street. It was in July, the place was packed, and there was no air-conditioning.

The giant blower fan sucked some of the hot afternoon air from the room, but made too much noise, so we had to turn it off and depend on the two floor fans to circulate the air.

Everyone in the room was a ball of sweat.

We kept sneaking down to Harold's Bar, where First Federal is now located, for a beer. Gene Basingame, then ad director of Publix in Miami, complained that Jensen Beach was barbaric, but still played shuffleboard in the darkened Harold's Bar.

The overflow crowd forced us to move the next year to the Jensen Beach Community Church fellowship hall. We overflowed that the next year.

Seeking more room, we moved to the Lyric Theatre. Try as we might, we couldn't stay there, because the foundation was cracking and the balcony was about to fall on the heads of those sitting down below. It was a packed house, but too dangerous.

By then, the cooking show moved to the convention hall at St. Lucie Country Club (now Sandpiper Bay). We stayed there until the energy crunch forced the end of the shows.

Through those years we had a great time. We began with a show and as time went on it expanded into a small home show with appliance dealers and food exhibitors having booth space and people having fun.

With Publix as our major advertiser and participant in many community activities over the years we had one embarrassing thing come up.

Our advertising manager at that time was a fellow who was kind of tight with a buck. No names please. His wife was sitting with Blasingame after the last show, when we have a cast party, and said, "I certainly love your store, but my husband won't let me shop there because it costs more."

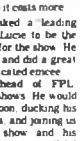
Another time, I asked a leading figure from Port St. Lucie to be the master of ceremonies for the show. He arrived to do the show and did a great impression of an intoxicated emcee.

John Law, then head of FPL, wouldn't come to the shows. He would play golf in the afternoon, ducking his head in after nine holes, and joining us after the afternoon show and his eighteen holes. His competent staff did a great job, though Buddy Shipes and Bob Shrigley objected to being male models in our fashion shows.

We are going to try to have some fun with this show. If it all works out, and we have the kind of attendance that demands it, we might have two days of shows next year.

It's great to have the cooking shows back. We hope you enjoy them.

Bob Fryer



Bike paths, beach land

What Jensen Beach needs is a good set of bicycle paths.

I don't know how many times I've heard that comment, but it's repeated frequently by bicyclists and joggers who put their lives on the line when they try to get around town.

Ideally, we need a path along all of Indian River Drive, one down Commercial Street from Indian River Drive to the end of the strip of businesses west of Savanna Road, and one along the causeway from Indian River Drive to A1A.

All of that, of course, would be costly. And, in the case of Indian River Drive, there would likely be problems in obtaining enough right-of-way to build the path.

Those problems don't negate the need for paths. They just make it harder, but they should not make it impossible.

And, as is the case with most hard jobs, if they're broken up into smaller jobs, they're less difficult.

It would be fine if the county had the money to put in the complete bike path system mentioned above all at one time. But if the money and right-of-way problems are too great to do it all in one fell swoop, why not do the job bit by bit, as the money is available?

One thing is almost certain, and that's that as the years go by, the cost of bike paths and right-of-way will increase.

The Town of Sewall's Point seems to have taken the right approach to a similar problem. Town commissioners want a road from High Point to A1A to run parallel to Sewall's Point Road on the west side of the peninsula. Some landowners have agreed that the road is needed and have agreed to donate right-of-way for it. Others don't want it and the town will likely have to condemn land for the road.

Rather than give up on the road idea because purchasing the right-of-way will be costly, the commissioners are going ahead with plans to build as many links as they can, as their budget allows. When the easy pieces are done, then they'll go to court to condemn the rest of the land needed and little by little keep working until the road, in its entirety, is a reality. They're doing the same for a bike path.

The county ought to try that method for building bike paths in Jensen Beach, as well as for widening Indian River Drive, which is going to need it sooner or later, no matter how much it's going to cost.

So far as I know, nobody is actively working to get bike paths built in Jensen Beach, though many persons living here will tell you they've nearly been run down by cars while jogging or riding a bike along local roads, or have nearly run down a jogger or bicyclist while driving a car. I don't know if there has ever been a survey made of landowners to see how many would be willing to donate right-of-way. But if there hasn't been such a survey made, that sounds like a good place to begin.

The job of getting bike paths built in Jensen Beach won't be an easy one and won't happen overnight. But it would be a great community service project for one or perhaps for several of our local civic or service organizations.

While I'm on the subject of getting a start on projects we need now and will need even more in the future, I'd like to add that we need to start working now on obtaining more public beach land. Again, it's nothing we can afford all at once, but it's something that is only going to cost more as the years go by. I've been told that the county once had a chance to buy all of what is now Sailfish Point for about a third of what Mobil Oil Estates eventually paid for the land. Sure, when the county had the chance to buy the land, the figure was still large enough that it would have put a big strain on the budget to buy it. But beachfront land, more so than any other land around here, is a commodity that has increased in value at a far faster rate than inflation. That means no matter how costly it is today, we'll probably never be better able to afford buying it in the future than we can now.

Guaranteed good day, s-r-l

I am having my good days and my bad days. This week has been one of my bad days. However, some things happen to brighten my life. This week, it was a letter I received, a fan letter... something I just don't get, nor expect.

To me, writing is a life, a joy, a thing I do because I have always done it, and because I enjoy it. However, since I can't seem to make these fingers work well this week, I'd like to share with you a very nice letter I received.

Dear S-R-L:

We've never met. You don't know me, but, one of the nicest things that has ever happened to me... I know you.

This letter is finally going through, after eleven drafts, because you finally dropped me on my head." I think I started reading when I was about three years old and went directly from "Pollyanna" to Dorothy Parker. I must have been dropped on my head. So, maybe you remember the column you wrote that got me off my big, fat... in ertia.

Before you read further... I'd like to warn you... and introduce myself. My warning: I seldom write... to anyone. But once I start, I go on, and on, and on, and... I ramble.

If you bother with envelopes, you already know who I am, if I remember to put it there. I was Martin and St. Lucie County's state senator from 1967-1972 when I retired. Voluntarily.

That's not an ego trip statement. I just wanted you to know why I read The Mirror. Oh, heck, that's a partial lie. Having been a senator is an ego trip. Relatively few people run for office if they aren't on an ego trip, and even when they leave, it's still there.

When I was in office... and The Mirror for obvious reasons. When I left office, I asked to be kept on the mailing list. I moved so many times in seven years I probably ate into the operating costs something fierce, but a week without The Mirror was a week without... Oh Lord!

Your newspaper is important to me, personally and professionally. In my job, I cover a ten-county area with 16 communities. Daily we get every newspaper. My secretary reads all the dailies. I read the weeklies.

I can get more bureaucratic gobbledegook from the networks and by working in it than the Lord should allow. But, I like people.

Today, I worry about the Savannas. Ed Gluckler, Commissioner Wanzha and if I spelled that wrong, ask the Boss why), Hutchinson Island, stop lights on Commercial, and why Willie Dixie doesn't advertise more, the local people, their love for Jensen Beach and their frustrations.

Dailies serve a purpose. In my case, they are required reading and clipping. And that's all.

It's my people world I live in. The weeklies. And, as you know, there are good ones, bad ones, and blah ones. Obviously, The Mirror is, to me, the goodest of the good.

You have an unique publisher. Philosophically, I agree with him. Realistically, he is a nut. His editorials are fun. I know they are serious, but how many editorials have you read where the writer says exactly what is in his columns unglue me, and make me weak. One week, S.A.L.T., the next, broken arm, leg, ankle or boat interspersed. You are supposed to cry about disasters. He makes me laugh.

I feel somewhat strange. I am writing to you like a sister, or a relative, or a close personal friend.

Every edition of The Mirror I read, in a pattern. Scan the front page. Read Campbell's column. Read editorials. Scan S-10-15 years ago. Backtrack to columns, scan pictures. Scan Ventury Out, etc.

I saw your first column because you weren't supposed to be in that slot. Next edition, I saw it and skip read it. Oh, shoot, I thought I knew new paper stuff, but what the heck is an s-r-l? Next edition, it was a very slow day. I read The Mirror backwards, starting with the classified page.

And, I finally read, and re-read your column.

And, I was hooked.

You have made me remember sights and sounds and smells and feelings I had long forgotten. But, best of all, you made me remember people.

You got me outside of my world and brought back people we've both known and people I've always wanted to know and didn't until you talked to me about them.

And, that's the special part of you. I feel like you are talking to me and making me feel as if I know those people and was a part of their experiences.

If I feel this way, you must be a part of the reason for the increased circulation of The Mirror.

I want you to know that this is the first... and the last... fan letter I've ever written.

Sally-r Latham... thank you for making a guaranteed good day once a week. Thank you for your poetry that makes me laugh, cry and think. And, for the poetry of others that always seems to come at the right time... and, for your columns.

Somehow, in time, I'll get to Jensen Beach. When I do, may I take you to breakfast, lunch, dinner, or a potful of martinis? I'd like to know you better.

Warm regards,
Beth Johnson

Dear Beth: You've got a deal.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:
Indian River Landing
Jensen Development Co.

Sorry that I was unable to personally attend your meeting concerning the proposed Indian River Landing Condominium Complex being planned on South Indian Drive within a ¼ of a mile of my residence.

I would like to voice my opinion as being in favor of this project, as I feel that somehow condominiums and senior citizens seem to go together. I have seen the plans and was very impressed. I believe that this project will add to the beauty of Indian River Drive. Most important it will make available to retired people, an opportunity to spend their "Golden Years" in a well planned and maintenance free condominium complex located in a beautiful part of Florida. After all, isn't that what most of us are really looking forward to?

There are many truly undesirable and unkept properties along Indian River Drive that would be improved by a well planned Condominium project, including the most objectionable and fearful nuclear plant.

I am most happy and willing to share part of my area with the wonderful people who have raised their families, worked hard all of their lives and are now ready to spend their remaining few years in a beautiful condominium complex in the "Land of Sunshine."

Welcome, Indian River Landing and retired senior citizens, to my little corner of the world.

Sincerely,
Rose Washburn

Welfare should be local

BY CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

When is "reform" not really reform"

When it's the administration's new welfare reform" proposal.

To most Americans, welfare reform means eliminating the fraud, stabilizing the nearly $40 billion cost to the taxpayer and giving the truly needy what they need to live on.

But that isn't what the administration's bill will do.

It does nothing about stabilizing the cost to the taxpayer. The plan unveiled May 23 would mean an additional $5.7 billion tap on the wallets of the taxpayers. And that's if you accept the price tag put on the program by the administration.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is notorious about wildly underestimating the cost of the programs it will handle. Projects slated to cost a few hundred million dollars seem to end up costing billions upon billions.

And that's the way it was with the administration's earlier "welfare reform" package. When first sent to Congress in 1977, the price tag was slightly more than $2 billion.

But the closer it was examined, the more the price tag went up--until finally everyone admitted the cost was more like $20 billion than $2 billion.

So, the current $5.7 billion price must be taken with a large grain of salt.

But it isn't just the price which makes this latest program objectionable.

Most Americans consider welfare a temporary affair, something individuals are forced to accept when times are bad but get off as soon as possible.

Yet, the administration's plan would mean a giant step toward adoption of the guaranteed annual income for those who can't or won't work. It would do this by establishing a national minimum of family welfare benefits-a minimum of $4,654 for a family of four.

This would mean raising benefits for 20,000 families in 13 states.

In addition, the administration package would have the federal bureaucracy--which has already shown callous disregard for the taxpayer--set the standards for welfare systems in each and every state.

Yet, it is impossible to have a true welfare system at the federal level. By its very nature, welfare is designed to assist those in need through no fault of their own and only to the extent and for the duration of their need.

And the people who can best determine that are in state and local governments, not in Washington.

We need only look at the California experience to see that. Under a series of reform proposals, that state's welfare rolls, which had been increasing at the rate of 40,000 people a month, dropped by more than 1,000 in a three and a half year period.

In Milwaukee, a county-created work assistance program, which required all single men and women and childless couples on welfare to learn a trade or take a job if offered, resulted in the reduction of 6,600 welfare recipients in one year.

Yet, the HEW study of the guaranteed annual income, the Seattle-Denver Income Maintenance Experiment showed just the opposite. When families are guaranteed an annual income, the family members work less than they do under existing welfare programs. And they tend to break up more often.

In fact, the study showed that young men under the guaranteed income plan who married and headed their own household worked 55 percent less than their counterparts not guaranteed an income.

So, in effect, it guarantees more than an annual income. It guarantees a permanent welfare class.

We need a welfare reform package. We need a welfare system which limits help to the truly needy, which makes the physically able work when jobs are available, which eliminates the fraud and abuse which cost taxpayers untold billions each year.

But we don't need the administration's proposals.

Because it does none of these.

ANOTHER PLEASANT SURPRISE!

QUESTION:

I understand that the recent tax law changes increased the amount of capital gain that I can exclude from taxation from 50 percent to 60 percent. This is great, but I sold a property in 1977 before the new law took effect and took back an installment note for ten years. When I sold I figured that I would be reporting 50 percent of my pro-rata portion of the gain each year. How come just because I sold in 1977 I have to report 50 percent while someone who happened to sell the following year only has to report 40 percent of the gain? It doesn't sound fair!

ANSWER:

No one ever implied that the tax laws are fair. But for now set that aside -- I have good news for you!

The 1978 Revenue Act not only increased the long-term capital gain exclusion from 50 percent to 60 percent but the act also provides that installment payments received this year (1979) and in future years will be taxed according to the new provisions, even for your property sold in 1977.

This means that if you are expecting to receive $10,000 attributable to your gain this year, you will only be required to report $4,000 instead of the $5,000 you had expected to report.

If, for example, this income takes you through an average incremental tax bracket of 40 percent, the portion of your tax attributable to the sale will drop from $2,000 (.40 x $5,000) to $1,600 (.40 x $4,000).

Be sure to check all questions such as this with your tax advisor. In the meantime, it's a pleasure to share some good news!

Crash sidelines Bond-Tilton at Mid-Ohio

The fortunes of Jensen Beach racers Randy Bond and Ren Tilton suffered a setback last weekend when Tilton crashed their Porsche 911 into a pile of sandbags while competing in a qualifying heat for a 250-mile race at the Mid-Ohio track in Lexington Ohio.

Tilton walked away from the wreck with sore shoulders but no serious injuries. However Bond says the car sustained a couple of thousand dollars worth of damage and that he and Tilton will be hard pressed to get it back in shape for the next event they had planned to enter—a race at the Mid-America course in Elkhart Lake Wisc. on Labor Day.

Though the wreck kept them from entering the Mid-Ohio race they didn't lose any position in the standings for drivers competing in the International Motor Sports Association's GTU small engine class. Two drivers who were already ranked ahead of them took the top two GTU spots in the race and increased their points lead but others in close competition in the points race either didn't enter the race wrecked or broke down. Bond said. So at present Tilton is still ranked fourth in the GTU standings and Bond is in eighth place.

The snout of the car took a pretty good lick. It made an accordian out of the fuel cell, Bond said.

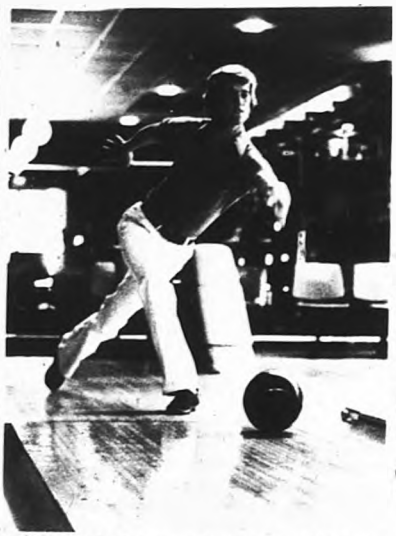
The mishap occurred just as Tilton was coming off a long straightaway at a high speed, headed for a turn. The master brake cylinder rod popped and he didn't have any brakes. He hit a pile of sandbags, Bond said. He noted that since the qualifying heat was almost over, there was little fuel in the fuel cell. "We're lucky because if there had been a lot of fuel in it, it may have caused a fire," Bond said.

We hope to get the car back together for a couple of more races this season. It has to be done sooner or later, so I'm anxious to get it back in shape as soon as we can," Bond commented. He added that he hopes they can have the car ready to race at Mid-America on Labor Day, and that they also plan to enter the final event of the IMSA season in November at Daytona.

Repairs to the car will most likely include taking it to Atlanta to have part of the roll cage rebuilt and to straighten the chassis. Also, Bond said they'll probably put the front end of his car off another Porsche 911 and attach it to theirs.

Though the wreck didn't hurt the drivers standings immediately, it may result in doing that. The Jensen racers were hoping to pick up points at Mid-Ohio as a cushion against points they expect some of their competitors to pick up in races over the next month or so on the West Coast. Even before the wreck, Bond and Tilton were planning to skip the West Coast events.

The wreck is the latest one of major consequence for them in several years of racing.



HIGH ROLLERS—Port St. Lucie youth Randy Cowley rolled the best three-game series of his life Saturday morning at the Jensen Lanes, shattering the house record for the seven years that owner Len Casey has been there. The 16-year-old Cowley had a 257, 230, 221 three-game total of 708, topping the previous mark by three pins. Gary Thompson was the only other junior in Jensen Lanes history to roll a 700 plus game, five years ago. (Photo by Donnie Wilkie)

Compromise reached on garbage rate

Results of the negotiations with the Port St. Lucie River Park Home Owners Association on the current garbage and trash rates have been recently released by St. Lucie Sanitation Company. A spokesman for the company calls the end result "a compromise we can live with."

As of August 1, 1979, trash will be picked up two days a week on each route, eliminating the extra scheduled garbage pick up day. This change is only applicable to customers who had a certain day for trash pick-up.

From that point on, garbage and trash, including grass and clippings, may be put together in the same can or bag. If all cans or bags are placed at the curb by the resident, the new rate will be $5 per month for the first 30 gallon can or bag and $1 per month for each additior thereof.

For anyone still wishing to have garbage picked up behind the house, the charge will be $6.50 per month for one 30 gallon can or bag, and 50 cents extra for each additional one. All trash, which is not household garbage, must be at the curb in cans or bags.

It was of especial note that if contracted for three cans per trip, the sanitation company will only pick up the chosen amount. The number of cans cannot be increased one week and decreased the next, even if the total amounts to the same number originally specified.

As in the past, all trash which cannot be put in a can or bag will be picked up only when a charge is agreed upon by the resident and Milton's Garbage Service or St. Lucie Sanitation Company. Bills will continue to be payable quarterly in advance. Price changes, adjustments, credit or rebates will be made in the next quarterly billing. New prices will not go into effect until August 1, 1979. These changes will apply throughout the unincorporated areas of St. Lucie County.

St. Lucie Sanitation Company feels that "the new schedule will be equitable for all customers because it provides a range of services that fit their particular service need."

THIS 1899 PHOTO of the Captain John Miller home shows what it looked like in its better days, back when the home was only about 13 years old. Jack and Emily Braddock of Stuart bought the home a couple of months ago and are now restoring it. They hope the finished product will look much like this. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Braddocks working to restore old home of Eden pioneer

BY BOB FRYER

Though you often hear persons bemoaning the fact that too many of the old homes in these parts are being torn down for replacement by modern concrete block structures, you don't often hear of anyone doing something about it.

But Mr. and Mrs. Jack Braddock of Stuart are doing something about it. Currently, they're in the process of restoring what was once the home of a prominent pioneer in Eden.

The home in question is an old wooden frame residence along Indian River Drive which was built by Captain John Miller around 1886 or 1887. Though the job will be time consuming and difficult, you can tell it's a labor of love for the Braddocks.

Captain Miller was one of the first residents of Eden. According to the "History of Martin County," a book published by the Martin County Historical Society, Captain Miller first came to Eden in 1883 with Captain Nate Saunders. Miller decided then to make Eden his home, but before actually doing so, he and Captain Saunders returned to Racine, Wisc., where Miller was born and had been living up till then.

In 1884 Captain Miller married Annie Fairbairn of Hawksbury, Ontario, and two years later, the couple returned to Eden with Saunders. It was then that Miller bought 20 acres along the Indian River in Eden and began work on his home.

Captain Miller was a boat builder by trade, and before coming to Eden, he built a schooner -the Mattie H.- and shipped it in two box cars to Titusville. He assembled the schooner there, sailed it to Eden, and lived aboard it while he built a temporary home along the shore. Two years after coming here in 1886, he and his wife moved into their permanent home, which he built along the ridge overlooking the river.

The Captain planted pineapples and continued to build boats. In 1900 alone, he built 100 boats for R. R. Ricou.

The captain died at age 92 in 1945, but the house remained in the Miller family until this year, when the Braddocks bought it.

"I like antiques and have been collecting them for the past 18 years. I've always wanted to do over an old house, but my husband never really got interested until I got him interested in old furniture. One day he saw an ad for a 92-year-old house along Indian River Drive. We looked at it and both liked it, but didn't talk much about it until that night, when we just couldn't get to sleep for thinking about it," Mrs. Braddock said.

She noted that although the house didn't come cheap, she feels they paid a fair price for it and that they're very enthusiastic about their ongoing restoration project.

The old house has undergone some changes over the years and there is evidence that it's had at least four different roofs on it. Thanks to the cooperation of relatives of Captain Miller, the Braddocks have photographs of the house in its early days and are planning to restore it to those lines. One departure from the original house though will be the addition of plumbing for bathrooms and installation of larger windows for better ventilation. "We plan to try getting by without air conditioning, so we decided we'd need larger windows. Besides, some of the original windows had been replaced by the jalousie type over the years," Braddock said.

Braddock and his wife moved to the Stuart area from Miami about six years ago and he is head of Braddock Builders, Inc. He noted that he's been a builder all his adult life and that this is an aid in restoring the Miller home. "Just from looking at the way the studs were hung I can tell what rooms he (Miller) built first," he said.

The Braddocks have sold their home in Stuart and must vacate it in December. "We don't expect to have all the restoration done by then, but we should be far enough along to move in," Mrs. Braddock said.

The lumber in the house was in fairly good condition when the Braddocks bought it, so not much of it had had to be replaced. Braddock said the pine wood is very hard -so hard in fact, that when the house was recently rewired, an electrician broke two drill bits drilling a hole through a beam.

A lot of sandblasting and sanding has already been done and much more remains to be done. The Braddocks want to have a natural wood finish in many parts of the home. "It's amazing how many layers of paint have been applied to the house," commented one of the Braddocks' sons, Jeff.

In exploring their new home, the Braddocks found lots of old papers and documents. A poll tax notice, dated in 1897 from county seat of Titusville (Eden was then in Brevard County) was among the items found. It will be placed in a frame and displayed when restoration is complete.

After finishing work on the house, the Braddocks plan to start work improving the yard. And, since their tract includes a 160-foot wide strip of land between Indian River Drive and the river, they hope to eventually build a gazebo on the east side of the road. Also, they hope to build a place for cars to pull off the road so motorists can read a historical marker about the Miller home that they are hoping to install.

"We don't have much in Florida that's historical because things here are relatively new compared to other states. But there are some old buildings around, and we feel they should be preserved," Mrs. Braddock said.

Wacha says to go ahead with trees

Although Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce officials appeared ready last month to shelve plans for planting flowering trees along Commercial Street, the plan may be revived.

At this month's recent chamber board meeting, County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha told board members they ought to go ahead with the plan.

Dr. Steve Allison reported at the June chamber board meeting that it would be impractical to plant trees along the road when the eventual four laning of the road may result in having to take the trees down. After hearing that, board members decided to take a wait and see attitude toward the project. However, at the July board meeting, Wacha said the chamber ought to press ahead with the plan, but to make sure the trees are planted along the areas where median strips will be when Commercial Street is four-laned.

As it stands now, the county government has approved a proposed land use plan for Commercial Street, and is expected to adopt a traffic plan to match the land plan. The traffic plan calls for four-laning Commercial Street, for median strips at each side of the road, and for service roads for commercial businesses to run parallel to Commercial on each side of the street.

Plan may eliminate beach entrance

Persons in the habit of going to Jensen Public Beach to swim, surf, sunbathe or just daydream may soon have to make a slight alteration in their route to get there.

Currently, there are two dirt road entrances to the beach parking area off A1A, but County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha said last week that county officials are thinking of changing that to one entrance.

Wacha explained that at present there is a traffic hazard at the intersection of A1A and the east end of the Jensen Beach Causeway. He said in an attempt to remove some of the congestion from that intersection, county officials are thinking of allowing an exit only from the dirt road that runs from the parking lot to the A1A-Causeway road intersection and making the dirt road to the south —next to the Holiday Inn—the only entrance to the beach parking lot.

Cosmetology group meets on Tuesday

The Treasure Coast Affiliate Two of the Florida Cosmetologist Association will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 24, in Jensen Beach.

The meeting is in the Harry Hoke meeting room of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County. All hairdressers and cosmetologists are welcome.

Two-day lobster season starts this Friday

Sports divers are expected to flock to reefs off Hutchinson and Jupiter Island this Friday and Saturday provided there are calm seas to search for Florida lobsters.

A special two-day short season begins at 12:01 a.m. Friday and lasts through Saturday. If it's like past short seasons, the reefs off the islands should be covered by hundreds of boats and divers.

During the two-day period, only sportsmen, not commercial fishermen, will be allowed to take lobsters. No diver will be allowed to take more than six lobsters on Friday and no more than 12 lobsters per diver are allowed cumulatively for the two-day period.

When the regular lobster season opens on Thursday, July 26, the limit is no more than 24 lobsters per boat in any 24-hour period.

The Florida lobster, also known as crawfish, is a seafood delicacy highly prized in these parts, and though many novice divers say they're hard to find and capture, some veteran divers seem to have little problem each short season in coming back with their limit.

There are strict rules on the size of lobsters that can be taken and on the method of catching lobsters. No spearing is allowed, and trapping is only allowed by those with a state Department of Natural Resources permit. It's only legal to take them by hand, commented a Florida Marine Patrol officer in Jupiter this week, who added that there will be plenty of marine officers on hand for the short season to make sure the rules are kept.

State law prohibits the taking of lobsters with a carapace less than three inches long and an overall length less than five and a half inches long. And, egg-bearing females are strictly off limits, regardless of size. An egg-bearing female is easy to identify once they're in hand because the eggs, carried on the exterior portion of the belly, are bright orange. If taken, those lobsters should be released.

It is also unlawful to wring or separate the tail from the carapace of the lobster while on or in state waters.

Though Florida lobsters generally run smaller than the northern variety, it's not unheard of for lobsters weighing five to eight pounds to be caught on local reefs.

Just spotting a lobster isn't always easy, as often they're hidden deep inside holes in the reefs. And, since the moray eel favors holes in the reefs, divers are urged to be cautious about blindly sticking their hands in cracks and crevices in the reefs. Another danger is brushing up against spiney sea urchins, which can give a painful sting if a spine penetrates the skin.

Overeaters meet every Thursday

Overeaters Anonymous meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Environmental Center, Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. Men and women age welcome. There are no fees, dues or weigh-ins. For information call 334-6548 or 287-2608.

Additional Beachtree II

Ocean Village, a 120-acre oceanfront community on Hutchinson Island has announced the release for sale of a 22-unit Beachtree II building, according to James R. Ottesen, director of marketing and sales.

Pre-completion prices on the two-bedroom apartments in Beachtree II will range from $73,500 to $81,500. Beachtree II is located over-looking a lagoon with first-floor apartments featuring decking extending over the lagoon. Top-floor apartments in the four-story building will have clerestory windows and cathedral ceilings.

The Beachtree II cluster is modeled after the highly successful Beachtree I complex of 145 units, which was sold out prior to completion. Beachtree II, according to Ottesen, has met with similar success since its introduction in February of 1979. This demand has prompted the early release of the additional building.

Also under construction at the Beachtree II site is a neighborhood recreational complex featuring a swimming pool, recreational building and two platform tennis courts. In addition to this facility, the community has in place a nine-hole, par three golf course, ocean front beach and health club, 200-seat gourmet restaurant and lounge, ten tennis courts with six lighted for night play, and two swimming pools.

Venture Three

Coordinator, Harriett Price

Lola called to say that she and Clyde will soon be off on their trip to Iowa and Michigan, and back home in a couple of months, through Alabama to visit her mother. They will visit Lola's daughters in Michigan and Clyde's brothers in Iowa.

Lola heard from Edna and Andy Willistoe, who are fine and enjoying their summer in Canada. Her news from Edna and Tom Ortalanti is that they are fine and wanting to know about the gas situation so they can plan their return trip.

Well, now that Bud has finished building the overhang on their home, and Lou has caught up on painting and other chores, it's time for the Prew's vacation. Plans are to leave Saturday to spend the weekend with son, Doug, and family in Tarpon Springs. Then on to their place at Hilton Head, S.C. for a week of golf, etc. Next, to Connecticut to visit "high school days" friends, then to Boston and Bar Harbor, Me. Reservations on Aug. 13 from N. Sydney, Neva Scotia will take them by ferry to Newfoundland for a couple of weeks. They hope to be in Syracuse, N.Y. for the State Fair first week of September where they will visit the DeSmits, of Indian River. Then a couple of weeks at Hilton Head and back home the first part of October. They'll miss their every evening swim at the pool, but not the heat of the days.

A letter from Sam Tucker said he was still in the hospital, but was doing fine and would soon go home.

Their news from Lydia and Milton Mills was that they are fine. But they heard from Melva, that Joe Goodwin has been sick. We all wish him a quick recovery. It will be lovely to greet all these good friends when they return in the fall.

The B.Y.O.B. party on Friday was small, but much fun. It is good to get together and discuss plans for trips and news from absent neighbors. Doris Day was well enough to attend. She will be here until Aug. 6th.

Fran Tener joined Lola and Clyde Bonar in a trip to Jai Alai and Fran was very excited because she won—even came home a big winner.

Fran had letters from Yvonne and Bud Wiencke. They are planning a trip to Canada in their motor home after their son and his family leave N.J. for Hawaii. They are having a good summer, but say they will be glad to get home to V-III in the fall. Also, she passed on the news that Nomi and Dan Morton are settled in their new home in N.J. and are involved in many activities.

The news from Betty and Paul Drinkard is that they are enjoying fun and games with family and friends. Paul is busy building a new deck area, etc. They are also planning a trip in their motor home, but are expecting visitors from V-III as well as Betty's parents. They send regards to all.

Summer luncheon for Church Circle

The Church Aid Circle of Jensen Beach Community Church will hold its Summer Salad Luncheon on Wednesday, July 25 at noon.

Since the gasoline shortage has curtailed trips and activities for many people, members are encouraged to bring a friend or two to share the fellowship, food and entertainment. Each woman is to bring her own table service and a salad to serve 6, bread and beverage will be provided.

Barabara Smith of the telephone company will present her popular program about Florida. There will be no business meeting.

USE YOUR MIRROR for paper mache after you read it

A lovely letter from Alice and Floyd Reynolds gave their news. His family reunion had 31 in attendance, with lots of food and fun. They are especially enjoying the young granddaughter, Wendy, who is just learning to walk. Her son and wife visited them before he returned to Iceland for two more months. They are painting their dock and doing lots of catching up on projects.

Sorry to report that Vita Autenreith is incapacitated with a broken arm. She fell and hurt her arm, but didn't know it was broken until after seven days she went to the hospital for X-rays. She had to miss the luncheon that several of her Venture Three friends had planned for her. All wish her a quick recovery.

Mary Lou Bernard has a beautiful Siamese kitten. She says Jim is quite enchanted with the new addition to their family.

Happy Birthday to Hilda Atkin on July 17, and anniversary congratulations to Mary Lou and Jim Bernard on July 18.

Mirror Magic Menu

by Lee Hicks of Lucieland

Mirror readers are introduced to talented Carol Ostrom (shown above with son Scott 9) of 774 SE Whitmore Drive, Port St. Lucie. Husband Harry can be found working as an apprentice mechanic at Florida Power & Light Company on Hutchinson Island, or finishing work on their new home which they have decorated in an innovative manner.

Harry spends leisure hours working on his '57 Chevy and outfitting their new brown Chevy van for favorite camping trips for the family.

Moving from West Palm Beach, the Ostroms love the wide open spaces of our small community, especially for Scott and their two black cats!

Carol claims healthful cooking is her objective and as a diabetic she knows the value of watching your diet. This means shopping more intricately, planning meals daily, using simple cooking (prepared foods contain hidden sugars), and limiting food intake.

Fresh fruit in season, cheese and nuts are her favorites. She also uses many spices and herbs for flavoring to substitute for sugar.

This Carrot Health Cake is a taste treat to store in your refrigerator, and is sweet enough for everyone to enjoy!

Carol's Carrot Health Cake
(no sugar)

2 eggs	½ tsp. salt
½ c. oil	1 T. cinnamon
½ c. honey	1 T. nutmeg
1½ c. grated carrots	½ tsp. vanilla
1 c. whole wheat flour	1 c. chopped nuts
1 tsp. baking soda

Beat eggs, add oil & honey. Mix dry ingredients. Add to egg mixture. Blend in carrots and vanilla. Bake in greased 8 in. or 9 in. sq. pan 350 degrees 25-30 min. Serves 12.

Frost: (optional) has a taste of sugar!

1 oz. cream	½ tsp. vanilla
½ stick butter	¼ box powdered sugar

Cream butter and cheese, add vanilla and sugar. Spread on cooled cake. Serve chilled. A great cake to freeze!

Freeholders ask PSL to eliminate 'spot' zoning on Indian River Drive

One hundred and eighty acres of land along an "ecologically very delicate" riverfront portion of Indian River Drive has been "Spot-zoned" for multiple-family dwellings in an area "entirely zoned for one-family homes," says John Mack, a representative of the Indian River Drive Freeholders.

Mack pointed out that "the county has kept density under control in the area with its R-1-AA zoning, allowing one private single-family home on 100 feet of Drive frontage. In its Land Use Plan, the county is calling for this area to be classed as 'Low-density Residential,' allowing five or less units per acre."

The developer who controlled this area, however, originally submitted a plan calling for some 1800 units. Mack feels that if this had been permitted to be built, "there would have resulted a violent dislocation in the area, in terms of traffic, sewage, water, not to mention a mortal blow to the peace, contentment and happiness of residents along the 11 miles of the Drive." It was also mentioned that this particular area lies directly in front of the Savannas, a "perpetual wilderness under state control."

Mack related the biggest problems with the area's current classification to be the fact that this sort of "spot zoning" would be out of character with surrounding structures, the traffic congestion due to the "narrow and winding" quality of Indian River Drive, and the ecological water and sewage problems which would be, in his opinion, "impossible to solve."

The original developer of this territory, Universal Adams, abandoned the project after trouble with the courts over an illegally built causeway on Walton Road. The land is now in the possession of the N.H. Corporation, of which Nat Harrison, a past part-owner of Universal Adams, is the head.

Ralph La Chance, of the PSL Building Department, commented that "no requests for permits in this area have been filed at the present time." While PSL City Planner Mike Szunyog confirmed "at the moment, no plans are being considered for development" along this stretch of land.

In speaking for the Indian River Drive Freeholders, Inc., Mack says that they will be represented at all future meetings of the Planning and Zoning Board at which the Comprehensive Plan, which has twelve months to be formulated, will be discussed. If the developer of this property plans to build prior to the enactment of these guidelines, Mack says "he has until July 1, 1980 to file a plan."

Great changes

If you live here all the time and observe the changes to our community as they come, they may seem gradual.

But for Mrs. Arnold Bensen, who is visiting here for the first time since 1968, the changes are dramatic.

"So much has changed here since I last visited. There was practically no development on the beach when I was here last. Everywhere I look, there is something new that wasn't here last time," she said.

Mrs. Bensen and her husband, Rev. Arnold Bensen, are visiting here from White Plains, N.Y. at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Frank Spetz of Skyline Drive. "We love the beach here," she said, adding that even with all the growth we've had here since 1968, she finds "the pace here is still nice and humane—not like the pace in New York. It's really fun to be here."

How new Watt-Wise Living homes save up to 25% on electricity.

EXAMPLE 3:

What makes a Watt-Wise™ home a Watt-Wise home? A properly insulated water heater, for one thing.

Because your water heater can account for 18 to 20% of your monthly electric bill, it is often the second largest user of energy in the home.

That's why you'll find properly insulated water heaters in new Watt-Wise homes, and Waste Heat Recovery Systems or Solar Water Heating in many of them.

With a Heat Recovery Unit (HRU), the heat drawn out of your air conditioner is captured and fed into your water heater. This provides an annual savings of from 50 to 70% on water heating costs. A Solar Water Heater, using energy from the sun, can provide 50 to 70% of your hot water needs.

Our Watt-Wise standards recommend that the water heater is insulated to a value of at least R-8, (of course the higher the R value, the better the insulation).

But a properly insulated water heater is just one of the many features of a Watt-Wise home. Others can include a higher-efficiency air conditioner, proper insulation, treated glass and more efficient appliances.

Ask your builder to show you how a certified Watt-Wise home can save you up to 25% on electricity. Or pick up a Watt-Wise Living folder at your FPL office.

The Watt-Wise Living home. It costs a little more now, but in the long run it costs a whole lot less.

CG Aux is planning daytime boat courses

For the first time Stuart Flotilla 59, has scheduled its popular Boating United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Skills and Seamanship course in daytime sessions. It will be held at Flotilla Headquarters, 1 Flagler Avenue, starting Thursday, August 2, and continuing through August 28, with examination August 30. Graduation and awarding of certificates, plus a film and commentary on how to run inlets, will conclude the course on September 4.

All classes are on Tuesday and Thursday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. for the eleven subjects, with registration starting at noon on August 2 at Flotilla Headquarters.

Subjects to be covered and taught by qualified members of Flotilla 59 are: Safe Way to Boating, Boaters Language, Boat Handling, Rules of the Road, Radio Telephone, Piloting, Legal Requirements, Marlinspike Seamanship, Weather, Aids to Navigation, and Locks & Dams.

The course is open to all members of the family and all are welcome to attend. Safe boating is more fun when someone besides the skipper also has the confidence and ability to participate in some phase of the boat's operation. Potential boat owners are invited as well as the owner whose experience has been on lakes or waters not comparable to this area.

The course is free except for a valuable textbook covering all the subjects which is available for $7 and includes a supplement of test questions pertaining to each lesson. For those who wish to purchase only one textbook, the supplement of test questions for additional family members is $3.

For further information contact Ruth Button, Commander, 283 3854, or Charles Koch, Public Education Officer, 878 0482.

First National declares dividend

First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart recently declared a second quarter dividend of $ 25 per share according to Dale M. Hudson, president. The dividend was payable to shareholders of record as of June 29, 1979 and represents First National's 114th consecutive dividend paid to shareholders.

WATER FOG—Jensen Beach Volunteer firemen Tommy Neeson and Doug Slockbower move in behind a water fog toward the tree that is being used as a house fire drill.

BASICS—Capt. Don Wilkie shows new trainees Doug Slockbower and Tommy Neeson how to hold the hose on a water fog spray. At rear is Lt. Bill Yurillo. The drill was held last Tuesday night.

HOLD THE HOSE—Trainees Mike Neeson, Charles Schommer and Tom Neeson learned how to approach a house fire under cover of water fog from a one-inch hose at the volunteer fire department drill last Tuesday night.

MOVING IN—Mike Neeson and Charles Schommer move the one-inch fire hose into position in a fire drill that uses a tree as a house. Jensen volunteer firemen drill three times a month to keep their expertise in firefighting up to par.

Grandchildren are a delight

Aren't grandchildren a delight! John and Grace Madden can attest to the fact that when one hasn't seen them in two years a lot can change, but what a delight to have them! The "baby" now six year old Mark a LoGalbo, has become an ace "Dad-in" On his first fishing trip on G arroza John to the rescue by even capturing caught four whiting keepers two pompano three bankes and a catfish The Maddens enjoyed the fish for supper Sunday night

Daughter Pam took the four children Lori 15, Frankie 13, Thomas 9 and Matthew for a couple of days at Disney World during their stay at Holiday Out Within a half hour of their arrival, Matthew was "lost"

No doubt his interests were not those of the rest of the family.

Checking in at the "Lost Parents" area, Pam found Matthew, hands on hips awaiting their arrival Turning around he calmly announced to the lady in charge "It's all O.K I've been found" Good thing grandma decided not to go on this trip to Disney, grandmas are not quite as fleetin

They all agreed that Holiday Out is a wonderful place to spend a two week vacation

We finally had a much needed rainfall this week The grass and flowers were really thirsty

George & Lu Bares went home to Ohio after a very enjoyable two and a half weeks mostly sitting under the shade tree on the beach

Millie & Frank Pitz arrived in H Out Saturday They had a beautiful trip to Nova Scotia and many other lovely scenic spots while driving thru Canada. Enjoyed staying with their children in N.J. both going and coming from Canada. Leea & Bob Black were surprised and pleased to see them and enjoyed their visit Frank & Millie phoned Leea to say goodbye when they were leaving the area, to see behold who should get on the phone but Catty & Lester Ullmann! We should hear from Catty next week. The Pitz's report on gas is favorable, but it is a constant worry. They thought it not worth the aggravation to attempt a trip to Cal this time

Petra & Bill Crasson are getting settled in their new home in Port St. Lucie They will be visiting all their friends here and will have their trailer in H.Out.

Vern & Rosemary May brought a couple from the Netherlands to see H.Out and then go to Disney World, before returning to Michigan The young lady was an exchange student in the May's home a few years back Since returning to her home, she has married and brought her hubby of three years to meet the Mays and see some of the U.S.A.

Bob & Betty Ray arrived Sunday and will spend six days with their parents, the Al Rays And enjoy the beautiful breezes and ocean in H.Out while here.

Ma & Mabe Theimer pulled their trailer over to Sarasota for a rock bound rally Ha! has some beauties that he has polished

The R Rileys came up from West Palm for another swim in the ocean, over the weekend

On July 2 Eleanor & Fred Quarters daughter Sister Eleanor from Our Lady of Cenacle in Richmond Hill, N.Y. flew from J.F.K. Airport to W. Palm for a three week visit to H.Out and parents There were also guests, Mr. & Mrs. Joe Frank and Mr. & Mrs. Peter Fuchs, of Kingswood in Stuart. Eleanor returned on Monday feeling she is leaving a paradise, like so many who visit the Park

Pat & Joyce Otteri welcome back home their son, Pat, from a vacation in Massachusetts "One of his greatest thrills while up there was learning how to fly a helicopter He returned by Delta Airlines accompanied by a granddaughter, Christine, O'Connell, to spend a month vacation at H.Out Pat & Joyce met the children at W. Palm Beach airport. Then all enjoyed lunch at Junior's for this happy reunion

Ruth & Wes Arbo returned to H.Out sooner than expected The constant rain and motor trouble held them up for days They finally gave up and returned. We are glad to have them back

I have heard from a daughter of Kiefabers that Fred is looking better and feeling well up bodie in N.Y. She said we wouldn't know him now. This is very good news for all his friends

News from Lisbee & Artie Smith, who just returned from a visit to N.Y. and Ohio Artie had a birthday celebration, and their first grandson graduated from high school. The following week his last grandson to be born was christened, so it was a very eventful week Some changes in the H.Out Annual Get-To-Gether Seems it was planned to be held in Ohio Paul & Betty Dome were to be the hosts, but they were invited to go to China, by "Ohio Grain & Feed Dealers Assoc." They will leave Los Angeles go July 30 for 19 days So Bob & Jean Davis are hosting the affair at Hammondsport N.Y. beginning July 31 thru Aug 2. Their new dock is in the water for their boat, for the first time in three seasons They are having too much rain the grass grows, but flowers and garden need more sunshine

Happy Birthday Wishes for Joe Fritzinger 7-19, Lofton De Vore 7-20, Harriet Dubion 7-21, Herb Rough 7-22 Mark Sumner, Barbara Gunder son 7-25, Debbie Nash Gordon McIntyre Wilmuth DeVore 7-24, Jack Smith 7-26

Ocean Breeze

BY LETA KEITH 334-4566

From George and Betty Ryder

Betty and I are at Elkhart Indiana getting a new water heater in our trailer We left Ocean Breeze Park June 22 and drove to Elkins West Virginia There we saw our grandson's graduation from Davis and Elkins College From there we visited the Deans and Benders and Powells in Harrisburg and had some good eats and good square dancing

Next we went to Marcellus New York where our two daughters had a big wing-ding and open house for our 50th anniversary date From there we drove to Elyria Ohio and attended two 50th anniversary parties for our friends

On June 30th we visited Rue and Beulah Mertz and Gai and Pauline Bentz at their summer homes on a lake north of Fort Wayne Indiana We had lots of rain and some cold weather

We expect to be neat our two daughters grandchildren and sisters in central New York most of the summer We will be glad to return November 1 and see our O.B. friends again. George and Betty Ryder

From Henrietta and Lloyd Mikesell

Hi there how's our newspaper columnist doing anyway " We enjoy reading the news you write about, all the doings of our friends in the park and in their various homes all over the country it keeps us close

We are having a beautiful summer a bit on the cool side but plenty of rain The crops and gardens here are doing great We manage to keep busy about the place but we will quit work at the least provocation Mike is feeling fine busy getting ready for the harvest I have been trying to get a few pictures ready for our Art Show in August

Remember my sister who visited me two winters ago? She loved Ocean Breeze and is looking forward to coming again My youngest sister has bought a home in Leilani Heights and will leave here the latter part of August

Give Irwin our love we are looking forward to seeing you when the snow starts flying up here Love, Mike and Henrietta in Monticello, Indiana

From Ernie Curtsen in Lunderburg Va

Hi Folks. We're having a young ball for ourselves here at Lake Sherando that's right smack in the midst of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Have a dandy 25' trailer with full hook-up, including floor heat, that just hits the spot these mornings with the temperature in the 40's No gasoline problem at all, so far so when we leave here in August, we'll take up the Senior Citizen investigation Hope to have something for you in time for you Judi Bulletin)

So far we visited Brunswick, Ga and Waynesboro, Va Both have drop-in centers The Brunswick AARP chapter is moving force there with YWCA supplying an old, unused building More on this later) We are doing without Orthello," as by the time we found it, the prices were from $9.95 to $12.95 A deck of cards will do us I guess See you later E & M Curwen

Mary Adrean and her granddaughter came in from Ohio last Monday, July 9

Irene Burgess left Monday, July 16 to spend 45 days with nieces and her stepson in California

WE GET MORE LETTERS

From Rose Shriner to Hilda Gibbin

Dear Hilda Long, long time since I got your nice newsy letter But I don't have a good excuse It's my own fault of putting writing off Nothing exciting here Edward and Mary left the 15th of June went to Dave's in Cheyenne, Mo and came back the 30th

Our neighbors are all left for vacations Some were headed for New York California, Wyoming, Arizona and Minnesota I am alone for a spell I go to congregate dinners and visit with other retirees Today we had turkey, mashed potatoes and gravy, bean salad, one half pear, tapioca banana pudding, coffee, and milk Who would want for more"

Yes I take The Mirror and enjoy it A robin has a nest in Mary's tree I sit on the porch and watch her carry the worms to feed her brood Sincerely Rose Shriner

Glen and Marie Rpudebush of 3 S Sixth Street son of Nina Ziegelbaier are really traveling around They visited in Kentucky then whse to Ohio, they spent some time with Les Zimmerman and Alton and Bea Canfield They will go to New York and see Ken and Bea Beyer before returning to Ocean Breeze

Crisis Line's a real help for Martin, St. Lucie folks

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

"The problems are varied. You never know what you will be facing when that phone rings. That Satterlee sums up the apprehension of Crisis Line volunteers.

The Crisis Line, which operates 24 hours per day, seven days a week and presently serves the Martin and St. Lucie county areas, is manned by what Satterlee describes as "specially trained people" on a self-discipline basis. They work certain shifts and report when and how many callers they serve so that each volunteer within the operation knows the answers for himself.

Bill Satterlee is past president and present volunteer in the program. Notes that there is always a shortage of volunteers. "It is quite disappointing [illegible] the responsibilities that go with it. Trainees come from the volunteer pool and drop out and others may be so creative that they cannot remain objective and therefore will not be asked to become an operator," stating an average graduating class of 15.

The training is offered on a three weeks basis six fall and mid winter during seven eight weeks and meeting two nights per week at the Martin County Middle School. The training fee is $20.00 and includes a mini psychological counseling course taught by well noted psychologists as Dr. Robert K. Alsobrook. The second half of the training, which will determine whether or not a trainee will be selected to be an operator, consists of a series of role playing [illegible] simulating real life calls.

The two kinds of services provided by Crisis Line are information dispersal, which is a form of direct counseling and one direct or routine, and during which a person will discuss his her problems with the trained operator.

The key to Crisis Line's success in servicing the community is, in the opinion of Bill Satterlee the complete confidentiality provided for the callers. There is no direct contact between the operator and the caller following the completion of the call. The only time when Crisis Line will make outside connections for the caller is in the case of child abuse and the threat of suicide.

Callers contact Crisis Line with such diverse problems as alcoholism, drug abuse, depression, child abuse, adolescent problems, family and marital problems, runaways, loneliness, pregnancy, financial, medical, legal and sexual problems. The operator may be on the phone for one hour and make only five per cent of the conversations. We've gotten some 2,100 calls since we began in 1977, some from as far away as Miami and occasionally even from the northern states," says Satterlee.

He believes that Crisis Line would have been impossible without the tremendous support of local officials. "The police and sheriff's department have been extremely supportive in handling these cases. If we get a battered wife or abused child called in, they will get them to safety." Also mentioned was local city attorney Jim Butler, who Satterlee believes, deserves the credit for starting the program locally and keeping it rolling.

Satterlee feels that this type of volunteer work is so satisfying because, "We know that we have averted a number of murders and suicides. We have gotten many alcoholics on the way to controlling their problem. We know we've kept some families together that were falling apart.

"We don't win them all," says Crisis Line volunteer Bill Satterlee, but with the kind of rechrd they have maintained, their efforts provide an unparalelled service to Martin, St. Lucie and the neighboring counties.

'Inlet Festival' brings Governor to Stuart

[illegible] Labor Day, Monday, September 3rd, will be a highlight of Martin County's [illegible] history.

Governor Robert Graham will visit Martin in commemoration of the St. Lucie Inlet Improvement Project. A community effort, Inlet Festival, [illegible] being planned at the Stuart Causeway. Ray Navitsky of the Stuart Martin County Chamber of Commerce has been appointed coordinator.

The festivities will begin at [illegible] and run all day until 6 p.m. Governor Graham and other state dignitaries will arrive at the Stuart Causeway at 4 p.m. and speak to the community concerning the St. Lucie Inlet. They will leave the festival area for a picture taking ceremony at the inlet and a private reception at Sailfish Point before departing that evening.

There has been an initial organizational meeting for the Inlet Festival at the Stuart Causeway but help is needed. The festival is a community effort and a [illegible] organizations businesses and individuals are asked to contribute in some manner. Labor supplies financial contributions and activities are all needed. Whatever you can do will help in making the Inlet Festival a fun-filled success [illegible]

Some things already committed are a fish fry, soft drink concessions are [illegible] sound system and several businesses have already made financial donations. A history on St. Lucie Inlet is being compiled by Janet Hutchinson and Ernie Lyons and will be printed for community distribution. Golf and tennis clubs are being asked to have Inlet Festival tournaments on Saturday and Sunday, September 1 and 2.

Everyone who lives in Martin County has an interest in the improvement of the inlet whether it be for business or pleasure. This is a great opportunity to celebrate a day commemorating something that means so much to everyone and it is an honor to have Governor Graham and other state dignitaries joining in the festivities.

If you would like to volunteer in any way, please contact Ray Navitsky, coordinator at 287-1088 by Friday, July 27. Plans will be finalized at a community meeting on Monday, July 30 at 8 p.m. at the County Commission Chamber. All those interested or participating are asked to attend with their ideas and commitments.

WSTU edges Andy

WSTU snapped Andy's seven-game winning streak and defeated Andy's Hamburgers in the final regular season Class A game for both teams at Lakefront Park last Wednesday night.

Singles by Bill Starkey, Hoss Jed Lawson and Bert Carr lifted the losers in the final frame, but Lawson struck out and Ray Francis grounded out to assure the Radio Wonders a winning season (4-3).

Carr singled to start the rally as Andy's was in the process of taking a 7-6 lead, but WSTU fought back with four runs in the second inning and three more in the third. Hoss Jed's singled in two runs in the second, while an error scored the other two. In the third, Mike Paul hit a run scoring single, Bill Dailey lifted a sacrifice fly and Jay Norman singled in what proved to be the winning run.

Dan Savage, who came into the game leading the league with a .647 batting average, got only one hit in three at bats, losing the title to the Optimist Clubs Mike Wegler (.643). The Deek's Mark Poorman finished second at .611.

Mowry wins in Colorado

Maitland professional golfer Larry Mowry followed his extraordinary victory in the Florida PGA Open with another victory last weekend, as he took home the first prize in the Colorado Open, at Denver.

Mowry won the Florida title at Sandpiper Bay in Port St. Lucie by two strokes over Boynton Beach's Laurie Hammer two weeks ago. This time, he outdistanced three-time Colorado champion Dave Hill by five strokes.

The Colorado event was the tournament Mowry had always played instead of the Florida Open.

"The two tournaments were scheduled at the same time," he said, "but this year they changed the schedule and it allowed me to play in both."

Mowry earned $4,000 two weeks ago when he won the Florida event.

GIVE 'EM HELL, PELL—is what many area bumper stickers say, and first year football coach Charley Pell of the University of Florida did just that Sunday night at the Florida Home Builders Association's Sports Nite dinner. Pell said the 1979 Florida team "has the basis of a very good team," but added that "our guys have to work hard during these summer months, too." Pell came to the University from Clemson, where he compiled a 19-3 record in two seasons.

Pell wants a winner at Florida

BY DONNIE WILKIE

Charley Pell was a winner at Clemson University, where he piloted the Tiger football team to a 10-1 season in 1978. He had lost only two games the year before, and his job seemed as secure as any in the country.

But he took a chance.

Pell, who in two years built a major college football power at Clemson, was hired in December to be the new football coach at the University of Florida, where it has been said that football and Southeastern Conference championships don't mix.

Pell came to the University under less than normal circumstances. In the midst of praise for Clemson's appearance in the Gator Bowl (it turned out to be the Woody Hayes Punch Bowl), Doug Dickey, the coach at Florida, was fired after long debate and counted debate.

Instead of waiting until after the bowls to pick a successor, the University embarrassed itself by first hinting that Lou Holtz would be hired from Arkansas, then watching as Holtz stated he was going nowhere. Finally, U of F hired Pell, who left Clemson before their Gator Bowl victory to begin the tough job of recruiting at Florida.

Saturday night, Pell spoke of the challenge of assembling a college football winner. He was the guest speaker at the Florida Home Builders Association's Sports Nite dinner at Sandpiper Bay, a part of the 1979 Summer Conference of the FHBA.

"I'm convinced we have the basis for a good football team in 1979," Pell told the huge crowd of Association members. "I emphasize 'basis' because that's what we have—the basis. We've got a lot of players capable of being the best at their positions in the Southeast, but they have to keep at it, and that means working hard during the summer months, too."

Pell praised the University, calling it one of the "best educational systems" in the country, and referred to his job as "one of the most exciting and promising jobs in the nation."

He called the U of F schedule "the toughest in the South except maybe for Mississippi State," as the Gators must open with national powerhouse Houston before going on to face Florida State, Miami, Georgia Tech, Tulsa, Mississippi State, and, in successive weeks, LSU and Alabama.

"That game will expose every single crack in the entire University of Florida football program," said Pell of the U of F-Alabama matchup in Gainsville.

The schedule, of course, was prepared years before Pell even thought of coming to Gainesville, where he is now building a home.

"We can't change the schedule," he said. "But it could help us if our people pull together early in the year and realize the importance of what they're doing. You don't get a decent ranking by playing nobodies. You have to beat the really good teams."

Pell said that the Florida passing game will be the strength of the team, with receivers John Gaffney and Kris Collinsworth teaming up with blue-chip freshman Spencer Jackson, from Boca Raton High School.

"We're going to have to find a quarterback that goes out and establishes himself as THE quarterback," added the new coach.

Recruiting wise, the Gators had a banner year, grabbing "six of the top ten prospects in the state," while Florida State signed two and Michigan (Anthony Carter) and Alabama took the other two.

Of course, the Gator-Alabama game will be a sort of homecoming for Pell, who played for the legendary Paul "Bear" Bryant from 1960-62. He also played under then-assistant coach Howard Schnellenburger in 1961 and 1972, manning the tackle position.

When asked about Dork Luckie, the huge defensive tackle from Fort Pierce Central now attending the University of Florida, Pell just smiled.

"Dork Luckie is one of the most gifted athletes I've ever been associated with in all my years of coaching," he said. "Dork can bench press about 500 pounds, and he's improving almost every day. If he keeps at it, he can be one of the best defensive linemen in the country."

Pell's stands on two key issues of the day were plainly stated.

On a possible college football play-off, Pell said "it might benefit college football, but only if structured so as not to damage the bowls. I think it's the restructuring of the bowl games that will keep a playoff from ever happening."

On the banning of spring football practice among the Florida high schools, Pell made it clear that he is opposed to the ruling, though he also said that he would support any stand taken by the Florida Coaches Association.

"Any high school should be able to deal with its own destiny," he added.

But Pell impressed the Home Builders with his honesty more than anything else.

"We wanted to be sure when we (Pell and his wife Ward) came down here that we'd be coming to a place we could be proud of," stated the coach. "We found the state of Florida to be a dynamic place. And it's not because of the tourists, either. It's because of the great roots of the population like you people."

Federal staggers Optimists, wins title

Gregg Sprauer and David Bocchino each ripped three hits last Wednesday night, leading First Federal of Martin County to an 11-4 Civic League conquest of the Jensen Beach Optimist Club.

The victory clinched the league championship for the Bankers, who must now win the post-season playoff tournament to claim the undisputed overall title. It also marked the end of the infamous Civic League "jinx" which had plagued the youngsters in previous encounters with the Optimists.

"The thing is, they are the men that coached all of our kids," explained First Federal coach Frank Hughes before the game. "All throughout their Mustang, Bronco and Pony League years, they had guys like Bill Mang and Roger Jackson as coaches, and this sometimes makes them nervous when they play ball against them."

At the outset last Wednesday, it appeared that perhaps there was still some punch left in the jinx. The Optimists jumped on FFMC starting and winning pitcher Doug Hughes for three first inning runs, and took a 3-1 lead into the third inning before things started to crumble.

After the second inning, First Federal scored at least a run in every inning, and their highly touted defense worked miracles against the previously red-hot Optimist bats.

Ernest McIntyre's two-out triple in the third inning gave FFMC the lead for good, 4-3, and a Nick Barker, run-scoring single in the fourth proved to be the game winning hit, although the Bank bats were far from through.

In the other Civic League game, WSTU Radio spotted Andy's Hamburgers five runs in the first inning, then stormed from behind to take a 7-6 season-ending victory, insuring a winning record for the Radio Wonders.

But the WSTU-Andy's preliminary served only to make the undefeated Optimists and Bankers even more nervous before they banged heads for the first time in 1979.

The game was hardly underway when David Bocchino smashed a long line drive over the head of his brother Jerry in left field for a triple. Bocchino scored the game's first run on the next swing of the bat, a sacrifice fly ball by McIntyre.

But Mike Jordon's two run single in the home half of the inning temporarily wrested the lead away from FFMC, and when Bob Mousson followed with a single, scoring Jordon, the Optimists led 3-1.

David Bocchino singled in the third frame to cut the gap by a run, then McIntyre whacked his triple, giving Federal the lead. Sprauer followed Barker's RBI single in the fourth inning with a single, scoring Chris Crook from third base and making it 6-3.

The First Federal defense broke down for only a moment, in the bottom of the fourth inning, when Rob Phillips' line drive single eluded left centerfielder Bocchino and the fleet Phillips easily circled the bases, cutting the FFMC lead to just 6-4.

But Malcolm Delaney doubled in the fifth, scoring Darryl Delaney, then scored himself when John Federson followed with a single. In the sixth, First Federal added two more runs on a ground ball and a David Bocchino single. By then, the verdict was all but in, with FFMC holding a 10-4 lead.

Three consecutive singles, by Frank Knott, Barker and Sprauer, in the seventh frame accounted for the final run of the night.

"We had a chance to be ahead 9-1," said the losing coach, Bill Mang, who also saw his earned run average as a pitcher take a quick upswing and his undefeated record ruined. "We loaded the bases in the second and the third innings, but got nothing out of it."

Mang was right. In the second inning, Joe Grzelka walked, Mike Wegler singled and Herb Seal reached on an error (one of six mostly meaningless ones committed by FFMC), but Jordon ended the threat by grounding out. The O's limited again loaded the bases in the third, this time with only one out, only to have Grzelka hit into a double play.

The threats weren't over, either. The defending champions did enough hitting in the fifth inning to score at least a run, but when Jerry Bocchino tried unsuccessfully to stretch a single into a double, the Optimists were again denied.

Both Mang and Hughes realize, of course, that it is likely the two teams will meet again, this time for the post-season title. But after two years of disappointment against the Optimists, the Bankers were ecstatic after their first victory over their rivals.

Four games Friday

FFMC Invitational this weekend

Frank Hughes wants this weekend at Langford Park to be a special one. That's why he's doing what he's doing.

Hughes, the sometimes coach, sometimes father of the First Federal of Martin County junior softball team, has put together the "first annual First Federal Invitational," scheduled to begin this Friday night at 6:30 p.m. at the park.

The FFMC mentor has spent the majority of the last two weeks trying to track down local teams to participate in the event, which while providing a source of competition and enjoyment for the entrants, will also help to raise money to send First Federal to the state 16-18 champion ship tournament in Satellite Beach next week.

As of late Tuesday, the draw for the six or seven team event was not yet final, but it appeared that the action would kick off with a pair of 6:30 p.m. games Friday night (using two fields) and one or two more at 8 p.m.

"I'm still trying to find an eighth team for the tournament," said Hughes Monday night. "I'm hoping to get two 16-18 year old teams from Hollywood Hills to come up, and then we (First Federal) can stay out of it. With us in, I've got seven teams, and I'd hate to see someone get a bye in the first round.

"If it turns out we can only get seven teams, I may just take us out and leave it at six. I really don't know how everyone would react if we entered and then happened to win. We may just do all the umpiring and scorekeeping and let everyone else play ball.

"After all, this is what I'm trying to do. For a lot of these guys, this is their first experience in a tournament. Even the Optimist Club has never played in a regular double-elimination type tournament."

At press time, the six teams officially entered in the three-day, double-elimination event were the Jensen Beach Optimist Club, the Martin County Sheriff's Department, First Baptist Church, WSTU Radio, Jensen-Rio Fire Department and Headquarters First Federal would make seven.

"We're going to have all the sponsors of the Civic League down there, and the kids will put up flags in the outfield. I really want it all to be first-class," added Hughes.

The FFMC coach and tournament director said that although the brackets had yet to be made, likely first round games on Field One were JB Optimist-Baptist Church and WSTU-Sheriff's Department.

"I think the Optimist-Baptist game would be a real good, evenly matched game, and the WSTU-Sheriff's Department game would draw the biggest crowd," explained Hughes. "We're also going to present the trophies for the Civic League (regular season) to First Federal of Martin County (first place) and the Optimist Club (of Jensen Beach, second place)."

Monday Civic Games rained out

The start of the 1979 Civic League softball tournament at Langford Park in Jensen Beach was postponed Monday night when area thunder-showers drenched the local facilities.

Americans filled with playoff optimism

The Martin County Americans, having spent the entire regular season in the Division II basement, try to salvage something out of 1979 this weekend when they enter the division playoff tournament at West Palm Beach's Municipal Stadium.

"Our pitching is very good," said the coach. "Perhaps the only problem in that department was that we allowed our pitchers to stay in games longer than they should have."

Under the direction of Manager Pete Howanitz, the M-Americans staggered to a 3-14 mark with one game rained out, but Howanitz believes there's a good chance for improvement in the tournament.

Several pitchers have shown marked improvement in 1979, and the one that has probably come the farthest, Brent Laycock (of Jensen Beach) will get the nod to start in the first game of the tournament Sunday afternoon.

The M-Americans face the Division II regular season champions, Lake Worth Post 47, in the second game of a doubleheader at Municipal Stadium, at 4 p.m. The first game pits North Palm Beach Post 141 against West Palm Beach Post 12, at 1 p.m. The latter teams tied for second place in final regular season standings at 10-8, while Lake Worth took the pennant with a 12-5 record.

"We didn't plan to go 3-14," explained Howanitz. "We certainly didn't try to lose during the regular season. But I will say that we realize now that the regular season was nothing but an ego trip, and we can't see any way that our 3-14 record can affect us in the playoffs."

Martin County owns one victory over Lake Worth in five previous meetings with one rain-out. They smashed Post 47, 7-1 in Lake Worth two weeks ago en route to a three-game winning streak, but had little success in the other games against the champions.

"Our hitting is what's troubled us," commented the coach. "We haven't had the time in practice to do much hitting, but we're stressing that this week. I definitely feel that will be the key for us in the tournament. If our hitting picks up, we've got a chance to win."

The playoff tournament continues Monday night, with Sunday's losers meeting at 5 p.m. and the winners colliding at 8 p.m. Tuesday, the winner from the loser's game meets the loser of the winner's game (got that?), with that game's winner tackling the undefeated team Wednesday night. If the undefeated team loses, there will be an additional game.

COWELL ROLLS HOUSE BEST

Randy Cowell of Port St. Lucie turned in the best series score in the house history of the Jensen Lanes, under the ownership of Len Casey, last Saturday while bowling in the Junior Summer League, it was announced at the Lanes Sunday.

Cowell's 708 series was the second 700-plus score achieved in the house's history, and marked the highest ever (for a junior).

The 16-year-old PSL product got a 257 in the first game, then followed with a 230-221.

North Palm 4 Martin County 3, 10 inn.

North Palm Beach Post 141 scored three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to tie the game, then won it with a single tally in the tenth frame, 4-3.

The game, played at Riviera Beach last Saturday night, marked the end of the regular American Legion season for both teams. North Palm finished 10-8, while Martin County dropped to 3-14.

The Americans broke a 0-0 tie in the fourth inning when, with Julio Quesada running at second base, Chip Rice hit a ground ball. As Quesada tried to advance to third, the throw at the base sailed wildly into left field, allowing Quesada to score.

In the sixth inning, the Americans erupted with two out. Rick Bright and Quesada singled, and Rice walked, setting up Jeff Blair's two run double which made the score 3-0.

McArthur, Gardens grab spots in girls' state

BY DONNIE WILKIE

West Palm Beach McArthur played steady softball throughout the week end and went undefeated while marching to the 1979 girls 13-15 District A championship at Langford Park in Jensen Beach.

In winning the title, McArthur disposed of Plantation, Palm Beach Gardens and Jupiter Tequesta before declaring Gardens again in the championship round. But their games were always close, an indication that this year's field of eleven teams was a very good one.

In fact, the winners could only muster three runs in the four games, batting only .250 as a team. But winners are winners and defense turned out to be the key to McArthur's success, while pitchers Barbara Chupp and Tina Beasley did their parts, holding the opposition to just six runs in those four victories.

Meanwhile, Palm Beach Gardens suddenly McArthur's arch rivals, clinched a spot in the state tournament in Melbourne this week end by finishing second in the event. The runners up earned a reputation at Langford Park for coming from behind to win games, and twice saved themselves on the deciding Sunday by winning the two most exciting games of the tourney.

"They are a good ball team," said McArthur coach Joe Huffstetler of the Gardens squad. "I'd say the two teams are about even. A lot of times, it's the breaks that decide a softball game."

Gardens had beaten McArthur twice in its Sub District competition earlier in July at McArthur's field, but lost a thrilling, 1-0 decision to the eventual victors in a Saturday winner's bracket game. Except for Lisa Ashton's sacrifice fly ball in the third inning which scored Chupp from third, the two teams battled scoreless for the entire seven innings. McArthur could collect only five hits, but their total topped by one that achieved by Gardens.

Two hours later, Gardens was fighting for its playoff life, as Boca Raton took a 3-0 lead into the sixth inning. Diane Wilkinson's two run home run in the third frame had given Boca its lead, but Gardens got back two of the runs in the sixth when Barbara Gillespie singled in a run and another scored on a ground ball out to right field (that's right, there were a lot of those, believe it or not).

CLOSE PLAY: McArthur first baseman Diane Armilloth found herself stretching for throw after throw last weekend as the West Palm Beach team won the 13th District A Girls 13-15 year old championship at Langford Park. The girls surprised those in attendance with their brilliant defensive play, and McArthur was no exception, allowing the opposition just six runs in the four games they played. Finally, in the seventh inning, the tying run scored on an error. After Gina Gillespie broke the 3-3 deadlock with a single, scoring Adrienne Restrepo and keeping alive Gardens hopes of a state berth.

Jupiter Tequesta surprised every one on opening night when they defeated one of the pre-tourney favorites, Pembrook Pines, but after advancing to the winner's bracket final lost to McArthur in Sunday's first game and was later eliminated by Gardens.

But Gardens had another scare before facing Jupiter Tequesta. It came when Plantation took advantage of three crucial errors and led 4-3 into the bottom of the seventh inning. The home team quickly plated two runners on base but also put into two outs. Moments later, the game seemed over when Plantation second baseman Kitter McBride fielded a ground ball and flipped to the shortstop for an easy out. But the umpire at second ruled that no one actually stepped on the base and suddenly, Gardens had the bases loaded. Bonnie McWatters followed with a two run single to literally snatch victory from the jaws of defeat, 5-4.

Inspired by their second rousing comeback, PBG dashed Jupiter Tequesta's hopes with a neat, 10 shutout victory, assuring them of a place in the state tourney this weekend. After that, they seemed to let down a bit, and lost for the second time to McArthur, in another defensive battle, 3-1.

This has to be the first time ever that two Palm Beach County teams have played together in the state tournament," remarked Huffstetler. "I have no idea how we'll do there, although I have a feeling we'll do alright."

Gardens coach Bob Woolard praised his team's determination.

"We beat them McArthur twice in sub districts, but we had never been in the loser's bracket before. I think our girls showed they were champoons by coming back like they did."

The McArthur Gardens rivalry may not be over. The two could easily meet in the state tourney, but for now, McArthur leads the series, 3-2. They won an 11 inning battle in a tournament at Pembrook Pines early in the summer, 9-8, but lost the two games in sub district play, 3-0 and 3-2. Their 1-0 and 3-1 victories in this tourney gave them the series lead and established the rivalry as a low scoring one.

Palm Beach Gardens, said Woolard, has never made it past sectionals until this year.

Locally, Pete Arnold Plumbing of Martin County had its problems losing in the tournament's opening game, 4-0 to Coral Ridge before edging Lantana, 4-3, as Renee Jackson scored on Tammie Humberstone's game winning hit in the seventh inning. But an hour later the Rams were, as they are called, eliminated by Boca Raton, 1-0.

"We just couldn't get the clutch hits," said coach Pasqo Jessica. "We played a real good second game and played excellent defense the entire tournament. But we just didn't get the bats going."

The other local entrant, Port Pierce's Golden Bank, defeated Boca Raton before falling to the tournament

FIRE UPSETS FFM

Don Wilkie mastered the Civic League regular season champions First Federal of Martin County allowing just five hits as previously winless Jensen-Rio Fire Department stunned FFM in a first post season tournament first round game Tuesday night 6-1.

First Federal's bats, which had erupted against the Jensen Beach Optimist Club last week in an 11-4 title clinching game, suddenly went silent as the Fire played brilliant defense, committing only one error.

In the second game the First Baptist Church defeated Andy's Hamburgers 25-5. Look for more details on the Civic tournament next week in The Mirror.

Sandpiper Men to play Sinners Course

Activity in the Sandpiper Men's Golfing group will revert to individual play Thursday, July 19th with members competing in their respective flights determined by posted handicaps.

Winners will be in categories of net and gross scores. It was also reported that the men will do their thing on Sinners 18-hole course.

One stroke separated the top four teams in Thursday's Two Best Balls of Foursome from the Blue, White and Red markers in that order. With a low score of 121, the team of Tom Chapman, Oscar Rozett, Henry Eastwood and Bill Arture waltzed off with top honors.

A total of nine finished deadlocked for second with a match of cards required to determine positions. The second-out went to the combo of Joe Schulte, Gordon Ferguson, Charles Duvall and Bob Downing trailed in order by Jim Boone, Fred Gradvahr, Frank Bruno and Jack Welsh. The fourth group included Tom Jelnick, Bill Reuck, Bud Denton and David Moses.

Sandpiper star has been recuperating from major surgery, found that his practice sessions have paid off he was co-leader of the day in individual scoring tied with Jim Dacos at 78.

T G & Y wins JB sub-district tourney

BY DONNIE WILKIE

Ernie Watson and Bubba Glass each smashed four hits in the champion ship game and Scott Oughterson provided six hits in the final two games, as T G & Y came out of the loser's bracket to win the 1979 Men's Slo Pitch A Class Sub District championship at Langford Park last weekend.

T.G.&.Y lost early in the champion ships to the American Bank, 9-6, but came back after edging Freddie Gary's Bonding, 13-12, to nip American Bank, 9-7, before destroying the favorites 18-5 in the final game.

The tournament winners played in all five tourney games and, ironically, were the visitors in every game, repeatedly losing coin flip after coin flip.

But fortunately for them, the tournament was not decided on coin flips, and four wins in five attempts gave them the title and a berth in this week's District tournament in West Palm Beach.

American Bank will also go to the event, as the Sub District runner up.

T.G.&.Y ripped 21 hits in the final game, scoring eight times in the first inning against a surprised Bank defense.

The winners opened the game with five singles in a row, then, after a ground ball, pounded two more before an outfield error scored two more runs.

Willie Graham's two run home run in the third inning narrowed the gap to 8-3, and the Bank got as close as 8-4 before T.G.&.Y could score again. When they did, they made sure it was enough to win easily, as they sent four runners across the plate in the fourth inning, two in the sixth, and four more in the seventh.

American Bank's only other score came in the seventh inning, when Graham tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Albert Queen.

Watson batted .450 for the tournament, but came on best toward the end, collecting three hits in the semi final against Gary's and four against American Bank in the second final.

T.G.&.Y.'s semi final victory over Gary's was less than simple to say the least, as the Bombers lost by only a run, 13-12.

O'Hara Mackey's three run homer in the second inning gave Gary's a 3-2 lead, but T.G.&.Y. tied the game in the fourth as Gaylon Parker singled in Bubba Glass to make it 3-3.

Gary's countered effectively though, as Gerald Preston doubled and scored on James Bivins' single.

T.G.&.Y. scored six runs in the fifth frame when Watson and Glass smacked back to back doubles and Terris Sims whacked his second home run of the game, a solo blast. But Gary's scored six runs of its own as Ernest McIntyre towered a long ball over the right centerfield fence for a grand slam home run, and Mackey hit a two run shot, his second of the thriller.

Tim Rodibaugh and Glass singled in runs in the three run sixth for T.G.&.Y. and James Hardy lifted a sacrifice fly.

Gary's scored single runs in the sixth and seventh, but fell one tally short of the District tournament.

It was by far the most exciting game of the tourney.

Bailey Boat wins okay for marina dredging

A letter of no objection was approved Tuesday by the Martin County Commission for maintenance dredging of Bailey Boat marina.

Wayne Bailey, owner of Bailey Boat Company, said he wanted county approval for the work primarily so he can use what he already has. He said three boat slips at the southwest end of his marina basin along Indian River Drive are unusable because they've silted in so much. "I want six feet of water at low tide. In some places I have no water at low tide and in other places I only have a foot of water," Bailey said. He pointed out a house-boat which he said probably couldn't move anymore because it's stuck in mud, then pointed at whitecaps on the river created by a strong wind from the southeast. "That's what I'm fighting," he said, "every time it blows like that, it just carries that good old Okeechobee silt in here."

Bailey said his plans also included installing rip rap along land on the south side of the channel leading from the river to the marina basin and extending the rip rap into the water to alleviate the siltation problem.

He said he's been trying to get permission for the work he wants to do for about a year and a half, and has filed numerous applications with the Corps of Engineers and state Department of Natural Resources. He was critical of the time it takes to get permitting, but said the permitting procedure has improved somewhat from what it once was. He noted that a few years ago when he was seeking an extension of time to do work he had received permits to do, he got a six month extension from the Corps and a two year extension from state officials. "Since the Corps extension was only for six months, after that six months, the state extension was worthless."

"It's a hassel. These things have to be regulated. I realize that, but it's a problem for an average layman like myself to get through the red tape of getting a permit without bringing in an expert," he said.

Bailey commented that even now, in the off season, he's having to turn prospective customers away for lack of boat slips and storage area and says in the winter season, he could use twice the number of boat slips he has now.

The amount of fill to be dredged is 7,700 cubic yards.

SILT IN THE SLIPS for boats at the south end of the Bailey Boat Company marina in Jensen Beach have made the dockage space unusable. On Tuesday Wayne Bailey won county commission approval of a letter of no objection for a project to dredge 7,700 cubic yards of fill from the marina basin. Bailey says the marina basin has silted over the years and he wants to dredge to a depth of six feet at low tide. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

If county will build it, FIT may donate bike path land

BY BOB FRYER

If the county is willing to put up the money to build a bike path along Indian River Drive in front of Florida Institute of Technology, the college may be very interested in donating the right-of-way.

That's the word from FIT Dean Ernest E. Tealey, who was asked Tuesday about the possibility of a right-of-way donation from the college.

In a recent Mirror column, the need for bike paths in the Jensen Beach area, particularly along Indian River Drive, was pointed out. As a result of that column, John Heyburn of Jensen Beach contacted this paper to tell us of work previously done to get bike paths for the area. He noted that a group of citizens, including students from FIT, worked on getting bike paths here a few years ago and their work resulted in several paths being built. However, that committee is no longer active.

Dr. Randy Hoag of FIT said the students who previously worked on plans for bike paths in the community "have graduated and taken their work with them." He said he knew of no group currently working for bike paths.

Heyburn said that the former bike path committee ran into problems trying to get right-of-way along Indian River Drive for bike paths, but said he felt if the right-of-way could be obtained, the county would likely build the paths. He said when the committee was active, FIT offered to donate right-of-way on its land for a portion of a bike path. On Tuesday, Dean Tealey was asked if FIT would still make such an offer. While he said college officials would have to examine plans first, he said the college would likely be "very interested in making land available for a bike path. After all, our students would probably be heavy users of it." He added that the college hopes to form a cyclist club soon, and said the club may be able to provide support for getting bike paths built.

Dean Tealey confirmed what Heyburn said about the problem of obtaining right-of-way along some portions of Indian River Drive. He said when the FIT students were working to get bike paths, they encountered some residents along Indian River Drive from A1A to the college who did not want to donate right-of-way.

County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha pointed out that the community does have several bike paths and that a new portion of a bike path was built along Savanna Road at Lelani Heights and that a short portion of a path is now being built along SR 707 in Rio from the Lil' General eastward for about a quarter mile. He said the county eventually hopes to extend that strip east to Beacon 21 and west to SPS. Wacha commented that the county is interested in an ongoing bike path construction program and has made "all kinds of applications" to federal authorities for funds to build them. He noted that the county intends to build paths "a little at a time as the right-of-way becomes available." He further said that he would check with the county right-of-way agent to see what progress was being made toward getting right-of-way for paths along Indian River Drive.

Wacha said the county has recently sent out letters to property owners near the Indian River Drive and SR 707 intersection, known as the crossroads area. He said that letters are seeking right-of-way donations, as this is a particularly dangerous area for pedestrians and bicyclists.

Hilltop party for Latham growing

It began when Nick Midelis, owner of Hilltop Restaurant, offered to donate the bar receipts of his restaurant on July 26 to the Sally Latham Fund. The party has grown. It should be a bash.

Offers of help poured in to The Mirror office. Charlie Bloehm called to donate the services of his band. That led to the offer of Lenny Laden, local entrepreneur, to handle all entertainment during the 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. party.

"We'll really put on a show — an eleven hour show," Laden said. He and his wife are close friends of Sally Latham, who was stricken by cancer a few months ago.

In addition, many gifts are being donated to be auctioned off at the party throughout the day. Marge Paris began collecting at Paris Inn Shopp the prizes this week.

The Sally Latham Fund was set up at the Jensen Beach Bank two weeks ago when the popular writer's expenses for chemotherapy and treatments far surpassed her insurance coverage. The trustees of the fund are Richard E. Campbell, editor of The Mirror, and Marvin DeBolt, publisher of the Ft. Pierce News-Tribune.

Midelis came up with the idea several weeks ago, and sent a letter to all his friends asking them to come to the party. Since then, the party has grown, with the two-county area residents being invited to help the fund grow.

"Sally has devoted her entire life to journalism telling it like it is," Midelis wrote. "Rather than go to the neon lights of the big city, she chose our tri county area to use her gifted talent and to do what was in her heart — to write about the people (and they are legion.) This has made the Indian River area what we now enjoy — the greatest place this side of heaven if I may quote her phrase."

More than $1,000 has been collected for the fund thus far, according to Campbell and DeBolt. Persons desiring to donate can mail checks to the Sally Latham Fund, Jensen Beach Bank, Jensen Beach, Florida 33457.

Five finalists to be eyed for Jensen Beach postmaster

BY BOB FRYER

U.S. Postal Service officials in Memphis, Tenn. are expected to conduct interviews soon of five candidates for the position of Jensen Beach Postmaster.

The local post office has been without a postmaster since last September and is now under the direction of Joseph Furiato, the third "officer-in-charge" to serve at the Jensen post office since Postmaster Harold Salzler stepped down from that position to become a carrier in September.

Richard Shonter, supervisor of employment and service at the West Palm Beach Post Office, said that a packet containing information on the five finalists for the postmaster's job was sent to Regional postal head quarters in Memphis on July 12th.

Shonter explained that the procedure for picking a postmaster is complicated, beginning with the collection of applications for the job at the West Palm Beach office. Once applications are in, three copies of the applications are made and the copies are sent to the regional office, where a "mini-board" of several top ranking postal officials review the applications from districts outside of the state and narrow the field to seven finalists. Memorandums containing evaluations and investigative information on the seven candidates are then sent back to West Palm Beach, where the local authorities pick five finalists. Then packets of information on those five candidates are sent to the regional office in Memphis. Everything up to this point has been done, Shonter said.

The next step is for the regional officials to schedule interviews for the five finalists. Shonter said interviews are usually conducted every four weeks, so it shouldn't be long before the Jensen Beach candidates are interviewed. Then, he said, the regional officials will select a postmaster. Shonter said it generally does not take a long time between the interviews and the appointment of a postmaster and he said in the case of a postmaster for Belle Glade, interviews were conducted on June 29th and a man was appointed effective July 14th.

Shonter noted that the postal service officials consider applicants from all walks of life and not just those with postal service experience. He also commented that one reason for delaying the selection of a postmaster for Jensen Beach is that the postal service recently reevaluated all post offices and the levels of all postmasters, so the processing of applications for postmasters was held off until those evaluations were completed.

PACKED HOUSE—Over 400 attended the opening session of The Mirror Cooking Show at the Port St. Lucie Community Center last Friday. The new Lundin Hall was packed to capacity during the show.

Mandy had a baby girl

Mandy had a baby girl.

Now that may not sound like big news to you, but it's an event that has prompted about as much speculation among Jense Beach folks as the nation expended on guessing when and where Skylab would fall.

For a month or so, patrons at the Village Corner in Jensen have been filling out entry forms to guess when Mandy would have her baby, the baby's sex, and its weight.

Mandy is Mandy Rimbeck, a Jensen Beach resident who works at the Village Corner. According to Sandy Pazey of Village Corner, the guessing game about the date of birth, weight and sex of Mandy's baby is a thing that just grew into a contest as more and more customers began asking Mandy about her obvious pregnancy.

The Village Corner management offered two complimentary meals to the person coming closest to guessing the date of birth, weight and sex of the new arrival. Mrs. Pazey said her mom, who works at the Village Corner, actually came closest in guessing, but said since she is on the staff, her guesses were discounted. So, the winner is Phyllis Simmons of Stuart who guessed Mandy would have an six pound, eight ounce baby girl on July 19. Mandy had a six pound, three ounce baby girl, Christine Rose Rimbeck, on July 19.

Disband the Energy Department

BY CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

President Carter's energy programs contains many excellent suggestions.

There is no doubt in anyone's mind but what we must end our dependence on foreign oil and do it as fast as possible. Just as there is no doubt but what synthetic fuels, from coal, oil shale and agricultural products, along with increased domestic oil production is the way for us to go.

But, unfortunately, the President overlooked one step which could have done a great deal to alleviate many of our current problems — disbanding of the entire U.S. Department of Energy.

When the Department of Energy concept was first proposed, it was hailed as the only real opportunity to draw together all the myriad energy functions in this country and develop some cohesiveness.

We needed cohesiveness. After all, at the time practically every agency and department in the city had something or other to do with energy. And not all of them were pulling in the same direction.

Unfortunately, the creation of a Department of Energy has merely replaced confusion with chaos.

The Energy Department has a budget of some $11 billion and has nearly 20,000 full-time personnel, plus another 100,000 full or part-time consultants.

But, it's poorly organized, poorly led and its planning is spotty at best and ridiculous at worst.

It has managed to turn out reams and reams of guidelines, orders, rules, regulations, decision, and policy suggestions — so many that it now takes five loose-leaf volumes merely to contain those still in effect.

And, for those who try to keep up with the myriad bureaucratic changes, it issues a package of 200-300 new pages for the volumes every week or so.

But it hasn't produced the first additional pint of oil. And its allocation system has taken what, under private enterprise, worked and worked well and replaced it with long gas lines and shorter station hours.

Under the rules of the Department of Energy, every gas station operator in the nation who wants an increase in his allocation, every man who would like to open his own station, has to go to DOE for permission. And he has to have the proper paperwork to support it.

But there are new stations who have been waiting since November for an allocation so they can tell what they're doing. Not in Washington, not in New York, but in Florida.

In fact, the Atlanta regional DOE office is now faced with some 2,000 applications for new allocations, allocation increases, and the like. But it doesn't have anywhere near the personnel to handle what's coming in every day, let alone make a dent in the backlog.

So the problems merely compound themselves.

It's time for the federal government to admit it can't do as well as free enterprise in running an oil distribution system, and to get out of the business entirely.

It's time for the federal government to concentrate on developing new sources of fuel. It's time for an all-out effort to get energy from every possible source — coal, shale, the sun, the tides, and anything else with any promise of help.

But the government has to do that exclusively, not try to run a distribution system it has neither the personnel nor the expertise to operate.

And that means getting rid of the Department of Energy.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor:

The officers and members of the Rio Volunteer Fire Department wish to thank each and every person who donated funds to our 1979 Fund Drive.

The money will be used to update our fire and rescue equipment and for training, to serve our community. We hope you never need our services, but if you do, we are ready.

Howey announces suspension

Trustees of Howey Academy voted unanimously July 16 to immediately suspend operations of the Central Florida coeducational college preparatory school for a one-year period.

The board decision was made "regretfully without alternative because of the energy crisis, inflation and the fragility of the national economic situation pointing toward Recession."

In separate actions, the board authorized Business Manager C.V. Griffin, Sr., to notify parents and guardians of returning and accepted students of the decision with return of all student tuitions and fees; to pay all undisputed bills; to release all personnel except those necessary for custodial, security, and administrative purposes.

Mr Griffin was also authorized to receive and negotiate any church or secular group offers for operation of the school.

The school was to reopen for its 24th year September 9. It has a 40-acre campus on Little Lake Harris, extensive educational, dormitory, and recreational facilities.

The board said inflationary shock of food, operational, instructional and energy cost increase was a strong factor in the board's decision.

"But while these might have been temporarily overcome by increased tuition and fee schedules and by cutting frills, the energy and recession factors were controlling, and in the end, decisive in board action," an academy spokesman said.

The spokesman said assurance of transportation for both students and a commuting facility was vital to a boarding school located outside an urban area.

Captain Apollo

Jensen Beach has met its first Captain Apollo, probably the fastest brain in town. What's more, one of the most intelligent. It can tell you with the help of computer operators, just about anything you have to know about your trip.

What meals served, type of airplane, what shows are playing in New York, and if tickets are available, hotel reservations all over the world.

Helen Engbretsen and Stanley Smith, at Jensen Beach Travel, are using this marvel to bring immediate and accurate information to their clients. According to Helen, airline fares and times of arrival and departure are changed so frequently that up-to-minute information is a must.

Tracy Mallken and Colleen Maynard spent two weeks in Miami learning to operate this marvel. Also in training were Bettye Aderhold, Ginger Tatoul, Diana Apostolopoulos and Bea Martinelli. It was Tracy who demonstrated Captain Apollo for us, explaining that although this Denver-based computer system is a joint Delta-United Air Lines project, the little screen lights up with data about most all U.S. air lines.

Do you need to know today's rate of currency exchange in Japan? The Apollo will tell you, along with the weather reports and hotel rates in Osaka. How is the skiing in Aspen? Just ask Apollo.

When you make plans for your trip, the miracle machine makes a record of the total transaction showing you the times, flight numbers and everything else you need to know.

But--it won't pack your bags for you, no!

(Sally's sister Jeanne is staying with her. These are her comments on our area.)

Happy meanderings of a visitor from a crowded county. Indian River Drive rates high for beauty, right up there with Pennsylvania's Delaware Canal road and the California coast route. Vistas of the river seen through little palm and pine jungles alternate with beautiful lawns and just plain open land, so refreshing to one tired of looking at a multiplicity of high-rises. I love the rural atmosphere--haven't heard a bob-white in years until now. Landlord Bob Rieffel and wife Lois are doing their best to preserve their part of this peaceful setting.

Hutchinson Island has an unique brand of charm with its angular, rough board houses skillfully planned by Peter Jefferson to fit the sea coast terrain. The condominiums seem just part of the landscape, pleasantly located for eye appeal, low and unobtrusive.

I love the Elliott Museum. The House of Refuge with its turtles large and small is so beautifully restored and is probably the only one left on the Atlantic coast.

This whole area seems to be one big friendly community filled with charming and individualistic people.

Ocean bathing is a bit terrifying at first to one used to the normally calm Gulf of Mexico, but great fun after getting accustomed to those powerful waves. Body surfing here is fine--if you are careful.

Editorials

Indian River Drive; unique character

There are a few things that should not give way to the bulldozer. One of them is Indian River Drive.

Approval of a 68-unit town house development near Edenlawn Plantation should be the last approval of multi-family along the drive. As it is, the approval should never have been given.

We cannot fault the developer for trying to build what is certain to be a beautiful plan into homes for the burgeoning population that is growing in our midst.

But, we do fault the St. Lucie County Commission for approving a project that will dash hopes of following the comprehensive plan of the county. The area is designated as low density, with four units an acre the maximum.

The Indian River Drive is so unique it should be kept as a shrine to the beauty of old Florida. The lazy, winding road, beautiful trees, night-blooming cereus, and the many quaint homes that line the trail with its magnificent view of the Indian River is something to save, not destroy.

It is ironic that The Mirror should carry a story of the approval of 68 multi-family units being approved for Indian River Drive, and in the same edition feature a family trying to restore a home on the drive that is nearing 100 years old.

The comprehensive plans call for low density. The county commission cited development of a mobile home park near the site as a reason for giving approval. Now another reason has been established for higher density, which will mean another application would reason, and another, and another...until Indian River Drive becomes a wall of concrete stretching from the county line to Walton Road.

(Of course the county commission would never give approval to something like that north of Walton Road, near their home base of Ft. Pierce. It is easier to tuck such things down in the southern Siberian edge of the county.)

Dick Campbell

The flame burned brightly

Everyone gathered around the fire. Each had a piece of a photo-copy of the mortgage. Each in turn touched it to the flame and watched it turn brightly into ash, dropping the flame into a dish.

Dick Penick scooped the ashes into a small apothecary bottle. The mortgage was burned.

Most everyone knows that Dr. Richard Penick and his wife-nurse Thelma are among my closest friends. We have in the past twenty years had some great times, some bad times, and some interesting times.

Dick bought the land on which his home stands, and the surrounding land to SR 707, where he has his office, in the early days of our friendship.

That was when we played ball on the Community Church team. Dick was the pitcher. I played first base. He would wear the wildest colored outfits and was a competitor, arguing every close call (and some that weren't even close).

I remember one time when he finished the game he suddenly remembered that it was his anniversary. We took the whole team up to his doorstep, six-packs in hand, and serenaded a very startled Thelma so that he could get back in the house.

He was our first general practitioner. His office was in the "old post office" building. He moved from there to the Skyline Professional Center, and from there to his present offices on SR 707.

We worked together to bring in Dr. Chang when the load in his office got too heavy. He worked with Ransom Tilton to found the Samaritan Free Ambulance. He was big on "Heart," and just recently put together the Heart Parcourse at Langford Park.

He was my "nude centerfold" a few years back when we poked fun at the Cosmopolitan nudies.

We play tennis together, and he will not stand behind the base line, or in front of the service line. I have promised to stop mentioning it to him or get angry about it.

His basement in his house is a fascinating collection of just about every hat, tool, costume or piece of junk (treasure) you can imagine.

One night, on Halloween, Salli was waiting with a check for a woman collecting for UNICEF. The doorbell rang, and when she opened it, a grotesque figure stood there in mask and woman's outfit.

"Will you take a check?" she asked. You're right. It was Dick Penick out trick-or-treating.

He collects cars. Thelma hates cars. There are just too many of the junkers rattling around the yard.

Once, Dick had a patient who wanted to sell his Volkswagen. Dick told him he might buy it for Thelma, who had just told Dick she would leave home if he bought another old car. Dick said, "Bring it over and we'll see if Thelma likes it."

Imagine the shock of the poor guy when Thelma threw a fit as he brought it to the house. It was another of Dick's practical jokes. (It took a few days for the temperature to cool in the Penick household.)

Dick created Lake Repose behind his office. It is a beautiful lake, with ducks' swimming, and a picture window in the office offers a relaxing view of the lake. It is also the centerpiece view from his dining room window up the hill.

Once he accepted an old boat from Casa Rio to put in the acre-sized lake. It is a big boat, and some day we are all going to get it to float and have a party...some day.

All these things and more came to mind as I talked with the people who came to the mortgage burning. Many of them were people who had grown up with Dick and myself over the past twenty years in Jensen Beach. Each brought a memorable event back to life.

It's good that at least one of my friends has his mortgage paid off. As the flickering remains of the paper burned out, Dick told his latest practical joke.

"The mortgage has an automatic renewal clause. I could renew it up to the full amount, at six percent. I told First Federal I was thinking of that, and they almost had a heart attack."

A great show

The Mirror cooking show is now history, and from all indications it was a good one with promise to be even greater in future years.

It was a fun show for everyone, with the over 700 attending expressing satisfaction with both the entertaining value and the value of the recipes and food hints and information received.

The cooperation of the Port St. Lucie Community Center staff must be acknowledge, for without the help in putting up the stage and controlling microphones and lighting the show could not have gone on.

While not yet complete, The Mirror would be remiss in not noting the excellence of the facilities in Lundin Hall. The microphones are the best, the lighting professional.

To The Mirror staff, it was fun. We plan to do it next year.

More volunteers

The problem with the lack of ambulance volunteers is that the present volunteers might just get fed up and tell the county to take it over. If that happens, look for a massive infusion of tax dollars to pay for what has been a volunteer effort all along.

Everyone knows what will happen then; the price of ambulance service in the north Martin-south St. Lucie area will go sky-high.

The lack of volunteers is due in part to he lengthy training necessary to become an Emergency Medical Technician. An EMT certificate is required to serve with the volunteer ambulance service.

It would be a great loss if the ambulance service were to fail due to lack of public interest and lack of volunteers. The volunteer system has been a trademark of our communities.

There are many young retirees and younger people who want something to do as a hobby. As a volunteer for the Samaritan Ambulance crew, the service is both enjoyable and rewarding.

We are certain that the people will financially support the ambulance service. What we need is those who will give time, not money.

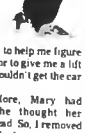
Fort Lauderdale 2, Fryer 0



For years, I've known I don't like Fort Lauderdale, but until recently, I didn't know how much it doesn't like me.

Mirror readers may recall a column I wrote last month about Rosie, my 1964 Rambler convertible, overheating on the way to the 100th annual Florida Press Association convention in Fort Lauderdale. I spent more time at the convention working on my car and searching for a waterpump than I spent in convention activities. I finally wound up getting a ride home, borrowing The Mirror van, and towing Rosie home.

As I towed Rosie out of Fort Lauderdale, I promised myself not to go there again anytime soon. Until the FPA convention, I hadn't been to Fort Lauderdale in a good 10 years, and when I left, I hoped not to return for at least another 10. But last Saturday, I found myself there again.

It wasn't planned that way. I was supposed to ride to Palm Beach International Airport with Mary B. of our ad staff and her son Aaron. They were to catch a plane to Wisconsin for a vacation and I was to ride down with them, then bring Tessie, Mary's VW, back to Jensen.

The plane was to leave at 8:34 a.m. It did. But thanks to a faulty alarm clock and a drawbridge that ate up a few precious minutes we were racing to the airport, we didn't arrive until they had started the plane's engines and closed the doors. Mary pleaded with them to delay the plane a couple of minutes so she and Aaron could board it. But the United Airlines ticket man said it would cost too much in fuel to stop the plane and restart it, so we watched as Mary and Aaron's flight took off.

The ticket man said there wasn't another flight out of West Palm for quite some time, but said there was an early afternoon United flight out of Fort Lauderdale. So, it was off to Lauderdale.

The ticket man there said the one in West Palm should have never sent them to him, as it was against regulations to use Mary and Aaron's tickets marked with a West Palm Beach departure for a flight out of Fort Lauderdale. But, he bent the rules and said they could use the tickets--on a standby basis. The flight left at 1:30 p.m., so we killed a few hours in the airport, then Mary sweated as hoards of people with confirmed reservations boarded the plane. Finally, they called her to the counter and said she and Aaron could have seats on the plane, but that they'd have to sit separately unless someone agreed to move so they could sit together. I don't know if that worked out, but a nice woman from United went on board with them to attempt it.

I was in the airport parking lot, inserting the key into the ignition of Mary's car when I looked up to see the plane take off. After watching it soar into the clouds, I turned the key. Nothing happened. Nothing at all. No click, no grind, no nothing.

The same sort of helpless, stranded feeling I'd experienced a month earlier at the convention came over me--only it was worse because this time I had no friends to help me figure out what was wrong or to give me a lift home in the event I couldn't get the car started.

A few days before, Mary had mentioned that she thought her battery was going dead. So, I removed the battery, hitchhiked two miles to the nearest open gas station, and had a charge put on it. I ate lunch and walked around town, then returned in an hour to pick it up. A nice man gave me a ride all the way back to the airport, and in no time I had the battery hooked up. Again, nothing happened when I turned the key. The helpless, stranded feeling came over me again, and I began a mental inventory of my cash on hand. I had about $10.

As a result of past ownership of a VW, I remembered that occasionally when one of them won't start, a tap of a wrench on the solenoid sometimes does the trick--has something to do with knocking rust off electrical components. I tried it, and, miraculously, Tessie started. I never shut it off all the way home, even though I stopped once for gas and once for a cola.

I consider myself lucky that I escaped Fort Lauderdale without having to spend the night there or take my chances on some VW mechanic. I never like the city for all its high-rises and congestion, and now I have even more reason to dislike it.

I'm supposed to pick Mary up in West Palm this coming Sunday, but if her flight gets diverted to Lauderdale for some reason, she'll have to get someone else to do it. I refuse to visit that place again.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:

Have read in The Mirror of the County Commissioner proposal to eliminate the northeast entrance to the Beach area. Traffic hazard and congestion is said by them to be the reason. Perhaps if they would study this problem and not be so hasty with their decision something could be worked out. I believe two drives into the beach should stay.

Following are some of my reasons:

1. To relieve the congestion there.

2. Should a sudden storm ascend on the beach, the large crowds could clear more rapidly.

3. Suppose a fire started among the shrubbery or trees, a strong wind would cause dense smoke to quickly envelop those present. With one road a panic could be created quickly. What if a vehicle suddenly burst into flames? What about a fire at the Holiday Inn? Engines could block the south road.

4. Should the fire department be called to the north part of the beach in a case of the above, just how could they reach it with the traffic trying to clear out.

5. What if an ambulance is to be called to the Beach in case of extreme emergency, driving from the causeway to the Holiday Inn means minutes lost. Consider a heart attack victim; what minutes lost means. How about a drowning victim? All require fast service of an ambulance.

6. It seems like there is a rule or law stating, "Whether it be a building or otherwise, where the Public congregates, provisions should be made for an additional entrance at opposite ends available for emergency use of fire, police or ambulance.

Being around this beach for a number of years, I thought the following solutions should at least be read or considered.

1. Suggest big improvements to both roads.

2. If really necessary, at least make the northeast road, "Entrance One Way," Holiday Inn side road, "Exit One Way." Build a large arched way at northeast entrance, high and wide enough to permit fire or service trucks to enter. Top of arch reading, "Jensen Beach Entrance Only," and vice versa for the exit road. This arch could be made of two large posts and wide boards running horizontally between them.

3. Build a barrier on each side of road entrance and exit wide enough for trucks to pass, a short length leading into A1A road from the Beach, the same on each side of posts so no one can cut around them.

4. Put Stop signs at four corners. One each side of A1A (north & south), one from causeway road east, and one from northeast entrance to beach. These stop signs will force the race track drivers on A1A to simmer down, as excessive speeds are observed there daily.

5. On each corner of causeway and beach road sides there is a abundance of high shrubbery growing. This obstructs the view of approaching traffic from either direction. Cutting down and clearing of at least a 100 feet would improve the safety.

6. Post signs along length of beach on A1A, "No Parking Any Time."

7. Surface at least a short strip of road at either entrance or exit leading from beach to A1A. Raise the Holiday Inn side road up. It gets submerged in water during a rain storm, due to drainage problem.

8. The very heavy flow of traffic from condominiums along A1A reaching far in to Port St. Lucie and power plant all use the causeway road. This alone will eventually force and lead to the installation of stop and go lights at the beach entrance. This light would serve a dual purpose. It would stagger the traffic leading into both Stuart and Jensen Beach.

Jensen Beach has gained its popularity and attendance due to the growth of our communities. Many folks, young and old, have found endless hours of relaxation and enjoyment there. Our thanks to Jack Camack and his vigorous life guards who maintain the shore line clean. Let us not try to "BOTTLE NECK" it, but beautify, enlarge and improve it.

The Stuart Beach has gone to quite a beautiful renovation, it is time to have Jensen Beach upgraded likewise. We see it and hear it, "BEAUTIFY OUR COUNTRY." We all wonder how Jensen Beach fits into the picture.

Thanking you I am,
Al. Tomaszewski

Nergard says Florida's RR tracks are unsafe

"I don't know of any railroad tracks in the state of Florida that I would commander safe."

That comment came from state Representative Chuck Nergard last week when he met with members of the Indian River Drive Freeholders Association and discussed a wide range of topics.

Nergard commented on the unsafe condition of the tracks as he discussed the energy shortage and feeded question on mass transit.

"I predict the last railway power plant in Florida is being built now," he said, adding that he did not mean by that that he is opposed to nuclear power but that he feels it is no longer practical for power companies to build them. He said as a result of President Jimmy Carter's energy plan and what he feels is an end of new nuclear [illegible]

[illegible] unanimously to seek the installation of crash cars at Walton and Midway roads, to go on record against any multi-family development along the [illegible] acres of land within Port St. Lucie city limits which is zoned for multi-family dwellings.

Freeholder John Mack said he recently attended a Port St. Lucie planning meeting at which time plans for the city was reviewed. He said at that meeting he spoke against the multi-family zoned land within Port St. Lucie along Indian River Drive and called for a rezoning of that land to a single family home category. He said this would make the land conform to the single family home character of most of the rest of the area. Mack reported his actions to the group they voted to go on record to ask the city to downzone its three-quarter mile strip of land along the drive near Walton Road, or to at least rezone it for single-family family homes. Mack said the land was annexed in 1973 and at the same time was zoned for a Planned Unit Development. He said a firm, Universal Adams originally proposed building 12 story buildings on the land and having a total of 1,800 multi-family units. Those plans never materialized, but the zoning to allow multi-family units still applies. The Freeholders decided to ask county commissioners to support them in their request to ask county commissioners to support their request to their request to the city for downzoning or single-family zoning. The group also discussed forming a watchdog committee to make sure road miners operating west of the railroad tracks near Midway Road aren't digging too deeply. One resident complained that since the mining started, his well water has gone bad.

Mack commented that since 1973, the character of the Port St. Lucie city council has changed and that the new owner may be more agreeable to their request. Representative Nergard agreed that chances for downzoning or deannexing may be better now and added that "the state purchase of the Savannas would probably preclude that type [a Universal-Adams type proposal] of development." He said the state would probably intervene if a large development was pushed, but said it's unlikely the city will downzone the land.

Mirror Magic Menu

by Lee Hicks of Lucieland

Clarence (CA) Frazer & Duchess TAGERINE!

2 pounds ground beef	1 small can pizza sauce
1 onion	salt & pepper
1 green pepper	seasoned salt
1 package noodles	Worcestershire sauce
1 can cream style white corn	tabasco sauce
3 cans tomato sauce	garlic salt
1 can sliced mushrooms	Italian seasoning or oregano
1 can water chestnuts	ripe olives
1 can french fried onions	sliced cheese

Saute onions, green pepper, mushrooms & water chestnuts in small amount of butter. add ground beef & brown. Season to taste with salt, pepper, seasoned salt & garlic salt. Meanwhile, add 3 cans tomato sauce, plus 3 cans of water. Add dash of Worcestershire sauce, tabasco sauce, salt & pepper to taste, & heat almost to a boil. Add noodles & cook until soft. Add corn to ground beef, then add noodles & sauce. Simmer together for about 5 min. Pour into casserole. Cover with cheese of your choice, dot with ripe olives, sprinkle with french fried onions over top & bake in moderate oven about 30 minutes, until cheese is melted. Serves

Betty Frazer says: Prepare for the family or a hungry mob.

This recipe can be prepared well in advance and rewarmed. It can be doubled and doubled again. Betty made pans and pans of it to feed a sailboat regatta crowd. She compliments it with a tossed salad and garlic bread.

Each day is a great day in the lives of a most interesting couple, Betty and Clarence CA Frazer of 791 Thanksgiving Avenue, Port St. Lucie. Outdoor living brought them to our village five years ago. "We vacationed at Pruitt's fishing camp every winter since 1951," states CA, and decided this place was pretty special!

CA and Betty raised their two sons and two daughters in the Carbondale, Illinois area. CA was Director of News Services while Betty was Assistant Professor in Journalism at Southern Illinois University.

Writing, sewing and raising roses are but a few of Betty's hobbies. CA keeps a beautiful lawn when not making frames for Betty's paintings in his organized workshop. Motor home traveling is on their agenda often, too.

This energetic, warm hearted couple spend many hours in volunteer work. Be sure to greet them as they take their evening walk with their black and white spotted Duchess.

BUCK FULTON & BOB BENSON, two of a 15-piece orchestra, handle trombones under the direction of Wayne Wells as The Barn offers another successful musical for area theatregoers.

The players do well for West Side Story

BY PEG MEISSNER

It is colorful, stark, exciting, tense, touching, and bare-bones-budget theatrics. It is West Side Story, played by the Barn Theatre actors, and it opens this Friday night.

The Jerome Robbins play is a modern version of Romeo and Juliet, and William Jolliffe's direction has brought a cast of largely high school and college students into a performance that would excite envy in professionals.

The dancing, singing and acting are well above average, inviting comparisons with larger budgeted shows. The stark lighting against the minimum of staging props does not offend, and even adds appreciation to the performance due to the lack of competition from the surroundings.

The choreography of Lois Conant, who also plays the role of Anita, girlfriend of Bernardo (John Cook), shows promise and talent, with the thirty-one members of the cast moving almost in unison — a unison that a few more weeks of rehearsals could only polish.

The street gang wars between Puerto Ricans and Americans in New York sets the stage as Tonydavid Spencer) and Maria (Willie Fisa) try to consummate a love affair from either side of the conflict. Both have excellent voices, and show professionalism in duet and solo.

If the play is the thing, the play of the season is at the Barn Theatre, opening this Friday. It is an enjoyable, refreshing effort that brings forth talent we didn't know existed in the community.

See West Side Story, a good production by great people.

SO PRETTY—Maria (Willie Fiss), sings with Consuelo (Teresa Gallagher) left, and Rosalia (Bethann Johnston in one of the vocal numbers in West Side Story, a Barq Theatre feature that opens this Friday night.

SWEETEST—One of the most taste-bud watering recipes demonstrated at the Mirror Cooking Show was of cherries jubilee, flambe, which was concocted by Yvon Claustre, assistant food and beverage manager at Sandpiper Bay Resort. Later in the evening show, Claustre demonstrated crepes suzette.

WEAVING BREAD—The Publix Markets Danish bakery display featured many things that can be done in the bakery at Publix, including these rolls and coffee cakes.

ECONOMY—Pat Geddes, consumer manager for S&H Green Stamps in Florida, gave homemakers many hints on saving money in shopping during her presentation at The Mirror Cooking Show last Friday at the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

CAKE TIME—Two large cakes, chocolate and white, were a feature of the Publix Markets deli display, with just about everyone getting a piece of cake at The Mirror Cooking Show.

Over 700 attend Cooking Show

BY DICK CAMPBELL

It was like old times, and many remembered the cooking shows of five years ago, with more than a third of the over 400 packing the first cooking show session having attended the previous ones. Over 300 attended the second show.

Small in comparison to the giant cooking show and appliance fair in the cavernous Sandpiper Bay convention center in 1974, the 1979 Mirror Cooking Show at the nearly completed Port St. Lucie Lundin Hall, with a kitchen appliance display in the community center lounge made up for the difference in spirit and entertainment value for the participants.

The show featured three top chefs of the area; Thomas Lum , of Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant, Nick Midelis of Hilltop House, and Yvon Claustre of Sandpiper Bay.

Lum demonstrated using refrigerator left-overs for cooking egg foo young on the first show, using a small electric wok, as Outrigger general manager Alan Holley told of the operation of the restaurant and of ingredients of Polynesian cooking. On the second show, Lum prepared and demonstrated curry mi fon, or, Chinese spaghetti.

Midelis followed with the preparation of a rack of lamb, instructing the audience in how to prepare the cut of meat, the slicing, and the decoration of platter. He then produced a completed rack of lamb and showed how to cut the meat and serve it. He also gave his famous recipe for rolls.

The flaming cherries jubilee concocted by Yvon Claustre had to be the finishing touch to the perfect meal, with the audience salivating to the smooth French delivery of the professional. It was a shame that there wasn't enough for everyone...but 400 people?

Claustre showed the preparation of crepes Suzette on the evening show.

Midelis was unable to preside at the evening show as a large party of 40 at his restaurant had prevented his attending.

The audience also heard consumer buying tips from Pat Geddes, consumer manager for Sperry and Hutchinson Company (S&H Green Stamps), and had a lesson in microwave cooking from Mark Hartwig, district sales manager for the area Whirlpool appliance dealers. Publix ad director John Bernard also explained the new computerized checkout system that is due to be introduced soon.

All recipes used by the chefs will be printed in The Mirror over the next few weeks.

There were many prize winners, as appliances, dinners at restaurants, Mirror subscriptions and food gifts were distributed to the registered winners drawn by Ms. Geddes.Publix Markets donated the two grand prizes of $100 food certificates.

The community center also benefitted from the cooking show with over $200 in donations received during the two shows. Mrs. Mildred R. English was top donor with a $100 gift to the building fund.

Participating in the appliance display part of the show were Sears, Florida Power and Light, Publix deli and bakery, Fuller Brush, Vernoica Cole Honey, TNT Appliance, The Mirror, and S&H Green Stamps.

It was a great show, and promises to increase in size and scope each year.

RACK OF LAMB—Nick Midelis, owner of the popular Hilltop Restaurant, demonstrated the preparation of rack of lamb at The Mirror Cooking Show. Needing both hands, he was assisted by Editor Dick Campbell, who held the microphone.

Photos by Bob Fryer

SWEETEST—Veronica Cole's honey was the sweetest exhibit at The Mirror Cooking Show Friday at Port St. Lucie Community Center.

INTENSE—The interest in the cooking demonstrations is indicated by the intense conentration of these guests at the show.

WOK COOKING—As general manager Alan Holley explains, Thomas Lum chef at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant demonstrates the cooking of egg foo young in an electric wok. The demonstration was one of the highlights of The Mirror Cooking Show.

Fishing was very slow

BY DONNIE WILKIE

Fishing last week in the local waters became almost impossible, according to the Snook Nook's Tom Stewart.

"It's been pretty dead," he said. "There's been too much wind and hot weather. Mainly, though, it's the wind. You just can't get out there and stay with the fish. Everything's moving fast you so fast, it's nearly impossible."

What catches were reported.

The catches that were reported were very minimal, with the lone exception of Charlie Arent and Ed Wagner, who caught 24 trout in the Indian River using touts.

Junior Dishman reported an eight-pound and a 12-pound snook as he caught both off the 25-cent bridge, using live shrimp.

Shirley Dohman hauled in a three-and a half pound flounder in the Indian River, using a mirrolure. Jack Prell, meanwhile, pulled up four trout in the river, using touts.

Tom Hargrove recorded the only catch in the surf at Jensen Beach, getting five whiting, using cut shrimp.

Finally, Ron Ellis caught five snook, but released three, while fishing at the C-24 Canal in Port St. Lucie. He was using a bucktail jig.

Stewart agreed that the fishing should pick up soon.

"This is normal for this time of year," he said. "But come winter, you'll see about 20 times as many fish being caught. They're just all over the place then."

The temperature readings verify Stewart's argument. The lowest high recorded last week was 87, and with almost no rain to cool off the fish (and the fisherman), it seemed hotter than that.

Friday night, the "low" temperature was a not-so-cool 81. Now you can understand why the fishing was almost non-existent.

Sandpiper men gear up for tournament

Sandpiper Men golfers have been lining up partners this week to compete in the Chapman Scotch Partner's event scheduled for play Thursday, July 26th at the resort course. They'll play from the Red, White and Blue tees in that order utilizing one-fourth of posted handicaps.

Thursday's play produced low scores despite the roughs which have been allowed to grow to almost unplayable lies. Championship flight honors went to the "playing Colonel" Dob McConnell who posted a low gross 77 while Jim Gram, also at 77, collected net laurels in that division with a 70 deadlocked at that figure with Al Van Nostrand whose 81 netted him a like 70.

In first flight competition, Roy Rutherford had the low gross of 83 while Jim Docos came through with the low net figure of 70 followed by Graydon Smith 74.

Frank Brance and Charley Skinker shared gross honors in the second flight with 92's while Judge John Carroll recorded a gross 90 for a net 74 to take net honors.

Bud Denton and Dick Lundin grabbed a share of the third flight gross awards with 96 and Bob Downing took down the net award with a 73 including his 27 handicap allowance.

Grumman expansion

Martin County commissions voted Tuesday to approve a site plan for expansion of Grumman Aerospace facilities at Witham Field in Stuart.

Though Commission Chairman Frank Wachs said after the commission meeting that he couldn't recall specifics of the plan, he said it includes "a pretty big building," as well as a spur to be built off the Florida East Coast railroad track to service the new building. Grumman officials could not be reached by press time for further details.

In other action the commissioners approved a contract with William Bishop Consulting Engineers for services regarding the future purchase of Southern Gulf Utilities facilities by the county.

Final development plan approval was granted for a 49-lot single-family home development at Joe's Point on Hutchinson Island. Wachs said he expected work on that project would begin soon.

Three budgets

Martin County Commissioners will hear 1979-80 budget presentations from Sheriff James Ivik, Circuit Court Clerk Louise Isaacs and Supervisor of Elections Peggy Robbins during a special commission meeting at 9 a.m. Thursday, July 26.

In addition to the budget presentations, the commission is to hear a proposal for the use of cemented coquina rock for road construction, a request for a letter of no objection for building docking facilities at River Club condominiums on Warner Creek, and presentation of a resolution from Civil Defense amending and updating the basic emergency operations plans for the county.

HOW TO USE A BLANKET MORTGAGE INSTEAD OF CASH

QUESTION:

My husband and I own a house worth $50,000. The mortgage is almost paid off. We've been thinking about investing in an apartment house that we can buy for $250,000 with $50,000 down. However, we hope that if the seller feels secure, we might even buy it with very little cash down. We have a pretty good cushion in savings along with some stocks and adequate life insurance coverage. What are some of our alternatives?

ANSWER:

Given the information provided, there are several alternatives available to you.

Obviously, you can use some or all of your savings in your investment program.

Or you might consider refinancing the low mortgage on your house. The proceeds from such a refinancing are free from taxation because there is no sale.

As another alternative you might consider offering the apartment house seller a purchase money note secured by a mortgage on the apartment house and on your residence. Such an arrangement is commonly referred to as a blanket mortgage, as the note you give is secured by a mortgage on both properties.

You may also consider negotiating a blanket mortgage on terms which provide that the mortgage on your house will be released after the indebtedness on the apartment house is reduced to a mutually agreeable level or upon the payment of an agreed sum.

The use of a blanket mortgage can provide the seller with security and can often minimize the cash outlay for a buyer.

Be sure to check with counsel regarding any of the legal considerations of such an agreement.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-6147, or stop by:

STOP! Wherever you are! GO immediately to your most favorite beauty spot in your living room.

Please sit down for a few quiet minutes of unbiased, unhurried thinking. Please say to yourself ... This home is very, very nice ... I like it ... let's see ... it cost me "X" dollars "X" years ago.

Yes ... I have heard about the NEW acre homesite country club community called MID-RIVERS. I have been there ... or will in fairness to me, go see it real soon. It's on 2½ miles of canal C-23 at the Great North Fork of the St. Lucie River.

Friends have been talking and talking to us at cocktail parties ... "If you live in Stuart, Tequesta, Lost Tree, Delray or Boca and would like golf course living at its best ... You've got to get to Mid-Rivers before it's all gone.

Now here is a well known developer, Charlie Martyn, telling me to hurry. He's more than half sold out ... The golf course is "his best". Marilynn Smith, Kelly Childs and Charlie Grant are raving about it ... The clubhouse is outstanding ... 3 tennis courts just 346 member-owners. Our visiting kids can play.

The first big 200 foot fishing dock is built and in use. Martyn says to come out and see houses going up all over the finished 6 miles of blacktopped private roads. I'm being invited to play golf, have a drink and a bite to eat ... I'm allowed to bring a friend.

Let's see ... this house would probably bring us about "X" dollars. I'm being told I can move to Mid-Rivers at this particular time and about break even cash-wise?

WOW! I'll own the golf course, tennis courts, dock, clubhouse, roads and all. What an investment move! What a fun and interesting experience ahead!!!

I'll do it ... I'll do it!! What's that number to call for a friendly personal presentation of the Mid-Rivers Storybook ... end of the rainbow community?

286-2111

Who knows ... I might even join the sales staff ... they need help and I do not have to have a license.

Let's see ... again ... Mid-Rivers was started less than 2 years ago and has 5 million homesites sales left (136 lots of the 299 original total). I can maybe get a piece of the $250,000 in fees Charlie's going to pay (5 percent) to whoever sells ...

Plus houses! These acre homesites are going from $28,000 estate, to $48,000 on the Canal ... Right now! A year from now? ...?

Well ... I should at least tell Mabel and Ed about it! ... They're smart ... They'll go!!!

Gerhard & Kate Immich returned to the Park, accompanied by their nephew & wife and son from Germany. They plan to take a visit to the Keys and Disney World in their motor home.

Millie & Frank Fisz, Lil & Jack McConnell, uth & Wes Arbo spent an enjoyable evening Saturday in Ft. Pierce dining and shopping.

Carrie Ullmann writes that she just received a 15 year pin from the Ladies Fire Aux. Club. She also is enjoying her Garden Club luncheons. She and Charley are both well, but miss the pool here.

Kay Johnson writes that Ray, his son, brothers and Gordon Emaus went on a fishing trip in Canada. Gas is hard to get in Boston so they are staying near home and going on boat trips.

Catty & Lester Ullmann wrote from Asbury Park. The following day a card arrived from Seaside Heights, N.J. from Lena & Bob Black. They have a full week planned for the Ullmanns, then they will visit Bertha & Roy Lamon in N.Y.

Beryle Roy wrote that Earle Palmer was operated on and will be spending sometime on the flat of his back. She said "drop him a card or line" to Maine Medical Center, Bramhall St., Portland, Me. 04102. Ralph & Jean Taylor are at Sioux Lookout, Ont. hoping that the Roys will join them.

George & Lil Bares left H.Out in beautiful weather and it continued on home to Ohio with them. Lil was delighted with H.Out weather as she always feared it would be too hot for her, and it wasn't. The bugs weren't too bad either, she wrote. Their son surprised them with two tickets to the Swiss Alps for their 40th Anniversary in Oct. so we won't hear George yodel until the end of Oct.

Bob & Betty Ray visited their parents in H.Out for a wonderful week. The weather was ideal & the ocean clean, so H. Out is now their favorite vacation spot. hialeah, Fl. is their home, just 120 miles from the Park. Harriet & Lee Price in Venture Harbor invited all for a good card game and a delicious Key Lime pie. The Howard Kopkes also enjoyed the evening. The picnic they enjoyed at Sebastian Inlet was topped off with the thrill of seeing two men catch two 30 lb. red fish off the pier.

Lisbee & Artie Smith wrote that they are ready to take a spin around their lovely lake now that all work and repairs are finished.

C. J. & Ellen Freeman are enjoying their newly purchased lake home in Laurens, S.C. Now Ellen can fish from her back door anytime. They will return to H.O. in Oct.

FEC siding is sidetracked

A misunderstanding as to who was to take the next step has apparently sidetracked a plan to move the Florida East Coast Railroad siding in Jensen Beach from the east to the west side of the main track.

A year or so ago, Martin County officials met with FEC officials to propose a switch in the location of the siding and to have the county obtain FEC right-of-way that now extends from the main track to a point on the east side of Palmetto Avenue. The siding starts about a block north of Commercial Street and extends several hundred yards northward. County officials hope to relocate the siding on the west side of the tracks parallel to Candice Avenue. Then, instead of running in front of the Jensen Beach Fire Department and the Jensen Beach Bank's drive-in teller station, the siding would run in front of Porter Lumber, Bandy Steel and other businesses in a warehouse facility north of Bandy.

County and FEC officials say if the railroad company wanted to do it, access to the fire station and bank drive-in teller station, as well as to the loading platform at the Jensen Beach Post Office, could be blocked because of the extension of right-of-way to the east side of Palmetto Avenue. Those officials say this is not likely, but it's a problem the county officials say they would like to see resolved.

Nobody seems to know just how much money would be involved in making the siding switch, but both county and FEC spokesmen have said they expect some public funds will have to be spent.

County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha and FEC official T.J. Algard of the FEC office in West Palm Beach have discussed the plan, but it's been months since any progress has been made in implementing it. Apparently, this is because Wacha was under the impression it was up to FEC to take the next step, while Algard says he's been waiting to hear from the county before proceeding.

The next step to be taken before the siding switch is to happen is that an appraisal of the land involved has to be made. Wacha said the hold-up has been because Algard was going to tell the county who FEC would agree to have as the appraiser. However, Algard said he understood that the county was to do the appraisal and then contact him. "I checked with our St. Augustine office about a week ago and asked if they heard anything from the county. Our file indicates we're waiting on an appraisal figure. This thing has been sitting on dead center for seven or eight months now and nothing has happened," Algard said, adding that he recently tried contacting Charlie Porter of Porter Lumber for input on the matter. He said he planned to try seeing Porter again on Tuesday (July 24) and said he'll be contacting Wacha on the matter soon. Wacha said Tuesday that he planned to contact Algard soon to straighten out the matter, so with both of them now trying to contact each other, progress on the siding project may be forthcoming.

WHO NEEDS A MARINA?—In case you didn't know, there's often a shortage of space at local marinas for boat storage and for making boat repairs. Some residents along Indian River Drive in Jensen Beach apparently found a solution to the problem by simply creating their own dry dock. (Staff photo by Bob Fryer)

Edith and Dick Painter are off on a trip to N. Carolina and then on to Rhode Island.

Aldyce and Bill Goetz are also on a short vacation trip visiting family and friends in various places.

Yvonne and Bud Wiencke write that they are taking care of son, Jim's three children while Jim and wife Pat go to Hawaii to house hunt. Yvonne is teaching many children swimming now that the weather and water is getting warmer. They send their love to any of us who are left here.

Nomi and Dan Morton are planning to attend their son, Rod's wedding in Delaware on Saturday. But are worried about the gas, as they need a full tank to get there and back, and can't get gas if they have more than a quarter tank. At least they can sail their boat—it needs no gas. They are enjoying their new mobile home, and play pool and ping pong at their rec hall. Nomi expects to be a grandmother in early August, and will be spending some time with her daughter-in-law. They sure do miss V Ill, and send regards. She and Yvonne visit each other quite often.

Fran Tener left Friday to drive to Beckyl Island for a few days visit with Dick's sister and brother-in-law, the Coulters. Then on by plane to Ohio for the wedding of a grand niece. After that she will fly to Calif. to visit another and family and friends. She will return in Sept.

Fran Tener and Jessie Shaver were at the Burt Reynolds Theatre on Wednesday, to see THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT. An enjoyable evening.

Bob and Betty Ray, and Al and Peg Ray had an enjoyable evening with Lee and Harriet Price, playing cards, and "99."

Had a card from Grace and Bob Murphy. They had visited and enjoyed grandchildren in Mass. and were off to celebrate the 8th birthday of another grandson in Vermont. They said it was good to be traveling in a motor home, so they could rest when they pleased, and needed to. They had no gas problems at all.

Lee Price, Jr. came up to visit Mom and Pop for two days, just loafing, reading and going to the beach. Harriet went back to Miami with him, as he will be coming back by here in a few days, so she will see some of her family and friends while there.

A card from Sam Tucker, says he is still in the hospital, but hoping to be out in a few days. he is improving, and hopes, as we all do, that the problem is liked. Says he enjoys reading Venture III news in the Mirror.

The Jack Brittains are having their seawall faced with red brick, and it sure looks pretty. They never stop improving their home.

Happy Birthday to Thelma Dickey on July 24; Al Jones and Jessie Shaver on July 26. Anniversary congratulations to Jean and Gil Van Willigen on July 29.

Mike Quinn heads for hills

LEAVING TOWN. Mike and Judy Quinn and their one year old daughter [illegible] moving to move out of Jensen Beach soon for what they [illegible] less crowded life in Lenoir, N.C. Mike has been a Martin [illegible] since 1970 and a Jensen Beach Fire Department volunteer for 13 [illegible] and raised here, but says it's just getting too crowded here. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

BY BOB FRYER

"Because it's getting too crowded here, and his favorite fishing spots are now in the shadows of condominiums, Mike Quinn is leaving Jensen Beach.

On Thursday, Aug. 2, Quinn will leave his home town and the next day he'll report for duty as a patrolman for the Lenoir, N.C. Police Department.

Quinn was born and raised here, and since 1970, has been a deputy for the Martin County Sheriff's Department. He's been a volunteer for the Jensen Beach Fire Department for 13 years. He says he'll miss both departments, but says the time has come for a change in the life of his family. He plans to buy some acreage in the Lenoir area, in the foothills of the Smokey mountains a little south of Boone. "I want a cow and a few critters and enough land for them."

Quinn said, adding that he has tried looking for acreage around Martin County, but found it all too expensive.

Quinn's roots here are deep. His father was born and raised here, and until a few years ago, he operated Quinn's meat market in downtown Jensen Beach. After retiring from the meat market Quinn's father moved to Okeechobee. He died last September.

Mike Quinn graduated from Martin County High School in 1966 and worked at his father's meat market until 1970, when he became a deputy. He's one of few deputies who can lay claim to working under three Martin County Sheriffs: Roy C. Baker, Robert Crowder, and James Holt. He says the department has changed a lot over the last nine years, and recalled early days when he was one of only three or four deputies who would be on patrol at a given time. Now, many more deputies patrol the county.

Quinn said he spent his childhood romping around the Savannas in an area off Sugar Hill Road. It is now undergoing development. He says the county has just grown too quickly.

There are just too many people here, and it's getting so you can't afford land here. My wife Jeani and I decided to move while we're still young and before our daughter is old enough to go to school. Besides, it will only get worse in terms of density and growth," Quinn said, adding that he did not want to bring his daughter up in their home along busy Savanna Road. His daughter, Jennifer Michelle, will be a year old on Aug. 1.

"Richard Barton, a former Martin County deputy, told me about the Lenoir Police Department. He started there in April, and said it is a very progressive-minded department. When I met the chief of police, he struck me as an honest man, and we fell in love with the area," Quinn said.

Quinn says he hopes there will be more opportunity for advancement at the police department in North Carolina than with the Martin County Sheriff's Department, and says that even though Lenoir has a population of about 17,000, the population is stable rather than booming, and that there is available acreage nearby.

Of his work with the fire department, Quinn said, "I have enjoyed every bit of it and will miss the people in it. They'll be the hardest to leave," he said. He commented that the department needed progressive input that came under Sheriffs Crowder and Holt. Of Crowder, Quinn said he was in office such a short time (for about seven months after Baker was suspended and before Holt defeated Crowder in an election and took office) to judge what he may have done as leader of the department. He said Sheriff Holt has brought leadership to the department.

Quinn has served for quite some time as second in command at the Jensen Beach Fire Department. Chief Joe Luciano says: "We'll all miss him here. He was a key man."

Luciano said that because of Quinn's training as a deputy, "he is a quick and level headed thinker in emergency situations. He's a fantastic fireman." Luciano added: "I could always depend on him. He handled everything when I was gone. He's going to be missed."

Sheriff Holt was out of town and unavailable for comment on the job Quinn did for him.

Leta's at Hyatt House

As this correspondent's Ocean Breeze Park notes are going to press, I am in Sarasota at the Hyatt House acting as a voting delegate for our Jensen Beach Community Church for both the Florida Fellowship Annual Conference and the National Council of Community Church which follows.

I'm al excited about a great week, a mixture of old friendships, fantastic accommodations and a genuine learning experience that is about to unfold. I'm so thankful that four lovely neighbors and friends have agreed to peek in on Irvin. Maybe our son Tim will come down too.

John and Rose Leybeck are enjoying their daughter in law, Joyce Leybeck, grand-daughter Sharon Dunham, and great-grand-daughter Ellen Dunham from Lexington, Kentucky.

Avis Holeraf and Doris Haley have returned from a sojourn to Indiana. They stopped at Disneyworld on their way.

Harry and Dennie Dewsberry have their grandson and a friend with them for a while. The boys will assist in driving back to Michigan.

Irene Williams returned July 9 after a two week visit in Frankfort, Indiana. The highlight of the visit was the usual June birthday dinner in honor of her mother, Nellie Weida, who was 96 on June 30. Open House was held on June 30th.

Pinochle will be held in Clement Hall on Monday and Thursday at 1 p.m. and on Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

WE GET LETTERS:

From Ernie and Marion Curwin in Lake Sherando, Virginia: "Promises, promises, I know I said I'd write you a nice story about the OBPers we have met in our travels or heard from, but all we know about the park is what we glimpse from clippings of your column sent by Dot Beck, who has been visiting in Beverly and Marblehead, Mass. and with a son in Connecticut. She is fine and dandy and reports that Ed and Ethel Heinold, who visited her over the weekend, are also "F n' D".

I'm sorry to report that we had nothing but excellent weather for the first few weeks in Georgia, Tennessee, and Virginia and that is bad, after years of saying, "Why go north, when Martin County climate is the greatest." However, at Jekyll Island we did swelter a bit when temperature reached 95 or better and up here in the Blue Ridge Mountains we will have to admit that 48 degrees some mornings made floor heat seem darn good.

But, after getting one of Ellen Nixon's frequent and very informative letters, stating that Jensen Beach was still having 90 day after day, our 48 mornings with 75 afternoons and bright blue skies was not hard to take.

No gasoline problems, so far, plenty of it at 80 cents or less for regular during June, but now it seems to be up to 85-90 cents in most stations around here (Waynesboro, Va.).

However, we found that after being "grounded" for five years, we kind of forgot somethin'. Second day out, when travel trailer door was opened at coffee break time, we were met by an awful mess of cooking oil, margarine, baked beans, as young Ernie forgot to put the catch on the refrigerator door.

Marion had a few crisp, choice words. Then, on a turn-a round, the rig was pulled over on a soft sandy shoulder and it took rugs and a lot of diggin to get out of that.

Finally (we hope), at first stop of the day, a glance skyward and young Ernie was amazed to see a tangled mass of metal on top of the Shasta. I guess he forgot to put the TV antenna in traveling position. Soon we will be going to Hendersonville, N.C. that is loaded with OBPers, then I will let you know "What's what." Ernie Curwen.

Millie Smith says, "I walk and walk but I seldom see anyone else from Ocean Breeze walking."

Carol Chapman is slowly recovering from the shingles. It has been a tough six weeks for her to be shut in because she was so sore under her right arm. She could not knit or crochet nor write letters. Just sit and try to keep cool.

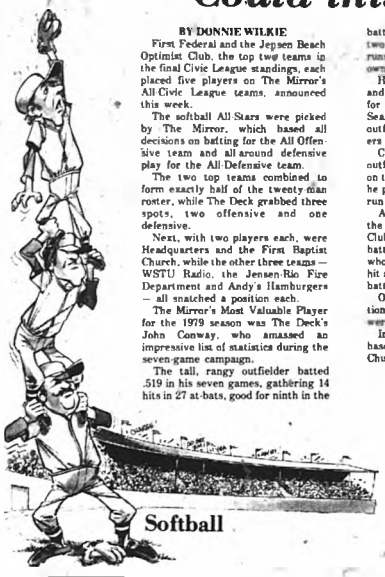
FFMC, Optimists lead Civic All-Stars

Could this offense.....beat this defense?



BY DONNIE WILKIE

First Federal and the Jepsen Beach Optimist Club, the top two teams in the final Civic League standings, each placed five players on The Mirror's All Civic League teams, announced this week.

The softball All Stars were picked by The Mirror, which based all decisions on batting for the All Offensive team and all around defensive play for the All-Defensive team.

The two top teams combined to form exactly half of the twenty-man roster, while The Deck grabbed three spots, two offensive and one defensive.

Next, with two players each, were Headquarters and the First Baptist Church, while the other three teams — WSTU Radio, the Jensen-Rio Fire Department and Andy's Hamburgers — all snatched a position each.

The Mirror's Most Valuable Player for the 1979 season was The Deck's John Conway, who amassed an impressive list of statistics during the seven-game campaign.

The tall, rangy outfielder batted .519 in his seven games, gathering 14 hits in 27 at-bats, good for ninth in the batting race. In addition, he smacked two doubles, three triples, piled up 15 runs batted in and scored 12 of his own.

He led the Civic League in triples and runs batted in, while finishing tied for second (with the Optimists' Herb Seal) in runs scored. Fellow offensive outfielder Bob Komara of Headquarters scored 13 times.

Conway was excellent in the outfield, while also trying the action on the pitcher's mound. In 13 innings, he posted a 1-0 record and an earned run average of 4.85.

Along with Conway and Komara in the offensive outfield are the Optimist Club's Mike Wegler, the league batting champion, and Rob Phillips, who despite a late start due to college hit a crisp .533 and tied for fifth in the batting derby.

Outfielders were not chosen position by position, but the infielders were.

In the offense's infield are third baseman Russ Hughes of the Baptist Church (.400, with five doubles and nine rbi's), shortstop Charlie Schommer of the Fire Department (.476, eight runs scored), second baseman Barry North of The Deck (.533 and seven rbi's in just five games) and first baseman Dave Malheiro of the Baptist Church (.435 with six doubles, tops in the league).

The pitcher who possessed the hottest bat during the year was David Bocchino of First Federal, who despite being mired in a slump in FFMC's tournament campaign, batted .407 in Civic competition, collecting two triples, seven rbi's and 11 runs scored in his 27 times at bat.

His teammate, John Pederson, is the All-Offensive catcher, despite the fact that the FFMC slugger batted only six times due to his committment to Martin County High School football. In those six visits to the plate, he ripped four hits, scored four runs, smacked a double and accumulated five runs batted in.

"The good defense always beats the good offense," argues Jerry Bocchino of the Optimist Club, David's brother.

ALL-DEFENSIVE PITCHER BILL MANG

Jerry has good reason for saying that, since he's a member of The Mirror's All-Defensive team.

Don't be misled, though. Eight of the ten DEFENSIVE players swung bats for a .300 or better average, so they're not pushovers at the plate, despite the fact that they were selected All-Defensive only because of their exploits in the field.

"I think it would be interesting to let the two teams play each other," commented Hamp Elliott, WSTU 's All-Defensive outfielder. "It would be a lot like the Blue-White game in football."

Joining Bocchino and Elliott in the defensive outfield are Milton Reese of Andy's and mobile Nick Barker of First Federal. Three of the four outfielders are leftfielders, and all four play on the left side of the field (Elliott is a fixture for WSTU in left-center). Managers often play their strongest outfielders in left and left-center, especially in the sometimes error-prone Civic League.

The defensive infield is a shining example of error-free softball. The double-play combination features shortstop Al Killian of The Deck (three errors all year; two in the same inning) and the Optimists' second baseman, Nick Blount, with only one error to his credit in almost 30 innings of play.

The third baseman is the steady Steve Zelenski of Headquarters, while manning first base is flamboyant Gregg Sprauer, who often catches more balls while in the horizontal position than when standing upright.

Catching is the teammate of offensive catcher Pederson, Steve Coy, who did an admirable job while Pederson was busy with football — so much so that First Federal Manager Frank Hughes tried unsuccessfully to play Pederson in the outfield.

Finally, the dipsy-doo curve balls of Optimist Club pitcher Bill Mang and his 6-1 record (blemished only by the Club's 11-4 loss to First Federal) earned him a spot as the All-Defensive hurler.

Also to Mang's credit is the year's most memorable quote, uttered before the Optimists, undefeated at the time, collided with also-undefeated First Federal.

"They've got the youth, the desire and the quickness, but we've got the experience, the Geritol, and the Ben-Gay," said Mang of the 16-18 year old FFMC team.

Needless to say, many of the Optimists are getting advanced in years. The infield alone averaged 41 years of age.

There are no plans in the immediate future to match the two All-Star teams against each other, although it might be a fine game. The Mirror's only purpose in selecting the All-Civic squads is to reward those players who had exceptional years.

FFMC off to Satellite

It was almost a totally different First Federal softball team that took the field Monday night for their Civic League loser's bracket game with Andy's Hamburgers of Stuart.

Suddenly inspired by the mere thought that in four days, they could reign as the state champions in the 16-18 age group, FFMC jumped on the opposition from the start, roaring to an 18-3 victory, showing everyone present that they are capable of playing almost unbeatable softball.

It is this inconsistency that makes First Federal a longshot pick in this weekend's state tournament in Satellite Beach. The defending champions, Starke, know all about FFMC's inconsistency.

Last year, playing as SDS Sports, the local "kids" gave Starke the scare of the tournament, looking like state champions as they showed they were not intimidated by Starke's tall infield. But the inconsistency showed in the end, as SDS dropped a last-inning, 8-7 decision to what coach Frank Hughes calls "the starting ground for the Green Machine," perhaps the best men's team in the state.

Immediately after losing the heartbreaker to Starke, SDS lost again. All the spirit had deserted them, and their second game was not even a close one. Fort Walton Beach had hardly seen SDS before the Jensenites' weekend was over.

HOW TO GET THERE

Directions to Mark Hedgecock Civic Center, where First Federal of Martin County is expected to open the State Championship (16-18 division) sometime Saturday morning:

Drive north on US 1 to Eau Gallie, then turn right at Eau Gallie Boulevard (first light after Ramada Inn on left), cross the Eau Gallie Causeway and turn left at the first light after the bridge, onto South Patrick Drive. Head north about one mile until you see the Hedgecock fields on your right.

This year, bolstered by the addition of first baseman Gregg Sprauer, catcher John Pederson and outfielder Frank Knott, the Bankers feel they have a better chance to win the coveted title.

Hughes admits, though, that his team "is not the best in the state. We're going to have to work and fight for every run we get, but I think if the kids stay positive and keep smiling, they'll do alright."

Indeed, Monday night the Bankers had the look of a positive team. In warmups, they lined up and threw softballs in a group, with all the players on one end releasing the ball at the same time. Hughes' philosophy of team play appeared to finally be rubbing off.

The one problem is still shortstop. Hughes feels that since he lost the services of Ernest McIntyre (he became ineligible when he played for Gary's in the Men's A class subdistricts), Darryl Delaney, the original shortstop, has played well, but just in case something breaks loose in Satellite he has "enlisted" Rick Bright, a baseball player from Indian River Community College and the Martin County American Legion team.

The final obstacle to Bright's addition was "cleared" Monday night in West Palm Beach, when the Americans lost to PB-Post 12, 8-0, eliminating them from the playoff tourney. Bright will join the team strictly "as a back-up man," says Hughes.

"Ricky knows he's going as a back-up and the rest of the team knows it," adds Hughes. "But it doesn't take a genius to figure out where our problem is [shortstop]. I haven't seen him hit yet, but from what I hear, he hits well."

Hughes argues with the theory that baseball players cannot make a quick transition from hardball to softball, and vice versa.

"My kids will prove it. They can go right from the softball field over to the baseball field, and they'll hit the hardball right away. I'm going to prove that the theory is wrong."

The rest of the team is fine, says Hughes.

"Henry's [Harriel] hitting much better [he doubled and homered Monday night], and David's [Bocchino] finally starting to rip that ball. I think I'm taking the best team I've ever taken to state.

"Experience is the big thing. There are still miscues out there, but at least now, it's more of a mental thing."

A tournament victory by First Federal would place them in the National Championships in St. Louis in two weeks, a certainly quick trip from nowhere to seemingly everywhere. But the seven-team (that could vary by one or two teams, depending on the final draw tonight—Wednesday) field will be a strong one, and FFMC will have to be quite fortunate to emerge as the champions. The Bankers own a misleading 2-6 record in tournament play, but every game has been against grown men. The state tourney will be the first this year for FFMC against kids their own age.

The whole situation was probably best summed up by a spectator at one of FFMC's games a few weeks ago, who said, "who knows what will happen." The obvious answer is that everyone will—next week.

HOT-HITTING GREGG SPRAUER ...three hits Monday night

Fired-up JB Fire finally beaten

How can you explain a team that spends all season losing, then with no warning at all, upsets the undefeated champions in the post season tournament, then nearly makes it two in a row, losing by only one run in extra innings to the third-place team?

You can't.

The Jensen-Rio Fire Department struck like lightning last week, knocking off previously undefeated First Federal in the first round of the Civic League championship tournament, at Langford Park, 6-3.

Then, Monday night, they came roaring back from an early deficit, only to lose in extra innings to the First Baptist Church of Stuart in a second round game.

The loss drops the Fire into the loser's bracket of the double-elimination event, and they will face the loser of tonight's (Wednesday) WSTU Radio Optimist Club game, in a third round game next Monday night, at 8 p.m.

Fire 6 FFMC 3

Scott Lukas singled in what proved to be the winning run against a shocked First Federal team. The Bankers, perhaps overconfident, did not seem to care about the outcome until it was much too late.

Only hot-hitting Gregg Sprauer knocked in an FFMC run with a hit, the others coming on a sacrifice fly and a ground ball. The Fire Department was willing to give away a run for an out, a bargain that helped them "escape" with the year's most resounding Civic upset.

Baptists 25 Andy's 5

In what proved to be a busy week for the First Baptist Church, they smashed Andy's Hamburgers 25-5 in a first round post season Civic League tournament game.

Paul Nassar and David Marlow each ripped four hits for the winners, who scored nine times in the second inning to put the game away.

Optimists 12 Headquarters 5

The Jensen Beach Optimist Club clubbed 16 hits as they tore apart Headquarters, 12-5 in a first-round Civic League tournament game.

A two-run double by Mike Jordon in the third inning, along with run-scoring hits by Bob Jackson and Jan Payne, gave the Optimists an insurmountable 8-2 edge after two and-a-half innings.

Baptists win FFMC tourney in rousing fashion

BY DONNIE WILKIE

The First Baptist Church of Stuart played their most inspiring softball of the season last weekend, winning the championship of the First Federal Invitational at Langford Park.

The tournament was staged to raise money for First Federal's trip to the state 16-18 year old state championship tournament this weekend in Satellite Beach. All umpiring and scorekeeping, as well as the operation of concessions, was done by members of the FFMC team.

On the field, the tournament favorites, the Jensen Beach Optimist Club, faltered from the start, although they managed to pull off a come from behind, 8-7 victory over Headquarters in a second-round game.

Bill Mang's crew could not put together a consistent attack, as the rest of the six-team field took aim at them like the American League teams do at the New York Yankees. Without the necessary guns behind him, Mang and Company lost two in a row after the Friday night spectacle with Headquarters, dropping 3-0 and 11-10 decisions to the eventual finalists, the Baptists and WSTU Radio, the surprise of the tourney.

The Radio Wonders began the event on the down side, losing to the Baptists, 15-6 in the opening game. John Hascup and Pete Backhaus clubbed three hits each for the winners, who were only beginning their weekend assault.

WSTU rebounded well, though, ripping the Jensen-Rio Fire Department 12-2, before disposing of Headquarters, 20-9. After that, the Radiomen pulled the surprise of the weekend, winning an 11-10 thriller over the Optimists in a 9-inning marathon.

The game was only the semi final of the tournament, with the Baptist Church waiting in the wings for the winner, but the two squads battled as if the championship was at stake.

Dave George ripped a triple to help WSTU get five second inning runs and pile up a 6-2 lead. The Radio Wonders then increased the margin with a two-run third, as two Optimist errors in the outfield gave them an 8-2 advantage.

The Optimists fought back, though, as singles by Nick Blount, Jan Payne, and Jerry Bocchino scored three runs and cut the lead to 8-5 in the fourth frame. Blount doubled and scored on an error in the next inning, and the score was even closer, 8-6.

It appeared that WSTU might hold on for the win until the seventh inning, when the Optimists staged one of their patented last minute comebacks. Singles by Blount, Herb Seal and Bill Mang started the uprising, and an rbi single by Payne, capped by a two-run hit off the bat of usually weak-hitting Joe Grzelka, ended it. WSTU suddenly trailed by two runs, 10-8!

But whereas the Optimists had deserved to go ahead in the top of the inning, they deserved to fall behind again in the home half of the seventh, as after George walked and advanced to second on a sacrifice, three consecutive errors were committed by the Optimist Club's infield, two by shortstop Seal. The Club got a break, though, as the potential winning run was stranded at third, and the inning ended with the score tied, 10-10.

Neither team threatened in the eighth, although the Optimists did manage two hits before leaving runners at first and second.

In the ninth, WSTU finally took advantage of the opportunity presented by the lackluster Optimist bats, as George, who collected to extra base hits, doubled to lead off the inning. Mike Paul was then issued an intentional walk, and Charlie Bean grounded into a fielder's choice. Lionel Biladeau was intentionally walked to load the bases, but the strategy, created by pitcher and coach Mang, backfired, as a sacrifice fly ball easily scored George to win the game.

It seemed to all present to be the tournament's most exciting game, but there were others just as arousing. Here are a few:

Baptist 19 Sheriff's Dept. 18

The Martin County Sheriff's Department nearly pulled a startling

The Sheriff's Department led, 17-8 until the Baptists exploded in the sixth inning. Home runs by Bill Hascup, Mike Casey and Richard Connellee and a triple by Steve Norris helped the Baptists score nine runs in the inning, tying the game at 17-17.

But the visitors forged ahead again, as Ken Wright's single scored Don Jones from second in the seventh inning.

The 18-17 lead quickly evaporated under the force of the newly found Baptist bats, though, as Bill Hascup scored the tying run with no outs when John Pederson smashed a triple down the left field line. The aging Pederson was an instant hero, and moments later, he scored the game's winning run on a single by John Hascup.

Baptist 19 WSTU radio 5

The tournament final was an exciting one, at least until the seventh inning. The Baptists broke open an 8-5 thriller with 11 runs in that frame, as everything that could possibly go wrong for WSTU did.

In all, the Baptists ripped 22 hits, with ten of them coming in the seventh.

Sailfish entries

Gamefish entries in the Summer Tournament of the Sailfish Club include:

A 20 lb. 2 oz. bonita by Christopher Kinsey of Shrevsport, La., fishing from the charter boat Hobo under Capt. Jack Whitlear;

And fishing aboard the Vickar with Capt. Bennie Shipp, Kevin Williams of Stuart brought in a 65 pound wahoo which he entered.

Americans lose in two

The Martin County Americans, Jensen Beach's entry in the District 11 American Legion championship tournament, learned last weekend that optimism is not the only ingredient for a winning team.

You must also score runs.

Monday night's 8-0 loss to Palm Beach Post 12 followed a rainy, 4-1 defeat at the hands of undefeated (at press time) Lake Worth Post 47, the regular season champions.

Monday, Lake Worth defeated North Palm Beach Post 141, 7-0 to remain in the winner's bracket, and they were scheduled to meet the winner of Tuesday's first game between Post 12 and Post 141 for the championship in Tuesday's second game. If Lake Worth loses, a final game will be scheduled for tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m.

Sunday's first round game between the Americans and Lake Worth was delayed by showers twice — once after the game's first pitch, a strike to Mike Meyer, for five minutes, then for an hour, 20 minutes in the top of the While MC pitcher Brent Laycock pitched well, giving up only an unearned run in the third inning, the local bats remained silent, as Lake Worth pitcher Randy O'Niell struck out the first four batters he faced, and seven of the first ten.

Most significantly, O'Niell had a no-hitter until Julio Quesada lined a sharp, no-doubt-about-it single to left field in the seventh inning. O'Niell finished the game with 14 strikeouts, throwing 120 pitches and getting 95 of them across for strikes.

Quesada's wild throw to first enabled John Gregory to reach base in the third, then Bill McGovern singled to score the Lake Worth first baseman from second. Ironically, it was the only hit Lake Worth could muster against Laycock until Mandy Cabera singled in the sixth inning. But a lack of offensive support finally affected Laycock, as he crumbled in the seventh.

There was, though, the usual assortment of local miscues — two errors and a passed ball — in the inning, but Lake Worth rapped three hits and scored three runs, two earned, in taking a 4-0 lead. Steve Rexroad was brought in to relieve the tiring Laycock, and Lake Worth quickly was halted, though the damage was already complete.

Rick Bright singled in the ninth, advanced to second on a ground ball, and scored on Randy Smith's single, the third for Martin County. It proved to be the Americans' only tally of the tourney.

In game two, Martin County faced Palm Beach Post 12, who, a day earlier, had practically handed a game to North Palm 141, blowing a seventh inning, 3-0 lead and eventually losing 4-3.

Palm Beach blew the game open in the sixth, scoring four times, as David Lloyd and Wright opened with doubles, and Eddie Godoy followed with a home run. The other run plated when Lovely walked, advanced to third on Dino Maniotis' single, and scored on catcher David Bernhardt's error on the throw back to the infield.

Martin County only smacked four hits, but threatened to score in the seventh, as Jim McHugh walked, Derick Spittler reached on an error by relief pitcher Bill Key, and Laycock walked, loading the bases. But Rexroad followed with a fly ball to centerfield to end the inning.

Smith managed two hits for Post 126 (the Americans), while Quesada and Kim Patterson added the other hits. Martin County ended the season 3-16, while as of press time, Lake Worth stood at 15-4, North Palm at 10-10, and Post 12 was 11-9.

In other games:

Tim Tharp's two-run single in the seventh inning cut the gap, and North Palm Beach Post 141 scored two unearned runs in the eighth inning to upset second-place Post 12 of West Palm Beach, 4-3 in a first round game.

Duane Peavey walked to open the eighth, then advanced around the bases on a sacrifice bunt and a throwing error by shortstop Bob Wright. After Stokes ended up at third on the error, Chris Perkins reached on an error by third baseman Nester Rodriguez, allowing the winning run to score.

Palm Beach had piled up a 3-0 lead in the fourth frame on a David Lloyd rbi single, a sacrifice fly and a balk charged against North Palm winning pitcher Dave Remensnyder.

In Monday's late game, Victor Knapp shut out North Palm on just five hits as Lake Worth zapped the third-place team, 7-0.

George Hernandez smashed two hits and got two runs batted in for the winners, while Mike Stokes (three hits) and Chris Perkins (two) collected all of North Palm's hits. Lake Worth scored four times in the third and three more in the seventh.

Reasons why SNAPPER owners wouldn't own any other:

1 Walk-behind models with inexpensive accessories will mow, discharge cuttings evenly, vacuum, bag, mulch cuttings and shred leaves.
2 Riders and walk-behind models deliver a smooth, professional cut even during tough conditions. They also cut more faster because of the efficient transfer of power from their engines.
3 Large capacity grass catchers need emptying less frequently, especially those with the 30 bushel Bag-N-Wagon.
4 The floating cutting unit on riders minimizes scalping and damage to the mower.
5 A wide selection of mowing speeds gives flexibility for varying lawn conditions, without loss of cutting power.

Before you buy a mower, compare the quality and performance features of a SNAPPER. You'll find SNAPPER is worth more because it does more. And its price is competitive with other quality mowers.

NOTICE

A public hearing will be conducted before the City Council of the City of Port St Lucie on Tuesday, August 28, 1979 at 9:00 p.m., City Hall, corner of Port St. Lucie and Prima Boulevards "City Hall Place", Port St. Lucie, Florida on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE 79-34

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING A VARIANCE TO MR. WILLIAM W. JOHNSON OF 1000 GRIFFITH AVENUE, PORT ST. LUCIE, FLORIDA, FROM THE REQUIREMENT OF A 50 FOOT RIVERFRONT SETBACK, TO ALLOW A 42 FOOT RIVERFRONT SETBACK, PURSUANT TO SECTION 19-4 OF ORDINANCE 76-1; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE

THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE HEREBY ORDAINS:

WHEREAS, the City of Port St Lucie, Florida was requested by Mr. William W Johnson, the sole owner of the land described below, to grant a variance from the current zoning classification (R-1 Residential), to allow a 42 foot riverfront setback, and

WHEREAS, the City Council having determined that the granting of this variance will be in harmony with the general purpose and intent of Ordinance 76-1, and

WHEREAS, the City Council having made a finding that the granting of this variance is for the minimum variance that will make possible the reasonable use of this land, and

WHEREAS, the variance will not be detrimental to the public welfare or injurious to the neighborhood, and notice by advertising property owners for a radius of 500 feet being given and advertising of public hearing being made, and the City Council having held a public hearing on the 24th day of July, 1979, and having considered the same, but

THEREFORE ORDAINED THAT:

1. The property described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and by reference incorporated herein, is hereby granted a variance from the 50 foot riverfront setback on the property described above.

2. This Ordinance shall become effective ten (10) days after its final adoption.

PASSED AND APPROVED on first reading by the City Council of the City of Port St Lucie Florida, this 24th day of July, 1979.

McArthur loses in two

West Palm Beach-McArthur, winners of the Girls' 13-15 district tournament at Langford Park two weeks ago, lost in the state title tournament in Melbourne last week-end, dropping two consecutive games.

The winners of the Langford tourney, which included 11 teams, dropped a 3-2 decision in their first game, before coming disheartened and losing worse in their second game.

Bowling Scoreboard

The Summer Junior League bowled July 9, setting the team standings as follows:

The Wizards won 21½ and lost 6½; Pin Busters won 17, lost 11; Wipe Outs won 16, lost 12; Gutters won 12½ lost 15½; Near Perfect won 9, lost 19; and GutterGang won 8, lost 20.

Elliott Museum to expand

The Martin County Historical Society moved one step closer to building an addition to the Elliott Museum Tuesday when county commissioners approved a lease amendment to allow for the expansion.

The agreement provides more land for the society, and society President Ross Philbrick says this means a 4,000 square-foot addition to the museum will be added soon. The new addition is to be built at the rear of the museum and will result in the museum taking on a "H" shape. Antique cars now on display in the museum will be placed on display in the addition, and the space vacated by the cars will be used for new displays.

Philbrick said a sketch of the addition by the architect has been received and the architect should start soon on drafting construction plans.

Winn Dixie wants to be a Part of Your Day

WD BRAND BEEF IS THE NATURAL CHOICE

The WD Brand is a part of the Winn Dixie tradition of fine quality foods... It stands for quality beef. And quality beef means juicy tenderness due to natural aging. The Beef people start with U.S. Choice Beef and close trim it so there's no waste. Wd Brand Beef...it's the natural choice when it comes to taming a beef lover's hearty appetite.

NORTH CAROLINA MOUNTAINS

Mountain cabin with fireplace. Dandy garden spot. This is a handy man special because it is not finished inside, roughed wired and plumbing completed. Water and the outside is completed. Large deck overlooking mountains. You can live in it while you finish it up. 5 Miles from Murphy. $22,500.00, $5,000 down assume loan.

4.9 acres secluded with real good access. About 1 acre garden area or pasture. Plenty of room to build 3 or 4 homes. Lays gentle. Large trees cover this tract. Plenty of privacy. $9,850.00, $1,500 down payment. Plenty of wild game and good fishing in this area.

2 Acres for a camper trailer or anything you desire to use it for. All wooded, borders a good gravel road which gives good access. Plenty of Mountain Laurel, plenty of wild game in the nearby forest. Owner needs to sell this tract $4,450.00. Terms $1,000 down assume loan.

These are a few of over 2000 listings. We have all types of property from $600.00 per acre and up. We have small tracts, we also have several cabins, homes, old farms, etc. Write or call today for a free listing brochure. You can call free by dialing 1-800-438-7421. Write or call today.

The 68-year old retiree had been in and out of New Jersey hospitals ten times and was dependent on an oxygen machine for survival shortly before his move. It was a fight to live, explains Popovich. "I was at the point that I just wanted to die. I don't feel that way anymore."

Upon coming to Florida he was unable to walk more he walks some three miles a day. "I sold my tackle and fishing equipment years ago. I never thought I'd fish again," he said. Since, he has purchased his own boat, and he hooked a seven and a half pound trout just last week. "I swim, fish, walk to the beach, I even painted the cottage," he said.

Popovich attributes his recovery in part to the warm climate and clean Florida air. The pollution Popovich believes aggravated his condition. The main factor leading to his depressed state however was, according to Popovich, the ten Valium totaling 50 milligrams he was prescribed to take every day. The first thing the doctor down here did was to take me off the Valium," Popovich has been carefully guarding against infection which he was warned could cause him to suffer a relapse.

"A lot of it was faith," says Popovich, "you can't give up. If I had given up I wouldn't be here today. The Good Lord just decided it wasn't my time to go."

Having left behind two children and two grandchildren in New Jersey, Popovich still calls the northeast "home," but says he will never return. "I just can't take the pollution and the constant change in climate."

Now living with his sister Elizabeth Michalek near the Indian River, Popovich says, "we always have a nice breeze coming off the water. You can just sit on the dock and daydream the hours away."

Several months ago Andrew Popovich didn't think he had a single dream left. Today, sitting on his porch in Jensen Beach, he says, "I'm getting younger all the time."

Five species of sea turtles inhabit Florida waters. Green, Hawksbill, Ridley, Leatherback and Loggerhead. All five species are protected under state and federal laws. Four of the species are listed as endangered, and the loggerhead is listed as threatened.

As a result of habitat destruction, pollution and other human activity, turtle populations are down in recent years.

The quest for additional energy sources does not halt conservation. Creation of energy resources and conservation go together. As the song lamented, "you can't have one without the other." Not any more.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) is taking advantage of our "do nothing" attitude. There is no practical reason for the price of OPEC oil to climb. Political. And greed. The cost of producing oil in the Middle East is the same today, basically, as it was ten years ago — merely pennies per barrel.

100 FIT EMT volunteers can't qualify

BY DICK CAMPBELL
[First in a series]

Members of the various emergency medical services in Martin County met with the county commission recently seeking a solution to the lack of Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) in the county's system.

They sought the appointment of a coordinator to recruit volunteers to serve.

At the same time, 100 students each year complete an EMT course at Florida Institute of Technology in Jensen Beach and cannot serve. They cannot serve, despite the fact that the EMT program at FIT is almost twice as comprehensive as that required by state law.

The students at FIT are not able to be EMTs and volunteer for service with ambulance corps because FIT cannot get the state of Florida to approve its program so that the students can take the state test to get licensed.

Several years ago, FIT found cooperation from Indian River Community College so that their students could take the license exam under IRCC auspices. One hundred per cent of the students passed the tests.

IRCC is the only authorized EMT training center in the four county area.

Since then, however, IRCC has not allowed the use of its program to permit FIT students to take the test.

According to Dr. Terry Miller, at that time the head of the EMT program at IRCC, the state refused to allow IRCC to use its authorization for EMT instruction to permit FIT students to take the state exam.

"We reviewed their (FIT) program. We felt the qualifications of the instructors and the number of hours were okay. We wanted to assist a sister institution. It was a good situation with excellent control," Miller said.

However, when the state found what IRCC was doing, the state EMS refused to allow it to continue as it might open the door to institutions that might abuse the privilege.

Efforts of James W. Woodberry, diving officer and head of the Department of Underwater Technology of FIT, to gain state approval of the Underwater EMT program have failed.

The program is approved by the Undersea Medical Society, Bethesda, Md. Woodberry serves on the UMS education committee.

The program is an expanded 80 hour course, in which the minimum grade must be a "B", and then 30 hours of additional training in diving and hyperbaric medicine is required.

The wheels of Florida bureaucracy move exceedingly slow.

Woodberry wrote David O. Westmark, MD, administrator of Florida Emergency Medical Services, Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, in Tallahassee on April 10, 1978, seeking state approval of the UEMT program to allow FIT students to take state exams and become licensed in the state.

Westmark replied on April 17, 1978, indicating, "From the information which you have presented and from the things which I have heard about your training program, I am very favorably impressed."

He went on to write that he had submitted the proposal to his staff "for consideration and recommendations," and indicated that he would submit results to the EMT ad hoc task force "after the State EMS advisory committee meeting on April 28, 1978."

Westmark copied his April letter to Dr. David MacMillan, chairman of the EMS advisory council in Martin County. On April 20 MacMillan sent a letter back to Westmark urging approval of the FIT program.

MacMillan wrote, "I would strongly encourage your department looking favorably upon the request of Mr. Woodberry. They (FIT) have a very active, vigorous program with highly dedicated students and a highly dedicated educational staff."

Woodberry said he received no communications, so he telephoned Tallahassee.

"They said we would hear in two months. That was four and a half months ago," Woodberry said. "Everyone gets the run around."

Every time I call up there the staff changes. I don't know who to call," Woodberry complained.

MacMillan, contacted by The Mirror, suggested calling Westmark, a personal friend, at Tallahassee for information on the status of the FIT application for approval of the program.

The Mirror call to Tallahassee revealed that Westmark was no longer the head of the EMS program of the state. The secretary suggested that a Frieda Travis, state coordinator be the person to talk to about the FIT matter. She also stated that Travis would return The Mirror call on Monday afternoon. There was no return of The Mirror call.

Tim Teasley, head of FIT-Jensen Beach, told The Mirror he thought "it is a political thing. I don't know why. Our program is a lot tougher than the regular EMT program, but the state keeps dragging its feet. I do know that our students (100 go through the program each year) would like to serve on the Samaritan Ambulance."

Shortage of EMTs might just be due to the system

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT—One of the requirements for becoming an Emergency Medical Technician is to complete a course in cardio pulmonary resuscitation. At the Jensen Samaritan headquarters, a rather sophisticated dummy is used for practice. The dummy has a gauge attacked to it to measure how hard a trainee is pushing on the chest and how much air is expelled into the lungs through mouth to mouth resuscitation. Shown practicing above are, from the left: Vivian Heaslip in foreground, Lynn Monsell looking on in background, Carole Rech, and Bob Heaslip. Mr and Mrs. Heaslip are both CPR instructors.

No new taxes in S-P

Sewall's Point residents can expect a hold on Real Estate taxes for the upcoming year and possibly, a slight reduction, according to Mayor Ed Gluckler.

The town Commissioners held their first budget workshop for the new fiscal year where they discussed future expenditures and began the process of determining the amount of funds they will receive from the state.

Presently, Sewall's Point has the lowest tax rate in the county at 1.87 mills and according to Gluckler, residents can expect next year's rate to be similar.

Gluckler commented on the fact that the town commissioners maintain a cautious attitude in their attempt to keep the lid on spending, and by taking such measures as not hiring extra personnel and eliminating unnecessary expenses, the end result is a low millage rate.

Underwater exhibition to be at FIT

An underwater technology exhibition will be held at Florida Institute of Technology's Jensen Beach campus Aug. 11 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Exhibits, demonstrations and competitive events will feature some of the latest commercial and sport diving techniques. Observers will also see the traditional U.S. Navy Mark V deep sea diving gear in operation. The Mark V gear is being phased out by the Navy after over 100 years of service.

Demonstrations will present a wide variety of diving techniques and equipment including surface supplied, mixed gas, lightweight diving gear and underwater video systems.

Tours of the Underwater Technology Department's sophisticated diving facilities will be scheduled throughout the day. Refreshments will be available. This event is sponsored by F.I.T.'s Underwater Technology Association.

PARTNERS—Dancing together are Sally Latham and Nick Midelis. Midelis sponsored a Sally Latham Fund day at the Hilltop Restaurant, attended by many well wishers who contributed over $2500 to the fund for the cancer-stricken writer. (More photos and story on pages 10 and 11.)

Nichols to act as administrator

Martin County Commissioners voted Tuesday morning to appoint Roger Nichols as acting county administrator until a replacement is found for outgoing administrator Jack Noble.

Nichols has been serving as assistant county administrator, and will apparently return to that post once a new administrator is found. On Thursday, the county's personnel committee will meet to interview applicants for Noble's job.

Noble's resignation becomes effective on Friday, Aug. 3, but he will continue to attend county commission meetings to help commissioners work on budget approvals for the coming fiscal year. The commissioners voted Tuesday to pay Noble on a per diem basis based on his salary as administrator for the days Noble continues to help out with budget matters. He is expected to work at least five days beyond his resignation date on the per diem basis.

Noble became county administrator in 1971, and when he announced his resignation in June, he commented, "I'm not mad at anybody. It's just that I thought it was time I should think about doing something else."

He said he is not sure what he'll do, but one of the first things he plans after he leaves county work is a vacation. Then, he and his wife will probably sell their house and buy an apartment or smaller home in Martin County, he said.

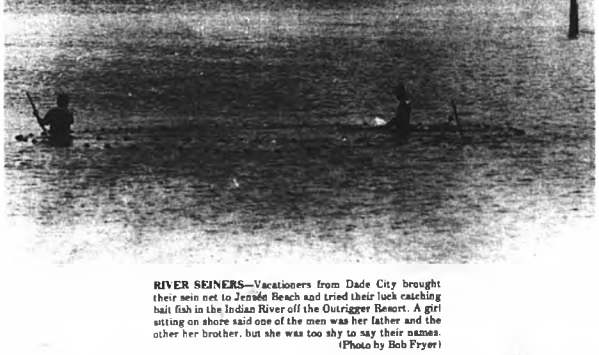
He has guided the county through a boom, recession and boom since coming to work here, and his tenure spans the terms of a variety of county commissioners. He was assistant administrator for the city of West Palm Beach and a writer for the Palm Beach Post before becoming county administrator.

Youth gets 20 years

Timothy Barnhill, 18, of Okeechobee, was sentenced to 20 years in prison last Friday for the attempted murder of a 16 year-old Jensen Beach girl.

Circuit Judge Dwight Geiger imposed the 20-year sentence on the youth, and also sentenced him to four years in prison and two years on probation for kidnapping the girl. The sentences are to be served concurrently.

Barnhill and another youth, George Calloway, 20, of Stuart, were arrested earlier this summer for allegedly abducting the girl and taking her to a wooded area southwest of Stuart, where lawmen say the men raped the girl, stabbed her several times, then left her.



RIVER SEINERS—Vacationers from Dade City brought their sein net to Jensen Beach and tried their luck catching bait fish in the Indian River off the Outrigger Resort. A girl sitting on shore said one of the men was her father and the other her brother, but she was too shy to say their names. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Perry cancelling Channel 11 news

Pioneering local origination of television news and information programs took a back seat to basic economics this week as Perry Cable cancelled the Channel 11 programming.

The Tuesday night show was the last in the program, begun a few years ago. Perry Cable officials cited lack of advertising support, financial losses and the "large amount of money required to expand the cable system itself into areas of new development."

Seven persons, including four full time and three part time in broadcast and studio were terminated.

Adrienne Moore and Sammy Yates ended several years of experimental local origination of television programming Tuesday night with their last news program.

Yates told The Mirror, "I really haven't had time to think about tomorrow. We are trying to end the show with all the professionalism we can. Then, we'll be out looking for a job."

The veteran radio-television man said he hoped he would be able to locate in the area, "as Stuart is a wonderful place, and I enjoy living here."

In the time Channel 11 has been in existence, there have been many programs of general interest aired to the public. Coverage of Stuart City Commission meetings and elections were informative as well as useful in keeping residents abreast of local events. Also produced were segments such as Pulse, Profile and Hot Seat, as well as specials like a sing-a-thon, where six thousand dollars was raised to support the Martin County High School chorus. Coverage of the programs extended north to Port St. Lucie and south to Hobe Sound.

Although local news will be discontinued, Perry Cable will still maintain its satellite programming network, which will provide a full slate of viewing options ranging from motion pictures to talk shows on a twenty-four hour basis and will be made available to viewers from Port St. Lucie to South Lake Park. To date, there have been offers made to Perry Cable to buy time to again get locally produced shows aired, but according to a company spokesman, those offers are still in the negotiating stage.

Witham is turtle's best friend - he'd love to eat them

BY BOB FRYER

Ross Witham likes to eat Green sea turtle.

That may not sound so unusual, because the turtle meat is said to be a real delicacy. However, it is an odd admission by a man who has devoted much of his life to saving the endangered species of turtles. In America, killing Green sea turtles is strictly forbidden.

Since 1955, Witham has championed the cause of the sea turtles, and over the years has become known not just locally, but internationally, as one of the foremost experts on them.

It all began when Witham, a native of Maine, was recovering from a back injury. He was walking along the beach near the House of Refuge museum in 1955 when he came upon a baby sea turtle which had become entangled in seaweed and was nearly drowned. Witham freed the turtle, and since that time has become a pioneer in the field of sea turtle research.

Witham's state Department of Natural Resources marine lab is located on the Jensen Beach causeway. It is there and on beaches up and down our coast that he does much of his sea turtle research work.

The local coast is one of the prime nesting areas for Loggerhead and Green sea turtles, and is also occasionally frequented by Leather back turtles.

Because they're so tasty and other nations allow the taking of them, the Green sea turtles are the most endangered of the three species. It is this variety of turtle that Witham concentrates most of his energies on.

For years now, he has been collecting turtle eggs and placing them in protected containers of sand until they hatch. He keeps the hatchlings in salt water pens until they're about a year old, then released them into the ocean. By doing so, Witham feels the turtles are allowed to grow to a large enough size that their chances of survival are improved. And, there is some evidence that he is right about this. It should be noted that he was the first to begin the now somewhat common practice of raising the hatchlings for a number of months before releasing them.

When Witham began his turtle research in 1958, little was known about sea turtles. There were few experts to consult and few places to go to obtain information on them. In fact, it wasn't even known at that time that Green turtles nested on local beaches.

He began by keeping the eggs of Loggerhead turtles in containers at the House of Refuge, and his first salt-water pen for the hatchlings consisted of a small pond he scooped out of the dirt and lined with plastic. He had to carry salt water from the nearby Indian River to the pen. Later, he and another man built concrete tanks for holding the hatchlings and got Jack Bonnert of Stuart to donate a pump and piping to supply a continuous flow of river water for the tanks.

When Witham's research began, not much was known of the movements of the turtles once they entered the ocean. The theory then was that the turtles would enter the water, then travel great distances to feeding grounds. One of Witham's major contributions to turtle research was to show this theory is inaccurate.

Though he has been releasing turtles since the early 1960s, it was not until the early 70s that he began specializing in Green sea turtles and tagging them before their release into the ocean. The results of the turtle rearing and tagging program have shown that the turtles are primarily carried by ocean currents, and his research has also shown that the turtles eat jelly fish and Portuguese man-o-war, both of which are found in all ocean currents. Thus the theory of turtles navigating to feeding grounds is now regarded as a false assumption.

Witham believes it takes about 15 years for a sea turtle to mature. If this is correct, it should be another six or seven years before the Green sea turtles he has tagged and released start nesting. He will be interested to see if they come back to the same beaches they were released from to nest. However, there seems to be some evidence that this is the case, as this area is one of the very few areas which had significant numbers of turtle hatchling releases in the 1960s. And, this area is one of the few areas where the number of turtle nestings over the last few years has been on the increase.

Witham has written many papers on his turtle research, and in the process of learning about turtles, has accumulated interdisciplinary degrees - a B.A. from the University of South Florida and a Masters from the University of Oklahoma. He has been asked to draft a portion of a plan that the federal government may institute to protect the sea turtles, and is off to Atlanta this week to attend a conference to work on that plan.

Witham is also to make two speeches on his turtle research this year to major conventions. A presentation of disruption of the rookery habitat of the turtles will be made by Witham at the World Conference on Sea Turtle Conservation in Washington, D.C. in November, and in December he is to address the annual meeting of the American Society of Zoologists in Tampa on "The lost year" of sea turtles.

The latter address will have to do with what happens to the young turtles between the time they enter the ocean and the time they're most commonly seen "when they're dinner-plate size," he says. That address will include data he has received on some of the tagged turtles he has released from local beaches. His other speech will include information on what the suspected effects of oil and other petroleum products are on turtles. He feels the effects are harmful and says there is increasing evidence that young turtles attempt to eat tar balls floating in the ocean and die as a consequence. He says the first step toward protecting the turtles from petroleum is to have people recognize that a problem exists, then to get the cooperation of oil firms to help solve it.

He admitted that it may be hard to prevent oil rig blow-outs like the recent one in Mexico or the tanker collision off Trinidad. But, Witham feels more safeguards can prevent some of the release of oil into the ocean. He says the oil from the tanker spill and blow-out will turn into tar balls that may float in the ocean currents for as long as a year, and he says it's getting to the point where tar balls can be found in most any part of the ocean. In May and June about two dozen baby turtles with tar in their mouths washed ashore from the Keys to Hobe Sound. All but two died.

Witham says the goal of the turtle researchers is to get the once plentiful population of Green sea turtles back to sizeable numbers so they can be removed from the Endangered Species list. If this is done, he says he could agree with a program for controlled harvesting of the Green sea turtles for human consumption. He said long ago he ate Green sea turtle meat and recalls that it was quite tasty. He'd like to eat some, again provided there are plenty of others still swimming in the ocean.

TURTLE EXPERT Ross Witham points to the Gulf Stream [illegible] responsible for the movements of sea [illegible] when he first began turtle research in 1956, it was [illegible] migrated long distances to feeding grounds, but his work has shown that food is abundant for turtles most everywhere in the ocean and that the turtles are carried by currents—not a desire for food. Indian River Point is best of both [illegible] offer all the advantages of single family homes, without the disadvantages of condominium living." In fact, Frederick Brockman describes the unique development concept utilized at Indian River Point, the first of the Jensen Beach cause [illegible]

The three models, on which all the homes are based, were designed and furnished by his wife, Ursula Loeb Brockman, and have been completed and sold.

Said De Santis, who is handling the marketing aspect of Indian River [illegible] for Brockman, "The finest quality people" his company has found. He stressed that "when they tell you something, they do it, and sooner then you expect."

Indian River Point homes cost roughly $47-$58 per square foot, including the land. De Santis compared this to Hutchinson Island condominiums, which run anywhere from $66-$150 per square foot. "Besides being less expensive," he says "you are getting more for your money."

While maintenance is a major factor to those who choose condominium living over private homes, Indian River Point offers a package to their buyers, whereby for $62 a month all maintenance will be taken care of. This plan, say the Brockmans, is designed for those who enjoy the privacy of owning their own home, but who don't want to have to worry about such things as lawnmowing.

De Santis considers the Indian River Point concept to include "the best of both worlds" at a viable price. The Brockmans hope to average one sale a week, considering that a realistic goal for the 50 unit complex.

As for the "typical" buyer in this complex, De Santis says that "these models attract every kind of person." The two bedroom, all on one floor model was planned with the retiree in mind. While the two bedroom, one den, single level residence caters to those who want to have room for guests. The two story, three bedroom home was specifically designed to handle the modern family.

De Santis states that they have not been overly restrictive, in order to keep the community as a cross section of age groups.

"The designs are fantastic," says De Santis "but you must have a good product to start with." The product at Indian River Point starts with those basics that lend itself to classic decorating – lofty ceilings, multi level step-downs, and window placement that reflects an openness to the environment.

Designed with an awareness of what modern buyers are looking for, Indian River Point homes are all of a frame construction, for ecological protection, and are heavily insulated to save energy. "For people who hardly spoke English six months ago," says De Santis, "they not only learned the language, but what people want."

The response that has been generated by these distinct homes with a slightly European flair, has been so immense that the Brockmans have had some difficulty just keeping up with the sales. "Traffic has been terrific," says De Santis. He noted that the models, which have been visited at a rate of one person an hour, remain open to dusk.

Another key feature that has separated Indian River Point from other area developments is the four to five thousand dollar furniture package which can be purchased with the home. Ursula Brockman, the sole decorator of the homes, has researched various showrooms to come up with an interior design which suits each individual's concept of "Florida living."

Still on the planning board are the docks, which will handle up to 45 foot boats and are expected to be completed by the end of the year. The purchase of dock use is optional, and would add an additional four to eight thousand dollars to the base price of the house.

The general concensus since the models of Indian River Point have opened was put quite concisely by De Santis, "it is just surprising that a development would put this kind of quality into their units at such a competitive price."

The Young Believers to sing

"We are the Young Believers!", cried fourteen teen age voices at a special July 29th Sunday service at the Morningside Evangelical Friends Church in Port St. Lucie.

The Young Believers are a group of high school age parishoners of Evangelical Friends Churches across the country. Auditions for the group were held at Camp Caeser in West Virginia earlier this year and produced seven boys and seven girls from Indiana; Oklahoma; Michigan; Ohio; and Ontario, Canada.

Port St. Lucie was their next to the last stop on a two and a half week southern tour which will culminate with their last performance in early August.

"We are like one big family," stoned various members of The Young Believers. "We spend so much time together that Christ binds us all as one." That feeling of togetherness began the first week of rehearsal, when they were required to practice some ten hours a day. While on tour, the rehearsal sessions were decreased to a half an hour a day.

"Our music director makes us gargle with salt water, take vitamins, and drink hot lemonade with honey," added Barry Spain. Actually, the group conceded that director, Connie Bancroft was the driving force that turned what was a band of strangers into an extended family.

This tour marks the third year for Bancroft as a member of the Friends Youth Board. In addition to her direction of The Young Believers, Bancroft is a music student working towards her masters degree at Kent State University.

Bancroft says that The Young Believers take part in a prayer service before each concert and conduct morning devotions as part of their life on tour.

"We are financed primarily by the love offerings collected at the various churches we sing at," explained Bancroft. These offerings, donated by parishoners across the country, help offset travelling and other expenses so that the group is able to make its annual summer tour.

Along with The Young Believers on their 1979 tour were: sound technician Dave Althouse, chaperones DeArle and Helen Brugger, and music director Bancroft.

Although The Young Believers are an essential part of the Friends Churches' summer ministries, they also sponsor: the King's Kids, the Southern youth Choir, an orchestra, a canoeing team, a backpacking team, a New Mexico Indian Ministry, a puppet team, a Mexico team, a Taiwan team, and other individual foreign mission opportunities.

Any youths under the age of 19 who are interested in belonging to the 1980 Young Believers or one of the other summer ministeries should contact Rev. Bruce Burch at 1201-30th St. NW, Canton, Ohio 44709. He can be reached by phone at 216—493-1660.

Say the Young Believers, "Jesus gives us the inspiration to sing. We only sing for His glory."

New Duplicate Bridge game

The Port Saint Lucie Duplicate Bridge Club will hold its inaugural game on Thursday, Aug. 15 at 12:30 p.m. at the PSL Community Center.

This is a fully franchised ACBL club and will be held weekly on Thursday afternoons. It will be directed by Kay Monroe, a certified ACBL director. The first game will be a "Grand National Pairs" tournament open to ACBL members only. A non-members section will play at the same time and is open to all players. Come join us!

and friends

A helluva party

It was one hell of a party and I concluded long before Prince Charming whisked me off at the witching hour than Nick Medalis and I share the most marvelous collection of friends south of the North Pole.

I never in my life expected so many people to show up at Thursday's bash at the Hilltop House, hosted by Nick, to raise money for the Sally Latham Fund.

And raise money he did, about $2,500 I understand, with the help of Nick's sister Connie, my longtime friend, his niece Marina, and so very many others who devoted talent, time, energy and donations. I would modestly call it the best party of the year; thanks to folks like Lenny Laden and his wife Hilde who not only rounded up non-stop entertainment from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., but themselves performed non-stop.

Re-hashing a party is almost as much fun as a party itself, and in the afterglow of the occasion I learned that Lenny, a wonderful man, was literally rendered speechless by the occasion. During the party, and after setting the stage for it, Lenny acted as emcee, auctioneer, singer, dancer, comedian, you name it. Then he was rushing about, organizing the next act, while either dear boss Dick Campbell or Dave Woodcock took a stint at the microphone. Lenny awoke the next morning, Hilde tells me, with a nasty case of laryngitis, but then, thank goodness for friends, was available for some re-bashing himself on Sunday.

By mid-day in the mid-glow of friends greeting friends the heckling began. The auction was going great when Dick Campbell was offered to perform. I'm proud to say that Dick's renditions of "Ace in The Hole" and "Little Nell" were unforgettable. Then, former boss, Marvin DeBolt, publisher of The News Tribune, and co-with Dick, trustees of the Sally Latham Fund, got into the spirit and the act and placed a similar bet that Mirror advertising manager Peg Meissner wouldn't carry a tune. Marvin cheerfully lost. The Sally Latham Fund won. It was that kind of day. Beautiful.

It is nice feeling, beautiful. And of course my friend Marg Paris once again decided Sally should be elegant for the occasion and the concoction of peach chiffon she came up with prompted the envious remark, "What a way to go."

Marg herself took the stage at one point during the festivities and accepted a bet — or a dare if you wish — to dance and raise money for the Sally Latham fund. Let me assure you Marg is a game girl.

Meanwhile, Nick, the absolute host with the ultimate most, adjourned to the Hilltop kitchen to make sure friends imbibing on my behalf wouldn't go hungry. He came up with delicious homemade Italian sausages, crab cakes, Quiche Lorraine mini-Reubin sandwichés and proliferous amounts of goodies encapsuled in puff pastry. About this time, I overheard the remark of a Fort Lauderdale visitor: "Whoever can put on a party like this, I'll invite them to come down and do one for me."

I greeted friends and reminisced. I am happy. Throughout my life my favorite book, later translated into my favorite musical, has been the tale of "archy and mehitabel" written some time ago by a fellow journalist Don Marquis.

Let me explain this passion or obsession or whatever (shared by my closest friends) with the explanation of what Don Marquis is all about, what Mehitabel the cat is all about and what I am all about and have been for years and years:

"Marquis turned it on and off the way an orchestra plays first hot, then sweet.

"At bottom Don Marquis was a poet, and his life followed the precarious pattern of a poet's existence. He danced on bitter nights with Boreas, he ground out copy on drowsy afternoons when he felt no urge to write.

"I think the new generation of newspaper readers is missing a lot that we used to have, and I am deeply sensible of what it meant to be a young man (sic.) when Archy (Mehitabel the cat's dearest friend, a humble cockroach who drove himself silly dancing on the keys of a typewriter to help his friend) was discussing the Almost Perfect State in the daily paper.

"Marquis was by temperament a city dweller, and both his little friends were of the city: the cockroach, most common of city bugs; the cat, most indigenous of city mammals. Both, too, were tavern habitues, as was their boss. Here were perfect transmigrations of an American soul, this dissolute feline who was a dancer and always the lady, toujours gai and this troubled insect who was a poet — both seeing expression, both vainly trying to reconcile art and life, both finding that one gets in the way of the other. Their employer, in one of his more sober moods, put the whole matter in a couple of lines:

'My heart has followed all my days something I cannot name.'

Such is the lot of poets. Such was Marquis' lot." I have always liked Marquis, but I like his friend Mehitabel the Cat better.

Toujours gai, as the lady said.

Beating the system

The Mirror editor called the Emergency Medical Services Division of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services in Tallahassee. He asked for information concerning the application of Florida Institute of Technology for certification of their Underwater Emergency Medical Technician program so that the 100 or more students going through the program each year would be able to gain experience by serving with the local volunteer ambulance program.

The secretary in the EMS office told the editor that Frieda Travis, coordinator of EMS, would call back that same afternoon. The call was placed Monday morning.

Neither Travis nor the secretary called back on Monday or Tuesday.

This should make it clear that the problem with getting and keeping volunteer EMT personnel lies not in the volunteers not volunteering, but in the system that operates the volunteer program.

Imagine. Over 100 trained underwater emergency medical technicians each year not able to get certified because the program of FIT is not certified by the state.

The FIT students not only take the EMT course as specified by the state. They also take an additional 30 hours of training that is more technical than is required so that they can also perform under water.

The responsiveness of the state to The Mirror is the same as the responsiveness of the state to FIT. State EMS officials told FIT an answer to the application would be given within two months. That was four and a half months ago, according to Jim Woodberry, head of the program at the local college.

It is not that there should be any problem with certification.

A few years ago, FIT students were invited to take the state certification test through Indian River Community College, the only certified EMT training facility in Martin, St. Lucie, Okeechobee and Indian River Counties.

One hundred percent of the students passed the test.

Dr. Terry Miller, then head of the training for the IRCC EMT program, said that the FIT program was a good program, with the proper training needed. However, the state refused to allow IRCC to help out FIT, and the students were no longer able to take the certification test, and thus were unable to serve the county and get the valuable experience the service would provide.

The county, with a crying need for EMTs on the volunteer ambulances, lost also, for the young men could not serve, despite being fully qualified.

FIT is still not certified, even though Dr. David Westmark, then administrator of the EMS program in Tallahassee, wrote in April, 1978, "I am very favorably impressed" with the FIT training program adding, "and for your apparent commitment to excellence in your program."

FIT is still not certified even though Dr. David Anderson, head of the Martin County EMS program, wrote to Westmark urging the certification of the FIT-EMT program, pointing to the "very active, vigorous program with highly dedicated students and a highly dedicated educational staff."

The Martin County EMS is seeking a paid coordinator to pull together the emergency services in the county, and to actively recruit EMTs for volunteer services.

We have been told, time and time again that "you can't beat the system." We do not believe that.

The Mirror will vigorously pusue the certification of the excellent program of Florida Institute of Technology-Jensen Beach. We will appeal to our state senators and representatives, and to the governor, to allow well-trained volunteers to serve their communities.

We cannot allow the bureaucrats of Tallahassee to pigeonhole the certification of FIT while the county emergency services cry for volunteer help.

(In reference to Commercial Street planning)

A tour of world cities confined to after work hours would reveal that a balanced range of housing is the key variable in creating a twenty-four hour active, secure downtown.

Downtowns that are virtually office/store ghettos become ghost towns after dark, making waste of enormous resources as they stand idle. Neighborhood residents create a critical mass, a feeling of both security and interest which, in turn, attracts those out for a night stroll; hours are extended to some facilities and the housing environment itself is enhanced.

We need a good comprehensive long range plan for Jensen Beach. It should include downtown housing, along Commercial Street. It should include transportation planning — we need bike paths and pedestrian walkways throughout the community NOW.

Dear Fadina, don't worry

Fadina Price received some mail and wrote. At the advanced age of 90 years I am not capable of analysing this adequately. How much of it is true."

Dear Fadina
Don't worry.

The material you sent was distributed by the Florida Conservative Union, a group of people who want sincerely to make people aware of national issues.

Unfortunately such efforts must lean to the extreme. I guess that the Florida Conservative Union would be able to frighten too much money out of people if they didn't use cartoons of the USSR and President Carter as the wolf and Little Red Riding Hood.

They couldn't get support saying the SALT treaty might not be good. They get support by saying the U.S. Senate literally could allow the United States to be destroyed by the Soviet Union, with most of the works underlined.

Wanting to run that advertisement that shows the horrors of being destroyed, with all the frightening gobble-de-gook and scare tactics that makes the memory of Senator Joe McCarthy seem sainted, the FCU needs $40,000. Did you get that far in their letter? They are asking for donations so they can run that ad.

Oh yes, at the bottom of the ad is a coupon, headed "STOP SALT", and the coupon asks you to write your two senators and make a donation to the Florida Conservative Union.

I am no expert on SALT, but I am an expert on ultra right and left wing tactics that go to amazing lengths to stretch the truth, even distorting the truth, to make a point.

I do know that if we let our system work, it does. The president and the Congress will debate, and expert witnesses will be called, and eventually, SALT Two will pass in one form or another.

The treaty is worth about as much as the paper it is printed on, and is certainly not worth all the paper that has been used by newspapers to explain the actions and reactions of our leaders.

The day the U.S. and the USSR decide it isn't useful any more, one or the other will break the treaty, and you know the reputation of the Soviets for breaking treaties, and of the U.S. for the same.

No, Fadina, it is a tempest in a teapot.

No piece of paper is going to stop a nuclear holocaust. It is people who will stop one. It is people who want peace and who do not give in to the extremes of either left or right, hawk or dove.

The Panama treaty would make Panama a communist state, according to those who oppose it, even though it is a dictatorship now. It may if the dictator is thrown out, but not because of the Panama Canal.

Do not think that this is a statement in favor of SALT. It is a statement for moderation. People who go to extremes, using oversimplification and bending the truth to make a point, play.

It is a complicated world out there, and there is enough room for everyone. It is unfortunate that the ones who yell the loudest and are the most offensive get the greatest share of publicity for their projects.

We have had our share of it right here in Jensen Beach. Those opposed to making downtown one-way screamed that it would kill the business district. Those opposed to incorporation said it would bring crooks into community government. Those opposed to any growth say that approval of any condominium makes this another Fort Lauderdale.

Extremes

Fadina, you probably remember the many projects we worked on together when you were an active director of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce fifteen years ago. We faced the same extremes in those sessions, too.

Moderation prevailed, and we have a nice town that has grown properly. We've had our problems, but so has every other town that is growing up in Florida.

So, don't worry. Just take all such extreme mail and put it where it belongs — in the trash.

Sixties shook the world

I don't often watch television, but I did last week and saw a special called "Echoes of the Sixties."

It was a decade that shook the world and we're still feeling its repercussions. It began quietly enough, but by its end the nation, indeed, the world, was in turmoil.

It was a decade of wild idealism among the young and one frightening to older generations as they saw institutions long cherished come under heavy attack. College presidents had their offices occupied by hippies and war protestors filled the streets of Washington, denouncing the "my country right or wrong" brand of patriotism that had gone unquestioned for so long.

The family, marriage, and the church came in for hard times, as did our Presidents and congressmen. You name it, and if it was a basic American value, it was challenged in the sixties.

The Kennedys were killed, and Martin Luther King, and thousands of young Americans in Vietnam, and the deaths of them all shook our nation to its foundations.

Civil rights were granted by law and, though we're still far from racial equality today, great progress was made in the 60s toward that end. However, the price paid for that progress was heavy in some small Southern towns and in some large Northern ghettos. School desegregation and busing became burning issues, literally.

Marijuana and LSD became household words, and though pot was practically unheard of when I graduated from Titusville High School in 1965, when I taught World Literature there four years later, I had kids tripping on acid in my class. In the short time I'd been away from THS, the kids had won the right to wear most anything they wanted. When I had graduated, skirts or dresses were required for the girls.

The social and political changes that happened in the 60s were ones few people in the 50s could have dreamed would ever happen, much less in the next decade. The Great American Dream became a fitful nightmare for some.

Though there are many who say with a strong degree of accuracy, I'm afraid, that the music of the 60s had a detrimental effect on our nation, it must also be said that some very fine music was made. Rock came of age, and instead of being a tolerated fad, it muscled its way into a powerful force that in some cases had more effect on our lives than Presidents and legislators had.

Beatle-mania struck, and as I went from 13 to 23 in the 60s, I was among millions of youths who strongly felt their influence. They and Bob Dylan and some others took music beyond its function as entertainment and turned it into a forum for political, social comment. In terms of creativity, the music of the sixties far outshines that of the disco-pablum music of the seventies, so far as I'm concerned.

The fifties had its draft card burners, bra burners, church burners and ghetto burners. Some even burned records when John Lennon said the Beatles had more influence in the world than Jesus Christ. In the end, there were a lot of burnt-out people, and once we got over the convulsions of Vietnam and Watergate in the early 70s, the nation seemed to pause and reflect on all the rapid changes and began to settle into a little more stable way of life. Much of the creativity and idealism of the 60s got lost in the shuffle, and the rebels of the seventies don't seem to have the causes — or the following — that they had in the sixties. With the exception of Women's lib, the seventies seem void of social causes. Even being an environmentalist has passed beyond the fad stage. You rarely hear passionate discourses anymore on the need to preserve a healthy way of life, in harmony with nature.

Maybe the sixties brought on the apathy of the seventies. So many social and racial and political and cultural barriers were broken in the 60s that today, most any lifestyle is tolerated. We have more freedoms, and those who grew up in the wake of the changes of the 60s take for granted many things that were taboo for the generation before them.

I don't know if we're ready for another decade as tumultuous as the sixties anytime soon, but it would be nice if some of that decade's finer contributions could be revitalized in the eighties.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor:

The two prime and conflicting philosophies regarding what should govern a legislator's congressional performance seem to be (a) that it should reflect the will of the electorate and (b) that it should reflect the legislator's own judgment of what is best for the electorate and/or the country. The dilemma of deciding which of the two should prevail has confronted both legislators and electorate since our country's birth.

I think our U.S. Representative for the 10th District, Skip Bafalis, has chosen the path of least resistance and for the most part acted according to the will of big business and ultra-conservative interests.

America is in the midst of complex and troublesome times. While Bafalis spearheads a perhaps popular, but nonetheless destined for failure, anti-busing campaign, he fails again and again to take a rational and forward-looking approach to the country's gravest problems. For example, the higher windfall tax on oil profits, while perhaps not good for the oil companies, was good for the nation and might have contributed to more rapidly realized energy independence. Bafalis voted against it.

Despite his apparent advantages in a 1980 re-election campaign, I believe defeating Bafalis could be a cinch. He is an ultra-conservative in a district where most voters are moderates. He is a Republican; I believe the majority of 10th District voters are Democrats. His legislative voting record over the past six years has received unfavorable ratings from all but the most conservative citizen groups. There are many, many, senior citizens on fixed incomes, middle income taxpayers, teachers, environmentalists, and others who are fed up with Representative Bafalis. They, and I, would welcome a contender for the 10th District seat who is less biased and more progressive; perhaps someone patterned along the lines of Palm Beach County's recently retired Rep. Paul Rogers, who was highly regarded by everyone and every group with the possible exception of the John Birch Society, the Ku Klux Klan, and their kindred.

The 10th District is immense, encompassing all of 11 Florida counties and portions of four more. The logistics involved in waging a campaign to wrest this seat from a frank-privileged incombent could be complicated, but are certainly no excuse for letting him run unopposed, as was the case last election. Obviously, however, that campaign cannot begin too soon. Local party headquarters need to hear from every voter who agrees "it's time for a change." Voters should begin asking immediately that their party produce a qualified candidate to run against Bafalis in 1980, and should not hesitate to recommend themselves or others who seem to fill the bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Mary & Tom Tomlinson

To the editor:

This is in response to Bob Fryer's editorial regarding Bike Paths and Beach Land for Jensen Beach.

The U.S. Dept. of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, in a meeting I attended yesterday announced they have unappropriated funds in excess of $1 billion for the remainder of FY1979 for Transportation Improvement Projects. Pedestrian and bicycle facilities are eligible for Federal-aid highway funding. Some of the specific items which are eligible for funding include: preliminary engineering, utility relocation, right-of-way costs, landscaping, traffic and pedestrian control devices, fixed lighting sources, pedestrian shelters, information signing, bicycle storage facilities, comfort stations, curb cuts, barriers, grading, drainage, pavement and structures.

We need bicycle routes and pedestrian walkways in Jensen Beach. We need mass transit in Jensen Beach. We need transportation planning in Jensen Beach. This is NOT a job for civic organizations — this is a job for our elected officials—our county commissioners. The Federal funds ARE available to have first-rate transportation in Jensen Beach — we need first rate political leaders to get the job done. I am sending information to Frank Wacha today. I urge the citizens of Jensen Beach to make sure he does his job.

There are also state and federal programs available for help in the purchasing of sensitive lands. There are non-profit organizations that purchase land to remain in a natural state. For example Hobe Sound Wildlife Refuge was purchased by the Nature Conservancy. The Nature Conservancy is now in the process of purchasing 14 acres in Martin County. For more information the address of the Nature Conservancy is 1800 North Kent Street, Arlington, Virginia 22209.

There's one thing the Mirror can do to help—run free ads for Ride Sharing. If someone goes to the store—share the ride — put an ad in the paper. Double-up on those errand trips. Carpool to work. The Mirror could be the key to getting this program underway.

Sincerely,
Jacqueline

BROKERS AS INVESTMENT CATALYSTS

QUESTION:

If the investment broker is working for and paid by the seller, why should I use a broker? Why not find a seller myself? Seems to me that if I do, the seller won't have to pay a broker and can give me the difference!

ANSWER:

What some fail to realize is that real estate investment brokers create an orderly market. The broker is the catalyst that brings the parties together in eventual mutual agreement.

Remember that the broker, and those he or she associates with, works full time tracking down and evaluating real estate investments. You would have to leave your job to produce the field work necessary to match the full time efforts of the broker.

Short of such an effort on your part, you are likely to expose yourself to only a small fraction of the investments available at any one time.

In addition, your broker can give you invaluable assistance in gathering market data regarding sales prices, rents, expense ratios, and other information that can help you plan your investment strategy. your broker can also assist in packaging the financing necessary to consummate the transaction.

In summary, if you should find an investment without the assistance of an investment broker you will probably have purchased from a very narrow selection, will have done all of the legwork, and will not have had the advantage of the broker's expertise. Finally, when you try to buy for a lesser price, the seller will shrug and say, "Who d'ya mean, I'm the one who gets to save!"

In short, you'll probably end up paying the same market value price whether or not you use a broker. You may as well take advantage of all of these extra services. In the long run they don't cost—they pay!

First Fed is stalled by Starke

Playing softball like they had never played it before, First Federal of Martin County's junior softball team, from Jensen Beach, fought their way back from an opening game defeat, only to lose to defending champion Starke in the final of the 1979 Florida 16-18 year-old championship tournament in Satellite Beach last weekend.

Still, the second place finish for Frank Hughes's Federalites, along with the trophy that goes with it, represents the best effort ever made by a junior sports team from Jensen Beach, and the FFMC players now they will return to haunt Starke next year.

In fact, both the opening game, 7-6 loss and the final game, 7-3 setback were penned on the locaters by the two-time state titlists, who now head for the National Championships in St. Louis, Mo., where they finished tenth a year ago.

Mental errors, along with an inability to hit with authority, cost Federal a chance to play Starke a third time, for the championship. FFMC dropped a 7-3 decision in the final. It allowed Starke to march through the seven team field undefeated, as they beat Randall's Nursery (Fort Walton Beach), First Federal, the Satellite Rockets and First Federal.

In the first four games, though, First Federal played like state champions. In their opener with Starke, Malcolm Delaney took advantage of a short left field fence, smashing two home runs in his first two at bats, giving his team a 4-0 lead.

A throwing error by the stop, Darryl Delaney, triggered a five run comeback by the champions in the fourth frame, as Starke led, 5-4 into the fifth.

First Federal scored twice to regain the lead in that inning, as David Boechino's single to right center with two runners on base eluded the grasp of Starke's Hershel Johnson, allowing FFMC to take a 6-5 edge into the sixth frame.

It was then that Johnson made up for his defensive miscue, lofting a sacrifice fly ball to left field that scored Marcus Cruse and tied the game, 6-6. In the seventh inning, after two men were out, clean up batter Jeff Norman broke the deadlock with a towering blast over the left field fence.

First Federal couldn't score in the bottom half of the inning, and they were relegated to the loser's bracket, usually an unfriendly place for early round victims.

But the Federalites fought back admirably, blasting Coral Springs virtually out of the park in their next outing, 18-1.

Saturday night, FFMC had to face Coca Cola, a team that had not looked particularly strong in the early rounds. Still, they had lost to the powerful Satellite Rockets just 4-3, and Hughes warned his players of the importance of the late game. If Federal won, they could rest until a possible triple-header on Sunday for the championship.

Nevertheless, Federal began the game in a lackluster fashion. Cocoa scored twice in the top of the second inning and still clung to its precious lead in the fourth inning, when FFMC finally erupted.

Malcolm Delaney and John Pederson opened with singles, and, after one out, Billy Rinaldi singled, scoring Delaney. Two more runs scored on Gregg Sprauer's two run triple, and Sprauer added a fourth tally on the following play, a bobble at shortstop by Cocoa's Mark Powers.

The lead held up, and after a solid year of looking back at what had been a disasterous 1978 state tourney performance, First Federal's dream was finally materializing. Only Satellite, a loser to Starke in the winner's bracket final, stood between FFMC and a rematch with Starke.

All weekend, particularly after losing the first game to Starke, all the FFMC players wanted was another crack at the state champions.

"We've got to play them again" was the general comment uttered time after time by team members as Federal got closer and closer to the final game.

Starke was still at their hotel (both First Federal and Starke stayed at the same one, only adding to the rivalry) when the Jensenites exploded in the second inning against the home Rockets, scoring ten runs before a single out was made. Triples by henry Harriel, the most devastating Federal batter in the tourney, and Frank Knott, along with eight (that's right) singles, gave the locaters a 10-0 lead, silencing the partial home crowd with an attack never before witnessed at such a high level of competition.

Fittingly, the inning ended in as strange a manner as it continued during a half-hour duration. Sprauer lifted a fly ball to right field, which was caught for the first out. Meanwhile, Knott got caught up between first and second base, and was then tagged out for the second out. At the same time, Darryl Delaney, in his haste to first return to second, then scamper to third when Satellite tried to tag Knott, lofted to tag up at second after the fly ball. He was called out when Satellite appealed to the umpire, triggering a triple play!

Despite the temporary setback, Federal continued its dominance. A Pat Ellis triple helped Satellite to a four run third inning, but it was all they could score, while Federal added six more markers in their 18-4 victory.

FFMC had achieved their ambition — well, sort of. They faced the prospect of having to beat Starke not once, but twice in a row, although playing Starke was what they had wished for after losing early Saturday.

Federal opened the final with three straight hits, and the first two batters, Harriel and David Boechino scored to make it 2-0.

But after that, only Nick Barker's second inning single marred a no hit defensive effort by Starke, until the sixth frame. Three singles and an outfield error in the fourth had given Starke the lead, 3-2, but when Harriel led off the FFMC sixth with a triple to right field, the Bankers had renewed hopes.

He scored on Malcolm Delaney's half-swing, half-bunt single down the third base line, tying the game, 3-3. But Federal's offense again went dead, and Starke won the game with four tallies in their half of the sixth inning, 7-3.

Hughes commended his team afterwards, saying "that they all played wonderfully up here," but confirmed that the games with Starke were lost due to Starke's experience in pressure situations and First Federal's inexperience, namely the mental mistakes.

"Henry (Harriel) swung a good bat the whole weekend," he said, "but I thought Darryl Delaney did a super job at shortstop. As much as he's been shuffled in and out due to the addition of Ernest McIntyre, then his sudden departure when he became ineligible), and he still came up with this kind of performance in the tournament. He did a great job."

Perhaps the entire weekend could be summed up by Hughes' feeling Monday night.

"We've got a good thing going, but I think we can go a lot farther."

Perhaps Starke should be warned in advance.

THE DAY'S PRIZE—Jim Hooper stands, holding his day's catch, an 11-pound snook. He caught the fish in the surf at Jensen Beach while using cut rock shrimp.

TWO BIG CATCHES—Greg Zoratti enjoyed a banner day while fishing last week, hauling in not one, but two good sized fish. He stands holding one trout, and one snook. The trout measured 8 pounds, 4 ounces, while the snook came in at 10 pounds, 4 ounces.

Cole comes closest

Tom Cole had the distinction of being closest to the hole on both the eighth and 15th holes Tuesday as the Northport Men's Golf Association had its regular weekly meeting.

Cole also won flight D with a net score of 50.

In flight A, Jim Vanderhyde was first with a 56; Charles Stallings had a 57. Larry Lothian won flight B with a 57; Ken Goodwin had a 61. Jim Merrick took flight C with a 56; Ed Yorke had a 57.

In flight D, won by Cole, Ernie Riefler had a 53 for second place.

Yacht Club to hold picnic

The Port St. Lucie yacht Club will hold an "old fashioned picnic" on Saturday, Aug. 18 at the Northport marina.

It is a "bring your own picnic dinner basket, table service and your own bottle" party. Charcoal fires will be available if member wishes to cook his own hamburgers or hot dogs. Cake, coffee, watermelon, setups and ice will be provided. Tickets may be purchased from committee chairmen and committe members.

Festivities start at 3 p.m. and will include games and dancing. There will be no table reservations. Call Gen & Joe Cornwell, 878-0134 committee chairmen for committee members nearest you.

Breakers Hotel course baffles summer league

On a special invitation from Ron Martin, clubhouse manager for the swank Breakers Hotel, Mimi Lamont unveiled a lot of surprises for 48 players of the distinguished group that has been playing courses on the Treasure Coast this summer under a new format. It was a first for all but a few players and the unusually high scores caused some to say that they were hypnotized by the grandeur of Florida's most glamorous and exclusive layout.

Individual scores, rather than team play, governed play and the comparatively short course (6,000 yards) yielded only eight birdies for the entire field. In the Mens Division, Elmer Hoffman and Charlie Brown, both from Sandpiper Bay, tied for low gross (81) and Elmer won the blue ribbon by matching cards. Etta DeStefano from Y&CCS had little competition as she carded 84 for low gross honors in the Ladies Division.

Bill Redlen of Martin County G.C. played one of his best games to win low net (67). Ken Simmons of Sandpiper followed with 69. Third and fourth places were taken by Ed Gaudette and Don Estes of Sandpiper with scores of 70 and 71.

Jane Hoffman won low net in the Ladies Division (72). H. Downing from JUM was second with net 73, M. Shelthouse, also from JDM, scored net 74. Jane Grant from Y & C C S followed with net 77 and Linda Mood (Sandpiper) completed the winners list with net 78.

PSL Women Golf Scores

The Port St. Lucie Women's Golf Association played at the Sinners Course, Sandpiper Bay on July 25th for "Total of Fives or Better."

The winners are: A Flight, tied for first place, Dorothy Denton and Marge West. B Flight, Helen Conklin. C Flight, tied for first place, Anne Bozarth and Marion Rombach. D Flight, Adele Klerk.

Potluck dinner was a success

Seventy-five attended the Ocean Breeze potluck dinner on July 20. As usual only about half had signed up but there was plenty of delicious food for all. Newcomers to the park were introduced — Ray and Josephine Iler and their granddaughter, Miss Young, who sang a delightful folk song and accompanied herself on the guitar.

C. W. and Margaret Donnell are in Ohio and happily picking their own beans, cherries, and raspberries.

Bertha Edris, wife of Henry Edris, passed away on July 19. Services were held in Bluffton, Indiana on July 25.

Rausy Matthews, in Kent City, Michigan, was pleasantly surprised on July 9 when the Canfields and the Routebushes came and spent the day with her.

Myrt Huntington in Bridgeport, Conn., will be glad to get back to Ocean Breeze.

Art and Sue Bygd in Boyceville, Wis., are enjoying lettuce, peas, radishes, and turnips from their own garden.

Bernice and Harry Covell, in Michigan, wonder if it was in the Mirror that they read of the death of their neighbor, Mame Snoddy. Yes, Mame died up north about two months ago.

Ed Dorsan died Monday, July 25 in Michigan. His genial disposition will be sorely missed.

WE GET LETTERS:

From Ruby Wren to Therese Wittnebert, Averil, and June: "Arrived safely in Detroit — but tired out. Hugh and Mary Ellen were waiting with smiling faces to greet me. I thought I'd relax on the plane but that Delta line keeps serving food, soft drinks, tea, coffee, etc. all the way — consequently, so much eating — no sleeping. I bet I gained three pounds on the trip.

Resting today and tomorrow I get my hair done for the "Lion's Special Evening" — that's a biggie. However I'm not nervous about it as I entertained them last year and they must have liked it or they wouldn't have asked me back.

Tonight I had two big surprises: One was—I had a call and long distance talk with Beth Baillie. She has been doing a lot of gadding around too, so we swapped yarn telling our experiences. It was fun. The second was a long talk with daughter Cathy and family in Toronto.

I go to Grand Rapids on the 26th to visit my daughter Ruby and family, then on to upper Michigan where the Worthy Grand Matron and the Grand family are putting on the work and as she uses my "Kindness" song as opening and closing of all her visitations and my daughter is taking me to see and hear it.

Then in July I'm going to visit my daughter Cathy and family in Toronto. Actually I'm beginning to get After Toronto, I'm going to northern Ontario, Timmins, Ont., that's all gold mining country but I don't expect to bring back any samples.

Hugh, Mary Ellen, and family are all fine. Say "Hi" to all my Ocean Breeze friends for me and loads of love to all of them with a double portion for the Wittnebeths—my dear friends — whenever and wherever I need them — they're always there. So "Toodaloo" for now. Ruby.

WE GET MORE LETTERS:

Ruth and Gene Hoke share their letters with us:

From Merl and Ernie Hauth of Warsaw, Ind. — Dear Ruth, Gene, and Crew: Just to let you know we are back in Warsaw. We had good traveling weather and not too much traffic. Everything was okay at home. All made the end of our winter at O.B. more perfect. This was our first full winter at O.B. We were anxious to get home but would you believe we are already talking about our return to Little Bit Lane! Thank you and everyone for a winter that has made us much richer in friends. Sincerely, Merl and Ernie Hauth.

From Cecelia and Gladys Hurley of Montreal, Canada — "We are back in Canada. We enjoyed our first year at Ocean Breeze Park and are looking forward to going back in the fall. We hope you have a nice summer and we will see you in the fall.

From Nora Stage — Dear Ruth and Gene: Enclosed is the death notice of Mrs. Holtzmann. She and Mr. Holtzman spent many winters in O.B. Park. They came down last winter due to poor health. She passed away in her sleep. That was her wish and she also wanted to die before her husband. So we are glad it happened this way. Mr. Holtzman will be 85 in October. His health is guarded and the loss of his wife will be hard on him. He has two lovely daughters that will do all they can for him. I thought you would like to know about former residents. I have known them for about twenty years.

This is canning season here. We have picked strawberries and cherries. Tomorrow we pick raspberries. Hope you are having a good summer.

From Kate Weyant of the Yellow House next to the Pinkie: Dear Ruth and Gene: Our stay in Ocean Breeze was delightful. Everyone is so friendly and happy. I made many new and delightful friends and I'm looking forward to coming back next year, to start where I left off. I do miss all of you.

I'm about 60 miles from the nuclear plant. I sure hope they have it under control now. I've started back at the hospital doing volunteer work. I'll keep real busy, then Christmas will come that much faster. Then I can pack up and come back to Ocean Breeze. Thanks for a wonderful winter. See you New Year's.

From Charlie and Edna Moss, Sutton, N.H., We are here in beautiful New Hampshire. We can still see snow in shaded areas by the roadside. Fruit trees and flowers are blooming and golf goes on. We stopped off in New York and then on to Massachusetts to visit the kids and the kid's kids in Attleboro and Canton, then to Edna's eye doctor in Boston on our way here. Thanks for the many enjoyable weeks in Ocean Breeze, and we will see you in November.

From Jack and Edith Dodge: "We just returned from a Maine-Florida residents get-together at Bucksport, Maine. About 400 there for the lobster bake, etc. The Crosses from Broad Street were there.

THE NEWS HAS FINALLY COME —John Ross, our park mailman, is finally a grandfather. John's daughter, is the new mother of Norman Howard Saley, born Tuesday, July 24.

FEC siding switch on track

After months of delay, steps are once again being taken to get the Florida East Coast railway siding in Jensen Beach switched from the east to the west side of the main track.

For about nine months now, the proposal to switch the location of the siding has remained in limbo. Martin County officials and FEC officials waited on each other to take the next step toward getting the job done. As a result of recent Mirror stories about the proposed siding switch, county and FEC officials have now apparently gotten their wires uncrossed about who is to do what next.

Following negotiations between county and FEC officials last year, both parties agreed that an appraisal would be needed to determine the value of FEC right-of-way land that the county is proposing to obtain as part of the package to switch the siding. However, County Commission Chairman Frank Wachs said recently that he was under the impression FEC was to inform the county as to who the railway firm would accept as a person to make the land appraisal. However, FEC spokesman T. J. Algard said last week that railway officials were unaware they were to suggest an appraiser and that they were waiting for the county to have the appraisal done.

During the last week, Wachs and Algard finally got together. Algard said he wasn't aware until he spoke with Wachs that the county was waiting for FEC to suggest the name of an appraiser. He said that FEC has now recommended several names and that it is now up to the county to hire one of the persons suggested and to have the appraisal made. Then, when a figure is available, negotiations will proceed as to what land the county will obtain and how much money will be paid.

Currently, the FEC siding runs parallel to the main track beginning at a point about a block north of Commercial Street and extending northward for several hundred feet. The proposal is to have the siding start and end at about the same points, but on the west side of the tracks. This would make it more accessible to Porter Lumber Company, Bandy Steel and other industrial businesses, and a portion of the new siding would be for public use.

Currently, FEC owns right-of-way along the siding that extends eastward in a line that at times completely engulfs Palmetto Avenue. Should FEC want to, the firm could prevent access to and from the Jensen Beach Fire Department, the Jensen Beach Bank Drive-in teller stations, and the Jensen Beach Post Office, and could block off Palmetto Avenue. FEC and county officials are quick to say this is highly unlikely, and county officials say that since the county has maintained the road for years, it is for all practical purposes a county road. But, the matter of right-of-way is one county officials would like to clear up when the siding switch is made.

Algard said that once FEC receives an appraisal of the land, the firm will then decide whether to accept or reject the appraisal. He said it may still be "quite some time" before the location of the siding is actually changed.

Catherine and Hank Higgins are away visiting family and friends. We'll miss their itinerary when they return. Hank is missed on his daily bicycle rides through the park.

Edith & Dick Painter have returned. On their way home from Rhode Island they stopped over in Pennsylvania to see Helen and Bill Pyott. Helen really would have liked to have become a stowaway and come back with them. The Pyotts send greetings to all.

Not much news happening in the park with so many gone. But Eddie Koepka, son of Kay and Howard, is here from Paris Island, N.C. He is in the Marine Corps there.

Happy Birthday to Max Dickey on August 2, and Lee Price also on that date.

A phone call from Pat and Larry Belt told of their busy summer. Their cottages and houses are full for all of July and August, so they are very busy. They were sad because of the death of their Susie (poodle), who was 15 years old.

News from Jean and Gil Van Willigen was they were starting on a trip, first to Peoria to pick up Jean's mother and taking her to Albuquerque, to another daughter. Then on to Colorado Springs to spend some time with their daughter and her family.

News from Vita Autenreith is that her arm is still in a cast and will be for several more weeks.

Betty and Al Jones are visiting Al's brother, Pete, and his family in Melbourne.

Irma tells of her tour

Peg Ray coaxed Irma St Louis to tell us about her European tour. She & Gordon picked up their car in Rotterdam then drove through Belgium, France, the Rhone Valley to Marseilles, then on to the casino in Monaco and the Riviera. Florence was next, then Pisa, Rome, Pompeii, Brindise. Next Corfu, Patas, Olympia, Athens, North Greece and Yugoslavia. Up the coast and back into Italy to the northern lake region. Switzerland to Germany, north to Emden, to ship the car to Wilmington, Del. They had a wonderful trip but wouldn't advise anyone to ship their car that far.

Jerry & Ginny Belmore arrived in H.Out on Friday to tell us that they had a wonderful trip visiting their daughter in Massachusetts and the McKeevers and Hills in Connecticut, then the Hooks in Ohio. They were gone nine weeks and are very happy to be back in H.Out.

Mrs. T. Gouleris from New Hampshire passed away after a long illness. They lived on Lot 42, but spent very little time here. We send our condolences to the family.

Catty & Les Ullmann are being entertained by Roy & Bert Lamon in Massachusetts and are having a great time.

Beryle & Cecil Roy enjoyed 2½ days at Ojahawa, Provincial Park in Canada with the Taylors. They have been in Canada for five weeks. Fishing has been good.

Earle Palmer flew home from the hospital and would like to hear from all his friends. Address — Box 265, Oquossoo, Maine 04964.

A real old fashioned picnic was held on Saturday on the Jensen Beach Causeway. The fried chicken was donated by the Trinity United Methodist Church of Jensen Beach. Over 75 persons attended. All brought a covered dish or dessert. The table was fully laden. There were games for the children and a guest magician gave an hour show for the children and adults. The guests from H.Out were Jack & Lil McConnell, Frank & Mil Piax, Ruth & Wes Arbo, Peg & Al Ray, Joel & Lila Marie, and son Joel Earl Nava & Ruth Bowes.

Al & Peg Ray enjoyed "The Owl and the Pussy Cat" at Burt Reynolds Theatre Thursday.

Bea Lupha has been having trouble with her back since she returned to Michigan. Hope she gets well soon so they can come back to H.Out in October.

Al & Peg Ray started out Monday for a two week vacation, first stop Disney World.

Anniversaries Congratulations — Pat & Dean Bennett, Mildred & Chuck Armock 8-7, Doris & Perry Berry, Beryle 9 Cecil Roy 8-8.

Happy Birthday Wishes — Chrissy Stratford 8-3, Nancy Lontz, George Doerffel, Richard Scarpulla 8-4, Trish Hare 8-5, "Vince" Patrick Stratford Sr. 8-6, Marie Vallery, Ella Hutchison 8-7, Pat Bennett 8-8.

Ginny and Vince Stratford are having a fine time on their vacation trip. Along with 5,039 other motor home owners from every state in the U.S. and Canadian members, they attended the annual Flamingo Travel Club convention in Guelph, Ontario. Ginny and Vince walked two and a half miles in the big parade which started at 6 p.m. and did not end until 9:00. Even with the rousing music of Highland bands to stimulate the march they wound up with very sore feet but it was fun to participate anyway.

They stayed in Niagara Falls for a few days and while there treated themselves to lunch in the revolving dining room in the Skylon Tower overlooking the Falls. They were at the Falls at the time of the big flap over the possibility of a gigantic rock slide on the American side of the Falls. This had been predicted by a psychic but scientists were convinced it would not occur and they were proved right although many slides have occured recently blocking the flow of the Falls somewhat.

For five days they parked their Winnie on the shore of Lake Ontario in a Provincial Park between Toronto and the Thousand Islands. Electric facilities were furnished but there were no water hook ups so when the tanks were empty they had to move the bus to a faucet to refill them. A bit of a bother but it was such a delightful spot they did not mind. It was a perfect place to relax and catch up on reading and writing letters home.

When they got back to the United States they will head for Freehold, N.J. to visit with their son, Patrick, his wife Stephanie and the children again before heading for Florida sometime in early September.

It is good to hear that Marguerite Steiler is doing well after her recent surgery and plans to join the "beach bunch" this week.

Catches improve in fishing week

The fishing along the river and ocean improved dramatically last week, as evidenced by the increased number of catches reported.

Two weeks ago, a fish could scarcely be spotted, and almost no catches of any significance were recorded. But this week, catches were made by the dozens.

J. E. Hopkins reported catching seven trout, up to five pounds, in the Indian River. Using Zara Spook. Ed Wagner and Charles Arvel, mean while had another banner week, collecting 42 trout in four trips out, along with a flounder and a snook, caught by Bob Hemberger, which was released.

Tony Battaglia got a 6-pound, 6-ounce bass and a snook while fishing in the C-24 Canal in Port St. Lucie, using a broken back mirrolure. Ray and Bill Dutzel caught 18 trout in the Indian River using shrimp, while Bob Mulawa got 15 whiting in the surf at Jensen Beach using rock shrimp.

Other catches included three snook registered by Fred Moller, while fishing in the North Fork of the St. Lucie River. He was using blue rebel. Ron and Clarence Karshner grabbed eight snapper, fishing in the Indian River and using shrimp, while the Joe Monty garnered three pompano and eight sand perch in the surf using shrimp.

Jack Prell got a three pound trout in the river using trout touts; Bill Hilsdale grabbed 13 whiting in the surf using rock shrimp; Charlie Kessler and John Crawford got 39 snapper and two snook, fishing in the Indian River using shrimp; and Edith recht hauled in seven croaker and a whiting in the surf at Jensen Beach, using shrimp.

Tom Deodato gathered in eight trout, in the river, using a mirrorlure, while Sam Moore got 11 trout in the river using trout touts.

John Matzos got a snook in the Indian River using a plug. Matt Grier got a nine pound snook in the river using pinfish, and Howard Lockhart caught a 15½ pound barracuda, a quite unusual catch, in the surf using spoon. Jim Gale grabbed a bonita in the ocean, using spoon, and Tom Hargrove collected 16 croaker in the surf using stone crab.

Hal Kelsey grabbed three trout, weighing 16, 10, and seven pounds, respectively, in the river, using mirrolure.

Gene Zoretti got an eight pound, four ounce trout, while he also gathered in a ten pound, four-ounce snook, fishing in the river using mirrolure.

Wacha calls conference on Savanna-Commercial job

Martin County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha has scheduled a press conference at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce office at 2 p.m. next Monday to discuss improvements planned for the intersection of Savanna Road and Commercial Street.

The county commission has already awarded the contract for improvements to the intersection, but so far little visible progress has been made toward those improvements. Some electricity and telephone poles have been moved back to make way for widening the intersection, but no road work has been done yet. Wacha said the press conference will be held to discuss the timing of the work to be done and the inconveniences to motorists the work will cause. Chamber officials have complained at recent meetings that the lack of progress on the intersection work means the work will likely be taking place during the busy winter season. During last winter, the intersection was often clogged with cars.

The county commission awarded the contract on April 3 to Dickerson, Inc. after that firm submitted a bid of $314,000 to do the work. The job calls for resurfacing of Savanna Road from Silver Maple Road through the intersection to a point just north of the Jensen Beach Plaza shopping center. Also portions of Commercial Street are to be resurfaced on the east and west side of the intersection and on all four approaches to the intersection are to get much needed turning lanes. The contract calls for completion of the job within 180 working days and it was to have been signed about two weeks after the bid was awarded on April 3.

There are still "low cost" countries to visit, places where the basic cost of living is substantially below the norm. The traveler can, in fact, enjoy really comfortable accommodations at substantially less cost per day than in the more popular "tourist destination" centers. Getting away from the "center of things" will save any traveler money in any country, of course. How to do this? An economical, yet fun, vacation, must be carefully and expertly planned. A travel expert is the person to consult.

There are many helpful hints to be learned from the agents at JENSEN BEACH TRAVEL SERVICE 1990 N.E. Commercial Street and SALERNO VILLAGE TRAVEL 5571 S. Federal Highway...In these days of spiraling costs and fluctuating foreign exchange rates, it is more important than ever to deal with us to get the most from your travel dollars. Crepe Suzette, Jubilee

More than 700 persons turned out for the Mirror Cooking Show recently at the Port St. Lucie Community Center to see representatives from three area restaurants cook up some tasty food.

During the show, Mirror Editor Hedged we'd be publishing the recipes of the dishes prepared, and this week we're proud to bring you the Crepe Suzette and Cherries Jubilee recipes of Yvon Claustre, assistant food and beverage manager of Sandpiper Bay Resort. Recipes from Thomas Lum of The Outrigger and Nick Midelis will be published in future editions of The Mirror.

CREPE SUZETTE

Servings for: 4 people (3 Crepes per person)

Pancake batter for 4 people.

½ lb. flour — 1 quart of water
4 egg yolks — pinch of salt

To make crepes:

Blend the four above ingredients.

Note: Crepes should be as THIN as possible.

Next, grate one orange peel and one lemon peel, and mix together.

In a sauce pan, pour 3 tsp. of granulated sugar and heat until carmelized to a light brown color.

Pour the orange/lemon mixture into the carmel and stir.

Immediately, pour 3 oz. of butter into the sauce pan and rapidly stir.

Add the juice of 2 oranges and ½ lemon. Stir mixture evenly.

Soak each crepe thoroughly and then fold into quarters.

When all the crepes are folded (in pan), sprinkle sugar on each crepe, and turn. Again, sprinkle sugar evenly and turn one last time.

As the mixture is simmering, pour in 2 oz. of Grand Marnier and 2 oz. of brandy. Then flambe, by stirring the pan until all the alcohol is burnt.

Ready to serve.

CHERRIES JUBILEE

Servings for: four people

Heat: In a sauce pan

1 can (8 oz.) pitted Bing cherries in their juices. Bring to a boil.

Dilute: 1 tsp. of corn starch in a small amount of water.

Blend the diluted corn starch with the cherries.

Add ¼ tsp. of cinnamon powder; sprinkle 3 tsp. of granulated sugar.

Stir and bring to a boil. After the mixture has come to a boil, add 2 oz. of kirshwasser and 1 oz. of brandy. Then Flambe. Sprinkle 1 tsp. full of sugar while flambing.

The complete mixture is served on a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

Fort Pierce mall is up for review next week

The Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council is expected to review an application on Thursday, Aug. 9, for a huge shopping mall proposed for west Fort Pierce.

The Council meets at the Martin County Administrative Center at 50 Kindred Avenue in Stuart at 9:30 a.m.

Mel Sembler Associates of St. Petersburg is proposing the shopping facility, to be known as Fort Pierce Mall. It is to be located on Okeechobee Road (SR 70) at the west end of Virginia Avenue, and is to contain 580,005 square feet of shopping space, including four large department stores. Phase one of the mall is projected to contain three of the department stores and a total of 195,185 square feet of space for smaller stores in the mall. That phase is projected for completion in the Spring of 1981. A second phase, to contain a 100,000 square foot department store, is slated for completion in 1984. The completion date for phase III, 72,000 square feet of office space, is projected for around 1989. It is expected to provide 1,480 permanent jobs.

The Treasure Coast council staff has reviewed the plans and will have a list of recommendations to make concerning the mall when it comes up.

HEALTH VIEWS BY DR. R. H. GRANT

SCIATICA

The hot pain of sciatica is sometimes almost unbearable and the victim suffers agonies. Sciatic pain is sharp and tearing, often shooting down the thigh, leg, foot and to the toes. Patients suffering this terrible pain never know when it will subside or when it will get worse.

Sciatica is a painful inflammation of the sciatic nerve. It supplies the tissues of the thigh, lower leg and foot, and is usually caused by the irritation of one or more spinal nerve roots between the vertebrae of the low back. This is a frequent cause of sciatica, although there may be other causes. Sometimes a herniated or "Slipped disc" at the level where nerve roots emerge in the low back may press upon the nerves.

As with any ailment, the sooner it is treated the better. Rarely do misaligned spinal vertebrae correct themselves. Through training, skill, and experience your Doctor of Chiropractic will locate the underlying cause of the problem, and make recommendations necessary for correction.

As with so many other diseases you can rely upon your Doctor of Chiropractic for advanced specialized treatment of structural problems.

EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

PARTY—Starr Sass and Peggy Meissner enjoyed the Sally Latham Fund party with Jim Dove.

ENDEARMENT—The Hilltop's Nick Midelis welcomes Sally Latham to her party as she is assisted by Marg Paris and David Woodcock. Midelis and Latham are friends of many years.

AUCTION—Connie Gerard, Jan Hecht, Lenny and Heidi Laden and Nick Midelis joined together to auction a print by Jim Hutchinson at the Sally Latham benefit party.

GALLOPING GRANNIES—Relaxing before their show are these Galloping Grannies, performing at the Hilltop for Sally Latham's benefit.

DONOR—Well known artist Beanie Backus came to the party as one of the major donors to the Sally Latham Fund. Left to right are Peg Meissner, Backus, Nick Midelis and Marina Gerard.

HERE HE IS—Well known entertainer Nick Marinelli was presented by Lenny Laden to an appreciative audience. At rear is accompanist Snooky Brown.

HARMONY—Lenny Laden holds the microphone for one group of the Galloping Grannies as they entertained at the Sally Latham Fund benefit at Hilltop House Restaurant.

A GOOD PARTY—Nick Midelis felt the party was a good one as he and his niece Marina Gerard watched the entertainment.

SALUTE—Toasting the party for Sally Latham were Doris Sheridan and Marg Paris. Proceeds at the bar were donated to the Latham fund.

THERE—Lois Sherrard laughs as she returned from taking a turn at the piano entertaining at the Sally Latham Fund benefit last week.

CLOGGERS—A rousing dance team kept hands clapping as the Martin County Cloggers went through their paces. Directed by Sally Rhodes, the team included Wanda Harper, Kerri Larson, Janna Rastrelli, Michael Larson and Tony Grillo.

SALLY IS HERE—The popular writer, Sally Latham, was welcomed to her party and introduced to the audience that packed the Hilltop Restaurant from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. last week. Lenny Laden, right was master of ceremonies, and Marg Paris was one of the organizers of the party.

GREAT—Nick Midelis enjoyed a laugh with Marshall Cobb and Marg Paris at the Sally Latham benefit party last week.

Community responds for Sally Latham

It was a party to end all parties. It was fun and entertaining. The people responded with love and donations for Sally Latham, editor emeritus of The Mirror, who is fighting dread cancer.

The twelve hour bash at Nick Midelis's Hilltop House in Ft. Pierce drew hundreds of people who came to celebrate. All bar proceeds were donated by Midelis to the Sally Latham Fund. Area entertainers came to donate their talent.

Businessmen and women cleared tables, and the general manager and American chef of Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant operated the kitchen at the Hilltop to free Midelis for entertaining chores.

Area entrepeneur Lenny Laden organized the entertainment, and was master of ceremonies the entire day, losing his voice in the process. By closing time, Laden barely croaked his introductions and auctions of the many gifts donated by merchants in the three county area.

$1,200 in donations were placed in the several champagne buckets strategically located throughout the restaurant. The bar receipts totalled $1,500.

The Sally Latham Fund was established recently by Marvin DeBolt, publisher of the Ft. Pierce News-Tribune, and Dick Campbell, editor of The Mirror. It is located in the Jensen Beach Bank. Before the party, over $2,000 had been collected to defray Sally Latham's medical expenses.

Latham found she had cancer in April. Then, she was the city editor of The Mirror, and had worked many years as lifestyle editor of the News-Tribune. Since that time it has been a series of operations and treatments. Her strength ebbed, and now she is barely able to write a column each week.

Her mind remains bright, and she was able to attend the party, making two appearances to thank her many friends.

"I can't tell you how much all this means to me," she told well-wishers. Just seeing all of you, and knowing you care is a highlight of my life."

DeBolt was impressed with the party and the funds it raised.

"There are so many people who love Sally. She was a leading force for good, and was extremely popular in Ft. Pierce when she was a part of the News-Tribune," DeBolt said.

Campbell also spoke of the hard work and dedication that brought Latham to an "enviable position of outstanding writer and columnist for The Mirror during her three years at the newspaper."

He added, "Her following is legion, and her human approach to her writings added much to the newspapers's stature."

The party started at 11 a.m., continuing through the day and evening, ending at 11 p.m. It was 1:30 a.m. before the organizers were able to finish counting donations and cleaning up the Hilltop.

Persons desiring to donate to the fund can send checks to The Sally Latham Fund, Jensen Beach Bank, Jensen Beach, Florida 33457.

THANK YOU—Lenny Laden holds the microphone and David Woodcock watches as Sally Latham offered her emotional thanks for the efforts of her many friends in the Hilltop Restaurant fund-raising party last week.

CHECKING—Doing a bit of checking, and much donating to the Sally Latham Fund was News-Tribune Publisher Marvin DeBolt, who is also co-director of the fund with Mirror Editor Dick Campbell. At left is Nick Midelis.

DONATION—Another donation to the Sally Latham Fund is placed in a nearly full champagne bucket by Nick Midelis and Heidi Laden.

TALKING—Talking over the progress of the Sally Latham Fund drive at the hilltop Restaurant are Yoda Zieminski and David Wookcock. Woodcock was one of the masters-of-ceremonies.

BETCHA—Just don't bet Marg Paris that she won't do anything especially when the money from the bet goes to the Sally Latham Fund. Marg took the bet and did a dance that was a revealing testimony to her dancability.

WATCHING—Nana Bergman, seated, and Beanie Backus watched the entertainment

HAWKER—Talented Lenny Laden ended the day of master of ceremonies-auctioneer-organizer-entertainer by losing his voice. Here he auctions a flower arrangement at the Sally Latham Fund benefit.

DRINK UP—With the proceeds of all bar sales going to the Sally Latham Fund, Hilltop Restaurant host Nick Midelis and guest Beanie Backus showed the way by principle, urging others to "drink up."

PIANIST—Snooky Brown was one of the featured performance donating talent at the Sally Latham Fund benefit.

No need to fight over bridge anytime soon

Though the construction of a bridge in south St. Lucie County from the mainland to Hutchinson Island may some day cause a division of opinion among Indian River Drive Freeholders, it's not likely to be a matter they'll be fighting over anytime soon.

When Freeholder president Robert Mayer addressed the membership last week, he commented that a new bridge is an issue "that may tear us apart because people down here [on the south end of the drive] want it up at White City [on Midway Road] and the people on the north end of the drive want it down here [on Walton Road]."

But when state Representative Chuck Nergard spoke to the group, he told them he didn't foresee construction of a new bridge for a long time. he said a new bridge would probably cost about $20 million, and he said the state already has a backlog of about $65 million in needed bridge work, such as replacing bridges in the Florida Keys and replacing the Roosevelt Bridge in Stuart. The traffic volume here at this time doesn't justify the need for a bridge as badly as the other bridge work is needed, he said, and added that the only way to get the bridge to the island built soon would be to make it a toll bridge and to have the county agree to pay the costs if the tolls don't meet expenses. he said this is very unlikely.

The cost of road construction has tripled in the last decade," he said, and pointed out that the eight cent per gallon state tax on gasoline hasn't increased in years. This means there is no corresponding rise in revenue for road work to match the soaring construction costs.

Nergard said he believes Governor Bob Graham's tax revision committee will propose at a special legislative session in November that a four cents state sales tax be assessed per gallon to create more funds for road construction. But Nergard said in light of public comment he has received and in light of the defeat of a one-cent gas tax proposition in Martin County recently, he will oppose the four cent sales tax on gas. "The price of gas is too high already, and this could be the straw to break the consumer's back," he said.

Nergard did say he expects a referendum will be held next March on a proposal to increase homestead exemptions from $5,000 to $25,000, with a tax break also to be given to long term renters and to mobile home dwellers who have their permanent residence in the state.

Nergard said he expects contracts for three remaining links of I 95 in St. Lucie County will be awarded in the fall. He said the state must act fast and have no significant opposition to Gov. Graham's proposed I 95 route through Martin County if the superhighway is to be finished before federal funds for interstate roads run out. He said due to the refinancing of the Florida Turnpike, he feels the road will remain a toll road at least until the year 2005.

When discussion of the need for an evacuation plan for residents of the drive came up, Nergard said one ought to be drafted soon, and said he didn't understand why a proposal to have an alarm system for drive residence, to warn of an accident at the nuclear power plant, wasn't approved by county officials.

Freeholders plan to find a spokesman on evacuation plans for an upcoming meeting of the association.

Zinter returns from Far East seminar and Paul G. Zinter recently ed from a three week tour of , Taiwan, Hong Kong, Macau, pore and Bangkok, in which they ented the Realtors National eting Institute, an educational branch of the National Association of Realtors.

Lois, vice-president, and Paul, president, of Welcome Center Real Estate, Inc. of Port St. Lucie, attended marketing seminars and visited real estate sites as part of a comparative analysis of the Far Eastern and American markets.

Although Zinter had seen Japan during World War II, he has noticed a drastic change on this tour towards "Americanization." He commented, "it's like stepping into another world." Luckily for visiting Americans, that "other world" offers many of the comforts of home, in the form of McDonald's and Pizza Huts.

"The cost of living is outrageous," according to Zinter. Even though the average Japanese office or factory worker earns $6 an hour, the price of a cup of coffee is $1.60 and a "quarter pounder" costs $3.60.

Zinter noted that Japanese women are rarely seen in the traditional kimono anymore. As Japan is second only to Paris for fashions, Japanese women are almost always well groomed, in the three-quarter length dresses now in vogue in the Western world.

As a real estate agent, Zinter was especially surprised to discover the relatively small size of Japanese homes. One of the largest homes the Zinters were to stay in the approximately 800 square feet, and consisted only of a kitchen and a space that served as living room, dining room, and at night, the bedroom. Zinter says it is not uncommon for three families to share one such residence.

The Zinters found that the Japanese are very receptive to Americans. Many children who studied English in school were inclined to approach the foreigners in order to test their ability to communicate in English. Zinter learned that one of the Japanese's biggest heroes is actually General Douglas MacArthur, as they feel he is responsible for the common people being given the freedom to own land.

Since he will be starting a program on local vandalism next month, Zinter was quick to note that Japan has no such problem in that area. "Everything is precious there," he explained. "If someone left a big wooden crate out for garbage, you can be sure that it would soon be converted into a house."

Considering the comparative poverty and overcrowding of much of the Japanese population, Zinter was astounded to find that they are such a happy people. "Japan is in excess of 125 million people, and they occupy a portion of the country which is 10 percent the size of California; yet they are very happy. They have a totally different value system than we do," he says.

Things which assume great importance in Japan are the extended family and ancestral ties. A first born son has the understood responsibility of caring for his parents as long as they live.

Another aspect of the Orient which strongly influences the Japanese culture is that of religion. Zinter found the Japanese to be a "highly religious people." He saw families with barely enough to eat themselves leave food offerings to their gods at Buddhist shrines and temples of worship.

"If a baby were to fall into the canal, no one would be permitted to pull the child out," Zinter explained that the Japanese people believe that it must be God's will that the baby drown.

Although automobiles are available in Japan, they can not be purchased until the buyer shows proof that he will have a space in which to park it. Zinter says it is not uncommon to see a family of four riding at once on a motorbike. The main form of transportation however, is the "bullet train." These air-conditioned vehicles travel at a rate of 135 mph and cost four cents to ride. Zinter calls this "the only inexpensive thing in Japan."

Besides having a very low crime rate, Zinter found Japan to be very clean, due to the stiff fines imposed on litterers. The fines range from $15 for throwing a cigarette butt on the ground, to $500 for the illegal dumping of mass quantities of waste.

Unemployment, he says, is virtually non-existent. "The Japanese have a system by which you either work, or you don't eat." Zinter mentioned that the only ones who receive any compensation from the government are the elderly.

Japan has a mandatory birth control regulation which allows two children per family. The parents of a third child are highly taxed for their new addition and understand that he will probably not be able to attend school.

All children in public schools are required to wear uniforms, so that the different social classes are indistinguishable. In addition to the formal education, which is so highly valued in Japan, two years of military service is automatically owed to and collected by the state.

In regards to development, the Zinters learned that Japan has its own form of "sunshine legislation," which requires builders to construct residences that receive direct sunlight for at least six hours of the day. This is done to offset the use of electricity, which is too expensive for the average Japanese worker to afford.

Of his three week tour, Zinter says "it has been difficult to try to digest all the information we received in such a short period of time. But the differences were remarkable."

In typically patriotic fashion, Zinter concluded "I appreciate the customs and manners of the people over there, but seeing their means of survival makes me appreciate America more."

LIONS CLUB EAST—Paul Zinter attended a Lions Club meeting while on his tour of the Far East. Zinter reports that Japan has the largest enrollment in the Lions Club of any other country in the world.

WHEN IN TOKYO—Paul and Lois Zinter pose with Tasyku Matsuo and his wife, with whom they stayed for a time. Lois Zinter is wearing the Japanese woman's wedding dress, which is flaming red, to symbolize happiness.

Kiwanis to open PSL chapter

Port St Lucie may soon have its own chapter of Kiwanis International if the necessary twenty signatures can be obtained on the petition for charter.

Representatives of the Kiwanis Club of Ft Pierce are sponsoring the new Port St Lucie chapter which will conduct its first organizational meeting Thursday at noon at the Continental Restaurant located in the Port St Lucie Shopping Plaza. Officers will be elected at this time.

A temporary committee consisting of chairman Phil Thibedeau treasurer, Rick Carreno and recording secretary, Mike Pearson were appointed at their July 26th pre-organizational meeting to solicit use the club until permanent officers are chosen.

Ed Bedell, Lt Governor of the Ft Pierce Kiwanis Club commented that Port St Lucie displayed a better turnout than usual for the beginning of a new club. He noted "usually takes two to three months to organize but PSL only began in mid-June."

Kiwanis is basically a service oriented club of professional business men. They will accept members 18 and over, who are of sound character and maintain a good community reputation. There are no residential requirements. However prospective members must be familiar with the needs of the community they are serving.

Unlike other international service organizations, Kiwanis members concentrate their efforts into programs that benefit youth. In addition to sponsoring Boy and Girl Scout troops and Little League teams, they began a "Right Start" program last year to prepare area teenagers for the business world. On the high school level, Kiwanis is the "sister club" to the Key Club, a service club which accepts young men and women. Circle K is Kiwanis sponsored college level service club. Kiwanis sponsors such acts on the same grass roots as the Key Club but on a greater scale.

A committee consisting of two members Bob Evans, Bill Rodenstein and Hugh has been appointed to draw up a list of potential officers. These nominations will be presented at tomorrow's meeting, which will be attended by the regional representative of the Orangewood Kiwanis International.

Those men who are interested in joining the Port St Lucie chapter of Kiwanis may contact Steven Leslie, president of the Ft Pierce club or Chairman Thibedeau. A list of applicants will be collected at the meeting.

Michael Rauschen completes ROTC bid

Cadet Rauschen, son of Mr and Mrs Willy J Rauschen, 1437 Westhaven Circle, Port St Lucie, recently completed six weeks of training in fundamental military skills at the Army ROTC basic camp at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

The basic camp is designed to give junior college graduates and college sophomores who have not taken ROTC courses the chance to enter the program. The camp also qualifies high school graduates for the ROTC program at any one of the nation's six military junior colleges.

During the encampment, cadets received training in basic rifle marksmanship, military drill and ceremonies, communications and individual and small unit tactics.

The cadet is a student at Florida Institute of Technology, Jensen Beach.

Scott Kilgore completes ROTC bid

Cadet Scott L. Kilgore, son of Mrs Marilyn Kilgore, 1756 Floresta Drive, Port St Lucie, recently completed six weeks of training in fundamental skills at the Army ROTC basic camp at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

The basic camp is designed to give junior college graduates and college sophomores who have not taken ROTC courses the chance to enter the program. The camp also qualifies high school graduates for the ROTC program at any one of the nation's six military junior colleges.

A 1977 graduate of John Carroll High School, Fort Pierce, Kilgore is a student at Florida Southern College, Lakeland.

Bocchino comes to pitch no-hitter

BY DONNIE WILKIE

When First Federal's junior softball team finished second in the state 16-18 softball tournament in Satellite Beach last weekend, most people expected Monday night's Jensen Beach Civic League playoff game with Headquarters to be anti-climactic, perhaps even a huge let-down for th kids, who suddenly became known as state champion Starke's biggest threat.

But pitcher David Bocchino, who could have easily been labeled as Federal's "most valuable player" in Satellite Beach, proved that the Civic League can be as exciting as a tournament, as he "came home" to pitch a no-hitter, the first in Civic League history, pacing FFMC to an easy, 20-0 rout of Headquarters.

Three errors and two walks prevented Bocchino from hurling a perfect game, an almost unheard of feat in slo-pitch softball. In fact, any no-hit, no-run game in slo-pitch is unheard of, and Bocchino agreed.

"This is the first no-hitter I've ever heard of in slo-pitch," he said after the game.

The ironic thing about the game was that the 17-year-old Bocchino did not even know he had a no-hitter going until there were two outs in the seventh and final inning. His teammates made a concerted effort to keep that fact a secret, despite the fact that both FFMC's team scorebook and The Mirror's book showed the game's truth.

Finally, Chris Crook, an outfielder on the team, could not contain himself any longer. After the second out in the seventh, a fly ball behind shortstop which was fielded by the retreating Pop Delaney, Crook came trotting in from right center field, and he told Bocchino about the no-hitter.

"Chris wanted to tell me before that," explained Bocchino, who is a resident of Jensen Beach, like most of the team. "He started to say something a couple innings earlier, but then he said 'never mind.' Then I heard you (Mirror Sports Editor Donnie Wilkie) say 'keep it quiet' in the dugout, but I thought it was about the shutout."

Just think," he reflected, "they (his teammates) didn't tell me. They didn't even crack a smile."

If there was a play that saved the no-hitter, it was a diving catch by shortstop Delaney in the fifth frame that did it. Shortstop Brady Parker lifted a fly ball into shallow left field, which the outfielder couldn't reach. Delaney made what appeared to be a futile effort to track the ball down, but suddenly, as it descended, he dove and caught it, a remarkable play in any game, especially a no-hit game.

"That was a very good catch," said a thankful Bocchino. "He was playing a close infield, and had to run a long way to get it. It looked like a football catch from where I was standing."

The game's final out, fittingly enough, was made when Mike Reid hit sharply back at the mound. The high bounder almost eluded the glove of Bocchino, but he gathered it in and threw to first baseman Gregg Sprauer in plenty of time to nail Reid and end the game.

But there was a hairy moment. Immediately after Crook told Bocchino of the no-hitter, with two outs in the inning, Steve Zelenski hit a crisp ground ball at Delancy. The ball hopped over his glove, but both scorers, the Mirror's Wilkie and the Bankers' Lois Lopilato, immediately ruled the play an error, and every one of the Banker defensemen agreed, as did almost all of the crowd.

"Then that last ball came back here (the mound)," said Bocchino, 'and I thought 'Come back here, ball,' but I jumped up and got it."

"I pitched baseball for ten years," he added, "and I never got a no-hitter (he once pitched a one-hitter), then I pitch softball for two years and I suddenly pitch a no-hitter. I don't understand it, but it's great."

"They gave me the game ball and everyone signed it," he said. "Gregg held onto it after the last out, and then Chris signed it, and he passed it around and everyone started signing it."

The first batter of the game, John Smith, reached on an error by third baseman Malcolm Delancy, and Sprauer committed a miscue in the second inning. After that, only Eric Botka's two walks and Pop Delancy's error broke Bocchino's perfection.

"I walked the same guy twice," said Bocchino. "I just couldn't seem to pitch to him."

Henry Harriel's home run led off the game, and Federal never looked back. Frank Knott reached on an error in the second inning, and scored on Doug Hughes' single to make it 2-0, but the rest of the damage was done in the third and fourth frames, when the Bankers scored nine runs in each inning.

Bocchino certainly didn't limit his excellence to the mound, as he swung a mighty bat, as well. He doubled once and added three singles, in a four-for-five performance.

Harriel was the hero at the plate, though, as he tripled, doubled and homered twice, collecting five runs batted in and scoring four times. Knott also had four hits, all singles. Sprauer and Hughes added three hits apiece to the 24-hit FFMC blitz.

Sailfish population is high

The sailfish population in Florida waters is at a healthy level, according to a cooperative study performed by the Florida Department of Natural Resources, the Marine Fisheries Service, the Game Fish Research Association Inc. and the West Palm Beach Fishing Club.

The data was collected between October 1977 and April 1978 from 13 sailfish tournaments. More than 900 anglers caught 1,759 sailfish. Of the sailfish caught, 80 per cent were released, and half of these were tagged.

The catch-per-unit-effort (CPUE) is one of the highest in the Western North Atlantic. The CPUE, measured in sailfish caught per boat trip, ranged from 0.11 to 4.58, with the average CPUE for all tournaments being 1.36.

Catch locations were monitored and areas of greatest abundance were determined. The data suggests the best fishing depth to be between 15 and 40 fathoms during any season or at any location.

The upward trend may correlate with colder winters, successful spawning and higher natural survival.

WSTU rips Fire in Civic elimination, 12-5

The Radio Wonders took advantage of numerous defensive mistakes on the part of the Jensen-Rio Fire Department, while the Fire failed to capitalize on WSTU's eight errors, and that was the story of Monday night's second Civic League playoff game, won by WSTU, 12-5.

Ed Russell and Lionel Biladeau each plowed two hits, but WSTU's victory was a good example of how an entire team can contribute. The other nine hits in the Wonder's total of 13 were smacked by nine different players, giving every player who registered an at-bat at least one hit.

Five straight hits, including a double by Biladeau, sparked a four-run second inning that erased the Fire's only lead of the night.

The Fire had scored the first run of the game in the first frame, as shortstop Bob Rice committed three of his six errors — three in a row — and Lou Slockbower trotted across the plate to give the visitors a 1-0 edge.

The Fire Department expanded that lead in the second inning, as Rice, third baseman Bill Dailey and second bagger Charlie Beam all were guilty of defensive miscues. Dave Norman's single, the first of two hits for the Fire's third baseman, sent Rick Sanchez home with the third Fire run, making it 3-0.

But the eruption by WSTU in the second, all with two outs, gave them a 4-3 lead.

Bob Rice reached on an error in the third, and went to third base on another mistake before scoring on Bean's single, giving WSTU a 5-3 advantage.

That margin increased in the fourth inning, as Mike Paul singled in two runs, and another two scored (unbelievable, but true) on a ground ball. Another ground ball allowed Biladeau to score, while Joe Quick singled in an additional tally, one of six in the inning. WSTU held a commanding, 11-3 lead after the fourth frame.

All the while, the Fire's bats were silent. Only singles by Donnie Wilkie, who along with Norman paced the team with two hits, and Charlie Schommer, as well as a sixth inning hit by right fielder Arnold St. Clair, kept them from going hitless from the third inning through the sixth.

Each team scored a sixth inning run, the Fire's coming again with Rice's help, as the shortstop made two more errors. After that, St. Clair's single was all that was needed to score Schommer and make it 11-4.

WSTU added its final run when Dave George singled, advanced to second and third on a pair of fly balls, and scored when Fire pitcher Don Wilkie tried unsuccessfully to appeal a play at second.

The Fire could not make up the eight-run deficit, but did score a final time in the seventh inning, as Norman smashed a one-out double, then scored on Donnie Wilkie's second hit, a single to left field.

The Fire finished the 1979 campaign at 1-9, with its only victory coming against regular season champion First Federal of Martin County, in the tournament opener. It was the year's most shocking upset, but the Fire could not beat the Baptist Church or WSTU in its next two tourney efforts.

WSTU was scheduled to meet First Federal Tuesday night, with the winner facing the loser of Tuesday's Baptist Church-Optimist Club game. The winner of that one advances to the final to face the winner of the Baptist Optimist showdown.

PSL Slo-pitch League begins

A Port St. Lucie slo-pitch softball league, as yet unnamed, will begin play this Sunday afternoon at Sportsman's Park.

Under the direction of Port St. Lucie resident Tony Valicenti, the league was formed, and will begin the campaign with six teams, including many of the area's familiar businessmen.

Sunday's games are scheduled for 5 p.m., 6:30 p.m. and 8 P.m., and, although the league will be almost identical to the Jensen Beach Civic League, there will be some variations.

The most important one is that the games will be nine innings long, and according to Valicenti, that's the way the PSL teams want it.

"We figure we're coming out just one day a week to play ball, and that's what we're going to do — play ball," he said. "A seven inning game often is over before you realize you've started, but the nine-inning game is much better for what we're doing."

Valicenti added that "most of the people involved are the men that are coaches and do various things to help out in the Port St. Lucie junior baseball leagues, and we decided it might be a good idea to get these guys out on the ball field."

The league will play only on Sundays, but will run for a 20-week duration beginning with this week-end's games. Valicenti said there were six teams registered, but did not say whether the league will stay at the six team limit, or might increase to eight if interest spreads.

All players are at least 18 years of age, including Mirror Sports Editor Donnie Wilkie, but the most interesting "player" is 98-year-old Guiseppe Macaluso, who will don a uniform on Valicenti's Gold Shield (Agency, of Port St. Lucie) team.

"He's the grandfather of Robert Vingara, who's on the team," Valicenti said. "He'll be an honorary member of the team. We'll give him a uniform and a hat and, if he feels up to it, he'll even come down to the park and sit on the bench to watch us play."

The schedule, said Valicenti, will be made Thursday, and he will contact the other teams to let them know exactly when they are playing.

"After our (twenty-game season, we'll probably have some sort of playoff tournament," he added, saying that the league will use basic slo-pitch rules. An exception is that a pitcher is allowed only a 10-foot arc on pitches, rather than the standard ASA 12-foot rule.

Three teams are named — the '62 Mets, Gold Shield, and the Civitan Club — while Valicenti expects the others to have names before the end of the week.

"I think we'll have a good time, and that's what it's all about," summed up Valicenti. "We'll just play it as we go along, and hope it's successful."

Optimists get revenge

After losing a one-run decision to WSTU Radio, members of the defending Civic League champion Jensen Beach Optimist Club decided enough was enough.

True, WSTU was proving itself to be the most improved team in the Civic League in 1979, but after all, champions are champions.

So the Optimists went out and dismantled the Radio Wonders, 11-6, in a winner's bracket semi-final game in the post-season Civic championship tournament, being held at Langford Park.

WSTU helped the Optimists win their eighth game, against just one defeat, as they committed six errors. But enough Optimists rapped the ball with authority to earn the victory, giving them a spot in the Civic winner's bracket final.

Rob Phillips had a perfect game at the plate, collecting four hits in four times at bat, while teammates Jerry Bocchino and Mike Wegler, the regular season batting champion, each smacked three. All told, the top three spots in the Optimist batting order rapped ten hits in 12 times up.

The Optimist Club took the lead for good in the fifth inning, rebounding from the 5-4 deficit to lead 7-5 into the sixth. Wegler's triple scored Phillips, who had singled to start the uprising, and Mike Jordon's sacrifice fly ball scored Wegler, putting the Optimists ahead. Roger Jackson singled in Bill Mang for the other tally.

The Optimists were scheduled to meet the First Baptist Church in one of Tuesday night's tournament games at Langford Park, with the winner advancing into next Wednesday's final game(s). The loser must face the winner of Tuesday's second game, between First Federal and WSTU, Monday night, with that victor taking the second spot in the finals.

QUESTION
How and where does rust start?
ANSWER
Rust starts anywhere. Rust is formed by the union of oxygen in the air with iron or steel by a process called oxidation. Moisture is an important agent in producing the change. Anywhere you have unprotected metal parts, oxygen and moisture, you can and probably will have rust, but rust may not always be evident. Rust can form inside hollow metal parts, below metal surfaces, and inside hidden seams.

Four players ace Plantation course

Golfers at Indian River Plantation went on a hole-in-one spree last week, scoring four aces over an eight day stretch between July 15 and 22.

Bill Williams, Dick Blahon, Dona Duffy and Florence Borgese all sank their tee shots on different holes.

Williams, playing in a threesome with Les Backer and Dick McCoy, started the parade of aces by holing out with an eight iron on the 108-yard 16th. It was his first hole-in-one in three years of playing golf.

The next day produced a pair of aces as Blahon put away a five iron shot on the 163 yard 12th hole and Mrs. Borgese, playing with Jerry Wade, and her husband, Bob, conquered the par three 13th with a five iron. For Blahon it was his third ace at Indian River Plantation while Mrs. Borgese's was a first-ever event.

Duffy closed out the sprees, and disheartened his playing rival, Henry Holland, by hitting a six iron into the cup on the 140-yard 10th hole. Holland burdied the hole but still lost to Duffy's first ace in 30 years of play.

Sandpiper men to play Stableford

The Sinner's Championship 18-hole course will be the site for Thursday's play of the Sandpiper Men's Golf Association swingers when the members will pair up in the popular Stableford system, both balls to figure in the scoring on each hole.

Utilizing posted handicaps all contestants will earn four points for an eagle, three for a burdie and one for par. All scores over the par figure will be for naught.

A quarter of a point separated first and second place in Thursday's Scotch Twosome event with the team of Jim Oram and Tom Chapman top award of the day with a net tally of 72½, nosing out Cal Heathman and Dave Brongaccio.

A triple deadlock for third place was decided by a match of cards with Jim Decos and Bert McDonnell by virtue of a natural birdie on the first hole taking the slot honors. Also at the same score of 77 were the combos of Dolf Cifers and Bill Kalko and Jack Dalton with Al Van Nostrand. The team of Wes LaCour and Cy Edwards with a score of 77½ tied with Harry Hendron and Judge John Carroll.

Eastpointe Course is a major for golfers

The fourth tournament of the newly created Treasure Coast Summer Golf League was played July 18 at a most impressive layout—Eastpointe Country Club, Palm Beach Gardens. Mimi Lamott, organizer of the league and member of Sandpiper Bay Ladies Golf Association, at the request of the management, could only accommodate 18 Men's and Ladies' teams—but winners and losers gathered in the attractive dining room of the elegant clubhouse to praise the course conditions, the personal attention of Bob Komarmet, Head Golf Professional and privileges that are usually accorded to members only at this private club.

The weather was favorable but hot. Scores for all teams were respectable but the leaders invariably had a couple of long hitters who were able to knock out pars and birds on the longer holes. In the Men's Division, the Martin County team of Frank Perry, Paul De Marte, Lou Papsidero and Lou Sloat captured big casino with a net score of 128 (two best net against par 144). In second place at 130, two players (Don McConnell and Jim Healy) contributed gross scores of 74 each but Hec McDougal and Biff Peach weren't far behind. All four are Sandpiper Bay members. For third place, and no ties, the dependable team of Bill Jahn and Ed Gaudette (Sandpiper members) sent Ray Uzsell and Al Graham (Martin County G.C.) scored 131. Ties featured the score of 132 (four teams) but, via matching cards, the Sandpiper team of Ken Zimmers, Tom Chapman, Graydon Smith and Jim Stark got the nod.

The limited field made possible only two prizes in the Ladies Division. One team appears to be ready for the tour, having won three times in this league. Jane Grant (Mid Rivers), Etta De Stefano and Jan McGavock (Yacht & C.C.) and Madge Means (Turtle Creek) blistered the course with a net 128 to take top honors. In second place, at 132, were Maggie Smith (Mid Rivers), Joanne Miller, Evie Dolan and Mary Jo Massnick, Yacht & C.C. members. The league is now looking forward to a one day tournament at Mariner Sands C.C. on August 8 — and there will be a very limited field playing the Breakers Hotel course on July 27th.

Youth registration for football

The Optimist Club of Jensen Beach announces Youth Football registration at Langford Park on Saturday, August 4 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Registration will also take place August 6 through 10, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Youngsters born between January 1, 1965 and December 31, 1969 are eligible. There is a weight limit of 145 pounds. Birth certificates are required for first year players. Players will be divided into three teams according to both age and weight.

Practice begins on August 13.

Sandpiper Bay ladies golf scores

On Tuesday, July 24 the Sandpiper Bay Ladies Golf Association played an event "Tee to Green." Net scores for five flights at the Sanctuary golf course were:

1st flight: Kay Scott, 43; Ginny Ellsworth and Eddie McDaniel tied at 44 along with Fran Victor; and Eliese Evans tied at 45 with Wilma Leary.

2nd flight: Ginny Hickman, 40; Mary Kuhn and Barbie Ferguson, 41 each; and Bunny Laybourne, 43.

3rd flight: Max Rutherford, 36; Sylva Barnwell, 37; Phil Healy, 41.

4th flight: Mary Thomas, 44; Doris Muller, 45; Cora May Lanahury and Mary Jane Gates tied at 49.

5th flight: Iva Dean Bouck, 44; Inez Bouman, 47; and Rose Schearer, 49.

Bond seventh, Tilton tenth

The latest standings are out for the World Challenge for Endurance Drivers, and two Jensen Beach drivers rank in the top 10.

Rusty Bond is ranked in seventh place with 51 points, while Ren Tilton is 10th with 45 points.

Points are awarded in a series of endurance races held all over the world, and the Jensen racing team has racked up enough points to earn them their respective positions by finishing well in several races, including the 24 Hours of Daytona, the 12 Hours of Sebring, and in a six-hour race held last month at Daytona.

Though the duo normally race in the small engine (GTU) class in International Motor Sports Association competition, some of the longer IMSA races apply toward the World Challenge for Endurance Drivers points standings. In spite of running with a small engine car against cars with bigger engines, they have done pretty well in World Challenge races and Bond hopes to improve his ranking soon in an eight-hour event at Pocono in Ohio on Sunday, Aug. 19th. In that race, he'll not be driving his regular car, a Porsche 911, but a Mazda RX-3, as the race is limited to a class of racing that does not allow the 911. He will serve as a co-driver for a friend who owns the RX-3.

The World Challenge points leader at present is Don Whittington of Fort Lauderdale with 68 points.

NOW YOU CAN call me Calmoso, or you can call me Calmosa, or you can call me Calmsoa, but you don't have to ride on me if you can't get my name straight! Never one to point the accusatory finger, The Mirror just couldn't let this triple headed blunder go unnoticed. Absent-minded drivers beware!

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR MARTIN COUNTY, FLORIDA
PROBATE DIVISION
File Number 79-196-CP

IN RE: ESTATE OF ANDRE R. DU RONA, Deceased

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION

TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the estate of ANDRE R. DU RONA, deceased, File Number 79-196-CP, is pending in the Circuit Court for Martin County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is 100 East Ocean Boulevard, Stuart, Florida, 33494. The personal representative of the estate is Nancy Ruth Thomas, whose address is 2423 Bay Circle, Lake Park, Florida, 33410. The name and address of the personal representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.

All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.

ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.

Date of the first publication of this Notice of Administration: July 25, 1979.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Florida laws protect your right to know and provide that certain legal proceedings be published for your information and protection

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR MARTIN COUNTY, FLORIDA
PROBATE DIVISION
File Number 79-211-CP

IN RE: ESTATE OF MILDRED P. SAVO, Deceased

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION

TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the estate of MILDRED P. SAVO deceased, File Number 79-211-CP, is pending in the Circuit Court for Martin County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is 100 E. Ocean Blvd., Stuart, Florida 33494. The personal representative of the estate is Ruth B. Foster and C. N. Tilton, whose address is 810 W. Lancaster Rd. 103, Orlando, Florida 32809 and 1935 N. E. Ricou Terrace, P.O. Box 526, Jensen Beach, Florida 33457. The name and address of the personal representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.

All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.

ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS, AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.

Date of the first publication of this Notice of Administration: July 25, 1979.

IN RE: ESTATE OF CARSON SUTTON
Deceased

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the estate of CARSON SUTTON deceased, File Number 79 351, is pending in the Circuit Court for St. Lucie County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is P.O. Box 700, Fort Pierce, Florida 33450. The personal representative of the estate is Emily Morgan whose address is 1201 Euchee Creek Place, Sandsprings, Oklahoma 74063. The name and address of the personal representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.

All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenges the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.

ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS, AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.

Date of the first publication of this Notice of Administration: August 1, 1979.

Community Bridge Club to hold tournament

The Community Bridge Club, Stuart Jensen, met July 23 for a 7½ table Howell movement game with an average of 78. The winners were Margaret Schneider and Jerry Kerns 92, Betty and Al Dinger 88½, Ruth Hanson and Al Mason 87½, Al Smith and Earl Wagner 86½, Myrtle and Seymour Fleming 83½, Mary Bell and Hazel Whicker 83.

Game time is 1 p.m. on Mondays in the Harry Hoke community room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Jensen Beach. All players are welcome and a partner is usually available.

On Monday, August 13, the club will hold a "Grand National Pair" tournament. This is the only event held annually where players can earn "red points" at the local level. It is open to all A.C.B.L. members. There will be a non-members section at the same time.

Stuart Women's Aglow to meet on Saturday

The August luncheon of the Stuart Women's Aglow Fellowship will take place on Saturday, Aug. 4, at the Woman's Club of Stuart, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Special guest will be Nellie Lawer, who has a Bachelor's and Master's Degree in home economics education from Ball State University, and a Doctor of Ministry Degree in Christian education from Luthern Rice Seminary. She taught home economics for 15 years, but now teaches nutrition for spirit, soul and body.

Nellie will be ministering Christ In The Passover, and will share her belief that it is vital for Christians to understand why Jesus desires to eat the unforgettable meal today with His disciples just as he did while on earth. She emphasizes that Christians have a new life counterpart for each of God's feast days of the old covenant (Old Testament).

Men and women are invited. For reservations or information please call Janet Fischer at 334-4891.

Auxiliary volunteers can serve duty at Coast Guard

Bill Burke, a local resident who just received his certificate as coxswain from the United States Coast Guard, describes the life of a volunteer in the civilian Coast Guard Auxiliary as anything but mundane.

"The people had abandoned ship already, we were just going ahead to drag the boat in. It impressed me, though, that there wasn't a moment's hesitation among the crew everyone donned life jackets and out we went."

"Well, I spotted him first. There was a man riding on the crest of a wave.

The Auxiliary works very closely with the Ft. Pierce Coast Guard patrolling the inlet and the intracoastal, and performing rescue work.

The objectives of the organization, which is manned entirely by volunteers, are to patrol waterways, answering calls from disabled boats, to educate the public in boat safety, to conduct courtesy examinations at boat owners requests, assuring them that their boat is safe and fully operational, and to provide courses which are comparable to the Coast Guard for their members.

"We had some trouble getting him in," continues Burke. "even for a good swimmer, after 40 minutes of battling 10 to 12 foot waves, he was numb." Burke explained that the man knew enough to take off all heavy clothes in order to stay afloat. He was rushed to the hospital immediately after.

"People don't realize," says Burke, "it is hard to find a boat out there. It is almost impossible to find a man."

The United States Coast Guard has recently initiated a program whereby any auxiliarist can put in regular duty at one of the nearby Coast Guard stations. After completing a certain amount of hours both on base and on shipboard, a certificate rating of coxswain is awarded.

Bill Burke, who put in 104 hours on the seas and 270 hours on base, is the first such auxiliarist in south Florida to complete the course and receive his certification. Another member of Flotilla 59, of Stuart, who has currently invested 40 hours in the program, is Vice Commander Frank Walsh.

"It really makes it worthwhile to know that you hauled a guy's bacon out of the fire, so to speak. You've heard all the clothes about civic duty, but when you get down to the nitty gritty it is just a desire to help people," says Burke.

According to Ed Benedict, spokesman for Flotilla 59, the auxiliary is a vital part of the Coast Guard operation, who, because of their flight scheduling and limited personnel, are unable to answer every call. Benedict went on to explain that the national organization of Coast Guard Auxiliaries was established in 1939, however, the Stuart branch opened 1942.

Burke says he is trying to get other auxiliarists to complete the training in order to give the operation a degree of professionalism. In addition, he hopes to continue his study with the Coast Guard, eventually qualifying him as an OD, petty officer in charge. Having originally retired in Hollywood, Fla., Burke moved when he found the area to be "choking" low, and calls the St. Lucie-Martin County areas "God's country."

For those interested in learning more about the Coast Guard Auxiliary or safe boating in general, Stuart Flotilla 59 is offering a basic skills and seamanship course beginning Thursday, Aug. 2 at headquarters, 1 Flagler Avenue, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Registration will be held on Aug. 2 at noon.

Although the course is offered free of charge, a textbook may be purchased for $7, while a textbook questionnaire is available at a cost of $3 for each additional family member. Call 283-3854 or 878-0682 for more information.

"I've been paid for the jobs I've done all my life," says Coxswain Bill Burke, "but there comes a time in your life when you have to do a little bit more."

Coordinated emergency system frustrates all

BY DICK CAMPBELL
(Second in a series)

There were two meetings of representatives of the Martin County emergency medical services organizations. Then there were none.

At those two meetings, those attending "did nothing but bitch" about what others weren't doing. That was when it was arbitrarily decided not to hold any more meetings. The decision was made "on the county level," according to one person who asked to remain anonymous.

At present, there is no coordination between law enforcement, fire, ambulance and the medical community.

At a recent county commission meeting, the county emergency medical services council asked for a coordinator to plan county-wide communication and coordination of the many bastions of emergency service. The Martin County Commission listened to an excellent presentation of the problems and potential solutions to those problems, and told the gathering that there wasn't the money for a coordinator.

The hopes for a higher degree of emergency medical service, a "life support" system, sounds good, but the cost of the service adds up to about three hundred dollars per capita per year, or $1,800,000, mind-boggling to a county that has used volunteer emergency services.

If there is a volunteer problem area in Martin County, it lies in the Tri-Area Ambulance, serving Palm City, Port Salerno, Golden Gate and the central part of the county. Loyalties are not to the community, and volunteers are difficult to find.

There is also a problem in servicing Indiantown, where a volunteer ambulance service failed.

Hobe Sound and Jensen Beach have excellent ambulance facilities, with an esprit de corps that rivals the imagination.

Many have said that the two spirited ambulance corps should be a model for the leaders of the other communities to follow.

However, on a county-wide basis, Hobe Sound and Jensen Samaritans hinder the hope for a coordination of emergency medical services. The boundaries of each area are jealously guarded. There is a lack of communication and cooperation between the various volunteer organizations.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha believes strongly in the volunteer concept, and said that each community in Martin County should have its own volunteer group, an organization in each community.

"Individual areas have to be responsible for their area as if they were a municipality," Wacha said. He pointed to the excellent volunteer organizations in Jensen Beach and Hobe Sound.

State Representative Bill Myers, a Hobe Sound doctor, echoed the call, saying that he has, in the past, suggested that the Tri-Area emergency services group be split into separate organizations serving Port Salerno and Palm City.

"Then, the people of the town will be able to muster the home town volunteers they need for their service," Myers added.

However, Myers pointed out that the natural growth of the county would demand advanced life support in the future, citing the $300 per capita figure for such service.

A Mirror Exclusive

Shortage of EMTs might just be due to the system

Dr. David MacMillan, past-president of the Martin County Emergency Medical Services advisory board, refuses to accept the district concept of emergency service, citing the complete breakdown of coordination between law enforcement, fire, ambulance and the medical community.

As a medical doctor, MacMillan would, of course, want the most professional handling of emergency cases right to the hospital. In lieu of that, however, there should be close coordination between the various services and the departments to facilitate the best possible use of equipment and personnel.

"There is a greater demand for more quality care. That is why the state is setting minimum standards. Their requirements for certification would naturally cut down on the number of volunteers," MacMillan said.

With money as the root of the problem, MacMillan feels that the county commission has not properly addressed the needs of emergency services.

"Due to the success of the regional systems, some commissioners are not looking at the larger, county-wide picture," he added.

More than that, MacMillan bemoans the lack of communications and cooperation between the sheriff's department, and the sheriff's failure to utilize the potential of the ambulance services.

Macmillan cites the fact that most fire departments have the "jaws of life," a device to open doors and windows of automobiles in accident situations.

We don't need that many coordination could save the cost of many such items," he said.

He feels that the City of Stuart should get out of the emergencies service business, and place all such services under a county-wide "metro-type" service. As an example, he said that the District Two fire truck must drive a longer distance to fight a fire just outside the city limits than a Stuart fire truck would have to drive.

The coordination of volunteer services could also help in training.

"Volunteers are pretty good, but they are not getting better. There is no continuing education to expand the educational training and broaden the knowledge of the volunteers.

MacMillan feels that a coordinator is needed to begin to tie all the emergency services together, and begin planning the coordination of all services toward a higher degree of emergency care and better utilization of personnel and equipment.

In Jensen Beach, Dr. Richard Penick, one of the founders of the Samaritan Ambulance, supported the need for an overall coordinator, but said he thought the Civil Defense should handle it.

"Within the framework of emergency service and disaster, Civil Defense should be the agency that ties all together, including a plan for medical service," Penick said.

He commented that years ago, when Al Keaton was head of Civil Defense, a plan was formulated for disaster. In that plan, Keaton assigned doctors and emergency personnel to various areas of the county.

The only coordinating force presently in the county seems to be Martin Memorial Hospital.

In a recent drill, planned and staged by Marie Amann, administrative assistant to hospital director Guy Cromwell, a drill was to feature a staged chemical disaster on State Road 707 in Rio.

The Jensen Samaritan ambulance crew could not participate, due to too many people on vacation, and others being overworked, according to Mrs. Amann, so the drill was changed to a boating accident, with the Tri-Area Ambulance participating with the City of Stuart ambulance. Civil Defense handled the dispatching for the drill.

The sheriff's department, highway patrol and Stuart police were also involved in the drill.

The accident was staged in early evening, and victims were properly made up to simulate various injuries. As the boats were brought to shore at a private dock all emergency personnel were brought to the scene, and Mrs. Amann said, "I was thrilled with the response and the professional handling of the event."

One thing that was learned in the drill was that no one knew the fire departments and some ambulances have auxiliary lighting, lighting that could have made the handling of victims easier.

"We know that now," Mrs. Amann said. "That is why we need these drills."

Debate continues on how to handle the coordination of emergency services in Martin County. But, with the debate, there seems no central effort to formulate a plan which emergency services can be coordinated.

One-way traffic plan revived

BY BOB FRYER

Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors expressed hope Monday that the third attempt in recent years to make the downtown portion of Commercial Street a one-way street will become a reality this winter.

During a meeting with County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha Monday, chamber officials took another look at a traffic flow plan for the downtown Jensen area that was originally proposed back in 1972. They and Wacha expressed hope to county engineering officials at the meeting that the plan could be implemented in time for the winter tourist season.

"A lot of the people opposed to it (in the past) are gone away now," commented Larry Durrance of the chamber.

Chamber member John Heyburn added that when the plan was originally considered, the owners of Quinn's meat market, the 5¢ and 10¢ store, and Bryan's Pharmacy were opposed to the plan. Quinn has since died and the 5¢ and 10¢ store has closed. "Only one more person opposed it than favored it then," he commented. The plan was considered and rejected in 1972 and 1974.

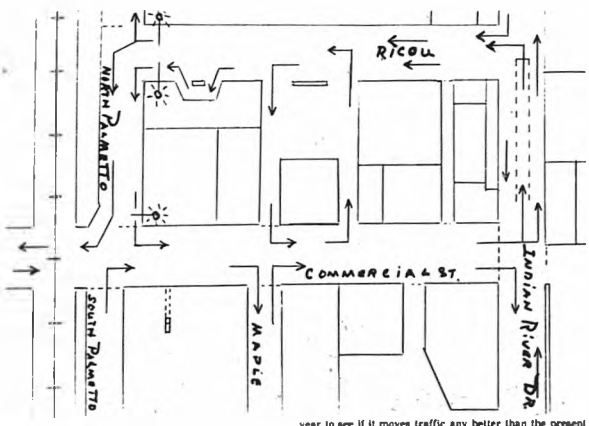
Commission Chairman Wacha told acting county engineer Jim Pait and county engineering department staffer Mike Murphee that the first thing he'd like to see done, as soon as possible, is the elimination of left turns from the northbound lane of Indian River Drive onto Commercial Street. He said new striping for left turns off the northbound lane of Indian River Drive onto Ricou was also needed. He explained that when school buses and big trucks come to the end of Commercial and try to turn right onto Indian River Drive, the drivers have problems making the tight turn. He and chamber officials agreed that a traffic light at Ricou and Indian River Drive may be needed to allow left turns there once the left turn from Indian River Drive to Commercial is eliminated.

So far the plan to make Commercial Street a one-way street for eastbound traffic only from the railroad track to Indian River Drive, and to make Ricou a one-way street going west, Wacha told the county engineers to study the proposed plan with the idea of having it implemented in time for the winter tourist season. A map in this week's issue of The Mirror shows the proposed traffic-flow plan. Wacha said the plan would likely include elimination of left turns onto Commercial from South Palmetto Avenue and a change of the angle of parking spaces in the Jensen Beach Post office parking lot and along Commercial Street. "With the board (of county commission) okay, I'd like to try this for one year to see if it works," he said.

When asked by Mary Killer of the Chamber what became of a proposal to realign the Jensen Beach causeway to have it come out in downtown Jensen Beach, Wacha said "presently there are no funds in sight for causeway work."

Wacha did say he would like to revive a proposal to extend Zelda Terrace a short distance so it will connect Skyline Drive with North Savanna Road. However, he gave no indication when this might be done.

Still other discussion of road problems centered around a plan to change the traffic flow into and out of the Jensen Public Beach. Wacha said he hopes soon to have changes made so the entrance to the beach will be on a dirt road at the center of the beach land, while there will be exits only from dirt roads at the north and south ends of the beach land. He said he hopes this will improve the traffic flow and eliminate some danger from the intersection of A1A and the Jensen Beach Causeway road.



STOP sign will be erected along a portion of Commercial Street, as well as along Ricou Terrace if the above traffic-flow pattern is approved by the Martin County Commission. Frank Wacha, chairman of the commission, met with Jensen Beach Chamber officials Monday and said he'd like to see the above traffic-flow pattern be tried for one year to see if it moves traffic any better than the present pattern. The plan has been proposed several times in the past, but has met with sufficient opposition to stop it from becoming a reality. Chamber officials said they felt most of the merchants who once opposed it are no longer around, and Wacha said he hopes the plan can be implemented in time for the winter tourist season.

Women to give party proceeds to Latham Fund

The Jensen Beach Women's Association will hold a dessert-card party at 12:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 13, at their clubhouse on Sugar Hill Road.

Members and guests are welcome. For information and reservations call 334-0321.

Association publicity woman Peggy Landwehr announced that at the Association's Monday, Aug. 20 dessert-card party, all proceeds will go to the Sally Latham Fund. Members and guests, as well as friends and acquaintances of Sally Latham are invited to the Aug. 20 event and reservations are necessary.

State EMS to consider FIT-EMT application

Rep. Chuck Nergard and Rep. Bill Myers reacted quickly to The Mirror's article on the failure of the state Emergency Medical Service (EMS) to take action on an application for certification on Florida Institute of Technology's (FIT) emergency medical technician program.

Both called the Tallahassee-based agency to ask why the certification was not acted upon, and why there had been a breakdown in communications between the EMS and FIT.

Nergard and Myers were told that there was no record of the application at first, but after searching through the files of the former director of the program, Frieda Travis, EMS coordinator, called teh legislators to tell them the application was found, and would be processed.

The new director of EMS is Dave Schottke. If the previous plan for action is followed, the application will be submitted to the EMS board and staff for review.

Postmaster for Jensen may be named by end of August

A postmaster for the Jensen Beach Post Office is expected to be named by the end of this month, according to Walt Smith, director of customer service at the West Palm Beach Post Office.

Smith said U.S. Postal Service officials in Memphis, Tenn. are scheduled to interview the five finalists for the position during the latter part of next week. He said once the interviews are completed, a recommendation for a new Jensen Beach postmaster will be sent to U.S. Postmaster General William Bolger for final approval.

"I would think that by the end of this month, Jensen Beach will have a new postmaster, or at least an announcement will be made as to who the new postmaster will be," Smith said.

The Jensen Beach Post Office has been without a postmaster since last September, when postmaster Harold Sahler stepped down from that post to become a letter carrier at the local post office. Since then there have been three officers-in-charge named to run the post office until a new postmaster is appointed.

Earlier this year, there were reports of morale problems at the post office, and the post office made the front page of The Miami Herald when complaints about delivery service suffered.

Several months ago, when The Mirror did a follow-up story on the delivery complaints and morale problems, workers at the local office said their morale problems were behind them and said delivery service was not a problem. However, the same day the workers made their comments, a spokesman for U.S. Rep. L.A. "Skip" Bafalis said the congressman was still receiving complaints about service and said Bafalis was calling for an outside investigation of the Jensen post office.

On Monday, Jack McDavitt, aid to Bafalis, said he was still waiting for a response on the congressman's call for the investigation. "We haven't heard a thing yet, but these things take time," he said. Then he added that no complaints had been received recently about poor service. "Maybe that's a sign the situation has cleared itself up," he said.

Bush brings race to Stuart

by Michelle Naspinski

George Bush, former U.S. Congressman, past chairman of the Republican National Committee, director of the Central Intelligence Agency during the last year of the Carter Administration, and now candidate for the office of President of the United States, spoke at a press conference and reception at the Stuart Holiday Inn, Sunday, August 5th.

Bush announced his candidacy on May 1st, and has been campaigning throughout the early primary states ever since. Concentration on the early states is critical," says Bush, who is presently touring Florida because its primary date is set for March 11, 1980.

The game plan, which Bush hopes will win him the Republican nomination, is to organize his supporters, raise money, and then advertise to promote his candidacy.

"I think Reagon is ahead organizationally," comments Bush, but he believes that there has been a shift of loyalties within Reagon supporters.

Bush calls name identification polls "an interesting game that Americans are made to play," but as these polls show Reagon to be the front runner, Bush says that he doesn't believe that they will be the determinant factor in the election.

In addition to his extensive foreign affairs background, including acting as ambassador to the United Nations from 1971-1973 and as Chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking from 1974-1975, Bush was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate in economics from Yale, which he feels will enable him to deal effectively with the nation's domestic problems.

"Carter is unable to understand the world as it really is," says Bush, who favors a moral foreign affairs policy, but one that puts first the strategical interests of the U.S.

Furthermore, Bush would like to see the CIA and FBI strengthened considerably, as he feels the Soviet threat is one which requires a stronger show of force than the United States has been willing to support as yet.

"We are still the stronger nation," says Bush, but he commented that the trend toward a clearer superiority of the in conventional military strength is a great concern of his.

Bush explained that the U.S.S.R. spends 16% of their gross national product on the military which is 40% more than the United States allotment of 8%.

In regard to a reinstatement of the draft in this country, Bush says, if elected, he would immediately revitalize universal registration. Eventually, projected Bush, a draft may have to be organized, but it would be designed to bolster the reserves, not to draft for service duty.

Additionally, Bush says he favors a "fair draft," not one that an eligible person could "study his way out of."

Although he agrees that the U.S. needs an arms limitation treaty, Bush says that if he were in the Senate now he would vote to amend, but would not pass, Carter's presently submitted SALT package.

"I don't believe that the Soviets will not negotiate," says Bush, "they are spending much more than we are, with an economy half the size of ours." Bush went on to say that the Soviet Union is already experiencing a strained economy, repercussions of the energy shortage, and great difficulty in obtaining grain. Bush feels that the USSR will be prepared to make substantial concessions in exchange for a grain deal in the Fall.

The amendents that Bush would like to see attached to the SALT II treaty are in the areas of verification and monitoring. The systems that were lost in the Iranian takeover, says Bush, have put the counters back five years.

In regard to the national affairs issues of inflation and energy, which are expected to be the focal points of the 1980 race, Bush says he would restrict the growth of spending, cut off many of the unnecessary regulations, and get rid of the supply-oriented energy program.

While Bush agrees that the government must decontrol oil prices, and while he favors a windfall profits tax, Bush feels that a "plowback" policy is an absolute necessity, as it would mandate that the extra oil company profits be funneled back to finance further exploration.

Although his criticism of Carter was limited to policy rather than personal observations, Bush commented that he was "tired of seeing the United States constantly apologizing for our actions," and that he feels a change in the control of Congress would be actualized with stronger leadership.

In speaking of the upcoming presidential election, Bush believes that "the Republican party is coming back strong." He mentioned to the largely Republican audience at the Sunday reception that he is a firm believer in the two party system.

Bush says that he is following Carter's example in the 1976 race, in terms of early campaigning and working hard to make himself known, but that, he says, is where the similarity ends.

"I want to be president more than the people I'm running against," Bush ended with a smile.

As to his opponents, Bush commented, quoting former president John F. Kennedy, "there may be better qualified people for this office, but they aren't running."

St. Andrew's plans several meetings

The regular Sunday worship service of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church of Port St. Lucie will be held on Sunday, August 12 at 9:30 a.m., although the Sunday school and adult Bible classes will be discontinued until the Fall.

Also coming up is the church council meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, August 13, and the commissioning service for the Larry Evans family on Sunday, August 19. Following the commissioning will be a worship service and a "potluck" dinner. The Evans will be leaving as missionaries to Madagascar in the near future.

Road work could cause jams

The threat of massive traffic jams this winter in Jensen Beach is looming larger as officials in charge of making improvements to Savanna Road and Commercial Street said it will be as late as December or next January before the job is finished.

On April 3, the Martin County Commission awarded a contract to Dickerson, Inc. for improvements to the Savanna-Commercial intersection at a cost of $314,640. The project includes resurfacing of Savanna Road from Silver Maple Road northward through the intersection to the back entrance to Jensen Beach Plaza shopping center. It also calls for resurfacing of Commercial Street from a point 550 feet west of the intersection to a point 600 feet east of the intersection. Both roads will be widened some, and turning lanes will be included for all four approaches to the intersection. The traffic signal is already set up for left turn lights, and those will be installed when the project is finished, said a Dickerson spokesman.

When the contract was awarded, Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce officials expressed hope that the job would be finished during the summer, when traffic in the community is much lighter than in the winter. However, since April, there have been few signs of progress. Telephone and power company officials have done some work in the area and have moved some utility poles back to make way for the wider intersection, but Dickerson has yet to move in any road-work equipment for the job. As a result of concern voiced over the pace of the project, county commission chairman Frank Wacha called a press conference Monday at the Jensen Chamber office to discuss the timing for the work and the detours that will be needed to complete the job. Representatives from the Chamber, Dickerson, the county engineer's office and the press attended the meeting, and heard Dickerson project supervisor Vern Hess say the firm should start moving in materials for the job within a week to 10 days. However, Dickerson spokesmen also said it will likely be December, and possibly January, before the work is finished.

Ted Tyson, vice president of Dickerson, said that due to the difficulty of working on the road while traffic will still flow over it, the job will take longer than it would if it could be totally closed while the work is going on.

Tyson said that cars will be required to drive over a rock surface along Savanna Road during portions of the job, and said that at times traffic will also be detoured along side streets. He said the work along Savanna from Silver Maple to Commercial will be broken up into four stages, rather than closing it off completely, in order to provide for traffic to flow in both directions.

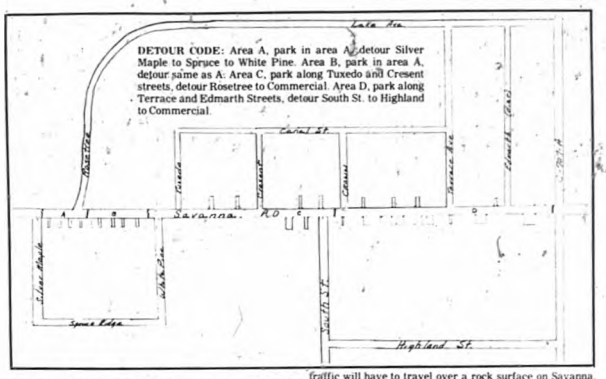
The four phase schedule for Savanna called for work to start at Silver Maple, with successive stages to be completed in the direction of Commercial St. Wacha and chamber officials said it would be less of a burden on traffic for the work to begin at Commercial and proceed toward Silver Maple, so the intersection part of the project could be finished before the winter season. Mike Murphee of the county engineering department said he believed the work may have been scheduled to start at the Silver Maple end of the project to provide for less disruption of the bike path for school children. However, once the objections to that scheme were voiced, Tyson said he would check into the feasibility of working on the Savanna-Commercial intersection first.

Tyson did say that if more limestone and less marl could be used for the job, it might eliminate time consuming requirement of waiting for compaction tests to be done. He promised to consult with county officials to see if this is allowable, so long as it results in an equal quality of road construction.

Tyson said cooperation of local residents is needed to have them observe speed limits and be patient while work is in process. He said Dickerson "is shooting for completion in December," but another Dickerson spokesman said it could take until January to finish the job.

Chamber president Jon Chicky said winter traffic along the two roads is normally congested and that with the road work this winter, traffic could be backed up along Commercial and Indian River Drive to the Jensen Causeway. He urged completion of the job as quickly as possible, saying the potential traffic jams could be "disastrous" for local businesses. "They're the blood-line to the community," he said.

Wacha expressed hope that Dickerson could improve a dirt portion of Lake Avenue so it could function better as a detour road. He also said Dickerson may dump some fill from the project in an area next to Rosetree Road, where a fire station is to be built later.



DETOUR CODE: Area A, park in area A, detour Silver Maple to Spruce to White Pine. Area B, park in area A, detour same as A. Area C, park along Tuxedo and Cresent streets, detour Rosetree to Commercial. Area D, park along Terrace and Edmarth Streets, detour South St. to Highland to Commercial.

DETOUR PLAN--Officials of Dickerson, Inc., outlined plans Monday for improvements the firm will be making to Savanna Road and Commercial Street. Part of the plan calls for work on Savanna Road to be broken up into short segments. During the project, there will be times when traffic will have to travel over a rock surface on Savanna, while at other times detours will have to be made. The above map shows the detour plan. Dickerson officials said Monday they will consider working from Commercial Street toward Silver Maple, instead of doing the work in the opposite sequence.

Would hurt business?

While the planned improvements to the Savanna-Commercial intersection are welcomed by some, the project includes what one merchant feels will be a drawback.

Part of the project calls for an island on Commercial Street from Savanna Road eastward to the entrance to Sunview Road. This will eliminate left turns off Commercial Street into a commercial area containing a Cumberland Farms convenience store, The Paint Shed, and Nautical Natural Foods.

Fred Keller, owner of The Paint Shed, feels the elimination of left turns into the parking lot for his store would hurt business.

"It will definitely affect these stores," Keller said. However, the no left turn feature of the road project shouldn't hurt him too much because he says he plans to move his paint store.

Keller said, "Whoever allowed them to build this parking lot the way it is was out of their mind. I would blame the Martin County commission. They're a big bunch of phonies." Keller said, adding that he has heard talk of improvements to the intersection for two years and hasn't seen anything yet. He further commented that the parking lot for Cumberland Farms, his store and the health food store should never have been allowed to be built at such a low level.

At the Cumberland Farms store, Karen Jones had a different view. She said, "I don't think it will hurt business, but I'm not going to say it will help it either."

"Personally, I think it (the road improvements) is very good. It is difficult now to get out of the parking lot and make a left turn onto Commercial, and the improvements will make it safer," she said.

She said motorists should not be too inconvenienced by the change in the traffic pattern because those wishing to go east on Commercial could just take the side parking lot exit onto Savanna, then go south on Savanna to Commercial. "They'll have a left turn lane there, so it shouldn't be too hard to get onto Commercial," she said. She further noted that most customers for her store come from the Winn Dixie parking lot or from the beach, instead of coming off the eastbound lane of Commercial.

Gregory Crialip of Nautical Natural Foods said he is taking a wait-and-see attitude to determine if the change in traffic flow will hurt business.

One change that the road project will bring that most everyone seems to welcome is the elimination of the severe dip in Savanna Road as it intersects with Commercial from the south.

EMS coordination

The people of Jensen Beach and Hobe Sound take great pride in their emergency volunteers. The people of Palm City, Stuart, Port Salerno and Indiantown are having problems with their emergency services, with a lack of volunteers.

The county Emergency Medical Services is not a coordinated group, lacking central authority and organization.

However, that lack is not just due to no coordinating force. It is mainly due to parochial jealousies between the communities.

No one seems to want to give up the strength of the local organization in favor of an overview of the entire county.

The Martin County Commission might be faulted for not providing the leadership for volunteer service on a county-wide basis. Each commissioner is somewhat responsible for his or her own district. It is certain the commissioners from Hobe Sound and Jensen Beach do not want to relinquish what is a winner for them in fire and ambulance service.

At the same time, the commissioners from the other three districts do not have the esprit de corps that the other two do. Their efforts to form an ambulance district to serve their communities has been plagued with problems.

It seems to be a no win situation.

When local government fails, the state steps in, as is the case in the emergency medical services area. The state is demanding higher quality, setting minimum standards for emergency medical attendants.

This has limited the availability of volunteers, due to the amount of time it takes to become qualified, and the amount of time it takes to go through the red tape naturally created by government itself.

As the chaos of coordination continues, volunteers begin to become involved in the politics of provincialism. Many shake their heads and walk away.

If there is a mandate appearing on the horizon, it must be the fear that the bickering between agencies and government will force the development of professional emergency services, loading the full responsibility for cost on taxpayers.

That should not be.

However, when it is pointed out that the District Two fire truck must pass near the City of Stuart fire department on its way to a fire that could more quickly served by the Stuart truck, the people can see waste and lack of coordination.

When it is pointed out that firemen for District Two are Emergency Medical Technicians, but cannot be used as such due to the lack of equipment for emergency medical service there, we see waste and lack of coordination.

At a recent boat accident drill, the lack of lighting of the scene was a hindrance to proper handling of the accident. However, the fire departments have portable lighting, but no one knew it.

Coordination and communications is so terribly important. It is more important than petty jealousies and pride in the achievements of one district over another.

Martin County's EMS program needs a beginning. It can start with the people responsible getting together to talk about what can be done to begin.

Positive energy steps

BY CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

In 1944, Congress passed a law calling for "construction and operation of demonstration plants to produce synthetic liquid fuels from coal, oil shales, agricultural and forestry products."

World War II ended in 1945 and the demonstration program dragged on for another eight years and some $75 million before being halted by the Congress in 1953.

Now, some 26 years later, the Congress is gearing up to do it all over again. And for the same reasons—our domestic oil supplies aren't enough and foreign supplies have been shown to be too easily interrupted.

In fact, if anything, the reasons are more pressing than during World War II.

[redacted] program to develop all sorts of synthetic fuels appears to be our only answer. It will be costly.

In fact, one estimate has pegged the cost of developing needed synthetic fuel capability at some $50 billion to produce just one million barrels of oil per day. And that's just for plants and equipment.

Over a 10 year span, it would take another $38 billion to get enough coal to produce that one million barrels of oil a day.

But, that's still cheaper than relying on foreign oil. At the latest OPEC prices, the cost of importing one million barrels a day for 10 years would be $72 billion.

Now, the savings of $4 billion over a 10 year period is fine, but it is certainly not the only reason we should embark on a massive synthetic fuels program.

The real reason is that the $68 billion we spend on developing our own synthetic gasoline is money spent for salaries for U.S. workers, keeping U.S. businesses going and creating new ones. It isn't money which will go into some sheik's purse so he can have ahigh time gambling on the French Rivieria.

So, while the cost may be high, the investment will be worthwhile. After all, it's an investment in the future of this nation.

by Sally Latham

Kindness is everyone

If you are looking for charity, look no farther. I left it all in Jensen Beach. From Illinois to California, and from Maine to Florida, cards have been pouring in at an alarming rate, people who wish to give to the fund for cancer or who just want to make donations of their own just to show how nice they are. many of them are local.

And yet, many have come from as far away as New York and New Jersey, all empathizing with my problem and well they might be... cause there are thousands of cases like mine... people who unfortunately will not make it through and others whose chemotherapy helps in many cases for them to recover completely.

One of these Clayton Spraker writes, "every week I look forward for some encouraging news to come in The Mirror." Another recipient, Isabelle McClintock, is a member of the Fort Pierce DAR, and could not forget our vulnerability as we face death in all directions. Isabelle, incidentally, is an active member of the DAR, a collector of tremendous cookbooks.

Church groups, local organizations, one of my correspondents (she is a Catholic sister on a Paiute reservation) has been added to this gigantic circle of friendship.

Everyone has shown their kindness, but I don't think any kinder act than came from Nick Midelis at Hilltop House, who donated a day, his time, and money, to helping show his concern.

Old timers there were enough to make it look like a Christmas parade for the senile. Among the band were excellent singers, dancers, and really frustrated showgirls. All of them showed one front against a killer, and showing that they're winning and that they're about to win.

One man has had 3 brain tumor operations, others have been under the knife several times, and yet when they get up to do their responsible thing, you realize how little you really have to complain about.

I particularly want to give a great big kiss to Nick Midelis and Lenny Laden whose endurance is incredible, and who spent his entire day auctioning off anything that happened to come along. (I hope nobody was missing a bald head when it was over), and to Marg Parris for all of the successful work she did.

I have a contents of a book on my pages of memory. All we can do is ask that similar loving outgo be shown to others in the area, and to set an example of what it's like to be both on the giving end as well as the receiving end.

Dick Campbell

Working within the system

There have been enough jokes about Jimmy Carter coming down from the mountain, preempting "Moses" on television, and turning the thermostats up to 78 degrees.

I sat in my chair and listened to the speech, and found myself feeling sorry for the man.

However, he is my president, and deserves the respect the office holds. It is unfortunate as hell that he doesn't know what to do, nor how to do it.

It reminds me of the concern that the citizens of Walton and Eden are showing about the zoning of property within the city limits of Port St. Lucie. The first thing they did was oppose the incorporation of the property into the city. They called the mayor and councilmen some bad names as the property was rezoned to multi-family.

It was only a stroke of sheer luck that produced the dumb causeway that killed the development of the property into golf courses and condominiums.

Thus preserved, the Walton-Edenites continued their vilification of the City of Port St. Lucie. Now they need a favor, and are asking the council to turn the property zoning back to single family-low density.

It is wondered if the attitude and treatment of the city fathers by Walton-Eden will be taken into account when a developer asks for the use of his land.

You can get a lot more flies with honey than vinegar.

Carter is learning this.

He ran on anti-Washington ticket. The people bought his idealistic virtue, hoping for a born-again executive branch coming out of his election.

Unfortunately, the Congress is not born-again. More of the members will probably not make the roll call way up yonder than will be included in the list. They are tough, practical politicians who know the name of the game is "trade" and not idealism.

Having run against Congress, and having offended the entire legislative structure of the nation's capitol, Carter finds his planning and programs going nowhere. The doors of negotiation are closed, and his leadership is now reduced from a question mark to a cloakroom joke.

Changing advisors would be better than changing cabinet members. His Georgia Mafia is a gang of peopbyte politicians looking for a payoff, or a deal, when friendship and working together with Congressmen would bring more results.

The staff at the White House is directed by Hamilton Jordan, a man possessed with all the vulgarity that should not be a part of the dignity of the president's office. He spits liquor on women, makes vulgar jokes, and has contempt for Congress. You cannot wallow with pigs and not have some of it rub off on you. As a reward for a loused up presidency, Carter has given Jordan the title of "chief of staff." He should be fired.

I waited for response from Carter's speech after the mount, as I hoped that people would respond as I could not. The response didn't come.

Instead, the president fired most of his cabinet, shuffled a few faces around, and turned up thermostats. He did take hat coat off.

But, nothing has changed. The Congress is still providing the ideas that should come from the executive. The Congress is still calling shots that the president should call. The Congress is somewhat effectively doing a dual job: getting the ideas for laws, and passing laws.

It is just a shame.

A decade ago, the price of a barrel of oil was the same as the price of wheat. Today it is four times the price of wheat. Yet, the United States continues to ship wheat at pre-OPEC prices to OPEC countries, and continues foreign aid to those countries as we pay a buck-a-gallon for gasoline.

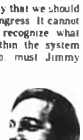
It is just a shame.

We must, however, recognize that the president is the only president, and as Lyndon Johnson once said, "I'm the only president you've got." We must try to help the president, offering our ideas and our prayers that he move in the right direction.

At the same time we must pray that he learns the game rules of Washington.

It isn't enough to say that we should elect a born-again Congress. It cannot be done. We must recognize what exists, and work within the system that exists. So, also, must Jimmy Carter.

Bob Fryer



Making a list, checking twice

I am a compulsive list maker. I have lists at work to remind me of what stories are to be written for each week's paper, as well as lists of other matters to be accomplished each week.

At home, I make lists of things to do too. Those lists include a variety of items. One of my current lists contains reminders to myself to: write several relatives, to check on a house I thought I might want to buy (but decided I couldn't afford), to install a new rear end and rear leaf springs in my Rambler convertible, to clean and paint the bottom of my boat, to fix and sell an outboard engine, to wash and wax my car, and to buy and mail a present for my niece, Ellen. She'll be two years old on Aug. 12th.

There are more things on the list, but I think that's a representative sample. My list of things to do is often accompanied by a list of things to buy.

I've found making lists of things do do bring a vague sense of order to my life, but sometimes wonder if my need for lists means I'm leading a too complicated life and need to either develop a better memory or lead a simpler life.

I wonder sometimes if others keep lists as extensive as mine and what sorts of things they put on their lists.

For example, what would have been on the "things to do" list of Nixon on the day he left office as President? What kinds of lists did Genghis Khan have, or Hitler, or Jesus Christ?

Nixon has probably shredded his lists. Genghis Khan probably couldn't write and had some lackey remind him which country to invade and plunder next, and Hitler probably just consulted his horoscope when he needed to do something. Jesus Christ was probably too busy with more important things than to have time for writing lists, and who knows how many things he told his disciples that they didn't bother to write down. Maybe he should have waited for the mass communications era so he could have had television and newspapers coverage, but I guess he gave us enough lists as it is.

What would Joan of Arc have had on her shopping list when they burned her at the stake? Maybe her list contained a note to purchase asbestos lined battle fatigues.

Perhaps General William Tecumseh Sherman made a note to stock up on matches, marshmallow, and hot dogs before he burned a 60-mile-wide swath from Atlanta to Savannah — a prank us southerners didn't think was very funny at all.

Did Charles Lindbergh make a note to himself to bring along a French English dictionary before crossing the Atlantic?

Who knows. But if you put your mind to it, you could probably think of lots of humorous things famous or not so famous, persons would have on their personal lists. If so, here's your chance to become famous yourself. Simply make up a list of funny things people would have on their lists, and mail it to me in care of The Mirror, P.O. Box 787, Jensen Beach, Fla. 33457.

If your list is judged to be funny enough to meet the Mirror's high standards for humour, we'll print it, right here in my column, and even tell our readers who the author is. Who knows, this could be your big chance to break into journalism.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:

It is always disappointing when something that can be a good thing for the community gets corrupted by politics such as garbage collection in Port St. Lucie.

For a while last year I worked with a building company in Charlotte County.

Over there garbage and truck collection charges become a part of your tax bill as soon as your house goes on the tax rolls.

Up until that time you are billed individually by the collection service.

In Port St. Lucie there have been problems in several areas of trash not being picked up — of bills not being paid, etc.

When I returned to St. Lucie earlier this year, I called a friend of mine on the city council and suggested that Port St. Lucie should check with Charlotte County and see how it works and does it help eliminate unsightly trash problems. Whether anyone from city hall did that or not I wouldn't know.

However, they did come up with a really ridiculous plan of charging on a millage basis and are asking the voters to vote for it.

To charge a couple in a $110,000 house $93.50 per year and a family of four or five in a $40,000 house $25.50 to have their garbage and trash hauled away is unjust, period. It is a gouge.

In Port Charlotte, which is at least three times as populated as Port St. Lucie, they are taxed $55.00 per year regardless of the value of the house.

Of course Port Charlotte is unincorporated. Maybe that is not a bad idea.

Area fisherman enjoy success

BY DONNIE WILKIE

One might not expect the summer months to provide much fishing action, but last week in the Jensen Beach area was a fairly productive one for area fishermen.

The week of July 30-August 6 saw some decent catches of snook and some very good trout fishing in the Indian River, while a few whiting and snappers showed up, as well.

Hopefuls in the surf found some good-sized whiting and snook, while only one catch was reported offshore.

Jensen Beach's Charlie Arent and Ed Wagner enjoyed their usual banner week, as in four trips they hauled in 70 trout and two channel bass.

Johnny Crawford and Charles Kessler snatched 24 snapper, while they also nabbed five sheepshead and a snook.

On the week, Ray Prell could brag of 11 trouts, up to four pounds each, and his catches were made while wading in the river Ile used plugs.

Ray and Bill Dizzel claimed ten nice trout while in the river using shrimp, and Scott Callivan reeled in 3 snook and four snapper, in the river using live shrimp.

Fred Moller and Ron Ellis got 21 mangrove snapper, as well as assorted other small fish, fishing in the river with shrimp.

Fred Moller and Ron Ellis got 21 mangrove snapper, as well as assorted other small fish, fishing in the river with shrimp.

Kessler also teamed up with Charles and Virgil Bruce to catch 18 trout, up to four pounds, and seven snapper. They were doing their fishing in the river, using shrimp.

Bill Werner brought home a 12½-pound snook, while fishing in the surf at Jensen Beach, with a spoon.

Tom Hargrove hooked 12 whiting in the surf, using cut shrimp; Roy and Lou Brown and Bernard Perron managed to land 14 trout and four snapper, in the river using live shrimp.

Offshore, John and Vinnie Sinizio grabbed a seven-foot sailfish and a bonita, while trolling with mullet.

Weather wise, the week started out rainy, with showers plaguing the efforts of many fishermen from Tuesday (July 31) through Thursday (Augst 2). In those three days, 3.14 inches of precipitation were recorded, while on wednesday, the gauge read 2.47.

After Thursday, though, the weather improved drastically, with almost no rain until 0.22 inches were taken in on Monday.

Black, Swindle tie in golf play

Roy Black and Norris Swindle tied with net scores of 57 in Northport Men's Golf Association play Tuesday. Stan Kazan's net of 58 was good for flight B; Joe Lewsravage had a 60.

In flight C, Jim Williams had a 57; Howard Hazell a 59. Tom Cole again won flight D with a net of 52. Frank Rhein had a 54.

Closest to the pin with tee shots were Ray Mink on the third hole and Henri Pessini on the 12th.

The regular meeting of the Northport group will be Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 7, at the Northport Manna.

Sally Conrad catches 77"long sailfish

On Tuesday, July 31, Conrad and Sally White on their boat "My Gal Sal" were trolling at the end of the day when Sally White had a hit in 210 feet of water at the south east section of the St Lucie inlet.

Sally's first sailfish was 77" inches long, and it was a beauty. It took Sally twenty minutes to bring the fish in. Sally is having the sailfish mounted. Mr and Mrs. White are residents of Port St. Lucie and are originally from New Jersey.

BEWARE, CRABS! — John Kopack and his son, John, Jr., are after you. The Mirror's cameras caught Kopack, from Langhorn, Pennsylvania, spending some of his vacation time "crabbing" underneath a bridge, in the St. Lucie River. Kopack used chicken necks to try to entice the crabs, and judging from his collection of catches, the method proved successful. (Photo by Donnie Wilkie)

Deadline extended for Bafalis poll

Because of unforeseen printing and distribution delays, many residents of the 10th Congressional District are only now receiving the annual district-wide questionnaire, sent out by U.S. Rep. L. A. "Skip" Bafalis.

For that reason, said Bafalis, tabulation of the annual public opinion sampling will be delayed until later this month.

"We want to give everyone who wants to participate a chance to do so," Bafalis said. "So, the original July cutoff date for tabulation has been rescinded."

"I apologize for the delay in getting the questionnaires delivered," Bafalis said., "And I hope all those who planned to participate will still do so."

"The results of this annual mailing are too important to good representation to be ignored. I want to hear from as many of you as care to respond. So please do so," he said.

Barn rehearsals start

Rehearsals are now in progress for the next production of the Barn Theatre in Stuart, "The Madwoman of Chaillot."

According to Barn officials, the play is "a fable spun of logic and cobwebs" and is "a lot for one play-going evening."

The production opens Friday, Sept. 28 and will run for seven performances on Sept. 28 and 29 and October 5, 6, 7, 12 and 13.

The play is under the direction of Ray Hilton. For tickets and information, call the Barn box office at 287 4884.

MORE RUBBLE FOR CAUSEWAY—Though the head of the erosion control experiment on the Jensen Beach Causeway says the pile of rubble on the causeway is not to be used as part of the project, someone obviously not in a county truck, is adding to the pile. When a recent Mirror story was written about the erosion control project, county commission chairman Frank Wacha said the rubble was to be part of the project. However, the project head, Manny Reyes, said this was not the case. When asked Monday about the dumping of rubble on the causeway, Wacha said if it wasn't a county truck, he didn't know who was doing the dumping. The lettering on the side of the truck is unreadable.

CAUSEWAY DAMAGE—We're not sure just what caused the damage to the wall of this pavilion at the Jensen Beach Causeway. Perhaps it was a senseless act of vandalism, or perhaps high winds from one of our recent violent thunderstorms toppled the wall. One Hutchinson Island resident reports that an afternoon thunder storm last week must have contained a small twister, as he came home to find a sailboat he was keeping at the house dismasted and a path of vegetation to the boat uprooted.

Reporters to vacation

A card from Shirley and Roger Miller, says they are camping in their van in Prince Edward Island for eight days. They spent 14 days at their fishing lodge where he caught a 14" bass. Roger caught his finger in the car door and is struggling with only four fingers on his right hand — and it's pretty painful and annoying. Says the weather at Prince Edward Is. is nice and warm in the daytime, and cool at night. They miss VIII — seems most people who are away for the summer, say that.

Harriet and Lee Price are off for a jaunt in their van, but the way Lee never plans a trip, they could end up any place. At least they'll head North, but how far they get, is anybody's guess. Harriet says she will drop a line now and then ... which is what we here at home wish all you who are away, would do. News is sure hard to get.

News from Betty and Paul Drinkard, is they are touring around Lake Erie in their new motor home, and having a good time visiting the sapphire mines. They send regards to all at home.

There will be no column for a couple of weeks, as your reporters will be gone. Jessie is going to visit her sister in Kansas, but keep sending news, and we'll tell all later.

When Jim Bernard came back from Pa., he brought his grandson home with him. Two granddaughters are also visiting.

Willard Auch called to report that Louise was in Martin Memorial Hospital in Room 413. She had some tests and will have more to try to find out why she was having some heart problems.

We all wish her a quick recovery and hope she will soon be her active self very soon. Happy birthday to Bill Goetz on Aug. 11th. Clyde Bonar on Aug. 16th. Anniversary congratulations to Aldyce and Bill Goetz on Aug. 15th and Betty and Edsel Pfabe on Aug. 19th.

HOW TO GET MORE DEPRECIATION

QUESTION: I have heard that the useful life of a property is dictated by the IRS. For example, I heard that I must use a 40-year useful life on my newly acquired apartment building. Are the useful lives for various types of properties cast in stone by the government?

ANSWER:

Not by any means. Naturally the shorter the justifiable useful life you can assign to your property, the more your depreciation deductions will be.

Uncle Sam publishes guidelines that state in effect, "If you use the useful lives set forth for these classes of properties, we won't argue with you."

However, the Supreme Court noted in an important decision that an asset's useful life is "the number of years the asset is expected to function profitably in use." The court also stated that economic usefulness may be shorter than physical life.

It's important then to note some of the factors you should consider in establishing the useful life of your property. 1) Locational factors including population and economic shifts; 2) The "normal progress of the art" in the development of buildings with more competitive amenities; and 3) Land value increases which make the land more valuable without the building.

It should also be noted that one building may require a useful life of 40 years while another may have only a ten-year useful life -- all depending on a combination of factors relating to the property's life expectancy as a profitable entity.

Angiolilli plays priest

Gary Angiolilli, 451 Curtis Street, Port St. Lucie, Florida, is spending the summer months working with the Smoky Mountain Passion Play Association in Townsend, Tennessee.

He plays the major role of the priest Zadok in this outdoor drama association's productions of the "Passion Play," which is the story of Jesus and "Damascus Road," the story of Paul.

Angiolilli is a graduate of Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton, with a major in theatre. He has also received training in the theatre in the London Extension Program of FSU and at Broward Community College. His acting credits include roles in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Hutterfly Buffett," a Children's Theatre production at Broward. Angiolilli also has experience in technical theatre as a make up designer and as a stage manager.

The "Passion Play," is in its seventh season and is being presented every Monday, Wednesday and Friday through August 24 and also on Sunday, August 26. A new drama last summer, "Damascus Road" is in its second season and is being produced each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday through August 25. Reservations and information are available by writing or calling the Smoky Mountain Passion Play Association, Townsend, Tennessee 37882. The telephone is (615) 448-2244. The dramas are presented in the large outdoor Passion Play Amphitheatre, two miles from the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Townsend is 30 miles southeast of Knoxville on Tennessee Route 73.

Volunteers for Billy West

A plea for more volunteers to help young Billy West of Port St. Lucie with "patterning" exercises has been made by Billy's mother, Wanda West.

"A lot of the regular volunteers are on vacation during the summer, so we need more helpers," she said.

Coordinating the volunteer effort is Carol Fink, so if you want to help the four-year-old brain-damaged child, call her at 878-1498.

Billy received brain injury as a result of an operation early in his life and until this year doctors told the Wests that their son's case was hopeless. However, doctors at the Institute for Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia have said he can be helped to lead a normal life. The Institute doctors have set up a rigorous series of "patterning" exercises designed to simulate the movements children learn in early stages of development. For several months now, about a hundred volunteers have pitched in to help the youngster with his exercises.

Post office sites inspected

U.S. Postal Service officials have made inspections of three potential sites for a post office in Port St. Lucie, but it still may be quite awhile before a facility is actually built.

Walt Smith, customer services director at the West Palm Beach Post Office reported earlier this summer that three sites were under consideration. A check on progress toward getting a post office in Port St. Lucie was made Monday and Smith said Postal Service officials have made inspections of the three potential sites. "We've had the sites reviewed, but we'll still have to check a number of things, such as sales prices and zoning before a site selection is made," he said. He commented that he didn't know when a site would be picked. "It's hard to predict when a post office might go in there," he said. He declined to say where the potential post office sites are located.

German youth finds Americans open and friendly

UROPEAN CUISINE.–is demonstrated here by Brockman who is studying to be cook in Europe (Photo by Rick Campbell)

"Young people are all the same" says Mario Brockman, a German cooking student who is visiting his parents in America.

Except for minor differences, Brockman feels that the youth of Germany have the same problems, pleasures and attitudes as those in the United States.

Although he has had five years of English language in school, Brockman does not yet feel really at ease in speaking at length. "We learn Oxford English in Germany," he says, "so I find the Southern accent difficult to understand." While Mario may not believe his communication abilities are up to par, his beautifully accented English and flawless grammar are actually more technically correct than many American dialects.

Brockman has noted that there is a marked difference between the Americans who are living in Germany, and the people he has met in the States. "The only Americans we see in my country are the soldiers living in the barracks. He feels that this gives a distorted view of Americans to his people because these soldiers don't enjoy the freedoms that the average citizens do.

Furthermore, Brockman was quick to point out that the German barracks are cleaner than the American- a Fact that does not escape the Germans when they are forming a picture of American life.

Now that the sixteen year old Brockman has completed his nine years of formal education, he plans to study cooking in Europe for the next three years. The position of chef in Germany, Brockman explains, is a very prestigious one, with some of the top cooks earning $2,500 to $3,000 per month.

This being Mario's longest stay of the four times he has visited America he mentioned that he missed his friends in Germany, although he found the people here to be open and friendly.

The young Brockman was pleasantly surprised to find the girls here "bronze from the sun," as in Germany, with the limited tanning season the people remain white year round. He did notice however, that women were "thicker" in America, resulting most likely, from the nation's tendency toward over consumption.

Other aspects of American life he found to be most enjoyable include the freedom to apply for a driver's license at age 16 and the relative ease with which one can be obtained. "In Germany," he explains, "one must be 18 years of age," and the fee attached to this privilege is an expensive $500.

If this seems a little out of reach for most young people, Brockman feels that compensation comes in the form of drinking and smoking, both of which are open to sixteen year olds in Germany. Brockman mentioned that he likes American cigarettes much better because they are packed tighter than their German counterparts.

Another amazement to the German youth is the size of American cars. "One of the biggest cars you see in Germany is the Mercedes," and most common, he says, are small Volkswagons. He commented though, that Germans drive much faster than Americans. "We have no speed limit on highways in Germany," he said, explaining how hard it is for his family to get used to limiting themselves to 55 m p h.

Also, Mario is one of the few people living in Florida at present who is not complaining about gas prices. Fuel in Germany, though not hard to get, costs $2.90 a gallon, one of the reasons, he believes, that so many people depend on motorized bikes.

Brockman noticed that American police, or at least their television representatives, are far more effective than those in his country, referring to the notion that "police here shoot to kill."

In Germany, on the other hand, police are required to call out "stop, police," first, then they must shoot into the air, and only then are they allowed to shoot the perpetrator in the leg. Brockman felt that German police was too much, and do too little.

Although Americans love to believe themselves leading the ERA parade, Brockman maintained that most German women who finish the American equivalent of high school go on to pursue careers. He has found the situation here to be very much the same.

While Mario says that American movies are "the best in the world," he noted that a dubbed-version of most of them can be seen in Germany. In addition, he favors such English-turned American rock groups as the Beatles, Queen and Peter Frampton, as well as the California born Beach Boys.

"I don't like this custom of dancing apart though," he says, explaining that in Germany young people dance together.

Besides being a cooking enthusiast, Brockman is a goal keeper for the most highly respected soccer team in the Stuttgart area. Among his other sports oriented interests, are tennis, swimming in team competitions and long-distance bicycling.

Soccer in Germany, according to Brockman, is a continuous 90 minute game. For this reason, he finds it difficult to understand why American players take so many breaks of "doing nothing."

Choosing cooking over sports for a profession however, was a decision encouraged by Mario's mother Ursula Loeb Brockman. Mrs. Loeb Brockman, designer and decorator of the Indian River Point Homes which she and her husband are developing, feels that Mario can put his artistic talent into his career, as a certain creativity is an essential part of European cooking.

Although it will be some time before Mario Brockman can open a restaurant of his own, he has already decided that when the time comes, the site will probably be in Europe.

"This country is very nice, and I wouldn't mind living here forever," he says, "but all they cook is hamburgers."

Not a major challenge for an up and coming master European chef, but if Mario bases his decision on what country is most in need of his undeniable culinary talents, Israel may have itself one fine new addition.

Mrs. Stevenson art in library exhibit

Art Associates of Martin County is presenting, in the Martin County Library during the month of August, paintings in oil and pastel by local artist Annabelle Stevenson.

Mrs. Stevenson has been painting for approximately 15 years, taking courses at Lock Haven Art Center in Orlando, Fla., Seminole Jr. College, Sanford, Fla., and the Famous Artists Course.

During the past 10 years she has been painting under the guidance of her well-known artist husband, Edward M. Stevenson. Mrs. Stevenson paints a variety of subjects but enjoys most painting animals and children. She has taught pastel classes for the past three years under the Martin County Adult Education Program and will again be teaching starting the latter part of September. For information concerning the class call Mrs. Stevenson at 283-2935.

Christian Women replace breakfast with luncheon

A change has been made in the Christian Women Club of Stuart. Instead of a breakfast as was planned, a Mother-Daughter Luncheon will be held. Mothers, bring your daughters.

Friday, August 17th, at the Sandpiper Bay Resort in Port St. Lucie, from 12 to 2 p.m., Special music will be the Children's Choir from the 1st Baptist Church of Stuart, a fashion show from the Thimble Boutique. Special speaker will be Patti Williams, author and counselor.

Nursery is available for free at the First Baptist Church of 1400 Commercial Street, Jensen Beach.

Reservations and cancellations are necessary. Call Paule Grossman 286-0083 for Stuart area, Elma Bray 464-3614 for Fort Pierce, and Marge Burn 878-1225, Port St. Lucie.

A prayer coffee will be held Friday, August 10th, 9:30 to 11:30 at the home of Marge Burn, 1949 Crystal Mist St., Port St. Lucie, 878-1225.

Animal Birth Control to meet

The Animal Birth Control Group will hold a special meeting on Thursday, August 9th at 7:30 p.m. in Langford Park Recreation Hall.

At this time reports will be presented on the progress of the animal birth control awareness program for the elementary schools, the planned spay neutering campaign, and the success of the animal attic thrift shop.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting, and the group welcomes all those interested in animal welfare to attend.

Fun runs set this Saturday

The Martin County Runners are sponsoring a series of Fun Runs, Saturday evening, August 11th at 6:30 p.m. at Martin Downs at Crane Creek.

There will be Fun Runs of 5 miles, 2 miles and a ½ mile Family Fun Run. There is no charge, and registration will be prior to the runs.

JEANNIE FRANKLIN'S CHICKEN SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

1 Chicken boiled until tender (cool and cut in pieces)
Cook 1 lb. pkg. of spaghetti in the chicken broth.
Saute 1 large chopped green pepper, 1 large onion and 1 cup chopped celery in ½ stick oleo or butter.
Mix all together with 1 can mushroom soup, 1 can chopped mushrooms and 1 can tomatoes.
Top with 1 lb. Velveeta cheese chunks.
Add a dash of garlic salt.
Add a few slivered almonds.
Bake 30 min. 350 oven. Freezes well.

PEGGY MORROW'S BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

2 pkgs. chopped frozen broccoli (cooked and drained)
1 can cream of mushroom soup
½ cup sour cream
½ cup chopped celery
2 oz. pimiento
½ cup shredded sharp cheese
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper

Combine ingredients and put into buttered 2½ qt. casserole. Bake 350 degrees for 30 min.... This can be put together in the morning before an evening party. While it contains raw celery, this is best crisp.

Wisconsin bank says Silvia owes money

Suit has been filed by the Wisconsin Bank of Ipswich against Port St. Lucie city manager Leonard Silvia, according to a public document received by the St. Lucie County Court House.

Local attorney, Scott Kenny, who is acting as council for the bank, reports that he has in his possession a promissory note in the amount of $2,533.78 plus interest due, which was signed by Silvia on December 19, 1978. As no payment has yet been made on the unsecured loan, the Bank of Ipswich took civil action last week to force Silvia to respond within 20 days. No date has yet been set for a court hearing on the case, which has been assigned to Circuit Court Judge Phillip Nourse.

Silvia says that the lack of payment charge is due to an internal mishap within the bank, and that he has been debating the issue with bank officials since February. No contact has been made as yet between Silvia and Kenny, who commented that he was unaware of any such back and forth dealings between the bank and Silvia.

While he says he will take counter action if necessary, Silvia mentioned that he hopes that this matter can be attented to privately between his attorney and the Bank of Ipswich.

The original personal loan, which was approved to Silvia and his wife, was taken out a couple of months after Silvia moved to Port St. Lucie to assume the job of city manager.

Silvia confirmed that he did indeed sign the promissory note. However he believes that with the subsequent change of personnel at the Bank of Ipswich, the original agreement "fell by the wayside."

Lion members donate blood

Members of the Jensen Beach and Stuart Lions clubs participated in a blood drive last week by donating pints of the precious fluid to the Stuart chapter of the Palm Beach Blood Bank.

According to Blood Bank public relations director Glen Trotta, the donations are sorely needed, as the bank provides up to 30,000 transfusions annually for patients in 15 hospitals in Martin, Palm Beach, Hendry and Okeechobee counties.

Trotta said, "Blood volunteers to the Palm Beach Blood Bank come from all walks of life. Some are replacing blood used by a friend or relative. Others are initiating a Family Plan or giving their credit to a company, fraternal or religious reserve account. Many donors visit the blood bank after reading or hearing of a particular patient whom they want to help. Human blood is a living organ transplant and lives only 21 days on the shelf. Therefore, the blood bank endeavors to maintain safe levels, yet not have a surplus so none will be wasted. Should several hospitals simultaneously call for large quantities of the same blood type, however, a sudden blood shortage may be created."

The Palm Beach Blood Bank faces three major unique problems, he said. "One, Florida's growth rate is almost four times that of the current national average. Therefore, the blood bank must continue to expand and grow with area hospitals in order to provide the ever-increasing amounts of blood called for," he noted. In 1948, there was one small blood bank in Good Samaritan Hospital with a staff of less than six. Today - in addition to the main facility and testing laboratory in West Palm Beach - there are donor stations in Palm Beach Gardens, Boynton Beach, Boca Raton, Jupiter as well as Martin, Hendry and Okeechobee Counties.

"The second problem is the influx of tourists to our area during the winter months. When they use blood, they are often unable to replace it before they return home. And dollars don't fill blood banks. The third problem is our large senior citizen population. Older residents are often blood users and have no one to replace blood for them," Trotta explained.

If you are between 17 and 65 and in normal good health you are eligible to donate.

Your medical history will be recorded, your temperature and blood pressure taken and hemoglobin determined by a registered nurse.

The actual blood donation takes only about 6 minutes and normal activities may be resumed immediately with no after effects. Your blood is carefully typed and tested by skilled technologists at the Palm Beach Blood Bank laboratory in West Palm Beach to be sure it's safe for transfusion.

COUNTY COMMISSION CHAIRMAN Frank Wacha gave blood last week in the name of the Jensen Beach Lions Club. Looking on is Karen Hurley, a nurse with the Stuart chapter of the Palm Beach Blood Bank.

Bible school seeks church unity

The third annual Ecumenical Bible School in Port St. Lucie opened for classes on Monday to an impressive [illegible] children ranging in age from three to twelve.

The program was jointly sponsored by the Holy Faith Episcopal Church, the [illegible] Lutheran Church and the St. Luke United Methodist Church in order to promote unity among the denominations.

"When we were in school, they used to ask the differences between the denominations," says [illegible], Bible School Beth Ottesen. "Now we try to stress how much is alike."

The classes, which are comprised of lessons theologically acceptable to each of the three churches, run from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and will continue for the rest of this week.

Each day begins with a general assembly at which a common theme song is sung by all the age groups. Then a short lesson is presented by one of the three pastors taking part in the program, including Rev. Keith Ewing, Rev. Charles Weant and Rev. W.H. Winkler.

Ottesen commented that this is the first year the Bible School has evoked such a response from the community that trained teachers actually had to be turned away. In addition, craft supplies were donated by parishioners of the three churches after only two Sundays. Ottesen says that in previous years getting such equipment was a struggle.

Among the many adult residents who turned out to make the Bible School a success, Ottesen feels that special credit is due for musical wonders Thelma Sewell, organist at the Lutheran Church, and Ethel Botten, a new member of the Methodist Church.

"They didn't even know each other a few weeks ago, but as soon as they met sparks began to fly," said Ottesen. Sewell plays the piano, while Botten successfully encourages the one hundred eager voices to sing along.

Ottesen feels that part of the fun in organizing a program such as this is to "match up personalities," since she has noticed lasting friendships forming out of the bond that the Bible School provides.

Rev. Ewing believes that the program works so well because it enjoys "the combined resources and leadership of the three churches." Furthermore, he feels that this type of activity shows that the churches are here for the betterment of the community, not for their own self interests.

Assisting Ottesen in the Bible School are Toni Ball, director of the Lutheran program, Deacon Paul Hall, in charge of Sunday School education at the Episcopal Church, and Linda Soobo, who Ottesen says is responsible for bolstering the enrollment from the Episcopal Church from three to the present 18.

A beautiful part of the program, noted by Rev. Ewing was the fact that retired persons, young women, teenagers and children are all working to make the school a success. "I feel like we're goodness," says Ottesen.

In the few moments that it took the children to sing "He's got the whole world in his hands," it became obvious to all looking on that the three churches had achieved the ecumenical unity they were seeking.

FINAL PREPARATIONS—Spear fisherman Joel Kagan adjusts his glove, his last preparation for entering Peck's Lake for a July 1 spear fishing journey. In the background, partner Phil Shuff waits for Kagan to dive in, while the diver's flag behind him warns all other boating traffic to stay at least 500 feet away from the area, due to the divers in the water.

Divers find awesome beauty in coral, fish, caves, ledges must be seen. The beauty of coral formations, the colors of the fish, ledges and caves are awesome.

"You can't relate the beauty of underwater to a novice who hasn't seen it," said Joel Kagan, a diving instructor and a student at FIT.

Seven divers loaded their equipment aboard the "Salli" at the Manatee Passage Marina. Ten tanks filled with air, and large bags that held the diving equipment, weights, wet suits and diving paraphernalia filled the rear deck.

Scott Bates is a basic diver, not yet certified. Jay Stark, Mark Humphrey and Rick Campbell are certified. Phil Shuff, affiliated with the Scuba Shack is a "NAUI", a member of the National Association of Underwater Instructors, and Kagan is a "PATI", a member of the Professional Association of Diving Instructors.

The ocean and river were like glass on the trip to the dive site, about three miles south of the St. Lucie Inlet off Peck's Lake.

We anchored seaward of the gentle breakers that formed above the reef, with a depth of twelve feet.

Each put on a wet suit and neophrene boots.

A colorful buoyancy compensating vest followed. It is designed to compensate for the pressure of the water, allowing the diver to stay on the bottom, or at any level of the ocean by adding or removing air through either an oral tube or by attaching a hose from the tank.

A back pack followed, to hold the aluminum tanks that contained eighty cubic feet of air.

The regulators were attached to the tanks, each person helping another with his gear.

With the knife and the diver's watch, the dressing was complete.

The men divided into teams of three and four, under the buddy system. Some had a special dual regulator, called an "octupus," which had an extra mouthpiece for use by another person who loses his air supply.

They added their weights, each wearing a different combination, ranging from eight to fifteen pounds, depending upon natural buoyancy.

In such shallow water, the dive could last up to 90 minutes.

"We plan the dive. We anticipate emergencies, loss of air, or becoming separated from your buddy," Kagan said. "Visibility changes, and divers will be able to see from five feet in murky water to twenty-five feet on a clear day.

It was clear, and the dive was comfortably safe.

The mask, snorkle and fins went on just as the men were ready to enter the water. Each wet his mask, held his hand over it, and fell backwards into the water.

They held onto the line that held a diver flag on a float until all were in the water. The teams joined together and descended into the reef area. Only a tell-tale burst of bubbles at the surface indicated where they were.

"There was a beautiful cave down there. I saw a nurse shark sleeping under a ledge. It was beautiful," Kagan said.

Carrying spear guns, the divers brought twenty small fish to the surface later.

They saw moray eels, pork fish, barracuda, red and mangrove snapper, margates, drum, hog fish, and hermit and spider crabs.

Mark Humphrey comes from New York, and moans, "The people up there just cannot understand how beautiful the waters are. They just don't know the wonders that you can see down there."

The men made two ninety minute dives that day, each time returning exhilerated.

"Diving should not be tiring," Shuff said as we returned to the marina. "The more experience you have, the more relaxed you are, and that means you can stay down longer because you don't waste air."

Upon the return, the men cleaned the fish and each other's gear as several washed down the boat.

It was a good day, a good dive.

A HARD DAY--Spear fisherman Phil Shuff returns from his July 1 fishing expedition, at Peck's Lake. Shuff went spear fishing with five of his friends, and caught an assortment of snapper, mangroves, red snapper, grouper and sheepshead.

TAKING A DIVE—Jay Stark leaps off the stern of the "Salli," ready to take on the creatures beneath the surface of Peck's Lake, in his July 1 fishing expedition with five of his friends. Stark teamed up, once in the water, with Joel Kagan and Mark Humphrey, and came back with a multitude of salt water fish.

Practice begins on Aug. 13.

CAUGHT IN A BIND: Fort Pierce St. Lucie County's Vince Insogna of Port St. Lucie found the road from second to third base to be an unfriendly one as the state champions from Cookeville, Tennessee noticed he was too far off second in Saturday's game between the two teams. Insogna was finally tagged out by the Tennessee shortstop but the St. Lucians got the last laugh, winning 9-4 and remaining undefeated at press time, while Tennessee went on to lose a 4, in 10 innings, to Huntsville, Alabama. The Regional tournament action is being held through Thursday night at Lawnwood Complex in Fort Pierce.

St. Lucie All-Stars become champ-killers

BY DONNIE WILKIE

As the 1979 Babe Ruth League Southeastern united States Regional tournament unfolded last weekend and into this week, it became obvious at Lawnwood Complex in Fort Pierce that someone stole the event's script from a Hollywood film production, and merely changed a few minor details to make it suitable for airing on the baseball field.

Given a free ride to the Regional tournament because it was the host team, the St. Lucie County All Stars silenced even the most skeptical critics, sending three of the South east's eight state champions on their way to extinction and advancing to the winner's bracket final game, as of press time.

Rain washed out the St. Lucians scheduled showdown with the other Florida squad entered in the week long, double elimination extravaganza, Miami, Monday night, but the game was rescheduled for last night (Tuesday) with the winner advancing to tomorrow night's (Thursday) championship round.

Meanwhile, as of late Monday night, the field of nine aspirants had been trimmed to five, with North Carolina's and Georgia's champs battling it out in a rain delayed game. The winner was scheduled to face Huntsville, Ala bama, a 5-4 winner over Cookeville, Tennessee in a 10 inning thriller, in Tuesday's 8 p.m. game.

Tonight (Wednesday), the Alabama North Carolina or Georgia winner faces the Miami Fort Pierce loser at 6 p.m., with that winner squaring off against the Miami Fort Pierce victor at 6 p.m., Thursday.

No one had thought the St. Lucians had any chance of winning the event, but after the weekend, that changed.

In their march over the state titlists from Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina, pitching emerged as the theme, with three different St. Lucie hurlers stopping the visitors in their tracks.

The most impressive of the All Star pitchers was Denny Green, who allowed only one hit and one walk against Virginia in the featured Friday opening game. Green retired every other batter he faced, most of whom were strikeout victims, since Green whiffed 16 over the seven-inning distance.

At one point, Green, not regarded as the St. Lucians' strongest pitcher before the tourney, struck out seven straight batters, and sent ten of the first 12 he faced back to the dugout having heard the words, "Strike three!"

All three of Fort Pierce's tallies in the 3-0 shutout win came when players walked, then later scored. Only once, though, did a hit have anything to do with the scoring of a run.

It was an infield single by Kenny Lassens, of Port St. Lucie, and it indirectly brought the first run across the plate for the winners. As Virginia second baseman Tony Habn threw the ball late and wild over the first baseman's head, allowing Brian Stone to score, giving St. Lucie a 1-0 lead.

In the fourth frame, one inning later, Terrance McGriff walked, went to second on a wild pitch, and was bunted over to third by first baseman Todd Gilmore, who hit a blistering .667 in the three games, McGriff then watched as Virginia's catcher, Rusty Irby, tossed a pick-off throw into left field, giving the Westwood High School All Conference catcher safe passage to the plate.

In the fifth, Green walked, and was removed (temporarily, thanks to a special rule allowing the pitcher to have a pinch runner once in a game) in favor of pinch runner Bruce Jorgenson, who advanced to second on an error, to third on a ground ball, and home on a wild pitch.

DENNY GREEN
16 strikeout win began miracle

In fact, Fort Pierce only recorded two hits in the opener, as Stone blooped a scratch single into center field in the first inning and Lassens grounded an infield hit. Virginia was less fortunate, as only Brian Van Gordon could collect a hit against Green, who was scheduled to reappear in the St. Lucians Tuesday effort against Miami.

The hitting improved in game two, a 9-4 trouncing of Tennessee. Fort Pierce trailed 4-3 when Tenpessee rallied for four runs in the third inning, but after that, it was all St. Lucie.

Sunday's victory over North Carolina was one in which Fort Pierce had the look of a winner. The All Stars knew what they had to do, and they did it — all in the first inning, in fact.

Stone doubled to get things started, and scored on Lassens' single. Green followed with a single, scoring Lassens from second the had gotten there with a stolen base), and McGriff tripled to deep left-center, which in any other park but Lawnwood would have been a home run. Then, after one out, Gilmore singled, scoring the fourth run of the inning, all the support that pitcher Cornell Haughabook needed.

After Scott Whitaker's banner performance against Tennessee the pitched four innings in relief, striking out eight) and Green's masterpiece versus the Virginians, it seemed impossible for a third pitcher to match them. But Haughabook, who hurled four no hitters in league play this year, succeeded in doing so, allowing the Tar Heels just six hits in a complete game, 5-1 victory.

Suddenly, Fort Pierce, St. Lucie or whatever they wish to be called was just two games away from the Babe Ruth League-World series in Nogales, Arizona, August 18-21.

Lawnwood Complex is located on Virginia Avenue in Fort Pierce, about two miles west of U.S. 1 and Seaarrown. Those wishing to attend the game need not buy tickets in advance, for they are all sold at the gate.

The Championship Game

Baptists zonk WSTU Radio...

BY DONNIE WILKIE

One had to wonder just how many more times one team could bounce back.

After merging three different teams, all of them strong into one, but then suffering through an up and down 13 regular season, no one seemed to be able to figure out the Baptist Church's Civic League softball team.

Worse yet, after an impressive rout of Andy's Hamburgers in the first round of the post season tournament, the Baptists staggered through a lack luster, 10-9 win over the last place Jensen Bch. Fire Department, then dropped a 10-1 decision to the defending champions, the Jensen Beach Optimist Club.

When it seemed that perhaps the Baptists were ready to be counted out of the 1979 Civic League Classic, they put together their best defensive showing of the season, recording a 3-0 shutout of WSTU Radio Monday night and setting up a rematch of last year's Civic finalists.

But this time, when the Baptists (7-4) step on the Landlord Park softball diamond at 7 p.m., Thursday night (tomorrow), the roles will be reversed. Last season, the surviving Baptist team (the Red Sox) entered the final with an unblemished tournament record, having previously downed the Optimists in an early round showdown. Thursday, though, it will be the Optimist Club that takes the field knowing it only must win one game of two, while the Baptists must win two games in a row to cop their first championship.

The latest Baptist bounce back act, Monday night's semi-final triumph, featured a whole troup of outstanding performers.

While first time pitcher Russ Hughes, filling in for the vacationing John Pederson, did an admirable job of tossing the softball, other Baptists like left fielder Bill Hasenp and shortstop Paul Nassar put on an equally admirable exhibition of catching it, as the church squad allowed but five hits to Ja had by the Radio Wonders.

For a moment in the middle innings, it appeared that WSTU might pull a repeat performance of last week's come from behind win over First Federal of Martin County, but although the league's most improved side managed two hits in both the fourth and fifth innings, they were unable to snatch the game's momentum from the fired up Baptists.

It didn't take very long for the Baptists to draw first blood in the top of the first frame. After Gordon Proctor opened the game with a single and scampered to second on Nassar's fly ball to left field, Hasenp drilled a single to left center that would have been a double had not the former Martin County trackster slipped after rounding first base. Needless to say, Proctor scored to make it 1-0.

The only hit by either team after that, until the fourth inning, Steve Norris' bloop double into left field, was wasted, as the Hughes-Dave George pitching duel seemed destined to end with the score 1-0.

But hard-hitting Dave Malhorn followed Hughes' one-out single with a run-scoring double in the fourth, extending the Baptists' lead, and Mike Casey added another tally in the fifth when he scored from second on Proctor's second hit of the night, a single.

In the meantime, WSTU threatened to score after each Baptist break through, but five fly balls to the out field spoiled the Wonders' chances of scoring, after Gary Shelt and George had singled in the fourth, and Dave Norman and Tim Beegle had done likewise in the fifth.

The most inspired rally killer was Hasenp, who turned two of the fly balls into outs, rather than singles, with remarkable catches.

What few baserunners the Radio Wonders did have seemed to self-destruct, as the aggressive baserunning tactics employed by WSTU backfired, with three different players meeting their ends, either while attempting to grab an extra base or after overrunning second base.

As a result, it will be the Baptists who try to unseat Bill Mang's group of Optimists tomorrow night (Thursday). Most observers felt that the 6:30 p.m. first game will decide the title, as the Optimists do not fare well in a double-header situation when faced with having to win the second contest.

Even Mang admitted that his gang should enfrogn themselves with the task of winning the first game, rather than let the luxury of having only to win one out of two go to their heads.

The Optimists' infield averages as much as 16 years of age with certain defensive combinations, and it has been said more than once that it is the outfield, not the infield, that has the Optimist Club where they are.

BY GEORGE, HE MADE IT BACK: WSTU Radio's Dave George found himself in an unusual position during a recent game between the Jensen Beach Optimist Club and WSTU. The first baseman pitcher was caught going the wrong way when Optimist shortstop Joe Grzetka nabbed a line drive. But as Rob Phillips position testifies, the throw to first was wide, allowing George to crawl back to the bag safely. WSTU lost that game, and also lost Monday night, eliminating them from the Civic League tournament, while the Optimists are in tomorrow's Thursday final game.

...but the Optimists are waiting for them

Jerry Bocchino and Mike Wegler each clubbed three hits, leading the Jensen Beach Optimist Club to a 10-4 victory, bracket victory over the First Baptist Church of Stuart, earning the defending champions a spot in tomorrow night's (Thursday) Civic League championship round.

The Optimist Club overcame a sluggish state in the fifth inning, scoring seven times to break open a close struggle. The Baptist Church, winners over Andy's and the Jensen Bch Fire Department in their first two games, never recovered.

Winning pitcher Bill Mang limited the Baptists to just eight hits, while helping his own cause at the plate with two hits, including a two run single that put icing on the cake in the sixth inning.

Paul Nassar's wild throw to first base allowed Bob Jackson to reach base safely and started the decisive fifth frame. Jan Payne and Bocchino followed with singles, scoring Jackson and tying the game, 2-2.

An error on a sharp ground ball by first baseman Dave Malhorn allowed two more runners to cross home plate, and another scored on Wegler's RBI single, making it 5-2. Mike Jordon singled and Nick Blount walked to load the bases before Mang's first hit, a single, scored Phillips.

The final two runs came on a single by Russ Billings and a sacrifice fly ball by Jackson.

The Optimists added to their 8-2 ... in the sixth on Mang's two run hit, but the Baptists got those two back in the seventh when John Pederson, Russ Hughes and Mike Casey hit singles to start the inning. Bill Hasenp's ground ball was responsible for a second run, but the aborted comeback was not nearly enough.

The Optimist Club (9-1) took an early 1-0 lead in the first inning, as Wegler singled, then ran to third on an outfield error before scoring on Mike Jordon's single.

But the Baptists, behind the effective early pitching of David Marlow, the eventual losing pitcher, rallied with an unearned run in the third frame and the go-ahead tally in the top of the fifth.

Bill Hasenp singled in Hughes to give the Baptists (6-4) the lead, but it was short lived.

Mang's Optimist crew got a little help from WSTU Radio in the night's second game, as the Radiomen burst First Federal's bubble, 5-3. The second upset defeat in four games for Frank Hughes' squad eliminated the regular season champs from the tournament, as they had already lost to the Jensen Bch Fire Department, 6-3.

WSTU Radio 5 First Federal 3

WSTU scored only two earned runs on the night, but they did manage nine hits off David Bocchino, the starting and losing pitcher, who had tossed a no-hitter the previous evening in FFMC's 20-9 rout of Headquarters.

First Federal scored twice in the first inning, as Nick Barker, Malcolm Delaney, Chris Crook and Steve Coy rapped consecutive singles with two outs. The Federalites offset an unearned WSTU tally in the third, when they got one of their own.

But the 3-1 lead was in jeopardy in every inning after that, until WSTU finally broke through in the fifth frame.

The first run scored on Hamp Elliott's single, but FFMC had already committed two errors in the inning. Joe Quick followed with an infield hit to load the bases, then FFMC second baseman Roger Welker made a costly mistake at second base that allowed the tying and go ahead runs to score. Mike Paul stroked a single to score a final run, giving the Radio Wonders their final cushion.

Doug Hughes' double in the sixth inning and Bocchino's single in the seventh amounted to all the offensive punch the state's second-best 16 ja year-old team could muster in the final two innings.

So while the Baptists go on to the final, the Radiomen must look to next year, and a chance to play the kind of ball they played in the tournament during the regular season. If they do that, they could be a contender.

The Baptist Church, meanwhile, will have to win two games against the Optimist Club tomorrow night (Thursday) as they are coming out of the loser's bracket.

Last year, the Optimists did just that, winning two games in a row against one of three Baptist Church teams, the Red Sox. The Optimists scored five runs in the seventh inning of the last game for an 8-7 victory.

The Optimists are favored in game one, but should there be a game two, the Baptists have an edge, due to the Optimist Club's poor tournament and doubleheader record, especially in the second game.

Fort Walton Beach team came to Satellite just to 'play some ball'

BY DONNIE WILKIE

When Jensen Beach's First Federal junior softball team arrived in Satellite Beach two weeks ago for the state 16-18 year old championship tournament, one of the first things the entourage did was check the tourney brackets. They were quickly told that they would not have to play Boynton Beach in the first round as scheduled, due to the South Florida team's withdrawal from the event.

Also on the bracket was the name of a team from Fort Walton Beach — well, all the bracket really said was District 1 runner-up. No one from the FFMC group had any idea who the runner up from District 1 was.

The team turned out to be "To A Tee," a late entrant in the tournament because the actual runner-up from District 1 was unable to make the trip to Satellite. On the bracket, they were no different from any other team, and, as it developed later, they lost in two straight games, hardly the inspiration for any prolonged attention by the other squads or the fans.

This team was unique, though. To A Tee had no coach, no substitutes, and absolutely no idea of how well they would or wouldn't do in the tournament.

"Our recreation department told us Thursday (they were in Satellite playing Friday night) that there was an opening for us if we wanted to play," said first baseman Randy Parrott, on paper the team's manager, although with ten players, they just took the field and played the game.

"We all just jumped in a van and a station wagon, and off we went," said Parrott. "We drove here in about nine hours from Fort Walton Beach," which is a 700 mile trip.

How did they get to Satellite so fast?

"We averaged about 85 miles an hour," chuckled the first baseman.

Parrott's teammates included outfielders Jude Seilhan, Jeff Singleton, Danny Sotler, and Craig Parker, infielders Tim Lewis, Wayne Garrett and Garry Seilhan, as well as pitcher Joey Brigman and his brother, catcher Walter Brigman.

The amazing thing about the whole experience was that To A Tee's 22-1 opening night loss to the eventual third place team, the Satellite Rockets, didn't even seem to faze Parrott and teammates.

"We don't usually play well in the first inning," he said in a bit of an understatement, since the Rockets sent no less than ten men scampering across home plate in the disastrous first frame.

Parrott promised that his team would fare better in their second game, although few believed him at the time. But To A Tee surprised the skeptics with a much better showing in their Saturday morning game, although they lost to Coral Springs, 10-5.

The team was just there for the fun, explained the squad's ten members, who raised their own money for the trip.

"It's really our vacation," added catcher Brigman, whose brother Joey took both defeats as the To A Tee pitcher. "When we get done here, we're going straight to Disney World."

Parrott, though, defended his teammates, pointing out that they usually put on a respectable showing.

"We're really a good team," he said. "We did fairly well against Randall's (the other Fort Walton team entered at Satellite) in our district. We figured when we got a chance to come down here that we might have a chance to win, but we really only came to play ball and have a good time."

Parrott explained his election as the team manager by saying that he "was the only one there to sign the paper."

"He was the only one on the team that could write," joked one of his teammates.

"Our only sponsorship came from Pizza Pub'in Fort Walton Beach, and we got a hundred dollars from them," said Parrott. "The worst part is we have to pay them back seventy-five when we get back.

"Walter (Brigman) works at To A Tee (a t-shirt store), and he got them to make up our uniform shirts. But that's all the help we got."

First Federal's Hughes came over to the dugout after the 22-1 loss to Satellite. All he said was, "Are you having a good time?"

The answer was obvious.

Somewhere in the background, a player screamed, "C'mon, we've got a party to go to."

Now that's the spirit!

Miller, Freeman lead teams to PSL wins

Rich Miller clubbed six hits in six trips to the plate, leading the Professionals to a runaway victory, while Troy Freeman belted two home runs and a double, helping his PSL Storm to a come-from-behind win, all in the first day of action in the newly formed Port St. Lucie Slo-Pitch softball League.

The Professionals made the most impressive showing in last Sunday's tripleheader at Sportsman's Park, whipping the Civitan Club, 21-6, but two other squads, the Storm and the '62 Mets (that's right) also won their opening games.

Freeman's outburst gave the Storm a 19-12 victory over a scrappy Yankees team, while the Mets scored seven runs in the sixth inning to overcome an 8-1 deficit, going on to deck Gold Shield, 13-11.

Sunday's action was not all perfect, however. There were the usual little problems that creep up when a new league is formed, but the fine softball produced by the league's six teams should go a long way toward overcoming any of the minor problems.

The Professionals, playing in the nightcap, scored four runs in the first, third and ninth frames (the PSL plays nine-inning games, for the moment, anyway) and also enjoyed a five-run sixth and a three-run fifth frame en route to their lopsided win.

Miller lined five singles into the Civitan outfield, and, in his last at-bat, added a run-scoring triple, giving him a 6-for-6 performance with four runs batted in and three runs scored.

His teammates socked the ball, as well, as the Pros piled up 27 hits in setting the first-week league record in that category. Keith Akre rapped four hits, while Morty Allison added three. In addition, Eric Bergamyer, Dink Cecconi, Donnie Wilkie, Steve Vaughn, Dennis Miller and Wylie Green all smacked two hits. In short, it was a Professional explosion of offensive production.

Third baseman Vaughn solidified the Pro defense with at least three exceptional plays at the "hot corner," although the rest of the squad committed six miscues.

For the Civitans, Ken Wopshall, Don Determan, Ray Mink and Steve Sample recorded two hits each, as the Club got but ten for the evening.

In the night's opening game, Gold Shield jumped out to a quick 6-0 advantage with a first-inning barrage, and stretched the lead to 8-1 before the Mets came charging back.

The Mets had smacked just five hits in the game through the first five five frames, but suddenly came to life in the sixth, blasting eight hits, including boomers by Gary Brown (a three-run shot) and Howard Chittenden (a two-run bomb) and tying the game at 8-8.

They took the lead for the first time in the seventh inning, as two runs scored on a sacrifice fly ball off the bat of Frank Schaeffer, but Gold Shield tied it up again in the eighth with run-scoring singles by Lou Episcopo and Frank Nuniate.

Finally, the Mets pulled ahead for good in their half of the eighth, as the go-ahead run scored on an error, and Julio DiDonato followed with a clinching two-run home run to left field. The final blast turned out to be the game-winning hit, as Gold Shield struck back for a single tally in the ninth to cut the margin of victory.

E. T. Reid and Jim Valentine slammed triples for the losing Gold Shield squad.

In the Yankees-Storm game, a 9-4 Yankee lead in the early going proved insufficient, as the Storm scored nine runs in the eighth inning to win their opener.

By then, the Yankees had figured out Freeman, opting to walk the slugger twice (once with the bases loaded) rather than risking another long blast. But errors and walks on the part of the Yankees, as well as a crucial home run by Rich Moore, decided the outcome in the eighth inning.

Ron Marchu, Larry Anson and John Antonini ripped three hits for the losers, while Antonini unloaded a solo home run in the fourth inning.

Action continues this Sunday, with the PSL Storm meeting Gold Shield at 5 p.m., the somewhat amazing Mets taking on the Professionals at 7 p.m., and the Civitans challenging the Yankees at 9 p.m. Admission to the games is free.

reasure Coast favors Ft. P. Mall

reasure Coast Regional Planning uncil staff members have issued a ort recommending approval of the posed 580,005 square foot Fort ce Mall.

The staff report attaches several ditions to the recommendation for roval of the mall, but lists several orable impacts the mall will have the region. The mall is to be built ng Okeechobee Road opposite that ad's intersection with Virginia enue in Fort Pierce. Plans call for a 000 square foot department store, a 000 square foot department store, a 000 square foot department store, 109,000 square foot department re and 150,000 square feet in opping space for smaller stores. 000 square foot office park is ned to cater for mall need in the Treasure Coast Regional Planning uncil members are expected to onsider a request for approval of the as when the council meets at 9:30 Thursday, Aug. 9, at the Martin unty Administrative Center on ndrea Avenue in Stuart. Before the 20 million mall can be built, it must ve approval of the council and of the Lucie County commission. The unty commission is planning a aring on the mall on Oct. 2. If approval of the commission and uncil is given, the mall plans will en go to state planners for final approval.

Because the mall is to be so large, it considered a development of regional impact, thereby requiring uncil and state approval in addition to county commission approval.

Treasure Coast council staff mem ers list four favorable impacts the mall will have on the area:

1. The mall is expected to employ 1,940 permanent jobs, primarily in the $7,840 to $10,000 annual salary range.

2. The mall will provide shopping opportunities to an area not now serviced by the type of stores the mall will include.

3. The county government is expected to receive $81,072 a year in revenue from the mall, and the county school board is expected to receive $147,758 a year in revenue from the mall. Both of these figures, council staff planners say, are expected to "significantly exceed" the costs to those two governmental bodies for the mall to come in.

4. The concentration of shops at the mall should reduce the number of trips area residents would make to regional malls in Cocoa, Melbourne or Palm Beach, and consequently would reduce the amount of gas consumption that would have been used for trips to those distant malls.

The report states that the proposed mall will have no significant impact on air quality, wetlands, vegetation and wildlife, wastewater, drainage, or police and fire protection, among other items.

The planning staff says the location of the mall is good both on a short term and a long term basis. It will be located a short distance east of the Okeechobee Road intersections with I-95 and the Florida Turnpike.

Secondary impacts listed by the council planning staff include:

1. A relocation of shopping activities in the central Fort Pierce business district.

2. Traffic capacity on surrounding roads. The staff report says this impact can be mitigated by road improvements that are made a part of conditions for the staff's recommendation for approval of the mall.

3. The mall's expected electrical demand will exceed state standards. However, the staff has suggested several ways to reduce electrical demand.

Included as conditions upon which mall approval is recommended is a requirement that the site clearing and foundations for the mall must be completed within four years of project approval or the plan will have to be reviewed again. Also, turning lanes for two entrances to the mall, plus turning lanes at Virginia Avenue and Okeechobee and on Hartman Road at Okeechobee are required.

The mall project is planned to be built in three phases. The first phase, to include three department stores and a number of smaller shops, is to be completed in the Spring of 1981. The second phase, which will be a 100,000 square foot department store, is to be finished in 1984, while an additional 72,000 square feet of office park space is planned for phase three, to be finished in 1989.

Mel Sembler Associates of St. Petersburg is the applicant for the mall project.

Women's Association coming events

Area business women now have the opportunity to share business experiences as members of the American Business Women's Association, Ms. Carol Dost, a local Fort Pierce resident and chairman of the membership committee of the Dutchess Charter Chapter of the ABWA will be conducting interviews throughout the months of August and September for their special enrollment event. In recognition of the Associations 30th Anniversary a special theme focuses on meeting personal and professional goals through ABWA membership.

The event promises to be a festive highlight of the American Business Women's Association new member enrollment this fall. ABWA enrollment events are held semi-annually to introduce ABWA and the local chapter to business women in this area. Throughout this period, similar events will be held across the country by more than 1,600 other ABWA chapters.

The goal of the ABWA is to help women in business advance through education, increased competence, and through upgrading of professional skills and business attitudes, Ms. Dost said.

The association, founded in Kansas City, Missouri in 1949, now has more than 100,000 members. Last year, ABWA chapters throughout the United States and Puerto Rico awarded more than one million dollars in scholarships to women students. In addition, the ABWA National Scholarship fund, SBMEF, awarded another $150,000 in scholarships during the same period.

Membership is by invitation only. For further information, interested business women may contact Ms. Carol Dost at 461-6120, Membership chairman, or Miss Teresa Pauley at 461-3900, Enrollment Chairman.

BEWARE! the "RUST MONSTER"
He works 24 hours a day

QUESTION
How and where does rust start?

ANSWER

Rust starts anywhere. Rust is formed by the union of oxygen in the air with iron or steel by a process called oxidation. Moisture is an important agent in producing the change. Anywhere you have unprotected metal parts, oxygen and moisture, you can and probably will have rust. But rust may not always be evident. Rust can form inside hollow metal parts, below metal surfaces and inside hidden seams.

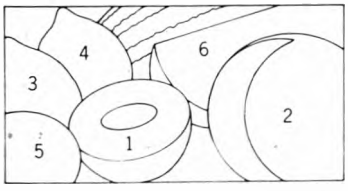
Picking melons that aren't lemons.

Shake, rattle, roll and thump. It's not a new dance. Or a new game. It's the way many people try to pick a good melon in the produce department.

And it can be a big disappointment. Melons that look (and sound) great from the outside are sometimes not so great tasting. So if you've ever been unhappy with melons in the past, Publix has good news for you. We'll help you learn how to pick the best.

There are just a few simple things to look for. But you're really ahead of the game if you start your melon picking at Publix. We buy only the best that's available all season long.

Knowing your melons.



1 Cantaloupes — oval shaped with a thick, coarse netting standing out from the yellowish skin. Instead of a stem, there should be a "fingerprint," a slightly sunken smooth scar at the stem end.

2 Persians — rounder than cantaloupes. Rind should be deep green and evenly covered with fine netting.

3 Crenshaws — round at the blossom end, pointed at the stem end. Look for golden-green rind with no netting, but sometimes slight furrows.

4 Casabas — pumpkin shaped and slightly pointed at stem end. No netting, but the buttery-yellow rind is wrinkled with furrows. A small stem may be attached.

5 Honeydews — generally smooth, but may be slightly netted. Rind becomes creamy-yellow and velvety to the touch when ripe.

6 Watermelons — symmetrically shaped with a yellowish underside. Smooth skin should be a slightly dull, green color.

IN RE: ESTATE OF CARSON SUTTON
Deceased

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION
TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the estate of CARSON SUTTON, deceased, File Number 79 251, is pending in the Circuit Court for St. Lucie County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is P.O. Box 700, Fort Pierce, Florida 33450. The personal representative of the estate is Emily Morgan, whose address is 1202 Euchee Creek Place, Sandspring, Oklahoma 74063. The name and address of the personal representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.

All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.

ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS, AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.

Date of the first publication of this Notice of Administration: August 1, 1979

NOTICE

A public hearing will be conducted before the City Council of the City of Port St. Lucie on Tuesday, August 28, 1979 at 9:00 a.m., City Hall, corner of Port St. Lucie and Alcosa Boulevards "City Hall Plaza", Port St. Lucie, Florida on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE 79-23

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING A VARIANCE TO EDWIN AND CAROLE ANDERSON, FOR LOT 23, BLOCK 536, PORT ST. LUCIE SECTION 16, AS RECORDED IN PLAT BOOK 12, PAGE 49 D, OF THE PUBLIC RECORDS OF ST. LUCIE COUNTY, FLORIDA, FROM THE REQUIREMENT OF THE NORTH SIDE ZONING SETBACK, PURSUANT TO SECTION 19-6 OF ORDINANCE 76-1; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE HEREBY ORDAINS:

WHEREAS, The City of Port St. Lucie, Florida, was requested by EDWIN ANDERSON and CAROLE ANDERSON, the sole owners of the land described below, to grant a variance on the below described property, from the required north side setback of TEN feet; and

WHEREAS, The City Council, having determined that the granting of this variance will be in harmony with the general purpose and intent of Ordinance 76-1; and

WHEREAS, The City Council, having made a finding that the granting of this variance is for the minimum variance that will make possible the reasonable use of this land; and

WHEREAS, the variance will not be detrimental to the public welfare or injurious to the neighborhood, and notice to adjoining property owners for a radius of 500 feet being given and advertising of public hearing being made, and the City Council having held a public hearing on the 24th day of July, 1979, and having considered the same, it is

THEREFORE ORDAINED THAT:

1. The City Council of the City of Port St. Lucie hereby grants to EDWIN ANDERSON and CAROLE ANDERSON, a variance from the terms of Ordinance 76-1, from a TEN foot required north side setback to a 2'3" foot required north side setback, the south side setback remaining at the required TEN feet, on the following described land:

Volunteer must apply and wait 11 months before she can become a certified EMT

BY DICK CAMPBELL
(Third in a series)

When Maggie Ladden moved to Jensen Beach on June 1, she wanted to serve her community. She joined the Jensen Samaritan squad. She wanted to become an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT).

Maxine Bailey, president of the Samaritans, told Ladden that she would have to wait until September 6 (90 days) for the next EMT course to be offered. However, she suggested taking the defensive driving course and the medical self-help course required to become a driver, a prerequisite to becoming an EMT.

Ladden passed the medical self-help course on June 25.

The defensive driving course was given the first two Saturdays of each month at the Jensen Environmental Center.

It should have been an omen, for when Ladden arrived that first Saturday no one was there. Later, she learned that the courses were cancelled for the summer, and no one had told the Samaritan Ambulance squad about it.

Samaritan officials then set up their own course, and finally found a state certified teacher. The course was given at the Samaritan squad room on July 18 and 19.

The instructor was a joke. He didn't know how to teach. He spent most of the time talking about himself," Ladden complained.

She received her defensive driving card and had already, on June 25, received her medical self-help card.

With those requirements achieved, Ladden then began the application process to become an EMT.

Previously, the Samaritans found that the EMT courses offered by Indian River Community College were only held in the daytime. Bailey asked and received permission to hold EMT classes at the Samaritan Squad room on Tuesday and Thursday nights from September 6 to December 16 so that volunteers who work during the day could attend. The Samaritans are donating the hall and the medical equipment for the course.

Members of the Samaritan squad get their training paid for by Martin County.

Ladden was told that she had to fill out a form that was an "application for admission," and to include a ten dollar entrance fee. She called the Roschman site of IRCC and was told she would have to go to Ft. Pierce to get the form.

I insisted that the forms were available there, and when the person on the phone checked it out they were there," she said.

On July 20, she went to the Roschman site and was handed forms that included an application for emergency medical technician, full medical records and dental records.

She brought those back, and Bailey told her she would be able to take the medical examination at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Ladden contacted Doni Haas, RN, Emergency Medical Services coordinator, and was scheduled in on July 23. It was on the same day that she had her annual checkup from her own gynecologist.

Haas gave Ladden some initial tests, then gave her an envelope for X-rays, telling her to come back for the X-rays "when I had my period."

"I had just had my period. I told her I had just come from my gynecologist, and asked if his information would suffice. She said no."

Ladden projects that she would be able to have the X-ray taken on August 16. After the X-ray, she would have even more tests to complete the physical at the hospital.

Haas said that her personal dentist would be able to provide the dental information.

On July 25, Ladden received an envelope containing the same forms she had picked up at the Roschman site, with more health record forms. Written at the top of the form was "Fill out and return by August 1."

"Why didn't they give me these at the Roschman site? How can I fill them out by August 1 when I can't get the X-ray taken until August 16, and still have more tests?" she complained, adding, "and why do I have to make three trips to the hospital?"

On July 31, Ladden received a call from Bailey, telling her that she also had to have a high school transcript for IRCC. Bailey said it was the first time that one had been required.

"I don't have one. I do have a diploma and a yearbook from high school, but a transcript will take more time," Ladden said. "What if they don't keep records back 28 years? Does it mean I can't be an EMT if I haven't finished high school?" added the former legal secretary.

A week later, Bailey received a call clarifying the transcript problem. IRCC required a transcript only if the candidate wanted a college credit for the course.

On August 3, Haas called from the hospital, telling Ladden she should get the physical before the X-ray to get things moving. She was to bring the forms to be filled out.

The appointment was set up for August 7 at 6:50 a.m. She was to drop the forms off to Haas that Friday. Haas then called her back on Monday and wanted forms filled out, so Ladden answered some of the questions over the telephone.

A Mirror Exclusive

Shortage of EMTs might just be due to the system

All of the above must be completed before Ladden can register to take the EMT course to be a volunteer.

When Ladden completes the course December 16, if she can indeed get all the pre-registration forms completed by the time the course starts, she would have to wait until February to take the state board licensing examination.

It takes two months after the state exam before she learns the test results and is licensed, some time in April.

The tests are given either in Orlando or West Palm Beach only three times a year; February, June and October.

Thus, providing that everything goes smoothly, it will take Ladden eleven months to become an EMT...a long time when it is considered that the training period is just three and a half months.

The training part of the licensing is important, and Ladden wants to be qualified if she is an EMT.

"It is necessary to be properly trained. That is important to me. But why all these road blocks?

"Why all this run-around just to be able to take the course? Why do I have to do all this when I want to volunteer to serve my community? And, what more do I face in the future?"

Ladden paused, shaking her head.

"Do you think I have a legitimate beef? All I want to do is take the course."

MOUNDS OF PAPERWORK—One of the complaints aired about the difficulty of becoming a certified Emergency Medical Technician is that there is too much paperwork to complete in order to sign up for the Indian River Community College EMT course. THE GRAND SLAM GIRL—Jensen Beach's Kathy Rinaldi holds the championship cup on top of her head, after becoming the first junior player (boy or girl) in American tennis history to win the "Grand Slam" — the national 12-under Indoors, Clay Courts, Hardcourts and the USTA Championships. Her 6-4, 6-1 victory over Ginny Purdy of Indianapolis, Indiana last Saturday gave her the USTA title, played at Wellington in West Palm Beach. She swept through the championships, winning six matches, while losing just two sets in the process, prompting some to call her "the next Chris Evert." See pictures and story on Page 13. Sewall's Point sets budget at $262,202

Last week, the Sewall's Point Town Commissioners held their regular meeting where they voted to tentatively adopt this year's budget figure of $262,202.

While other municipalities are leaning towards higher millage rates to cover rising expenses, Sewall's Point has lowered its rate from 1.8723 to 1.8700 mills.

The town will be starting the fiscal year with an operating fund of $55,436 carried over from last year. Included among anticipated revenue is $38,850 which will be gained from franchise tax, $15,000 from building permits, $31,998 from State Revenue sharing, and $6,000 from road tax refund. Fines and forfeitures will account for $9,000 in revenue, and interest on investments made is expected to earn $10,000.

Property values have been assessed at $47,897,545 from which the town expects to make $89,568 in real estate taxes.

Although millage rates are down from last year, the estimated budget is up from the 1978 figure of $230,844. The increase in this year's budget is partly due to the seven per cent increase in salary for the Town's Police force. The salary for police chief will be $13,768.12 with the three patrolmen earning $12,385.46. Payroll taxes including administrator, police, building, and maintenance departments will account for $4,174.48 of the estimated budget. Life and health insurance costs are down from last year at $3,780.52 and professional services are up from $13,000 to $20,000 due to the work being done on South River Road.

A capital outlay of $60,000 is expected for River Road. Additionally, $10,000 will be spent for a needed bike path. $8,000 has been allocated for a new patrol car, and $2,700 will go towards a gas tank for the town hall. Total capital outlay is expected to be $98,075.00 as compared to the $72,852.50 figure from 1978-79.

Operating supplies should amount to $7,000 which will cover gas and oil for police cars, plus uniforms and equipment. The amount designated for road material and supplies is down from $18,200 to $13,000 however, repairs and maintenance have risen to $6,100.

Residents should be pleased with the tight-rein kept on expenditures for the upcoming year. To day, 60.9 per cent of this year's budget has been spent and according to Vice-Mayor Robert Russell "we're solvent."

Wacha has soothing words for worried motel owners

BY BOB FRYER

County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha had some soothing words Tuesday morning for motel and cottage operators in the Jensen Beach area.

A number of motel and cottage owners who are receiving garbage can pick-up service from All County Sanitation recently got a letter that their rates were to go up. Some, like William Strong of the Jensen Beach Motel, considered the rate hike excessive. He has been paying $108 a year, but the letter he received from All County informed him he would have to pay $328 a year for the same service. "That's not exactly in keeping with the President's recommended seven percent wage and price guideline," Strong said.

He conceded, "I know he (All County owner Patrick Yancey) deserves more than $6 a month from me," but not a 400 per cent increase."

Strong and Norman Carpenter of Bridgeview Motel, who got a letter saying his rate per year is to jump from $125 to $384, expressed a feeling of helplessness that they were being stuck with the rate hike without any means of fighting it. Strong said it was his understanding that the county franchise for All County did not provide for rate hike hearing for motel and cottage owners, and that hearing rights were open only to residential customers. "I was told to try to negotiate with him (Yancey), but how can you negotiate a 400 percent increase?" Strong asked.

On Tuesday, however, Wacha and county attorney Jack Carmody both agreed that the county franchise agreement with All County does allow for a rate hearing before the county commission.

Carmody said, "Their first step would be to try to negotiate a settlement on the rate figure. But if they can't agree, the motel owners have a right to ask for a hearing."

Wacha said that he has heard from a number of motel-cottage owners and as a result he met with All County officials Tuesday morning. "He (Yancey) said he would meet the owners (of the motels and cottages) to work something out," Wacha commented. And, he echoed Carmody's comment that if negotiations fail, a rate hearing can be held.

The rate increase apparently applies only to those motel-cottage owners who have been receiving garbage can collection service from All County, and does not affect those with dumpster service.

Bill Keele of the Dolphin Motel on SR 707 said he felt the rate hike was move designed to force motel and cottage owners to go to dumpster service. He and Carpenter and Strong all said they did not want dumpster service, as they didn't feel they generated enough garbage to warrant a dumpster. Also, they said they had no good place to keep a dumpster.

Keele's letter informed him his garbage rate is to go from $300 a year to $900 a year for his 26 unit motel.

Keele said he understood that the Royal Poinciana cottages also got a notice of a rate increase, and Strong listed Jensen Beach Cottages, Crossroads, Coral Reef, Melodeuce and Landmark motel-cottage operators as others getting a rate increase letter.

Bill Hart of Jensen Beach Cottages said his yearly rate is to go from "$300 to 600 and something," and complained that, like many others getting the letter, that the new rate was based on an 80 percent occupancy. He said, "We all sit here empty in the summer time."

The 80 percent occupancy rate is a figure several of the motel-cottage owners said they would like to contest. "How can he come up with 80 percent occupancy?" asked Dolphin owner Keele, while Strong said he was running at 50 percent occupancy per year at the Jensen Beach Motel and Carpenter said if he could have an 80 percent occupancy rate at Bridgeview, he'd be very happy.

Several owners also complained that even though they are being charged for the number of units at their motels and cottages, they seldom have full cans of garbage from each unit. Carpenter of Bridgeview said he is charged for eight units, "but if he gets two canfulls all total, he's lucky. It only takes one large container by the garbageman to pickup garbage from all eight of my cans."

Strong and Keele also said their units don't produce a can of garbage per unit.

One owner, who said he preferred not to be identified, said he has already talked with Yancey and worked out a satisfactory agreement on a new rate. "He's a reasonable man," the owner said. But Hart of Jensen Beach Cottages said when he called All County, "they said they'd have to treat me like everybody else. He wouldn't budge off his price."

Yancey could not be reached for comment about the rate increases Tuesday.

Middleton request rejected

The county Planning and Zoning Commission voted three to one last week to recommend denial of a rezoning request by Arthur Dehon for a proposed multi-family residence and commercial project on a 38 acre tract a little north of the Jensen Beach Causeway and A1A intersection.

Assistant County Planner Jon Banif said planning staff personnel felt that none of the low-lying land was suitable for development.

Dehon's plans call for 234 multi-family units and for a shopping center. His name for the project is Middleton Gardens.

The vote to recommend denial of the rezoning request means Dehon must either wait two years before resubmitting the request to the Planning and Zoning commission or he can go ahead and seek county commission approval with a negative P&Z recommendation. He plans to do the latter.

Lots of letters to OBP

A phone call to the Redingers from Battle Creek, Michigan, reported that Harold Woodbury of Areca suffered a heart attack at 8:30 am on Monday, August 6.

He is now a patient in Leila Hospital of that city. It is expected he will be recuperating within a couple of weeks and hopefully ready to return to Ocean Breeze in October. His home address at present is c/care of: Rhea Woodbury, 21320 Waubascon Road, Battle Creek, Michigan, 49017. The hospital address is 300 N. Avenue, Battlecreek, Michigan, 49016.

Park. A little bird told me that Adolph Numendahl had his 80th birthday last week.

WE GET LETTERS

To the Hokes from Ruth Miles: "Just a few lines to let you know that I am okay. Was so glad to talk to you and Gene on Saturday. We have been having very warm weather so have stayed in where it is cool. Had a pizza party last Thursday with some music. Watch TV with one of the ladies on my floor but I can't get used to going to bed fairly early or getting up early. We eat at 8, 12, and 5 promptly. Ben came one evening last week and took me out for dinner and Sunday I spent the day at his home. He says you have sold the trailer. There isn't a day that I don't think of my Ocean Breeze friends. Evelyn Noble has been over a couple of times. I have not written any letters as yet, but really do not have much to write about. Thanks for all you did for me, also the check. Don't know when this will get mailed as I am nervous about running the elevator alone. Love, Ruth Miles."

To the Hokes from Evelyn Farnham: "Sorry I didn't drop a line when we arrived home but things really got hectic. Between getting ready for a June 16 wedding and getting our cottages opened, I just didn't have any spare time. Because of the gas shortage, business is way off. A week ago lightning struck, doing a lot of damage. Besides burning out bulbs and fuses, it damages two boxes of circuit breakers, burned out wiring and blew two walls out of one cottage. We thank God that no one was in there. And we were lucky that there wasn't any fire. I can hardly wait to get back to Ocean Breeze Park and the peace and quiet that I feel there. Hope both of you are well. As ever, Evelyn Farnham."

To the Daleys in regard to Dorothy Henderson: "Dear Josie and Ray: Just a few lines. We think of you often and I should have written this letter sooner. I am back in Michigan with Aunt Dorothy. She was taken to the hospital July 13 and had an operation on the 14th. It was supposedly for gall bladder, but it turned out to be a tumor. They said it weighed 12 pounds. She came through the operation O.K. and came home July 27th. Now she has a terrible backache continually. So I don't know. We have had a nice summer, that is after it decided to start. It was miserable and cold until about a month ago. I suppose it has been hot as usual down there. I hope we will be able to come back but time will tell. Hope you are both well and the Lord willing, we will see you in October. Love, Louise June and Dorothy Henderson, Hale, Mich. 48739."

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Tomaszewski of Burke, Va., have spent five days in this vicinity with his father, Al and Jeanie. Their children, Paul and Katie have enjoyed the ocean, beach, and the swimming pool at Hutchinson Island Holiday Inn, when they were not visiting with their grandparents in Ocean Breeze. They have been to Walt Disney World, Busch Gardens, Cypress Gardens, and Lion Country Safari. They left Monday on the Auto Train.

There have been several break-ins in Ocean Breeze lately. First, the good red bicycle of Al Tomaszewski was taken from Arbor Vitae Street. Storage sheds on both sides of the same street have been robbed. Bernie and Eleanor Milden had their mobile home robbed of electrical appliances, jewelery boxes, etc. Folks, will you please report any suspicious activities any time of night to 911, giving details and approximate location in Ocean Breeze. You do not have to tell your name, Sheriff Holt said.

Mrs. Jim (Mildred) Skinner just reported that she has had orchid plants stolen. One extra large one was valued at $150. From their yard, a table and chairs were taken also.

Harold and Gladys Gardner of 6 Hibiscus Street have been visited the last week by their son Paul and daughters Paula and Jill of Millsboro, Del. They enjoyed playing shuffleboard and the beach, and also went to Disneyworld and Sea World. On Sunday they met their parents at the Lions Club picnic at the causeway.

Paul is a Lion and has been president, as his father has, and enjoyed meeting the president George Mack and the other Lions here.

When Harry Hoke was living he enjoyed two little boys every summer that came up from Hialeah. Their parents, Frank and Anna Ruth Beale, parked on Lil Bit Lane. Papa would stay over the week ends, then he'd go back to work and Ruth Ann and the boys would stay. Harry enjoyed the help of Byers Edge swimming facilities and the proximity of Ocean Breeze Park where their August parents Frank and Sally have had the pleasure of residing for the duration of the past 28 years. Their daughter Mrs. Francis Shaw left her residence in Miami Aug. 6 for a tour of India and adjourning countries.

Last Sunday afternoon was one of special significance for Sallie and Frank von Halle. Sallie is absent mostly with cherished cousin, with a neighborhood friend come to visit the afternoon. She is now residing on N.Flagler Dr. on Lake Worth, WPB, so the two girls (poetic license) plan to visit one another often and are very happy to see each other after being separated for many, many years.

From Frank and Mabel McLain, Nevada, Iowa:

We enjoyed your nice letter. We love to hear from Ocean Breeze. Your daughter's trip to India must have been just great. We have some friends who made a trip to Russia for a month, and they really enjoyed it. Myself, I would think twice before I would go over there. It seems like a risk. We are taking the Alaskan trip this weekend to Nome and Juno. Either one we fly to Seattle and Vancouver and then boat to Alaska. We have our own stateroom which will be nice. We will see the glaciers and snow covered mountains. We take the inland passage. We'll be gone over a week. Our weather here is about the hottest summer we have had for years. It's supposed to cool off this week and I hope it does. We keep two outside air conditioners on all afternoon and it feels pretty good. Frank and I are doing pretty well these days. How is Ruby? Suppose she has left to see the girls. Much love from us both and Frank says hello. Love, Mabel.

Rio Civic Club party on August 21

The regular card party was held at the Rio Civic Center last Tuesday, Aug. 7th and a good time was had by all.

The door prizes were won by Arlene O'Neil, 1st prize; and Florence Klose, 2nd prize. Table prizes were won by Lucille Craig, Marion Davis, Helen Smith, Gen. Heasley, Margaret Rausch, Helen Schomer, Helen Hager, Hazel Houghton, Dorothy Trinka and Mary Wagner.

Hostesses were Helen Schomer, Rae Zajib and Jill Morris.

The next card party will be Aug. 21st at 1 p.m. All are welcome announced Dorothy Inereer.

General Educational Development program is offered

Adults interested in preparing for the GED test can enroll in review classes beginning at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, August 20, in Room 2 at Stuart Middle School.

The program is a multi-faceted individualized instructional program. Upon initial enrollment each student is given a series of diagnostic tests to determine placement in the program. Students needing remedial assistance will be placed in the GED preparatory program to up-grade their basic skills before entering the review class.

Because the program is self-study, students can progress through the various units of study at their own pace. After satisfactorily passing each unit mastery test the student will move on to the next unit of study.

To enroll in the program persons must be at least 18 years old and pay a registration fee of $6.00. For more information call 287-6400, extension 164 weekdays between 8 a.m. 4 p.m.

Overeaters Anonymous meets Thursday

Overeaters Anonymous meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Environmental Center, Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. Men and women are welcome. There are no fees, dues or weigh-ins. For information call 287-3648.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor:

Dear Sir:

The letter of Mary and Tom Tomlinson of Palm City, published in your paper on August 1, attacks Congressman Skip Bafalis and calls for his defeat.

An attempt is made to depreciate Bafalis for "failing again and again to take a rational and forward-looking approach to the country's gravest problems." He is abused for voting against the higher windfall profit tax, but the basis for his vote, and that of his peers in Congress of like mind, is not given.

The Tomlinsons offer two conflicting philosophies governing a legislator's performance, "but overlook Bafalis' ability to combine the two. He has aligned his performance with the expressed views of his constituency in the 10th District and the policies he believes are best for our country. He constantly seeks input on vital issues.

This constituency, both white and minorities, oppose forced busing since it has failed to achieve its expressed purpose. Its drawbacks overshadow its advantages, and our energy shortage dictates a policy of conservation.

The majority opposed the Panama Canal Treaties, and still do. They do not believe this give-away was best for America.

Each day federal spending and waste depreciate the American dollar. Is a call for a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget and stabilize our currency an irrational approach?

Bafalis opposes the administration's "Welfare Reform" package, which will guarantee an annual income not only for those who can't work, but for those who won't work!

Before criticizing Bafalis, the Tomlinsons should read the fine print! They should direct their criticism at the President who, in 1976 as a candidate, said, "I would not use foreign affairs or foreign trips as an escape mechanism to avoid responsibilities on the domestic scene"....and to the Democratic Congress which has done little but "play" politics at the expense of the American public and the American dollar since 1945.

The Tomlinsons say defeating Bafalis "could be a cinch." False! They say, the majority of the 10th District voters are Democrats. True!

In 1976, there were 445,099 Democrats + and only 306,355 Republicans + in the 10th District. Bafalis received 164,273 votes to Democrat William Sikes' 83,413. In 13 of 15 counties Democratic registrants outnumbered Republicans, but Bafalis carried all counties except Glades and Okeechobee.

In 1978, Congressman Bafalis was unopposed.

Florida's Democrats, as well as Republicans, recognise a "great representative. In Charlotte County, we vote for the best man, with little regard for his party. Democratic registrants outnumber Republicans, but Bafalis won in 1976 by more than two to one.

I do agree with the Tomlinsons on one point: It is time for a change!

I nominate Skip Bafalis for a seat in the U.S. Senate to replace Richard Stone whose single vote in 1977 carried the Panama Canal Treaties.

It is time to elect a president who puts America first and a congress which will put self-interests aside and work with a Republican president for America!

Sincerely,
Joe C. Wheeler

LONG-TERM CAPITAL GAINS

QUESTION: I'm confused. Several people have told me that I have to hold on to an investment property for six months to get a capital gain. Others have said nine months. And now I've been told it's 12 months. How come so many opinions? Who's right?

ANSWER: Until the 1976 Tax Reform Act, six months was the required holding period for the creation of a long-term capital gain.

The big advantage, of course, is that while a short-term gain is reported as ordinary income, 60 percent of a long-term gain is excluded from taxation and only 40 percent is reported and then taxed as ordinary income.

The 1976 Tax Reform Act extended the holding period from six months to nine months and finally to the present 12 months.

Under the current provisions of the revenue law, if you are not a dealer and if you hold an investment property for more than 12 months you will be able to report your profit as a long-term capital gain and enjoy the advantages of this type of reporting.

This change in the tax law didn't have any obvious effect on the real estate market because real estate investments are generally held for more than a year. The stock market, however, was much more substantially affected.

Check neighbors for bus information

The best advice for parents of dren who will be attending school Martin County for this first time year and who are wondering re their child is to catch the school is to ask a parent of a child who nt to school here last year.

The school bus routes for Jensen area students who will be ending Jensen Beach Elementary, art Middle School or Martin nty High School are published in ay's issue of The Mirror. However, only information about the routes t is available is the time the routes start and the roads the buses will ol over. Individual stopping points times are not listed, and school cials say this is their customary actice.

They never list the individual stops before school starts," said Jensen Beach Elementary School principal Dale Clark. He added that he has not even received a list of the individual stops this year yet. "But we know they'll be pretty much identical to last year's bus routes, so it should be no problem for students who attended our school last year and are to do so this year. As for new students, we suggest they locate a student in their neighborhood who will be attending the same school they are and ask them where to catch the bus," he said. He also said that for the first few days of the new school year, which begins Monday, Aug. 20, bus drivers will be on the look-out for youngsters along the roads who are searching for the proper bus stop.

Clark said about 780 students have registered to attend Jensen Beach Elementary this year and said he expects with some no-shows, the school should have about 750 students. "We'll open very close to capacity," he said, adding that this year there will be two more portables at the school: one for a kindergarten class and one for a reading class.

Clark said later this year or early next year some of the money from the school bond issue will be spent here, but that most of the funds will go for library expansion and not much will go for actual teaching space.

When asked what the prospects were for a new elementary school in Jensen Beach, he said he did not foresee it in the immediate future, but added, "I can't say what might happen in two to three years."

He said school officials were considering adding a new school in the community several years ago before a recession hit. But school attendance figures dropped and "we're just now getting back to the point where we were before that recession," he said.

Clark noted that the school's PTA is serving as a resource board by polling a number of local contractors to determine how many housing starts they expect over the next few years. This information should help school officials determine how soon a new school may be needed in Jensen Beach.

Clark said parents should be advised that the school lunch price will go up this year from 35 cents to 50 cents, with the milk price going from a nickle to a dime.

Martin County school bus rules

Kindergarten open house at JB Elem.

An open house for kindergarten dents who will be attending Jensen ach Elementary School this year l be held at the school from 10 a.m. noon on Friday, Aug. 17.

The open house is being sponsored by the school's PTA, and PTA president Susan Merritt said her organization is also planning to host a welcome back luncheon for teachers following the open house.

Ninth grade students asked to visit MCHS on Friday

Ninth grade students are invited to go to report to Martin County High School a day early.

In an effort to help ninth graders — who will be going to the high school for the first time — become familiar with the school and to help them get registered for classes, MCHS will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Aug. 17th. Though the day is not a mandatory school day for students, ninth graders are urged to drop by so they won't be so confused when school opens on Monday, Aug. 20. Lunch will be served at the school on Friday.

No certificates of occupancy until Leilani sewer is ok

BY BOB FRYER

Martin County Commissioners voted three to two Monday to withhold certificates of occupancy for all new housing in the Leilani Heights subdivision in Jensen Beach until that project's sewer system gets an acceptable rating from the Department of Environmental Regulation.

The sewer system has been the subject of repeated complaints, primarily about unpleasant odors, for months. In the Spring, the county staff took action to withhold certificates of occupancy until sewer problems were alleviated. But county commissioners voted in June to lift the ban on certificates based on comments from DER spokesman Chuck Bitzer that he expected unfavorable sewer plant conditions to be corrected soon. The vote to allow resumption of certificates of occupancy came in June in spite of a report Bitzer signed on the plant giving it an "unacceptable" general rating.

A new report from Bitzer on the plant conditions was issued on Aug. 8 and still listed the general rating as "unacceptable." Based on that rating, Commissioner Maggy Hurchalla moved to withhold the certificates until the rating is "acceptable."

Commission Chairman Frank Wacha and Commissioner John Holt joined Mrs. Hurchalla in voting to support her motion, while commissioners Tom Higgins and Lavon "Bud" Bagwell voted against the motion.

Wacha said he voted to withhold the certificates because he felt there had been time since June to correct the sewer plant problems and because he was "tired of hearing about it."

Dr. Archie McAllister of the County Health Department said that numerous complaints about the plant odor have been received, but he said in spite of that problem, there is no apparent threat to public health. He said without being able to cite a public health threat, his office had no jurisdiction to step in and require improvements to the plant. He said the DER has jurisdiction to regulate the operation of the plant.

"We want to be responsive, but don't have the jurisdiction," he said. However, he did recommend that more frequent monitoring of the plant operations be done, and said if an Environmental Control Board is set up in Martin County "We can then do things to make things happen."

"Even if it smelled like a violet, it still does not comply with state regulations," he said. It is up to the DER to enforce those regulations however. No representative of the DER was present at the commission meeting.

"You say it's not a health hazard, but if a guy can't eat his dinner because of the smell, he'll sooner or later suffer from malnutrition," commented Wacha.

Several Leilani Heights residents complained about the plant at the meeting, with most complaints centered around the odor from the plant and a lift station. Mrs. Donald Vaughn said the plant owner, George Apostolopoulos, promised a pump would be installed at the lift station eight months ago and still has not put it in.

Lawrence Lapetina of Leilani eights said the plant is causing mental health problems. He said his property is going down in value because of the smell and that he could not in good conscience sell his home to anyone without telling them of the odor problem. He said nobody in their right mind would buy his home, so it forces him to live "in an atmosphere detrimental to my health—mental and physical. All we want to do is to be able to breathe clean air."

Another resident said he has vomited after smelling the plant odor, and still another said he has to keep his windows closed at all times and has a high air conditioning bill as a result.

Attorney Dale Anderson represented Apostolopoulos at the meeting and said his client was told by DER officials that the reason for the unacceptable general rating was not because of any problems with the function of the plant, but because of a lack of landscaping around the plant, a lack of sod on the banks of a settling pond, lack of a flow-meter, and lack of a stand-by generator.

Anderson said the landscaping and sodding work, plus installation of a pump at the lift station, should be done by the end of next week (Aug. 24) and he said by that time the plant should undergo a conversion that may help alleviate some of the odor. He said the plant is presently being properly maintained. He also noted that customers of the plant have not had a rate hike since 1978 and that the plant has been operating at a loss. He said a rate hike request is now before the Public Service Commission and that his client is hoping for PSC approval by the end of this month.

The plant engineer said the plant has not yet been certified and that no operating permit has been issued for it.

Now a family of chickens

H Out now has a family of chickens, seems there were two chicks given to children in Venture Three last Easter. They were left to hustle for themselves, so wandered to H Out. They took up residence in the bushes on a vacant lot and proceeded to raise a family. We don't know how many chicks they have, but two have been seen. They are quite wild, you can't get near them.

The top asphalt on A-1-A is nearly finished. The road has been widened one. Next it will be yellow-laned for the center and right and left turns. What a pleasure to drive on now!

A card from Peg and Al Ray told of visiting Disney World. The wonderful lighted floats at night and fireworkers for the finale are really worth seeing. Next was a visit to friends in Eustis, then on to Osceola to visit a niece and nephew. They were served frozen peaches that had been taken from local trees there (proving that Georgia had better look out). Then they drove 357 miles to Moore, S.C. It was cool on the lake. They intend to visit Ellen and J.C. Freeman in Greenwood, S.C., then on to N.C.

We heard from Ruth and Ed Duncan. They hope to be in H Out in late October or early November.

The Longs and Royals spent one week vacationing at H Out, and dreaded returning to work. Their first Monday, they drove to Sebastian Inlet for clams to bring back to the Park. They went to Melbourne for a smorgesborg at Duffy's, famous for their laden tables. The Royals finished their week with dear friends at Okeechobee.

Bruce and Billie Magers are back in the Park from Missouri until maybe mid-September. They will soon become grandparents for the first time. Their two daughters are expecting at nearly the same time.

Ruth Arbo was taken to Martin Memorial Hospital August 6. After good care and doctors, she was able to return home on the 10th. We are so happy to have Ruth back.

We heard that Cathy Ullmann, who was on vacation up in New York state, was hospitalized, too. She phoned Ruth Arbo that she is home now, and hopes to be able to return to the Park next week.

Louise Auch, sorry to say, is still in Martin Memorial Hospital, going through some more checks and tests. We all wish Louise an early return home.

Gerhart and Kate Immich returned to Washington, but will be back in October to stay.

Anniversaries Congratulations-- Eugenia and Joe Boelter, Helen and Merle Steele, 8-17; Bucky and Moe Berman, 8-18; Anne and Frank Houghton, 8-18; Edie and Steve Pointon, Phillas and Adelaide Boucher, 8-22.

Happy Birthday Wishes-- Pauline Wells, Harold Theimer, David Magers, Roy May, Alice MacArthur, 8-18; Orville Quick, Bob Black, Mabel Theimer 8-19, Gordie St. Louis, 8-22.

Dot and (Brownie) Browne decided the gas situation had eased enough for them to take their long-planned trip out West after all. When last heard from, they were staying at a campground on Lewis and Clark Lake in South Dakota. They stayed at one place on the Illinois River where there was barge traffic passing by day and night. It is the waterway for boat traffic to Chicago and to the Mississippi River and an interesting scene to watch.

The Badlands, Black Hills and Mt. Rushmore are next on their itinerary.

Before leaving the East, they visited Bob and Jean Davis at Keuka Lake, New York. The Holiday Out caravan, July 31st, was to be held at Bob and Jean's, and everyone must have had a great time as Brownes say, "Bob and Jean are super hosts."

While the Brownes were at Keuka Lake, George and Inez Watkins, former owners in Holiday Out, took them to the Bully Hill Museum for lunch and a tour of the winery and vineyards. Afterward they went to the Watkins' beautiful lakeside home, and later their hosts took them back to their trailer by boat. Dot and Brownie say that Holiday Out people are still the best friends and they do miss their neighbors here. Holiday Out is home now; their only tie to New England, their family.

Ethel and Paul Pinkiewicz have been spending the summer in Wisconsin at the home of their daughter Dot and her family. They have been doing a lot of sightseeing, seen some ball games and swimming in Dot's pool, but miss the ocean here. They expect to be back in Florida by Labor Day.

Community Bridge Club

The Community Bridge Club, Stuart-Jensen, met August 6 for a ten table. Mitchell with an average score of 108. The North-South winners were Dot McColl and Laurel Trotz, 135; Al Mason and Ruth Hanson, 121½; Roger White and Louise Ressler, 120; and John and Vergie Watson, 117. The East West leaders were Irv Eberlin and Gus Gousseaux, 130½; Earl Wagner and Betty Wehrman, 127; Seymour and Myrtle Fleming, 124; and Betty and Al Dinger, 118. Crime in Jensen

A mini crime-wave seems to have hit downtown Jensen Beach.

For the third time in less than a month, the Bait Box has been hit. By crooks and in recent days a $40 battery has been stolen from a mail carrier jeep at the Jensen Beach Post Office and a $20 gas can has been stolen from a truck at the Jensen Beach Fire Department.

A spokesman at the Bait Box said the latest incident there occurred last Saturday night or early Sunday morning. He said the thieves didn't get inside the main part of his store, but did break their way into a room where he stores bait. All the live shrimp and at least 35 pounds of frozen shrimp were taken. And, on two occasions before, both within the last month, he said thieves caused damage at the store by trying to break in but were unsuccessful. And, he said the same night of the last break-in, he also has a color television set stolen from a trailer he owns across the street from the bait store.

The battery theft at the Post Office occurred over the weekend, and Fire Chief Joe Luciano says the $20 can of gas was taken Monday night or early Tuesday morning. He was "burned up" over the heist and said that since the can was bought with donations from the community, the thieves were really stealing from themselves and their neighbors. He asked the thieves to return the can.

In addition to the above thefts, a local motel owner reported he had an attempted break-in last week, and Sheriff's Desk Sergeant Jessie Taylor said a car on the Jensen Causeway was recently burglarized. However, he said Jensen Beach is not the only area suffering from crime. "They may hit several places in one area, and the next day another area will have several thefts. There is crime going on all over the county, not just in Jensen Beach," he commented.

Merchants taking wait-and-see attitude toward plans to one-way Commercial Merchants in downtown Jensen Beach generally seem to be taking a wait and see attitude before deciding whether or not the proposed one-waying of Commercial Street, Ricou Terrace and North Palmetto Avenue will have an effect on them.

A survey of the merchants along the roads proposed for one-waying shows most aren't sure what that will mean to them.

County Commission Chairman Frank Wachs and Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors revived the idea of one-waying the downtown roads last week, and Wachs said if the county commission approves it, he'd like to see the one-way plan tried for a year to see if it helps move traffic better during the winter tourist season, when it is traditionally congested. The plan calls for making Commercial St. one-way to eastbound traffic from the railroad tracks to Indian River Drive, for making Ricou Terrace one way for westbound traffic from Indian River Drive to North Palmetto Ave., and for making North Palmetto one-way for southbound traffic from Ricou to Commercial.

Sandy Pazey of the Village Corner gave a typical response to the opinion survey when she say, "I'm not sure what it will do to us. I have been thinking about it, but I'm not sure."

Her prime concern was whether the plan calls for eliminating a few parallel parking spaces in front of the business. However, she said even if the spaces are eliminated, the Village Corner probably wouldn't suffer too much, as it offers parking in the rear, off Ricou, and to the side, off Indian River Drive. While she said she did not think the one-way plan would hurt business, she said she was not sure it would help the traffic flow. "It's always congested in the winter," she said.

Across the street, at First Federal Savings and Loan of Martin County, Larry Durrance said he personally favors the idea, provided other merchants like it. "For me, yes, it sounds reasonable, but for the people depending on it for their livelihood, I'd have to see how they feel. If it hurt them, I wouldn't want it," he commented.

Durrance said that since the savings and loan has a parking lot behind its building, the plan probably wouldn't effect business there. "It seems to be the only sane plan to solve the problem in the short run, but I'd have to reserve judgment . I guess I favor it unless someone can show a better way," he said.

Eventually, he said, he feels Commercial will have to be widened at Indian River Drive, necessitating moving back telephone poles and trees on the corner the savings and loan is located.

Ron Mitchell, president of Jensen Beach Bank, said the plan may require a few changes at the bank, but he said the plan may be "worth a shot."

Mitchell said he was not sure what the plan would accomplish and added that more substantial changes, such as relieving the bottleneck at the causeway and widening Indian River Drive are needed to really help the traffic flow. He said the bank would probably have to close off its alleys between Commercial and Ricou and create a turnaround in the parking lot off Ricou, though he said the bank badly needs all of its parking spaces. "We'll just have to look at it and see what's to the benefit of the community and bank. We could probably work it out. That's what we're here for," he said.

Charlie Groome of Jensen Beach Flooring said the one-way plan would not make any difference to him, noting that he has parking space behind his store, off Ricou.

Carol Pittman of Capricorn Gifts said "I can't see that it would do anything but hurt business. But it's bound to help the traffic flow." She said what is really needed to help business is to get new businesses to move into now vacant stores.

Glenn Bryan of Bryan's Pharmacy said he "would rather not comment about it."

Helen Engebretsen of Jensen Travel said that the parking lot to the rear of that business means that the one-way plan probably won't hurt business. However, she said she'd have to take a wait and see attitude before making a final judgment.

Ellen Nixon of The Thrift Shop said "I hope it will be for the best."

Eleanor Gongaware of Joyce's Ladies Apparel said, "I think it would be fine" and said she is willing to go along with trying the plan for a year.

But Virgil Wilson of Jensen Beach Barber Shop says "I think it's horrible. I've been fighting it for years." He says the only time there is a traffic problem is for about six weeks in the winter season and he says realigning the causeway to have it run directly into a road across the railroad tracks is about the only way to solve the problem.

Chuck Tilton of J and J Rentals expressed doubt motorists would be alert or smart enough to read the one-way signs and said he didn't think the one-way plan would help. "It would probably just move the bottleneck to Palmetto and Commercial," he said, adding that he did not think the plan would have any real impact on business.

Linda Irwin, the Susie of Susie's Ice Cream Parlor, said she did not feel threatened by the one-way plan idea, though she said if she could have voted on it, she would have voted against it.

"I'll just have to take a wait and see attitude with the thought that maybe it will work out to be a good idea," she said.

Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano told Chamber officials Monday night he is worried that the one-way plan would make it harder for his volunteer firemen to get to the station to respond to a fire call. He was to meet with the acting county engineer, Jim Pate, this week to see if a solution to the problem could be worked out.

Inlet festival to be a full day of fun

The original Labor Day gift of Governor Graham and the Army Corp of Engineers to celebrate the funding of The St. Lucie Inlet Stabilization Project has turned into a "Fabulous All Day Festival."

There will be marching bands, a gigantic air show, numerous water festivities and continuous entertainment from 10 a.m., Monday, Sept. 3 till dark. The festival will be at the Stuart Causeway and admission will be free.

Professional entertainment from "The Golden Oldies with Lenny Laden" to Barber Shop, Bluegrass, Dixie-Land, and "The Big Band Sound" of the Forty's are some of the musical talent that will be present. Modern Ballet, an Art Show, Sailfish Cloggers, plus a "Sing Along" of "Confused at the Corner" with Stuart's own Clif Buckosh, to entertain you.

Remember when you could buy a Pepsi for 10¢? Ray Navitsky, Chairman of the Inlet Festival tells us this is the price. A fish fry with hush puppies and all the trimmings, plus hot dogs, pop corn, cotton candy, etc., available at great oldtime prices.

"We Need Your Help! Many generous businesses and individuals have agreed to help defray some of the expenses of this festival. This is a non-profit endeavor with all talent generously donated and all food sold at cost. If you would like to donate monies towards this community effort please contact George Enot at 283-4306, Inlet Fiance Chairman," say Chamber officials.

Navitsky has many civic groups and clubs that have agreed to assist with the responsibilities, but he still needs helping hands. Please call Ray at 287-1088 and volunteer, if you have not already done so.

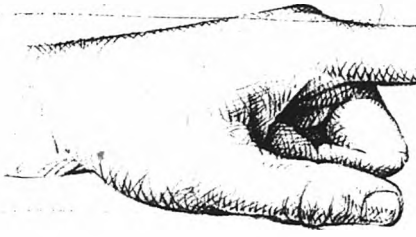
The SunBank 24 Exercise Manual.

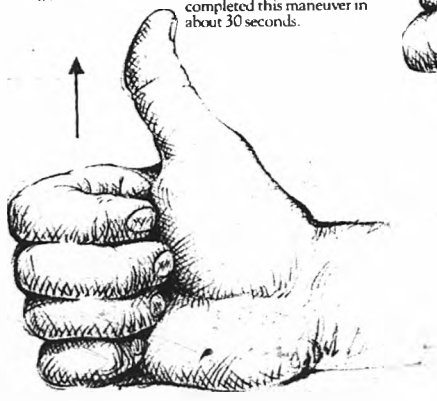
A Guide On Getting In Shape To Use Our 24-Hour Tellers.

The Push. Pretend you're holding a Sun Bank card between your thumb and fingers and push forward 50 times. This will get you in shape for inserting your card into any one of the more than 90 SunBank 24 automated tellers across Florida. If you don't have a Sun Bank card we'll give you one free with a checking account. If you don't already bank with us, you're really out of shape.



The Press. Extend your forefinger (either hand) and press forward 100 times. Once mastered, this move will be used to enter your personal identification number, select the transaction and enter dollars and cents amount. If this looks simple, it is. And our SunBank 24 tellers will tell you what to do every step of the way.

The Pull. Since this is simply The Push in reverse, you need practice only 10 times. This move is used primarily to withdraw cash from the teller drawer. It is also used for withdrawing receipts for deposits and transfers and removing your Sun Bank card. With a little practice, you'll have completed this maneuver in about 30 seconds.



Thumbs Up. This is the gesture used by people who have discovered how quick and easy SunBank 24 automated tellers are to use. Practice it diligently. Because we're Florida's leader in 24-hour banking and convenience, you'll be seeing a lot of it.

The star of the show

Kathy Rinaldi

Jensen Beach's Grand Slam Girl

BY DONNIE WILKIE

Kathy Rinaldi.

There she was, standing somewhere near midcourt, holding the large USTA national championship cup on top of her head. The cameras around her were clicking faster than anyone could count — and these were the cameras of the world (Associated Press, World Tennis magazine, etc.).

And they had good reason to be hard at work, for the 12-year-old standing before them had just done something no other girl or boy in the history of American tennis had done before. Her 6-4, 6-1 victory over Ginny Purdy of Indianapolis, Indiana had given her the USTA championship. That, coupled with earlier victories in national hardcourt, indoor and clay court tournaments, gave her a "grand slam," the first in junior tennis history.

Yet, the cameras and the extended time that she had to remain standing there, with the cup on her head, did not faze her a bit. She had been through it all before.

Kathy claims that none of the extra attention or pressure bothers her at all, and her father, Dennis, a local dentist, summed it up.

"It really doesn't bother her much now, since she's had a chance to become acclimated to all of it," he said. "She handles it well.

"When we went to Syracuse for a tournament, they were televising live all over the city. They had announcers there, and of course, she was interviewed a lot, too. So things like that have gotten her used to the media."

By the time last week's USTA National Girls' 12 under Championship tournament was played at Wellington, near West Palm Beach, Rinaldi had swept the first three major titles.

She skipped the doubles, agreeing with her father that she "just needed to concentrate on singles," with all the talk of a grand slam and the other players more or less taking aim at her.

"I think someone from a magazine called us and asked us about it," said Kathy's father when asked how the grand slam talk started. "Then, we read that the pro at Wellington said it would be the first grand slam in history if she won."

She quickly disposed of her first two opponents, then defeated a third in straight sets before dropping her first set, to Eileen Tell, of Matawan, New Jersey. Tell put up a furious quarter-final battle before succumbing 5-7, 6-4, 6-2. After that, the top-seeded Rinaldi downed virtually unknown, but fifth-seeded Shandra Livingston, of Carson, California, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3, before meeting Purdy in the final.

"We didn't know much about Livingston," remarked Kathy, "but I did see her play a little bit during the tournament."

In the two sets she lost, Kathy said she "made a lot of errors, but then I started to cut down on those and just play my game."

"Her game" is a very steady baseline game, especially on a clay court, a slower surface. The Rinaldi-Purdy match Saturday was a thriller, with the two strong clay court players returning shot after shot after shot, until someone gave in, either firing a shot into the net or past the baseline. In fact, 69 of the 115 points in the match ended on unforced errors, but after up to four or five minutes of hitting the ball on a single point, one can hardly fault the player that commits one.

"I like to come in to the net on occasion," said Kathy. "But I only do it when I think I have an opportunity to put pressure on my opponent."

Her father describes her game as "aggressive, although," he added, "when you're playing on clay, and especially in this age group, where the players can't cover as much area, you are actually at a disadvantage if you try to charge the net on every point."

Kathy herself proved that theory correct, routinely passing Purdy with deadly backhand and occasional forehand shots whenever the Hoosier attempted to come to the net. In all, the Jensen Beach junior fired 31 winning shots in the two-set final, with 18 of them coming from the backhand side.

It was her third victory over Purdy in a grand slam final, and having beaten her 6-1, 6-0 and 6-1, 6-1 in the previous two meetings, some feared a possible letdown.

Nothing doing, said Kathy.

"I just want to beat everyone as bad as I can in every match. That's the only way I can play my best at all times."

Just four short years ago, Kathy Rinaldi was just learning to hit a tennis ball.

"I read that Tracy Austin began learning how to hit a tennis ball when she was TWO years old," laughed Dr. Rinaldi, "and by the time she was five or six, she was hitting regularly."

Kathy had a more modest beginning.

"My brother (Dennis, Jr.) and sister (Tina) were playing," she remarked, "and I thought it would be a good idea to learn."

At first, she would practice with her mother, Lindi, who, claims Dr. Rinaldi, initiated the entire family to the game, since "she had the only real tennis background of any of us." After a while, though, Kathy was better than her mother, then better than her father.

Now, in order to gain any kind of competitive experience, she must practice with such notables as local pro Frank Froehling, or play in a tournament.

Three years ago she made her only appearance in the Martin County Championships at Indian River Plantation, but had to default early in the event because of illness. Due to her progression through the junior ranks and the lack of any college-type or advanced women's players in the tournament, she has not returned.

"Her real progress has come in the last year," added her father. "She really started to pick it up last summer. She doesn't have any particular timetable — we just take it as we go. Not everyone's going to go as fast as Tracy Austin.

"We'll give her the opportunity to accomplish whatever she can, but we wouldn't want to push her into it."

The matches now, then, are not as important as what she may face down the line.

"There's not really all that much pressure on me right now, because of all the years ahead of me," she said. "I don't really have to worry about winning and losing, but I do want to do my best all the time."

Kathy will probably play in more of the older-aged tournaments next season, which technically begins in October. "She'll get her lumps," says her father, "but everyone did. Chris Evert took hers, and so did Tracy. But that's how they get better."

She'll be invited to play an exhibition at the Wightman Cup matches at Wellington in early November, perhaps the biggest opportunity of her tennis career. The opponent has not yet been determined, and officials aren't sure whether the match will be against one of the Cup players or another 12-year-old player.

Since she will be 13 next season, the young tennis sensation will have to play in the 14-under category in national events, but since she's already won tournaments at the 14, 16 and even 18-year-old level, it shouldn't be much of an adjustment.

The young Rinaldi will be entering her seventh grade year at St. Joseph's school in Stuart soon. But the school-tennis factor hasn't caused much of a problem for her.

"I don't have any specific times to practice," she comments, "so I can fit in the homework."

"If it comes to a choice between practicing and homework, it's homework," added her father. "No matter what's happening, we never skip the homework, no matter how much she might like to."

Kathy laughed.

Apparently, it's a good plan, for Kathy's grades have hovered at the A-B level, and show no signs of dropping because of the tennis load.

Kathy balked a bit when she and her father were obliged to hit a few tennis balls for The Mirror's cameras. Supposedly, this was her "week off," after certainly earning one at Wellington.

She never hits a shot at less than full speed, so every shot was more or less part of practice.

"Dad! This is supposed to be my day off!"

But the short session was soon over.

If it is not already quite evident, Kathy and her father are a strategic team. They work together when it comes to outlining the schedule of the top ranked 12 under player. They practice together, helping each other with their games. (He is a good player, too, and playing with Kathy at this stage can certainly only help.) Even when it comes to answering questions, they can easily speak for the positions of each other.

The entire relationship, on and off the tennis court, was summed up by Kathy as they came together for a father-daughter picture.

"My dad and I are best friends."

"I want to beat everyone as bad as I can in every match. That's the only way I can play my best at all times." Kathy Rinaldi

Martin Downs to host tourney

The first annual Martin Downs Amateur Golf Tournament is scheduled for August 18 and 19 at Crane Creek Golf and Racquet Club at Martin Downs, just west of Stuart. Prizes and trophies will be awarded to the winners.

The tournament has an entry fee of $ per person and is open to all golfers in the Martin County vicinity. All players will be flighted after the first day of the tournament to insure continuous play. Entry forms are available in the Pro Shop at Crane Creek Golf and Racquet Club or call Jo Pyle at 286-3660.

Old Storm wins before New Storm

A week ago, they were called the Port St. Lucie Storm, for the lack of a sponsor. But when the PSL Slo Pitch League team took the field late Sunday afternoon, they had found a sponsor — Foster Wright Construction.

A new "Storm" greeted the softball enthusiasts after five innings of their Sunday game — a violent thunder storm that tore through Sportsman's Park even harder than the Old Storm had done to the Yankees a week earlier in the league's opening week of play.

But even the rains, which forced the postponement of Sunday's other two league games, could not prevent Foster Wright Construction from notching their second consecutive win of the young season, as they ripped Gold Shield Agency, 15-8.

The game was shortened to just five innings after play was called with one out in the top of the sixth frame and FWC threatening to add to their already comfortable lead.

Meanwhile, the Professionals Florida Home Finders (formerly the '62 Metsl game and the Civitans Club-Yankees contest were re-scheduled for last night (Tuesday), too late for The Mirror's sports dealine.

This Sunday, third week games include a key match-up between the Home Finders and Foster Wright Construction, while Gold Shield tackles the Civitans, and the Professionals challenge the Yankees.

The action begins at 5 p.m. with admission to Sportsman's Park free.

Redesigned course impresses league

The golf summer league, created by Mimi Lamont, with headquarters at Sandpiper Bay Resort, has now played six tournaments on Florida's East Coast and the consensus after the Aug. 8th event at Mariner Sands is that it will be one of the finest clubs in Florida when completed.

Nineteen teams, governed by summer rules, were challenged on every hole by doglegs, parallel water hazards, an abundance of bunkers and undulating greens, the latter being under the supervision of Chuck Ankrom, prominent architect. Golf Head Professional, Chuck Knebles, proved to be an admirable host for the occasion.

In the Men's Division, the Sandpiper Bay quartet of Bert McDonnell, Jim Docos, Larry Rosene and Evan Phillips played beautifully to card 122 (low best net in foursome), winning by one stroke over a strong entry, Bil Jahns, Chan Pollock, Ed Salvato and Ray Unsell. Their score of 123 led the following team. Ed McGavock, Ed Gaudette, Jim Lamont and Jack Breen, by one stroke. McGavock is a member of Y & C.C. and recently became a member at Mariner Sands.

Evie Dolan and team-mates from Y. & C.C. (Massnick, Millis and Schiebel) won the Ladies Division with a score of 122. Second place honors went to team from Martin County Golf Club that has been a loyal supporter of the league in every tournament with a score of 128. These ladies, Worster, Weiss, Nutter and Redlund rate a blue ribbon for trying. In third, at 129, were Grant, DiStefano, Means and McGavock.

Tournament director Mimi Lamont is now finalizing plans for a four day package trip to Innisbrook Golf Resort, Tarpon Springs, Aug. 22-25. On return, the one day tournaments will be resumed at Sandpiper Bay Resort, Frenchman's Creek, Johns Island and Dodger Pines C.C.

Sandpiper men swing back into action

The Sandpiper Bay Men Golfers swung back into action Thursday after a week's layoff due to the inclement weather conditions which prevailed throughout the area.

Play was resumed on the 18 hole Championship Sinner's course with only a pair of the linksmen breaking into the charmed 70 circle. They were Tom Bonne who led the parade with a 76 followed by Joe Schulte who broke 80 for the first time on the more difficult Sinner's layout, coming in with a 79, as scoring in general was on the high side.

Thursday's schedule of play was a Two Best Ball of a Foursome. Completing the round in first place with a tally of 123 was the team led by Joe Schulte's 79 and included Tom Chapman 85, Graydon Smith 86 and Carl Graser 88.

In second place after a match of cards with two other teams was the quartet of Roy Rutherford, 86; Don Lesher, 96; Dr. Arture, 93; and Bud Denton, 102. Also at the 131 mark were these teams: Don Estes, 91; John Jeffrey, 98; Al Seideman, 96; and Frank Branca, 96. In fourth was the combo of Elmer Hoffman 85, Hank Small 84, Tom Ryan 91 and Bob Morrissey 101.

Next Thursday's feature will be Frank Branca 96. In fourth was the combo of Elmer Hoffman 85, Hank Small 84, Tom Ryan 91 and Bob Morrissey 101.

Next Thursday's feature will be Individual play utilizing the Stableford system of scoring with action again on the Sinner's course.

The back nine of the Saints' course is expected to be open again for play on aug. 17th when the new irrigation system should be completely installed. Until further notice the front nine of the Saints will remain closed with play continuing on the Wilderness course.

Bowling clinic is September 8th

The Jensen Lanes will hold a junior bowling clinic September 8th, it was announced this week.

Youngsters between the ages of five and 20 are encouraged to attend the clinic, which is sponsored by the Stuart-Jensen Jaycees, the sponsors for the usual Saturday morning junior league.

JUNIOR BOWLING LEAGUES

Kids will be given free instruction, while they will be allowed to bowl two games at no charge as a part of the clinic.

Shoes and refreshments will be provided at no cost to the pupils.

The clinic will be split into two groups. The Bantams and Pee-Wees will hold their clinic beginning at 9:30 am, while the older Juniors will begin their clinic at 12 noon.

The Bantam-Pee Wee division includes children aged 5-11, and the Juniors include all those between 12 and 20 years of age.

Bell plans L D decrease ll today filed a proposal duce Florida's intrastate rates by $15 million. The ade in response to an quiry started by the Service Commission to distance charges within also filed with the tion on the feasibility of same rates for in-state long distance calls that are changed for out of state calls.

The company explained that its long distance calling in Florida has been holding up surprisingly well during this year. Glenn Sutton, manager for Southern Bell, stated "that the current economic outlook makes it difficult if not impossible to predict our long distance business and financial condition beyond the near future. Despite this uncertainty, we consider it reasonable at this time to consider a reduction in Florida long distance rates of approximately $15 million.

"We believe that the simplest and most responsive way to achieve that reduction is to lower the rate levels of the longer haul toll calls."

Specifically, this rate reduction proposal would provide lower DDD initial period rates at distances above 196 miles and lower the charge for additional minutes at distances above 124 miles.

"We believe that this proposed reduction for the longer haul toll calls is the most reasonable approach at this time."

In a separate filing the company requested a formal conference to discuss a reduction in intrastate toll rates which would include representatives of all telephone companies in Florida, the PSC and its staff, and the Public Counsel, as well as Southern Bell, Sutton concluded.

by Lee Hicks of Lucieland

ave Cooking is a real boon for active people! Wanda Landin, 1173 S.E. Port St. Lucie, has a great Favorite Chicken Dish to share with us about 15 minutes and allowing about 1 minutes for a baked potato st adds a garden fresh salad for a delightfully simple evening meal. discovered when visiting with Port St. Lucie area women that the men in ly seem to be Microwave Oven lovers. However, as in the case of he women quickly change their cooking habits. Most say, "I wouldn't e without my Microwave."

and husband Dick settled in our area nearly twelve years ago and the its was fortunate indeed! They are a part of the core of our Community. here friends are brought together for cultural and social activities. rom Virginia and Federal Government work, this couple looked many before deeding on our Treasure Coast. In addition to serving as of the Port St. Lucie Community Center and an outdoor editor, Dick Port St. Lucie Communits Center News column in The Mirror, enjoys rs of woodcarving work, and along with Wanda, golfing. Wanda is very il painting, and you'll find her in her cheery studio in her leisure hours. e got into Microwave Cooking, try Wanda's Scalloped Eggplant, a real at!

NOTICE

A public hearing will be conducted before the City Council of the City of Port St Lucie on Tuesday, September 18, 1979 at 9:00 a.m.,
City Hall, "City Hall Plaza", (Corner of Airoso and Port St. Lucie Boulevards, Port
St. Lucie, Florida on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE 79-35
AN ORDINANCE ANNEXING CERTAIN PROPERTY DESCRIBED BELOW INTO
THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE,
FLORIDA; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFEC
TIVE DATE.

THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE,
FLORIDA HEREBY ORDAINS:
Section 1. That the City Council of the City of Port St. Lucie, Florida, hereby accepts the voluntary petition for annexation dated
July 26, 1979, submitted by VIMEX
ENTERPRISES, INC. who is the fee simple owner. Based on said petition, and the fact that the land hereinafter described is contiguous, and within three miles of the present City of Port St. Lucie, and the petitioner being the sole owner of such land, and said land being reasonably compact, the following land located in the unincorporated area of St. Lucie County, Florida, is hereby annexed to and incorporated within the municipal limits of the City of Port St
Lucie, Florida:
Start at the Northeast corner of Section 22,
Township 37 South, Range 40 East, St Lucie
County, Florida, thence run N 89 degrees 59'
49" W, along the North line of said Section
22, a distance of 171.66 feet to the Point of intersection with the East line of the property described in the property Bound ary Line Agreement as recorded in OR Book 110, Pages 1518, St Lucie County,
Florida, said point being the POINT OF BEGINNING; thence run S 0 degrees 14' 07"
E, along said East line a distance of 198.36 feet to the Point of intersection with the South line of the property described in said
Property Boundary Line Agreement, thence run N 89 degrees 59' 49" W, along said South line, a distance of 522.30 feet, more or less, to the water of the North Fork of the St Lucie River, thence meander said waters Northerly a distance of 260.00 feet, more or less, to the Point of intersection with the North line of said Section 22, thence run S 89 degrees 59' 49" E, along said North line, a distance of 564.52 feet, more or less, to the POINT OF BEGINNING, and the same is and shall hereafter be considered as a part of the City of Port St
Lucie, Florida.
Section 3. Pursuant to Florida Statute
123.06(2), this Ordinance shall be passed after same has been published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation within the County.
This Ordinance, upon its adoption shall be filed with the Clerk of the Circuit Court of St Lucie County, Florida and with the Department of State.
Section 3. The municipal boundary lines, having been altered through annexation, shall be revised and shall be filed as a revision of the City Charter with the Department of State within thirty (30) days of the adoption of this Ordinance.
Section 4. This Ordinance shall take effect ten (10) days after its final adoption.

Rescheduling of road work may ease winter traffic jam

BY BOB FRYER

Though motorists may soon be inconvenienced by road improvements to Savanna Road and Commercial Street, a schedule change means the most critical stretch of the roads should be completed before the winter tourist season gets geared up.

Plans call for widening and resurfacing Commercial Street for about 550 feet on each side of the road's intersection with Savanna Road, for widening and resurfacing Savanna from Silver Maple Road to a point at the back of the Jensen Beach Plaza shopping center, for turn lanes on all four approaches to the intersection, and for a relocated, wider bike path. Originally, the contractor for the job, Dickerson, Inc., planned to start the project on Savanna Road at Silver Maple Road and work in segments northward to, then past, Commercial Street. However, after hearing pleas from local Chamber of Commerce officials and County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha, the sequence of various phases of the job has been changed.

Wacha and Chamber officials met recently with Dickerson officials and pointed out the dire need to get the work on Commercial Street and at the intersection out of the way before the winter tourist season. Chamber president Jon Chicky said if that area is still a mess by the time Christmas season rolls around, it could be "disastrous" for local merchants.

Acting County Engineer Jim Pait said he met with Dickerson representatives last Firday and said they agreed to start the work on Commercial Street first, then make improvements to the intersection before working their way down to Silver Maple. "I would think, if they actually get going soon, they could get a lot of the work on Commercial Street and the intersection done in four to six weeks," Pait said, adding that this estimate was not for a finished product, "but at least to the point where "they would have the road torn up and then have the rock down." The final paving over the rock base would take longer, he indicated.

On Tuesday, Dickerson project supervisor Vern Hess was on the job site with grader operator Tommy Barnhill, checking construction plans.

Barnhill later began cutting a path on the south side of Commercial Street, east of Savanna Road. Hess said when that path is graded, rock will be installed, then traffic will be routed over the path while work is underway on the currently paved portion of Commercial. "We're just building this for the traffic flow during construction, then we'll remove it," Hess said. He declined to speculate how long it would take to finish work on Commercial and in the immediate are of the intersection.

Pait commented Monday, "I'm hoping they can finish the entire job by November. Optimistically, that's what we're looking for." However, Dickerson officials indicated recently that it would more likely be December, and possibly next January, before the total job is done.

Pasco man is named county administrator

Martin County Commissioners voted Tuesday to appoint Ed Strube to the position of County Administrator to fill the vacancy created when Jack Noble recently resigned from that position.

Strube has been assistant county administrator of Pasco County of Florida's west coast since May of 1978. From 1973 to May, 1978, he was administrative assistant to the Pasco County Administrator.

His resume states that Pasco County has a 750-square-mile service area, a population of more than 150,000, an annual budget of $41 million, and 700 employees.

He graduated in 1973 from the University of South Florida in Tampa with a BA in management and his resume stated he was pursuing a masters in management. He is 32 years old.

A spokeswoman at Martin County Administrative Center said Strube should be reporting for work in about two weeks. She said she believed he is currently house hunting in the area. He is married and has two sons. His wife, Diana, has been a legal secretary for eight years.

Strube served two years in the Army, was a second lieutenant and was a Hawk missle unit commander.

Since Noble left office on Aug. 3, assistant county administrator Roger Nichols has been acting county-administrator. Nichols will return to his former position when Strube reports for work.

Coy puts up bond to lift moratorium

Developer Bob Coy came to the rescue of the beleagured Leilani Heights sewer system last week, and in doing so got the county commission to lift a moratorium of certificates of occupancy for homes in the project just one day after they imposed it.

On Monday, Aug. 13, the county commisson voted three to two to withhold certificates of occupancy for new homes at Leilani Heights until the sewer system got an acceptable rating from the state Department of Environmental Regulations (DER). The vote came after commissioners examined an Aug. 8 DER report that gave the plant an "unacceptable" general rating. That report was nearly identical to a DER report in June that gave the plan an unacceptable rating, and it was the lack of improvements in the system from June to August that brought about the vote.

When attorney Dale Anderson spoke for plant owner George Apostolopulos at the Aug. 13 meeting, he hinted that financial problems were keeping the sewer system improvements from being made. He said pumps needed for a lift station had, after a long wait, arrived at a local distributor, but had not been paid for and picked up.

Developer Coy is not in partnership with Apostolopulos on the Leilani Heights project, but does have 38 homes under construction at the project, and said at the Aug. 13 meeting that if occupancy was held up, he may have to pay to house the persons buying the homes.

On the next day, Coy came to the county commission and said he would put up a $5,000 cash bond to assure needed improvements to the sewer system would be made. He also said he had ordered sod for landscaping the banks of a settling pond, would allow use of a generator from his amusement business, and had paid out $2,000 for the pump. On Tuesday, Aug 21, Coy said the pumps had been installed and the landscaping is in.

With the cash bond and a pledge from Coy that he would work to solve the sewer system problems, the county commission decided to lift the one-day-old moratorium on certificates of occupancy. However, if improvements are not finished soon, a ban could be placed on new connections to the sewer system. The county received a letter from the DER last Tuesday giving Apostolopulos 10 days to begin repairs and 60 days to complete them, or new connections would not be allowed.

"I have nothing to do with the utility treatment plant, but with 38 homes under construction and seven more under contract, I simply could not sit by and have the certificates of occupancy held up," Coy said.

Coy noted that the letter from the DER to the county was hand-delivered and listed the specific improvements needed for the sewer plant. He said with $3,000 worth of landscaping in, the pumps in and a generator coming, as well as a deposit made on a flow-meter for the plant, most of the improvements have been made. He said it will take three weeks for the flow-meter to be delivered.

Coy said one reason for the lack of improvements to the sewer system in the past is because the costs of building and operating the plant have tripled over five years, and that new regulations for operating the plant have been imposed over those years.

He noted that he has worked out an arrangement for Apostolopulos to pay him back for the improvements to the sewer system. "He's my best friend, so I'm not worried about that," Coy said.

Gold Coast Square to open in 1983?

Though a spokeswoman for the Edward DeBartolo Corporation said she's not sure when plans will be ready for submission to local governmental officials, she said the firm is looking toward a 1983 opening of a huge shopping mall at U.S.1 at SR 707A.

DeBartolo originally planned to build the giant mall several years ago, but a recession put a halt to the plans and nothing much more was said about it until several months ago. That's when the firm had a large billboard erected on U.S.1 announcing "Stuart Square." The sign indicated the site would become "A planned total development and regional mall with five department stores plus 129 additional stores. Hotels, offices, apartments."

At the time the sign went up, Ruby Kelly of DeBartolo Corp said she'd have "a little story" about the mall ready for the press in a few weeks. Numerous calls were placed to her since then, and each time she has said it would be later before she had any information to announce.

The Mirror informed her when the sign went up that the name Stuart Square was already in use for the K-Mart shopping center south of Stuart. When a Miami Herald reporter spoke with Ms. Kelly Monday, she said she knew of no plans to change the name of the DeBartolo project. On Tuesday, The Mirror called Ms. Kelly to confirm information in The Herald story that she had said 1983 was the target date for opening the mall. She confirmed this was correct, but said she was not sure when plans would be ready to submit to the local governmental units (the county commission and Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council) for approval. The Mirror informed her that the "Stuart Square" sign on the site had been changed several weeks ago to "Gold Coast Square."

"I know there was some discussion of changing the name, but I didn't know they had decided to do it," Ms. Kelly commented.

She said that DeBartolo has commitments from some businesses to lease store space in the mall, but added, "Of course, we can't announce that at this time."

"We have an awful lot of work going on, of course. We're working on presentations to be made to county officials. The normal procedure is that we follow to develop a shopping mall are all in progress," she said.

Some local officials have speculated that if the proposed Fort Pierce Mall gets final approval, it may mean there will be no market for another regional mall. The Fort Pierce Mall, to be about half the size of DeBartolo's Palm Beach Mall, has already won Treasure Coast Council and South Florida Water Management District approval and is up for St. Lucie County Commission approval on Oct 2.

NAME CHANGE—The Edward J. DeBartolo Corporation recently changed the name of their proposed shopping mall from Stuart Square to Gold Coast Square after The Mirror informed them the name Stuart Square was already taken. Though we hate to say anything, this area is not known as the Gold Coast, but as the Treasure Coast. The Gold Coast is a label generally applied for the Florida coast around the Palm Beaches. A DeBartolo spokeswoman says the mall, by whatever name, is targeted for a 1983 opening.

90 to receive diplomas

Approximately 90 students are expected to receive diplomas in graduation exercises at the Jensen Beach Campus of Florida Institute of Technology when ceremonies are conducted at the college chapel at 2 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31.

Included among the graduates are about 50 Underwater Technology school students. FIT is one of only two colleges in the nation offering an Underwater Technology program. Also, three students will receive masters degrees in business administration. They are Alan Glass of Stuart, Albert Hutko of Port St. Lucie and William Kearns of North Palm Beach.

Principal speaker at the ceremony will be Robert J. McGuire, manager of the J. Ray McDermitt and Company Diving Division of Harvey, La. Dean Ernest Tealey and James Woodbury, head of the Underwater Technology program, will also participate in the ceremony.

Signore heads Demos

Arline L. Signore, president of the Treasurer Coast Builders Association, has been elected as president of the Martin County Democratic Club. Mrs. Signore, a home builder, pledged to build the club and to have liaison with the executive committee as all times.

Grayce Auburn was elected treasurer, Rosemary Dressler was elected secretary, and Gilbert Miller stepped down as president, and was elected to the vice-chairman position.

For more information, call 286-0850.

GOP will select delegates

The Republican Executive Committee of Martin County will hold the first Republican Convention Caucus in the county on Sept. 8 at the Palm City Civic Center, Cornell and 34th Streets.

The caucus is for the purpose of selecting, by lot, eleven Martin County delegates to the Florida Republican Presidential Preference Convention to be held at Orlando on November 17.

The caucus is scheduled for 2:15 p.m. with registration at 1:30 p.m. Selected delegates must be present at time of drawing. For further information contact Terry Whitney - 334-8879.

DONATION — A check for $262.00 collected at the dessert and card party held by the Jensen Beach Women's Association on Monday was presented to Mirror Editor Dick Campbell for the Sally Latham Fund. The check was presented by Agnes Bond, treasurer, and Florence Close, activities chairwoman. 90 persons attended the event at the women's association clubhouse.

Jensen ACE Club meets on Sept. 9

The next meeting for the Jensen Beach A.C.E. club for the disabled will be Sept. 9 at 2 p.m.

The meeting will be held in the Dialogue Room of the Jensen Beach Community Church on Skyline Drive. The church has no architectural barriers for wheelchairs and people using walking aids.

ACE is an acronym for Achievement, Creativity and Experience — emphasizing member participation.

The business meeting of Sept. 9 will take up finalizing plans for the club's first Family Day picnic scheduled for Sept. 16.

For informating in getting involved with A.C.E., call Joseph Elko at 334-3602 or come to the meeting Sept. 9.

Girl Scout registration

Girl Scout troops in Jensen Beach are getting organized for the 1979-80 school year. Interested girls between the ages of 7 and 17 are urged to contact Mrs. Charles Matthews at 283-3573 or Mrs. Gordon Dakin at 283-0863 for information during the week of Aug. 20.

A number of troops in the area are in need of adult leaders. Girls will be placed into troops as soon as leaders are available. All adults interested in working with Girl Scouts at any age level should also contact Mrs. Matthews or Mrs. Dakin.

Overeaters Anonymous

Overeaters Anonymous meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Environmental Center, Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. Men and women welcome. No fees, dues or weigh-ins. For information call 287-2608.

Riverfront Empire State Club visits Musicana

For the second time in as many months, the Empire State Club of Spanish Lakes, Riverfront, visited Musicana at Vero Beach.

This time, however, the large representative group of 65 members enjoyed the new musical revue "Sidewalks of New York."

All those who attended the performance on Friday night, Aug. 17 agreed they had a marvelous dinner of prime roast beef and saw a wonderful show.

Line dancing was led by Ann Quigley along with Marie and Mike Dorin, Bob Lehman, Nella Orofino and many others. Everyone had a very enjoyable evening.

The next meeting of the Empire State Club will be held on Friday, Sept. 14 at 6 p.m. There will be a pot-luck supper that has been repeated by popular demand.

Michelle Naspinski joins Mirror staff

Mirror Newspaper editor and publisher Richard Campbell announces that Michelle Naspinski has joined the staff as a reporter.

Ms. Naspinski resides in Port St. Lucie, having recently moved here from Totowa, N.J. Her primary duty is coverage of her new home town for The Port St. Lucie Mirror.

Ms. Naspinski has two years of journalism experience, including a stint at the Paterson (N.J.) Evening News, coverage of city government and coverage of the election campaign for U.S. Rep. Bill Bradley (N.J.). She was also editor of her high school newspaper.

Though she wishes Florida had mountains and was a bit cooler, Ms. Naspinski says she enjoys swimming at local beaches. She's giving up figure skating and snow skiing, but still enjoys oil painting, karate, and reading.

She is the daughter of Michael and Josephine Naspinski, who moved with her in June to Port St. Lucie.

In addition to her work at The Mirror, Michelle is also continuing her education in Journalism at Indian River Community College.

Ms. Naspinski was born in Paterson, N.J. and lived in Totowa until moving here.

Firestone says Florida future is looking good

Last week, Florida Secretary of State, George Firestone came to this area to talk on Florida's economic growth and future.

Firestone stated that of all the states, "Florida will be least impacted by recession trends." To back up his claim he cited examples comparing Florida to Switzerland in terms of stability.

With regard to location, Florida lies in close proximity to a potential marketplace of 350 million people living to the south of us. "Latin Americans are not only coming to Florida at a fast rate, but they're investing heavily as well." He added that like Switzerland, Florida is not only tri-lingual but tri-cultural. Combined with the fact that Floridians are honest and willing to work, the output tends to run higher than other states. Many large corporations have taken note of this and to date, 150 national firms now have base operations in this state. In addition 236,000 corporations have been chartered in Florida with 1,100-1,900 new ones coming in each month.

Firestone recognized the fact that although Florida maintains a number one position in the tourist plare, we must begin to shift our emphasis from northerners to Europeans. Pointing out that only 12 democratic nations remain in the world, Firestone stated that "Florida and the United States provide one of the few bastions left where people can feel secure."

Firestone feels that not only is there potential growth from the European tourist market but from a standpoint of international banking as well. To achieve that end, he and others in office are working on an advertising campaign that will help lure that wanted market to Florida.

On a bleaker note, Firestone went on to talk of voter lethargy and the tremendous impact it has on government. As it now stands, "six per cent of the vote determines who is going to provide leadership in the community and controlling our destiny." To cite an example, Firestone stated that "in Russia, only five per cent are members of the Communist Party."

Firestone ended his speech by saying that although Florida has its share of problems, the economic outlook is very good, and he is happy to be a part of that growth.

React is reactivated

The Martin County React Unit is now back in operation, and should provide a needed service for local users of C.B. radios.

Bill Bibler was recently elected president of the React group, and said the organization is getting started again after dwindling membership over the last few years pretty much resulted in an inactive unit.

Bibler expressed optimism that the unit will become revitalized and eventually will offer 24 hour a day monitoring of C.B. Channel 9, a channel reserved by U.S. and Canada governments exclusively for emergency calls.

"All you need to join is a base station, license, a desire to serve, and, of course, the time to serve," Bibler said.

Currently, there is no group offering continuous monitoring of Channel 9, though Bibler said some Sheriff's Deputies occasionally listen to the channel.

In addition to the election of Bibler as president of the local React group, Harry Watkins was appointed team leader.

React is an international organization of 2,000 volunteer groups totaling about 100,000 volunteers who monitor Channel 9 and provide two way communication in response to emergencies and other worthy projects.

"We're looking for new members," Bibler said, noting that the group's next meeting is at the Riverview Professional Building, 119 E. Seminole St., Stuart, at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 24. For more information, contact Bibler at 283-6830 during the day or at 287-0050 during the evening.

Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation courses offered

Four cardiopulmonary resuscitation courses will be offered at the Indian River Community College in Fort Pierce during the nights of Aug. 20, Aug. 28, Sept. 5 and Sept. 13. The three-hour classes are to be held in the Indian River Room of the Koblegard Student Union from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Certificates will be issued to participating citizens.

Registration may be made by calling the Continuing Education Department at Indian River Community College, 464-2000, extension 217.

Course materials include the purchasing of a CPR booklet at the RICC bookstore (64¢ each). The bookstore is open from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. daily. Classes are free of charge and are limited to not more than 30 students per class because of the equipment available.

WRAPAROUND MORTGAGES

QUESTION: I have heard the term wraparound mortgage used every once in a while. Even though we use trust deeds instead of mortgages, I would like to know if a wraparound mortgage is another term for a first mortgage which the seller takes back?

ANSWER: Although it may sometimes sound like a wraparound mortgage is a first mortgage, by its nature it's in a secondary position and recorded after a preexisting mortage or mortgages.

Because the amount due on the note secured by a wraparound mortgage includes the balances on the underlying loans, the buyer only makes one payment to the holder of the wraparound. The holder in turn makes the required payments on the underlying loans and profits from the difference.

Say Sam Seller sells an apartment building to Bill Buyer for $200,000 with $50,000 down. If there is an existing first mortgage of $100,000 at 7% interest, he may elect to take a $150,000 note at 10% and secure it with a second mortage.

In the process he agrees to remain obligated on the existing $100,000 note. Even though that note is secured by a first mortage on his property, Bill Buyer is only obligated on the $150,000 wraparound note.

Setting aside amortization payments question of usury for the sake of simplification, Sam receives $15,000 interest on his $150,000 note and he pays off $7,000 on the existing first mortgage. The spread of $8,000 represents his reward for using this device.

Be sure to review the use of a wraparound mortgage with your legal and tax advisers and keep in mind that it is but one of the many potential creative financing techniques available to real estate investors.

The park looks great now. The maintenance men have been working so hard trimming the palm fronds and grinding them up.

Hurry back folks, we are getting the summer doldrums.

There was an abundance of delicious food at the last pot luck supper and 52 there to share it.

There will be another pot luck August 31, the last for the summer.

Ada and Joe Wisler are back from Hendersonville. They flew to Stuart by jet.

Thelma Cadwell reported to me that Aunt Milly Butterfield died Thursday, August 16 in Orange, California in a nursing home near her son and family, with whom she had been living.

Burial was in New England near Boston where her husband was buried.

Aunt Molly had lived in this park many years, having come here in the forties.

Ruth Hoke's brother and wife, William and Madlyn Ellithorpe have bought the Ruth Miles mobile home. They will be down in October.

Now that Ruth Miles has left the ladies have a new gathering place. Never a night goes by but what you see seven or eight ladies on Ursula Togneri's patio, chatting away. Some neighbors have given Ursula some extra chairs for the patio.

Hazeleen Simonsen fell in her own home in Maine soon after she arrived home from Florida. She broke her hip and is now in M.C.M. Center, Thayer Section, in Waterville, Main. 04901.

Bill Listerman, who had a stroke last winter, was driven home by wife, Iva. We hated to see them start Monday, the 13th, but they arrived home safely in Alger, Michigan.

Ursula Togneri had a surprise birthday party on the screened-in porch of Rausey Mathews Wednesday, August 15 for Mae Cassity. It was an old fashioned party with candle-light, ice cream, orange juice, etc.

Mae gave me permission to tell her age. She was 18; oh I have written those numbers backwards, she was 81.

The daughter of Ray Stiles came down from Georgia and took Ray back home with her for a visit.

Pinochle Winners:

August 18 — 1. Gladys Baier, 71; 2.

August 18 — 1. Gladys Baier, 711; 2. Nina Zigelhofer, 679.

A group from Ocean Breeze, Therese Wittnebert, June Smith, Averil Tillman, Mary Cesney, and Leta Keith joined with Lolita Kherli and Louise Garrison in the entertaining group at Springlake Nursing Home on Friday. George West of Stuart surprised us by being there and playing his saxaphone. So we joined forces and had a jam session.

Henry Edris has gone to spend a few months with his daughter Mrs. H. R. Russell, Roseville, Calf., at 8487 East Granite Drive, zip 95678.

Senior citizens, alone or together, need not shy away from traveling alone. There are many special fares and courtesies tallored to suit the needs of elderly persons. Many motels, hotels, restaurants, and other attractions both in the United States and abroad offer discounts to senior citizens. And it may not be long before the airlines follow suit. Group trips are one of the best ways for senior citizens to travel, not only because people of the same age and interests are together, but because there is usually an escort along who, among other things takes care of tipping and baggage.

MIRROR ADS FLY RIGHT

H.Out first marriage in the Recreation Hall! Sam and Nina Wooten are in the Park this week for the wedding of their daughter Betty. Betty Wooten West and Frank Lee Torow of Jensen Beach were married Saturday, Aug. 18th at noon by Judge Marc Cares, officiating. A beautiful arch of flowers and plants were the highlights of the decorations. Friends and relatives from N. Carolina and Jensen Beach attended. After a trip to New Orleans, the Torows will make their home in Jensen Beach.

News from Ruth Arbo: She heard from Bertha & C. J. Ouelette, who drove to San Francisco, Cal. to visit their son. While there they called H.Out owner George & Florence Poor only to find out that they were spending two weeks in Hawaii.

Ed & Lorraine Storch are both fine and plan to come back in November.

Bob & Erma Barton are going on a Windjammer Cruise to Nassau from

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 331-1946

Assisted by Elizabeth O Donnell and Peg Ray

Maine September thru November and will return here about Thanksgiving.

Robert & Lena Black are having a very busy summer in N.J. Robert joined the Elks and will be happy that they can attend the Elks Club in Stuart. We are glad to hear that Lena does not have to have an operation on her legs.

Peg & Al Ray left Modoc, S.C. and tried to contact J. C. & Ellen Freeman, but failed, as went on to Brevard, N.C. It was a beautiful drive thru rolling hills of green trees. Brevard was 90 so they longed for the H.Out pine tree with the soft S.E. breezes. Stayed in White Pine in the Pisgah National Forest. The next morning they drove 18 miles straight up the mountains from 2000-foot elevation to 5200-feet. It was nice and cool and beautiful. Stayed two days, and took a few trail walks and heard a few ranger talks. Drove 99 miles off the Blue Ridge Parkway down to Franklin, N.C. Shopped, then drove up the mountains to Standing Indian Campground, and were surprised to find so many campers there. Many were swimming in the cold brook. After a cool night's sleep they continued about 300 miles thru the beautiful rolling country of northwest Georgia. Stayed overnight at De Sota Falls near the famous gold mining town, Dahlanga, Georgia. Finally got on Route 75 and headed south. It took two days to reach Busch Gardens. It was cool in Tampa. So they enjoyed the gardens. The coolest and best place, still is under the pine tree on the beach at H.Out.

Stan and Nina Wooten along with Fred & Colleen Shields, visited Carl & Helen Eury at their lake home on Lake Chutuge in western North Carolina. They had a boat ride over the lake in Carl's new boat. The next day they visited the Georgia Mountain Craft Fair in Hiawassee, Georgia. Then spent two days in Lexington, Ky., where about 75 of Sam's old army buddies met for a reunion and tour of the horse farms. Next was a stop-over in Marysville, Tenn., for a bay ride and lookout in the Great Smokey Mountains near Gatlinburg. The weather was beautiful with cool nights, perfect for sleeping. Back to the East Coast of North Carolina for a change of clothes, and picked up other Wooten for the trip to H.Out for the wedding.

Alice Perrault wrote that she is enjoying her lake home, swimming and canoeing with her friends in Massachusetts. The Widlakes had a little gathering that Alice attended. The Ed Frosts & Collettes were also there.

Catty & Lester Ullmann returned Sunday. Catty had some illness while gone, so their trip was curtailed. Both are happy to be back home.

Anniversaries Congratulations— Rita & Frank Strebe, Betty & Dick Hare, Mary & Ivan Rhoden 8-23, Jan & Lee Anderson, Mildred & Lee Stall 8-24.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Sandy Crawford, Mark Sumner, Maurice McKeever 8-23, E. W. Schoenl 8-24, Ann Schultz 8-25, Tess Miller 8-27, Erma ST Louis, Avonelle Ewick 8-29.

Some long young faces are seen now due to the starting of schools on Monday. Summer vacation always seems to be too short.

Mildred and Lee Stall are enjoying the summer at their home in Hamburg, N.Y. on Lake Erie. Grandchildren, gardening, golfing and get-togethers with good neighbors keep them busy day and night. They are well and happy.

Dee Brink wrote that Morris is fine and she is too. They have been on a trip to Niagara Falls and thence to the area north of Toronto to visit Dee's father and step-mother. While they were in Canada they spent some time around Georgian Bay and did some fishing.

From there they went to Essexville, Michigan to visit Dr. & Mrs. Asline of Venture III. The four drove up the peninsula to Dr. Asline's cabin at Grayling, stopping to say "hello" to Evelyn and Glen Terry of Venture III, who have a lovely summer home on a lake.

The Brinks route home to Harrisburg was through Canada and the Bruce Peninsula area of Lake Huron and back to the U.S. at Buffalo, N.Y.

Calloway gets 30 years for murder attempt

Circuit Judge Dwight Geiger issued two 30 year prison sentences last Friday to George William Calloway, 26, Okeechobee, for the kidnapping and attempted murder of a 16 year-old Jensen Beach girl.

Calloway was the second person sentenced in connection with the case. A co-defendant, 18-year-old Timothy Barnhill of Stuart, was sentenced earlier to 20 years on the same charges.

The Jensen Beach girl was taken from a local convenience store on May 6. Sheriff's officials said the men took the girl to a wooded area in the southwest part of the county, where they allegedly raped her, then stabbed her and fled. She managed to make her way to the edge of SR 711, where a passing motorcyclist spotted her and took her to medical authorities for treatment.

Two charges of rape were filed against the men, but were dropped in exchange for the guilty pleas to the other charges. Though Calloway got 30-year sentences for each offense, he will serve them concurrently.

...dult special classes register August 27

...he Adult and Community Educa... Department of Martin County ...chools is offering pre-registration for ...e countywide special interest ...asses at the Martin County High ...chool the week of A...g. 27 to 31 from ...p.m. to 10 p.m. in the Media Center. In addition to the many classes ...ffered last year, several new classes will be offered this year. All classes will be starting the week of Sept. 24 to 28.

Practical Psychology will be offered at Jensen Beach Elementary School on Monday nights from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. This course will be directed to the basic understanding of human nature.

A study in the Marine Life of the Florida East Coast will be held at the Environmental Center, Jensen Beach, on Monday nights. The class will cover the geology and local marine communities of the area and will be lectures, films, and field trips divided in ten three-hour segments.

Psychology of Communication will be meeting at Martin County High School on Wednesday night from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. and students will become involved with the understanding of both verbal and non-verbal communi...cation.

Simplified Quilting will be offered at the Environmental Center, Jensen Beach, on Monday nights from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. This lab course will involve students with various forms of hand stitchery, block and machine quilting.

This year both beginners and intermediate photography will be offered. Beginners photography will be at Jensen Beach Elementary on Tuesday evenings from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. This is a basic course in which students will be introduced to good photographic procedures with some darkroom exposure. Intermediate photography will be offered at Martin County High School on Monday nights 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. and a prerequisite of basic photography is requested.

A pottery class at the Environmental Center in Jensen Beach will be held on Tuesday nights and will involve students in both hand and wheel built pottery. This course will be taught by Dinny Hahn, a well known artist and potter in our local area.

Chisanbop, the art of finger calculation and taught by Nam Ashcraft, will be held at Stuart Middle School on Tuesday evenings. This new class has created much local and national interest in recent months.

An advanced oil, watercolor painting and pastel class will be offered this year with Edward Stevenson as the instructor. This course is limited to advanced students only.

Another new craft course offered this year is creative leather crafts at Martin High School on Wednesday night. Students will be designing their own works of art in this three hour lab class.

Popular classes last year as Stained Glass, Gourmet Cooking, Vegetarian Foods, Cake Decoration, Oil and Watercolor Painting, Macrame, Weaving, Ceramics, French, Spanish, Music Appreciation, Astronomy, Physics, Home Landscaping and various Physical Fitness courses will be offered at various centers and times throughout the county.

Further information on these or other classes offered by Adult and Community Education can be obtained at 287-6400, ext. 131, weekdays from 8:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Hibiscus exhibit is set at PSL

The Indian River Chapter of the American Hibiscus Society will have a hibiscus exhibit at the North Port Marina, Prima Vista Boulevard, Port St. Lucie, on Sunday, August 26. This will be the first time the fancy hybrid hibiscus have been displayed in the Port St. Lucie area. The public is invited to come from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

The chapter will have a free plant raffle each hour with a hibiscus plant as the prize. There will also be experts available to answer questions about hibiscus, and the American Hibiscus Society manual "What Every Hibiscus Grower Should Know" will be for sale.

The main attraction, however, will be the display of fancy and exotic hibiscus which will amaze even the seasoned gardener with their beauty and color.

The Indian River Chapter is based in Vero Beach, but a local chapter can be started if enough interest is shown in Martin and St. Lucie counties. For further information about the American Hibiscus Society or the exhibit contact the Chapter President, Phil Brooks at 878-3945.

Registration for Adult Credit and Vocational classes

Registration for the Adult Education Department's Fall Semester will take place in the library at Martin County High School on August 27 through 30th. Those students who are interested in a high school credit diploma and/or vocational classes can register and pay their fees on the above-mentioned dates between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m.

The first night for classes this semester will be Wednesday, Sept. 5. Questions concerning the high school credit diploma program should be directed to the evening coordinator at 287-0710, extension 25, weekdays between 9 a.m. 3 p.m. Call 287-6400, extension 131.

PEGGY HOFFA is understandably proud of her new stained glass panel by the doorway of their new Indian River Drive home

JAY PETERSON installs stained glass panel in front entry

SYLVAN LADY adds her grace to the entry of the L'il Bit of Beauty Shop on Indian River Drive. It's the handiwork of artists at the new establishment.

DALE HOFFA, former Ft. Lauderdale pool service owner, studies the science of matching and melding the rich blends of glass. He attends classes at the Highland Park Stained Glass and Antique Workshop.

The Hoffas love their new home

BY SALLY LATHAM
PHOTOS BY BILL MEISSNER

One of the most highly individualized homes on Indian River Drive is the handsome residence of Dale and Peggy Hoffa, former Fort Lauderdalelites who have chosen Jensen Beach as their refuge from over-burgeoning Gold Coast.

The new house was "almost right" but Dale didn't like the paneled entryway, so he decided to do something about it. The Hoffas hired Jaynes, a new Jensen firm, to redesign the door sides using stained glass.

The motif fit very well, with its aura of antiquity, because Peggy has a houseful of fine antiques, thus highlighting their beauty with the rich reflective hues of the glass.

But it did more than add to the decor. As Dale watched the stained glass being made, he became fascinated by the process and wanted to find out for himself how it is done. As a result, he is now taking lessons in the process at Jaynes, an uniquely talented person who has shown her art in another window at a local beauty salon.

Dale, who was one of Fort Lauderdale's busiest pool maintenance specialists, is relishing the time and opportunity to be creative in his own right.

"It was a lucrative business, but I was finding myself working all the time, with no leisure for myself or my family," he said. They chose Jensen Beach because they find it to be one of the friendliest and most attractive spots on the East Coast to live. And, they're loving it.

Dale is relishing his experience working with stained glass, an ancient art. When he's done, who knows how many of the plush home's windows will be enriched by his handicraft? More than that, it's something the whole family can take pride in. The Hoffas now, after many years of busy separateness, have time to share the fun of such hobbies.

Dale has taken such an interest in it, in fact, that he has duplicated most of the needed equipment in his home laboratory.

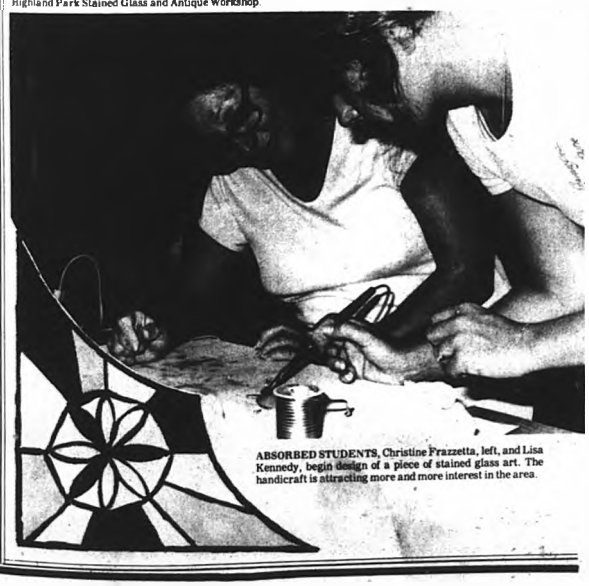
"I have just designed the Miami Dolphins logo, one for a friend and another for my wife," he told The Mirror.

Dale said they became interested in Jensen when they were coming up to visit their daughter Susan, then a teacher in Indiantown. When they saw the Indian River Drive house, then under construction by a builder, it took them little time to decide that it was the house of their dreams.

Dale hasn't stopped working. He has established his General Pool service in Shannon Square in Rio.

His wife Peggy, in addition to collecting antiques, also spends her time making macrame and decoupage. And, both are enjoying the slower pace of Jensen Beach.

"We like the low-key living," Dale said. "And I figure it'll be at least the year 2000 before they can push me out."



ABSORBED STUDENTS, Christine Frazzetta, left, and Lisa Kennedy, begin design of a piece of stained glass art. The handicraft is attracting more and more interest in the area.

OFFENSIVE LEADER—The Mirror's Civic League Most Valuable Player, John Conway (The Deck), displays the swing that earned him the award in a recent Port St. Lucie Slo-Pitch league game. Conway will lead the Offensive All-Stars of the Jensen Beach Civic circuit in their battle against the Defensive Stars in the first annual Muscular Dystrophy Civic League All-Star Classic, at Langford Park next Thursday night (August 30). Game time is 8 p.m. Oh, by the way — Conway hit a home run on this swing, something that was more the rule than the exception in the Civice League this year. (Photo by Donnie Wilkie)

Offense is an early favorite

Civic all-star game is next week

BY DONNIE WILKIE

What began as The Mirror's effort to recognize some of the Jensen Beach Civic softball league's top players will turn into a grand affair for charity next Thursday night (August 30), when the league's Offensive All Stars meet the Defensive Stars at Langford Park.

The 8 p.m. clash will showcase the league's top 17 players in both the offensive and defensive departments, and hopefully, will produce a conclusive answer to the question constantly raised since The Mirror picked its All-Civic League teams on July 25.

Can the best offensive players beat the best defensive players?

The offense certainly has the power to blow most teams off the face of the earth, with The Mirror's Most Valuable Player, John Conway and the circuit's leading batter, Mike Wegler, leading their effort.

But the defense can counter with some excellent gloves, including those of first baseman Gregg Sprauer of First Federal Savings and Loan, Al Killian of The Deck (shortstop), outfielders Nick Barker (First Federal), Milton Reese (andy's Hamburgers), and Jerry Bocchino (Optimist Club), as well as pitcher Bill Mang (Optimists).

The game will be a nine inning contest, and as of press time, organizers were predicting ticket sales of about 400. All proceeds from the game will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

Tickets, available for a donation of one dollar, can be obtained from any of the 34 players in the game, or from the offices of The Mirror or WSTU Radio.

The starting players for the game are to be those picked by The Mirror.

The DEFENSE looks like this:

Pitcher: Bill Mang (Optimist Club). Catcher: Steve Coy (First Federal). Third Base: Steve Zelenski (Headquarters). Shortstop: al Killian (The Deck). Second Base: Nick Blount (Optimists). First Base: Gregg Sprauer (First Federal). Outfielders: (exact positions to be determined by manager) Hamp Elliott (WSTU Radio), Nick Barker (First Federal), Jerry Bocchino (Optimist Club), and Milton Reese (Andy's Hamburgers). Manager: John Pederson (Baptist Church).

The OFFENSE will start:

Pitcher: David Bocchino (First Federal). Catcher: John Pederson (Jr., of First Federal). Third Base: Russ Hughes (Baptist Church). Shortstop: Charlie Schommer (JB-Rio Fire Department). Second Base: Barry North (The Deck). First Base: Dave Malheiro (Baptist Church); Outfielders: (exact position to be determined by manager) John Conway (The Deck), Rob Komara (Headquarters), Rob Phillips (Optimist Club), and Mike Wegler (Optimist Club). Manager: Frank Hughes (First Federal).

There have been seven extra players chosen for each squad, giving each a roster of 17 players.

Tickets will be $1.00 at the gate.

Tournament entries

Further entries in its summer tournament announced by the Sailfish Club caught this month are:

A sea trout weighing 8 lbs. 9 oz caught by Stewart Houch of Melbourne, FL, fishing in the Indian River. Also caught in the Indian River and weighing 36 pounds was a tarpon entered by Lanny Mauldin of Indialantic, FL.

Branca earns Sandpiper top honors

PROUD CATCH—This boy holds a Jack Crevelle which he landed in a past Izaak Walton League children's fishing tournament. This year's event is coming up next month and should be very popular with area youngsters.

Posting one of the best rounds in his brief career as a golfer, Frank Branca, a 20 handicap swinger walked off with the top honors and awards in Sandpiper Bay Men's golf action Thursday when he recorded a round of 85 which netted him 42 Stabelford points.

Branca's round was most remarkable in that the day's play was on the more difficult 18-hole Sinner's course, where scores were on the high side as many low handicap golfers failed to break the 80 and some the 90 barrier.

The Stabelford system scores 4 points for eagles, three for birdies, two for par and one for a bogey.

Action on Thursday, August 23, will resume on the Sinners Course when the Sandpipers will compete in individual play using the best nine holes of an 18-hole round.

Plans for kids fish tourney

No two major prizes will be awarded to one contestant.

Plans for the Izaak Walton League's annual Boys and Girls Fishing Contest are already underway, and this year's event at the Jensen Beach Causeway promises to be quite an affair.

The tourney is open to all boys and girls under 15 and it will be held from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Sept. 22, from the main bridge to the west shore of the river.

No registration is necessary and there is no entry fee, but children under 10 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Children are to bring their first catch in to be weighed and to return unwanted fish to the river.

Everyone catching a fish will win a prize. Last year there were 311 prizes awarded, with 19 major prizes valued at about $25 each. Merchants supplied most of the prizes.

Contestants are to bring their own tackle and bait, and the use of spears, nets or handlines is prohibited, as is the taking of less than legal size fish. No sea catfish are allowed either.

Major prizes include a first prize to the child catching the most fish over eight inches long. There will also be prizes for the heaviest snook, trout, weakfish, redfish, sheepshead, mangrove snapper, most unusual catch, largest jack crevelle, longest ladyfish, longest ribbonfish, and youngest angler. If no fish are caught in some of those categories, prizes will go to the person catching the second largest fish, in the order of fish listed above.

If you missed "Jaws" on HBO, there's still time to catch it!

"Jaws" will play again on Home Box Office, so if you subscribe now, you still have time to catch it. And many more great shows like "Paradise Alley," "The Big Fix," "Summer Carnival" and "$1,000,000 Duck."

And in addition to more movies, HBO also brings you very special specials, with stars like Steve Martin and Robin Williams. And sports events that regular TV doesn't show, including baseball action in "Race for the Pennant," and football highlights in "Inside the NFL."

There's plenty more entertainment to come, and you can catch it all. Including "Jaws" until September 3.

Just call today, and you're on your way!

HEALTH VIEWS BY DR. R.H.GRANT

HEADACHES

Headaches are probably one of the most common conditions that cause human discomfort. Some headaches have simple explanations, such as use of the "morning after," an evening of too much food or drink. This type usually passes when the irritation has been resolved by the

On the other hand are a warning signal which demands attention. Headaches can often result from many conditions. Recent research has revealed that a common cause can be traced to the stress of the cervical vertebrae (Spinal bones of the Neck). Slight displacement of these segments can cause the nerves in the neck to become irritated and result in headaches.

Determining the basic cause of a headache and effecting its correction without the use of drugs, are the special skills of the Doctor of Chiropractic.

Country-Style Beef
Terrine a la Paysanne

To serve 4 to 6

2 to 2½ lb.	beef bottom round, thinly sliced	1 kg.
12	slices bacon	12
¼ cup	chopped fresh parsley	50 ml.
4	scallions, chopped	4
	mixed spices
	salt and pepper
1	bay leaf	1
2 tbsp.	brandy	30 ml.
¼ cup	water	50 ml.
	thick flour-and-water paste

In a terrine, arrange alternating layers of beef slices and bacon, seasoning each layer with the parsley, scallions, a pinch of mixed spices, salt and pepper. When the terrine is half full, add the bay leaf and continue layering the ingredients, finishing with a layer of bacon. Add the brandy and water. Seal the terrine carefully by spreading a flour-and-water paste around the edges of the lid before setting it in place. Cook in a moderately slow oven at 275° F. (160° C.) for approximately 4 hours. Remove the terrine from the oven, break the seal to remove the lid, and skim off excess fat from the cooking liquid. Serve the beef straight from the terrine.

Chinese recipes from Mirror Cooking Show

Better late than never, here are three recipes from Thomas Lum, Chef of the Outrigger Resort restaurant in Jensen Beach, which were used in last month's Mirror Cooking Show.

During the show, Mirror editor Richard Campbell promised publication of the recipes, but these got delayed when we first received them in Chinese and had to get the English translations.

CHOW HAR JEN

Main ingredient quantities to use are: six pieces of diced shrimp, half cup of waterchestnuts, half cup of bamboo shoots, half cup of peas and onions, one teaspoon of sesame oil, soy sauce, oyster sauce and salt, four tablespoons of sherry, half cup of chicken broth and quarter cup of diluted corn starch.

Heat wok to 400 degrees and make sure wok is hot before adding ingredients.

Add tablespoons peanut oil, salt and clove of garlic.

Add main ingredients of shrimp, waterchestnuts, bamboo shoots, peas and onions. Toss in wok and mix, adding sherry, soy sauce, and oyster sauce. Continue mixing for 10 minutes.

Add chicken broth, wait for a boil, and add corn starch to chicken gravy.

FRIED RICE

Preheat wok to 400 degrees. Add 3 tablespoons of peanut oil and drop two eggs in wok. Quickly scramble eggs, adding rice, roast pork or shrimp. Mix until steam appears from wok, adding white pepper, sesame oil, oyster sauce, salt and soy sauce. Toss rice in wok for three to five minutes and add one stalk of diced scallions.

Ingredient quantities to use are: two cups cold rice, quarter cup roast pork, two scrambled eggs, dash of white pepper, sesame oil, soy sauce and oyster sauce, one stalk scallions, one teaspoon of salt and three tablespoons of peanut oil.

EGG FOO YOUNG

Ingredients: Three eggs, handful of bean sprouts, one stalk scallions, handful of diced pork, teaspoon of soy sauce, oyster sauce and sesame oil, and three cups of peanut oil.

Combine all ingredients to a thick mixture, drop in wok preheated to 400 degrees, using wok spoon. Brown both sides to desired crispness.

One-way plan may not happen here this winter

Although County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha has said he hopes a one-way traffic plan can be implemented in downtown Jensen Beach during the coming winter tourist season there is some doubt it can be done that quickly.

Acting County Engineer Jim Pait blames a heavy work load and the timely process of getting traffic signals installed as reasons why the one-way plan may not be implemented this season.

Several weeks ago, after Pait, Wacha and Jensen Chamber of Commerce officials reviewed plans for the Commercial Street-Savanna Road improvement project, Wacha outlined the one-way plan. Wacha told Pait he wanted the county engineering department to review it with a mind toward implementing it this winter — as a one-year trial basis.

Pait said last Friday that he had not yet had time to study the plan, but had discussed the plan with Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano, who has expressed concern that the one-way ing would slow fire-response time.

"Our work load hasn't allowed us to go into it in depth," Pait said of the one-way plan, but he said he saw no problem in making at least one traffic flow change soon. Wacha had said he wanted an elimination of left turns from the northbound lane of Indian River Drive onto Commercial Street. This, he said would ease the problems school buses and large trucks have in making a right turn off Commercial onto Indian River Drive. "I don't see any problems with that," Pait said, but noted that since the state Department of Transportation has jurisdiction over that portion of the road, he'll have to get DOT approval before left turns can be banned.

"The one way plan, as a whole, is something you just can't jump into," Pait said, explaining that new signalization would most likely be involved. "You just can't decide to do it and pull it off in a short time. For this season, it might be difficult to pull off," he said.

Pait noted that the one-way plan is "one of about 40 situations in the county that need to be looked at." He said County Engineer Jim Wynn's recent resignation, plus the departure of another engineer from the county staff has left the department shorthanded. A new county engineer, Edwin Greenamyer, has been appointed and is expected to hire another engineer soon. Greenamyer began work as the new County Engineer on Monday, Aug. 27.

Pait said two recent graduate engineers are on the county staff and are "coming around." He said in six months, the county could have a strong department.

On another topic, Pait said the engineering department has decided not to waive a county regulation on the stabilization of the road subgrade for the Savanna Road-Commercial Street project. Dickerson, Inc. officials had said the elimination of the requirement would mean a quicker completion date.

When asked about the chance of getting all of Commercial Street repaved, Pait said "There are no plans for that yet. Mr. Wacha has discussed it, and We'll have to get it on our priority list," he said. He commented that if the two-lane road is repaved within the next year or two, there is a chance it may delay plans to eventually four-lane the road. One thing in favor of four-laning, he said, is "I'm pretty sure we have all the right-of-way we would need for that." Obtaining right-of-way can often be expensive and time consuming, he said.

GATEWAY TO THE WORLD—That's what early settlers in 1844 thought they were creating when they took shovels to the island and dug the St. Lucie Inlet. The project was a success, in that it carried some of the rotting, stinking river grass away, but it didn't give them the depth they had hoped for in order to bring large boats in. The inlet, to the right of the photo, serves today as an outlet for the Indian and St. Lucie Rivers

Inlet festival to be gigantic

A celebration of major proportions is shaping up for the St. Lucie Inlet Festival on the Stuart Causeway this coming Labor Day.

In addition to an appearance by Governor Bob Graham, the festivities are to include about 20 entertainment acts, a boat show, an air show, a canoe race, a fish fry, clowns, loads of food at unusually low prices, and possibly even a hot-air balloon.

Planners of the extravaganza met Monday to hammer out final details for the festival, which is being held to celebrate the long-awaited approval of permanent improvements for the St. Lucie Inlet.

Stuart Chamber of Commerce executive director Ray Navitsky is coordinating the event, and the onday planning session gave evidence that help to get the show off the ground is coming in from many quarters of the county.

There are two potential problems that could spoil the festival: bad weather and traffic problems.

With Hurricane David blowing out in the Atlantic, Navitsky said all he could do was hope it would not come this way on Labor Day.

As for the potential traffic problem, planners decided to meet again on Wednesday to see if they could work out the best way to move masses of celebrants.

The festival activites will be conducted on the east side of the 25-cent (Ernest Lyons) bridge and on the south side of A1A. Parking on a first-come, first-served basis will be allowed on other portions of the causeway, and it is expected those spaces will be taken quickly. Once those are filled, festival goers will be asked to park either at the Ocean East Mall or Bay Harbor Plaza parking lot, or to park at Stuart Beach. Two 37-passenger trollies will be running up and down A1A along the causeway to pick up passengers.

Original plans had called for use of the Bay Harbor Plaza parking lot throughout the festival, but some Ocean East Mall parking may be required, as the Foxfire restaurant will need parking for its customers after 5 p.m.

Though A1A will not be blocked to through traffic, festival organizers are asking that those planning to skip the festival and just head for the beach should take the Jensen Beach Causeway to get there. And, as there are estimates that as many as 5,000 to 10,000 persons may attend the festival, organizers are asking as many persons as possible to come by boat.

"We'll have plenty of room for people to moor or beach their boats on the north side of the causeway, and right now, unless we solve some of these traffic problems, it will be a lot easier to handle people coming by boat than by car," Navitsky said.

Organizers had hoped to use school buses to transport people, and local school officials seemed to be in sympathy with their request. However, state law prohibits such use, county commissioner Tom Higgins noted.

Though the festival is on Labor Day, there will be one attraction on Sunday. Vintage airplanes will begin arriving at Witham Field in Stuart for an air show on Monday. The planes, which will likely include B-17s and B-25s, and an AT-6 and a Corsair — all World War II planes — will be on display at Witham Field Sunday afternoon and also from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Monday. Those wishing to view them should park across from the county fair exhibition area along A1A.

Governor Graham is expected to arrive at Witham Field around 3:30 p.m. Monday. He will give a brief speech there, and may take time to visit the airplane display before a motorcade will take him to the celebration on the causeway. He will give a brief speech at the causeway, and later in the evening will be guest of a private party at Sailfish Point.

While at the causeway, Graham will sign a massive rock, weighing about eight tons, which will be used as part of the new jetty for the inlet.

There is no admission charge for the festival, but there will be concessions selling hot dogs, cotton candy, snow cones, popcorn, and soft drinks. The hot dogs will cost 30 cents each and the other items are only a dime each. Ticket sellers will circulate through the crowd, and the public is to buy tickets from them, then use the tickets for concession purchases.

Half a ton of cole slaw, half a ton of baked beans and enough fish to feed 5,000 persons has been lined up for the festival. For only $1.50 you'll get a six to eight-ounce fish fillet, two hush puppies, cole slaw and baked beans. The fish fry will begin at 11 a.m. and run until the fish are sold out.

Twenty two artists will display their work, the Elliott and House of Refuge museums will be open to the public free of charge on Labor Day.

North River Shores kidnap case tied to drug rip-off?

Martin County Sheriff's deputies arrested two Stuart women on kidnapping and other charges Sunday afternoon after the pair, plus another woman still at large, allegedly kidnapped an 18-year-old Iowa woman from a North River Shores home.

Arrested are Kathleen Harden Gass, 28, of 2353 Brennan Court, Stuart, and Barbara Andrews, also known as Barbara O'Bryant, 23, of 245 Charlie Green Terrace, Stuart. Both are charged with kidnapping, aggravated battery and burglary. Ms. Gass is also charged with theft.

Sheriff's Chief Detective Bob Crowder speculated that the Sunday afternoon incident may have been an attempt to keep John Gee, a man arrested last month in St. Lucie County in an armed robbery case, from testifying against Jerry O'Bryant, who was also arrested in that case. O'Bryant is the husband of Barbara Andrews. Crowder said the St. Lucie County robbery was "a drug rip-off case."

Crowder noted that three women, including the two arrested, came to the home of John Gee at 1236 N.W. Pine Ridge Trail in North River Shores on Sunday afternoon. In the home at the time were Shannon Von Groff, 21, who Crowder said is the girlfriend of John Gee, and Rocksanna Peck, 18, of Des Moines, Iowa, a friend of Ms. Von Groff.

Lawmen report that the intruders attacked and beat Ms. Von Groff and Ms. Peck, ransacked the house, took some jewelry, then told the two women they were going to take them to Miami and hold them there. Crowder said a man was apparently at the house during the incident and is wanted for questioning. However, Crowder said he is not sure whether the man had any involvement in the occurance.

As Ms. Von Groff and Ms. Peck were being led from the house to a car, Ms. Von Groff broke free and ran to a neighbour's house, where she called lawmen for help. That call came in at 4:34 p.m.

Sheriff's Desk Sgt. Jessie Taylor said the abductors took Ms. Peck to a house off SR 76 and held her there awhile before releasing her. She was reportedly forced to remove her clothes and was tied up and cut slightly with a knife. Her release came when she apparently convinced the women that she was pregnant and knew nothing of an armed robbery case. Once released, she hitchhiked to a friend's home in Fort Pierce.

Later Sunday evening Ms. Gass and Ms. Andrews were arrested, one in a car and one at her home. The third woman was still at large as of Tuesday afternoon, but Crowder said he expected an arrest would occur soon.

STALKING—One of the favorite activities of Sandpipers is to stalk sandfleas which bury themselves in the sand next to the ocean. Though we're sure the sandfleas don't much like the sport, the Sandpipers love it. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

BUMPY ROAD—Commercial Street has become even bumpier than usual with portions of it torn up for a road improvement project. While Dickerson, Inc. crews work on the road, traffic is being routed over a temporary rock surface. Hopefully, however, Commercial Street and its intersection with Savanna Road will be smoothed out before the winter tourist traffic gets heavy. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

FIT to confer degrees

Jensen Beach-FL Florida Institute of Technology, School of Applied Technology will confer degrees upon ninety graduating students during commencement ceremonies to be held on Friday, August 31. The exercises will take place in the college's chapel at 2:00 p.m. The ceremony will include the conferring of Associate of Science, Bachelor of Science and Master of Business Administration upon the 90 graduates.

Father Gerald Morris of St. Martin's Catholic Church in Jensen Beach will deliver the invocation to open the ceremonies.

Bob McGuire, manager of the Divers Division of J. Ray McDermott Co., Inc. will present the commencement address to the Summer 1979 graduating class. McGuire has acted in his present capacity with the J. Ray McDermott Co., Inc. since 1972, a period of six years during which he has directed the development of the Division's total saturation diving capabilities that have become an integral a part of the marine construction industry.

Dr. John E. Miller, Vice-President for Academic Affairs and Executive Vice-President at the School in Melbourne, FL and Dr. William R. Gehring, Dean for Academic Affairs at the School of Applied Technology will collaborate on the presentation of degrees.

Of special note will be the awarding of the first Bachelor of Science degree in Medical Technology to Ms. Nadene Bleiesburg, a resident of Stuart.

Invitations are not required for attendance at the ceremonies, and a reception will follow in the college's auditorium.

Crosses are burned in Port St. Lucie

There have been at least two cross-burnings in Port St. Lucie in recent days, but there have apparently been no witnesses to identify who has done the burning.

St. Lucie County Sheriff's official Warren Alford reports that the Sheriff's Department got a call around 7:15 p.m. Monday from a Vasthaven Court resident in Port St. Lucie who said a cross had been burned along Lyngate Drive either on Sunday or Monday.

At 10:42 p.m. Monday, the Martin County District Two fire department got a call that a cross was burning in the vicinity of the large Sandpiper Bay Resort sign on U.S. 1 at Westmoreland Boulevard. The department dispatched two trucks and 12 men, but a spokesman said the cross was just smouldering when they arrived. The cross was visible from U.S. 1, he said.

Martin County Sheriff's deputy Kelly Vaughn checked out the cross but could find no one in the area.

Fishing is better

BY DONNIE WILKIE

After a dismal week preceding it, last week saw the fishing scene improve, and the outlook is good for the next few weeks.

"There have been quite a few trout caught in the Indian River," said area fishing expert Johnny Crawford. "There have also been a few snook and a few bottom fish to be had in the river, while in the surf, there have been a lot of snook turning up."

Crawford added that "there have also been some barracuda taken in the surf, which is unusual because they are big ones.

"There are also some kings, dolphin and amberjack offshore," he concluded.

The week's most unusual catch was recorded by Norton Esart, who grabbed 12 whiting, three sand perch -- and a bottle with a note in it with the West Indies.

"He used clams to catch them," said Crawford, who quickly added that Esart did not use them to haul in the bottle with the note in it.

"It drifted in to shore, and inside it, the note said that this note was dropped off a vessel in the West Indies, and it asked the receiver of the bottle to write back," said Crawford.

The bottle, with note inside, was released on April 16, 1979, according to the writer.

Meanwhile, Lou Smitten and wife Frankie combined to catch three snook, two spanish mackerel, and a ladyfish. They were using a mirrolure, fishing in the surf.

Ed Wagner and Charlie Areni had another banner week, this time using the help of Pat Patterson, as they grabbed 53 trout in five days of fishing. They waded in the Indian River on all five occasions.

Fred Moller and Duke Essex picked up two dolphin, one kingfish and an amberjack, trolling offshore with a repulsitore.

Ron Webb can brag of 13 whiting, which he pulled up in the surf, using shrimp, while Bill Hopkins gathered ten trout, wading in the river.

Frank Zurowski landed three trout up to 6¼-pounds, using live shrimp in the river, and the Jeff Baker-Patrick Schroder connection produced four barracuda, up to 25 pounds, in the surf. They used live mullet.

Finally, Crawford himself, along with Charles Bruce and Charles Kessler, reeled in ten trout, fishing in the river with live shrimp.

Weather-wise, the week was nice, albeit wet, too.

The gauge for the week showed some 1.17 inches of rain piling up (the period of August 21-27). Not for many weeks has the area seen so much rain in a week, an indication of how dry the summer has really been.

The high and low temperatures for the week follow, along with the rainfall, and local tides for next week:

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

While most of your readers are aware of the recommended one waying of Commercial Street and Ricou Terrace by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, few of them realize that by so doing, at least five additional minutes will be added to the present running time of the local fire department trucks when responding to a fire call. Although five minutes' time, when you are engaged in a pleasant pastime, passes by in seconds, when racing to a fire, five minutes seems a "lifetime."

Presently, about 75% of our volunteers live west of the railroad tracks. They come down the hill on Commercial, make a left turn north into Palmetto and within seconds are at the firehouse. If Commercial and Ricou are to be one way, the men will have to bypass Palmetto (which will be one way south) to go along Commercial, make a left turn into Indian River Drive (if the light is green), and then a left into Ricou, which will have both north and south bound traffic converging into it, then make a right into Palmetto. Should the light at Commercial and Indian River Drive be red, it could, without doubt cause more minutes to be wasted in trying to reach the fire house.

Responding to a Hutchinson Island call, requires the trucks to drive east along Ricou because it is wide and allows for easier maneuvering. But if Ricou becomes one way west, the trucks would then have to use Church Street, which is very narrow, and exiting from it onto Indian River Drive is almost impossible, because one has to drive almost into traffic in order to see both ways along the river.

While there has been some discussion about building a fire house on the west side of Savanna Road near the schoolhouse, the plans are only in the talking stage. I also wish to point out that our volunteers have responded to over forty calls so far this year, and they are justly proud of their record of arriving at the fire scenes within minutes of the first call.

One of our major objectives to this plan is that it is only being initiated to "move traffic faster during the season." It has been admitted that it is not expected to encourage sales at our local shops, nor are the merchants along these two streets particularly enthused about the plan.

I have often watched the traffic pattern from the vantage point of Commercial and Palmetto (where I live) and the only traffic tie-ups I have ever seen, happen when drivers (and they number in the hundreds) make a left turn from Commercial north into Palmetto to go to the bank or post office. By eliminating left hand turns at this intersection, with the exception of emergency vehicles, traffic would flow in a normal manner and there would be no necessity for one-waying any streets.

I have met with acting County Engineer Jim Pait and he agrees that some problems would exist for our department, and when further discussion takes place with the County Commissioners, he will indicate these problems to them. In the event the Commissioners approve the plan for one-waying, another suggestion would be to install a Fire Light at the corner of Ricou and Palmetto. When the fire siren blows, this light would automatically turn red, stopping traffic in all directions to allow the volunteers to get to the fire station without delay, and the trucks to roll promptly.

Thank you for permitting me the use of your column to acquaint the public (who is my prime concern) with a few facts about the one-way plan, and how detrimental it would be to our promptness in arriving at fires as quickly as we would like to.

THINK AMERICAN AD IS HOGWASH ... Think about it!

It seems Mr. Fryer doesn't like a local automobile dealer's advertising the American Concept, which, in this great country of ours, is his prerogative. I am sure he noticed that the local advertiser never once mentioned the fact that Americans should not be able to buy anything they please from anywhere they please. And not once did the local advertiser say anything derogatory about foreign imports or against domestic competition.

I am sure that with the intelligence Mr. Fryer has indicated he has, he understands the deficit of foreign trade, the unemployment situation, inflation, etc. He mentioned we use foreign "Arabian" oil. Yes! We do! And I am sure most Americans wish we didn't with the escalating prices from O.P.E.C. I am also sure that with Mr. Fryer's intelligence and knowledge, he understands the situation with Retirees and their fixed incomes. After all, they helped build this great country of ours.

It looks to me like most Americans hope that Chrysler Corporation can pull out of their bad situation without calling on Uncle Sam. I'm sure most Americans would like to help!

I think when the local advertiser irritates Mr. Fryer again, he should turn off his Japanese T.V., put on his Korean made flip-flops, take a long walk, and

RICH GUY-POOR GUY VENTURES

QUESTION: It looks to me like the investments with the best chances of big increases in value are the ones where someone does something creative to a property. I'm in a position where I have a pretty good sum of money to invest in real estate and would rather get into a deal where some ingenuity can be applied. The problem is I don't have the know-how. Any thoughts?

ANSWER: Quite frequently when two individuals meet and each has something that the other lacks but needs, they benefit from the acquaintance.

That's the case with so-called "rich guy-poor guy" ventures. Real estate entrepeneurs, because of their expertise, are often involved in so many transactions that it would be difficult for them to invest cash in many of them. For this reason, they will often lend their expertise and reputations to a venture and allow one or more individuals with capital but without real estate credentials to join forces with them.

The goal of a rich guy-poor guy venture is to accomplish precisely what you seek--the acquisition and improvement on investment property with a goal of increasing its value through the use of imaginative techniques.

There are many different types of entities which can be used for these ventures. Depending on which type you choose, they can afford various degrees of control or isolation from risk. Be sure to consult your legal and tax advisors for the entity best suited to your needs.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

Island residents feel the benefits outweigh the risks

What is it that lures people from all parts of the country to Hutchinson Island? Perhaps the answer can be found in the miles of uncrowded beaches and the expansive view of the everchanging ocean. More than just a calling card for the newly arrived or status seekers, Hutchinson Island is the ultimate getaway.

There is a drawback to this island paradise thousands call home. And that is the everpresent threat of a hurricane.

One such storm Hurricane Cleo, moved up from Miami in 1965 and created a disaster that many consider to be one of the worst in the last two decades. Unfortunately, wind damage is not the only side effect of hurricanes. Water surge plays an equally devastating part, as was the case in 1935 when many Floridians felt the disastrous effects of an 18-foot-tide.

HUTCHINSON HOUSE EAST is one of the Island Condo's that has 50' pilings to ensure its stability in the event of a hurricane. (Photo by Cathie Farago)

Island residents deal with this very real threat in a number of ways. One man, a retired colonel from Hawaii says that he used to be concerned about volcanoes before coming to Jensen Beach. Now he says, "certainly I worry about a hurricane, but probably not as much as the insurance companies." Grady Cole, who lives at Green Turtle Cove says, "I have a twenty-thousand dollar boat I'll end up donating to the first hurricane that comes along." Yet another resident, Jacquelyn MacAulley claims that "I could walk down the street and get killed tomorrow, so why not enjoy today on the beach." Bagley, manager of Hutchinson House, has weathered six hurricanes in his lifetime and doesn't worry too much about the Island surviving a storm, much less Hutchinson House. As a precautionary measure, developers not only sunk fifty-foot pilings when they built the condo five years ago, but elevated the living areas above the first floor parking lot as well.

Not everyone however, is in agreement about the effects of a hurricane on Hutchinson Island. One postman who has delivered mail there for years remains skeptical. When asked if he'd ever consider living on the Island, he just shook his head and kept putting mail in the boxes.

If residents have any reservations about a hurricane, they certainly aren't shared by tourists. One such person, Sherry Wells, said she didn't think much about it, and when asked if she would ever live here, she replied "in a minute." Another beet-red tourist, when presented with the question, dispelled the notion with a wave of his hand, then closed his eyes and continued smiling.

Concern however, is shown by the Martin County Commissioners. Stringent building codes are in effect and developers must comply with hurricane and flood standards by employing such measures as breakaway walls and deep pilings, to name a few. Commissioner Tom Higgins does state though that because of the needed balance between economics and practicality, no structure can ever be fully hurricane-proof. He went on to further stress the importance of residents heeding warnings. He cited the disastrous example of those who decided to have a hurricane party during hurricane Camille.

There will always be threats in one form or another. However a threat to one does not necessarily constitute a problem to another, as is evident by those who have built their homes above the San Andreas fault, or dwell precariously on the side of mountains. As one Island resident appropriately put it, "it's all a scale, and if the benefits outweigh the risks, you take it." For those residents of Hutchinson Island, the risk is there, and they will continue talking about it as they sit on their balcony and look out over the ocean.

Bishop Wallace R E. Conkling

RT. REV. WALLACE E. CONKLING

The Rt. Reverend Wallace E. Conkling, the 7th Bishop of Chicago (Retired), and recent Jensen Beach resident, died Monday, August 27th at a nursing home at the age of 82.

A Memorial Requiem will be celebrated at 11:00 a.m. Friday at All Saints Episcopal Church, Jensen Beach, with the Rt. Reverend James Duncan, Bishop of the Southeast Florida Diocese as celebrant.

Bishop Conkling, a native of Beacon, New York, was a graduate of Williams College in Massachusetts, Philadelphia Divinity School, and Oxford University in England. He taught in seminaries before becoming rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Germantown, Philadelphia. This was his only major parish for the nineteen years before he was called to be consecrated the Bishop of Chicago. He was a veteran of W.W. I.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Mary Culver of Covington, Louisiana and Mrs. Lloyd Hornbostel, Jr. of Beloit, Wisconsin, as well as four grandchildren.

During the twelve years Bishop Conkling presided as Bishop of Chicago he worked tirelessly to build missions and reduce the church's indebtedness. He was one of one hundred leaders in midwest distinguished at the Northwestern University Centennial, and was honored with five doctoral degrees during his tenure.

Bishop Conkling was forced into early retirement as the Bishop of Chicago when his regular eighty hour week routine took its toll and his doctor ordered immediate retirement in 1953. He then moved himself and his family to Vero Beach, Florida where his church duties became limited to maintaining the mission Church of St. Simon of Cyrene in Fort Pierce, substituting for ill or vacationing clergy, assisting in administering Confirmation in Episcopal Churches from Daytona to Key West, preaching and writing spiritual material. Within the past few months he finished the final draft on his memoirs as Bishop, entitled "A Bishop in Action." He had planned an epilogue to cover early days as a parish priest but the sudden advances of his illness prevented this project. Among the Bishop's published writings include "Priesthood in Action," a handbook for the parish priest.

Upon his arrival in the Treasure Coast area of Florida the Bishop immediately made his mark on the communities as he plunged into civic activities. He served seven years on the board of trustees of Indian River Memorial Hospital in Vero Beach, spent ten years on the Indian River County Library board and was the leader in building the modern library building in that city. Funds were raised under his leadership to set up a beach park for Blacks in the days before public beaches were racially integrated. The Bishop also quietly raised scholarship funds for the needy long before federal funds were readily available.

His late wife, Mrs. Constance Conkling died in 1969. The Bishop then moved to Jensen Beach in 1972.

Contributions may be made to All Saints Episcopal Church Memorial Fund.

Arrangements are under the direction of Aycock Funeral Home.

Ocean Breeze

BY LETA KEITH

Ernie, hurry

ERNIE — HURRY BACK!!! Sometimes I get H E double hockey sticks for writing some things and then, sometimes I get H E double because I haven't written something.

Joe and Genny Jensen have moved here permanently from Clemonton, New Jersey. They have spent four winters in Ocean Breeze in four different homes, the last being on Fifth Street. They now have purchased the Powell home on Almond. Joe loves to shuffle. Genny enjoyed being in the New Jersey Night show. One of their two sons asked to be transferred from the Las Vegas Post Office to Jensen Beach. So now Joe Jensen Jr. lives on Linda Drive, Jensen Beach but works in the Ft. Pierce Post Office. Their daughter Jerry Arenl lives on Barbara Drive. Welcome to Ocean Breeze Park and Jensen Beach to the Jensens.

Mrs. Clinton (Eunice) King returned home from Ohio on Wednesday, August 22.

Al Austin, nephew of Mae Cassidy, arrived home in Delaware on Monday. While here, he took his Aunt Mae to Jake's Restaurant for her birthday and asked her pal, Mae Togneri, to go with them.

Letters to Ellen Nixon:

Violet D. Van Genechten of Detroit, Michigan died August 11th. She was the eldest daughter of our Rausy Matthews of 7th Street.

Frances Reese and Les and Mary Ann Blanchard are looking forward to Ocean Breeze (by the first part of October, we hope).

Sue and Art Bygd had a short summer in Boyesville, Wisconsin in July. Asked us to enjoy the warm weather for them. (That is the first request for warm weather.)

Things have been "running backwards" all year for Jane and George Phillips. Jane is better each day but the weather has been very bad for their vegetables. They are hoping Betty MacNab and her daughter will visit them when they have good sweet corn.

Elmer and Dorothy Rains of Pisgah, Iowa, are hoping to go to the Spencer Fair in mid-September and then over to Rapid City, S. Kadota to see Elmer's cousin.

Margaret Johnson, in Petersham, Massachusetts, misses all her Ocean Breeze friends.

Al Ferguson, formerly of Ocean Breeze Park, passed away last week.

Mr. & Mrs. Irvin Keith were married Aug. 31, 1929, in the Methodist Church in Robinson, Ill. They have lived in Ocean Breeze Park 22 years. They have one living son George Thomas, four grown grandchildren and six greatgrandchildren, all near Robinson, Ill.

They celebrated with the 79-84s in Feb. both at their Jensen Beach Community Church and Ocean Breeze Park receptions. They have requested no gifts. They just want love and friendship from their friends.

Hammondsport party a success

Labor Day weekend is nearly here. The last vacation till Nov. & Dec. for families to get out. The way it looks there are many coming in to enjoy our Falk. School does upset the well laid plans of most families.

The H.Out Annual Get together was held in Hammondsport, N.Y. on July 31, Aug. 1 & 2, located in the Finger Lakes Area, hosted by Jean & Bob Davis. The guest list was smaller this year, due to gas shortage and several that had operations. But a good time was enjoyed by all who attended, visiting Corning Glass Plant, Wineries and The Wine Museum, with plenty of good food and sampling the local food products. The Davis's own and manage a motel, said there wasn't any gas shortage there this summer, but they suffered loss of business because people were afraid to travel.

Bob Long remarked to me Sunday that the Park looked the best ever for the summer in the grass cutting. And wanted to tell the boys of the good job, they are doing. Seconded by the Royals, Hendricks, Nagys, Barnards and Allison.

Jean & Mac McCabe returned from the Legion meeting held in Houston, Texas. Traveling in their new motor home. Enjoyed a good trip of two weeks.

Beryle & Cecil Roy write they are enjoying peas & tomatoes from their garden. But August 14 the temperature was 46 degrees then finally went to 56. All this in Mich. Brrrrr! The grandchildren are keeping them busy.

Bea Lupke says Oscar's getting to be quite a good cook and housekeeper since she is still in a back brace.

Earle Palmer thanks everyone for his get well cards, and is now home, but is restricted as yet. He hopes to be rid of his brace when he returns in Oct.

Catty & Les Ullmann returned at noon and was greeted with a delicious lunch at the Frank Pizz's. Catty looks well after her health challenge. We hope the Florida sunshine puts the roses back in her cheeks.

Al & Carol Wright returned to H.Out last Wednesday from N.York and now are enjoying the beautiful clean pool. N.York's weather was quite changeable while they were there.

Bob & Edna Young arrived in H. Out and it looked so good to them they

Rio Civic Club plans card party Sept. 4

The next card party will be on Tuesday, September 4 at 1 p.m. All are welcome.

The regular card party was held at the Rio Civic Club last Tuesday August 21 with a good group in attendance.

Door prizes were won by Gladys Foehr, Sylvia Barton, and Aileen O'Neil.

Table prizes were won by Freda Schlimm, Grace Lewis, Virginia Morris, Rae Zajic, Bert Allen, Mary Wagner, Helen Schomer, and Jill Morris.

Hostesses were Helen Schomer, Rae Zajic, Helen Hager, and Jill Morris

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 334-1916

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray made the remark, "Why do we leave"?

Al & Peg Ray enjoyed the Burt Reynolds dinner theatre. Godspell was the production. Altho it was a modern version of a Bible story it had quite a good lesson thru it.

Virginia Inman & Peg Ray started exercising last Monday at Rec Hall. Need more.

Pat & Joyce O'Teri returned to the Park for the weekend. They always enjoy the ocean.

Jack McConnell proudly displayed 2 beautiful snook that he caught on Thurs. nite. The Wildlife inspector didn't have any doubt of the size of those 2 beauties.

Marian 9 George Madus have a new granddaughter, which makes an even dozen now.

Lena Black put on a buffet dinner in honor of Bob's birthday. Quite a family affair it turned out to be.

Two families, Evelyn & Ed Frost are planning on returning to H.Out in early Sept. Also Carrie & Charlie Ullmann will be returning.

Anniversaries Congratulations for— Carrie & Charlie Ullmann 8-31, Evelyn & Gerald Tytherington 9-2, Betty & Bob Lobdell, Anne & Henry Bischoff 9-3, Edith & Chester Gramstorff 9-4.

Happy Birthday wishes— Gordy St. Louis, Dorothy Abraham 8-30, Charles Ullmann, Roy Lamon, Edna Young, Katherine Michaels 8-31, Edna Spencer, George Ewalt 9-1, Harry Berglund, Elbina Collette 9-3, Mac O'Donnell 9-4, Edward Frost 9-5.

Mary and Bill Cameron called this correspondent (Elizabeth O'Donnell) last week to say they are getting homesick for Holiday Out. They hope to leave Michigan in early October and reach here by the middle of the month with stop-overs for sightseeing along the way.

Arletta and Frank Wehlage are back in the Park after a long visit with their family and friends in Illinois and Indiana. They had a very pleasant summer; did not need air conditioning at night because there was plenty of rain, a boon to the mid-west farmers who are having bumper crops of corn, soybeans and wheat this year. Like most of us, the Wehlages are happy to be back.

Robins trying to change Martin County volleyball image

LOOKING FOR IMPROVEMENT—Martin County High School volleyball coach Sherrie Robins, entering her second season as coach of the Tigers, looks forward to a better season than the 4-10 posted by the Lady Tigers in 1978. She told The Mirror that volleyball has been a "token sport" in years past, but that she has now been able to clear most of the hurdles in establishing the program as a good one. All that remains now is the task of getting girls interested in volleyball at an early stage - their freshman and sophomore years.

(Photo by Donnie Wilkie)

BY DONNIE WILKIE

What high school sport begins its conference season before any other?

If you said football, you are part of what Martin County volleyball coach Sherrie Robins calls "an unfortunate situation."

The early-bird sport is girls' volleyball, usually called just volleyball because it is a strictly girls' sport at the high school level. Yet, for all the money, time and efforts used in the football program, not only at Martin County but at most other schools as well, volleyball is relegated to a role of a very "minor" sport.

"Title Nine says they have to have a girls' sport in the fall months, because the boys have football," she continued, "but as far as going out and getting the qualified people to run the program, they just don't do it."

The Martin County coach is entering her second year, both as the coach and as a member of the MCHS faculty. Before that, she put in a year at each of two middle schools — one in Jacksonville and another in Coral Springs (Miami).

Her college days lasted from 1972 to 1976, at Florida State University in Tallahassee, her birthplace. She now teaches math at the high school.

Robins readily admits that she probably wasn't the kind of a coach that could build a volleyball power-house — at least not when she started.

"Frankly, I don't know how I ended up being the volleyball coach," she remarked. "I had coached softball in Miami, but I never coached volleyball before I began here."

In fact, she played the sport only in high school. But when approached with the opportunity at MCHS, she accepted, and she says now that it has been an enjoyable experience.

"Four or five of our girls went to a summer volleyball camp, and I decided to go, too, and I learned a lot there."

So did the players who attended, and that may be the principle reason for a marked improvement in the Tigers' game this season. Last year, they suffered through a 4-10 campaign, but this year, things could easily improve.

"I think we can be good," forecasted Robins. "Looking back on last year, I really think we've gotten better, but then again, so have the rest of the conference teams. I'm really psyched up for it."

Robins has a problem, in that only 14 girls were out for her sport as of press time, although they include five returning players, four of whom are guaranteed starters. Setters Kathy Baum and Jessica Nye, along with spikers Lisa Greendahl and Linda Piwnicska will be able to help some of the younger, more inexperienced players.

Add to that Susan Werner, a transfer from Festus, Missouri (about 30 miles south of St. Louis), who, says Robins, "is probably the most highly skilled player we have out there."

"That leaves us with one starting position up for grabs," she stated, "and it's pretty wide open. I'm going to have to see them play more before I decide. But right now, it's too soon to tell."

But with only 14 players out, Robins cannot set up a junior varsity team, almost a necessity in building a winning program. The Jayvee squad enables players of lesser experience and ability to gain the many necessary for the varsity squad, especially in the case of freshmen.

With the new school day at MCHS, it is impossible for freshmen to play on the team.

"Last year, we ended practice at 4:30, in the afternoon, but the freshmen don't get out of school until 4:00, so it is nearly impossible for them to play on any team," Robins explained. "But I think if I can get enough kids to come out, and they want to play, I'd be willing to stay and help them."

And if they don't have enough problems already, the team must remain wary of grades, which will come out "about two-thirds" of the way through the season, which opens with a September 12 match at Forest Hill in West Palm Beach. The first home match is September 17, against Lake Worth-Leonard.

"We could use an intermural program, too," added Robins. "Last year, they had sign-ups for it, and no one even signed up. But then again, I didn't even know about the sign-ups!" If only we could get the kids going, get them interested, then we'd have the beginnings of a good program."

"These kids work well together," she concluded. "Right now, we've got that jamboree pressing in on us, but after that, we can practice for a week and a half before the season begins."

Civic All-Stars battle it out in Thursday showdown

The best of two worlds meet tomorrow (Thursday) night at Langford Park, when the Offensive and Defensive All-Stars meet in the first annual Muscular Dystrophy-Civic League All-Star softball Classic.

The game is being sponsored by The Mirror Newspapers, who will present two trophies before the contest — to the league Most Valuable Player and to its leading batter for the regular season.

All proceeds from the ticket sales (both advance and gate) will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA), as part of the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon September 2-3.

The offensive team rated as the favorites entering the contest, based on its overwhelming power at the plate.

The squad is blessed with pure hitters (Mike Wegler of the Optimist Club and The Deck's Mark Poormon), as well as the power (first baseman Dave Malheiro and third baseman Russ Hughes, both of the Baptist Church, Mirror MVP John Conway of The Deck and Bob Komara of Headquarters).

They also possess one of the league's finest pitchers in David Bocchino of First Federal. The team's pitcher through its 1979 state championship effort, Bocchino recorded the Civic League's only no-hitter ever, as he zapped Headquarters, 20-0 in the post-season championship tournament. Needless to say, the young right-hander also possesses a healthy bat, the reason for his selection as the Offense starting pitcher.

His counterpart will be the Optimists' Bill Mang, who notched a 6-1 regular season record for the second place squad.

The Defense will theoretically field an error-proof ten, but then again, no team is perfect. Many observers felt that they might need exactly that — a perfect game defensively — to derail the steamrolling Offense.

The outfield is strong, with Andy's Hamburgers' only All-Star selection, Milton Reese, joining WSTU Radio's Hamp Elliott, Jerry Bocchino (Optimists) and Nick Barker (First Federal).

In the infield, Steve Zelenski (Headquarters) will get the nod at third base, Al Killian (The Deck) is at shortstop, Nick Blount of the Optimists will play second base, and FFMC's Gregg Sprauer, who also has swung a hot bat of late, will occupy first base. Catching is Steve Coy (FFMC).

For the Offense, Conway, Wegler, Komara and Rob Phillips (Optimists) comprise the outfield, while the infield sees Poormon at third, the Jensen-Rio Fire Department's Charlie Schommer at short, Barry North of The Deck at second, and Malheiro on first. The catcher is John Pederson of First Federal.

Pederson's father, John Sr., will manage the Defense, while the manager of regular season champ First Federal, Frank Hughes, will control the Offense. The game will be a nine-inning contest, with actually starting time slated for 8:05 p.m.

Tickets can still be purchased from any of three outlets — Bruner's Sporting Goods in Stuart (Monterey Plaza), or the offices of WSTU Radio or The Mirror in Jensen Beach.

Advance tickets are available for a one dollar donation to the fight against muscular dystrophy, while at the game, tickets will be $1.25, kids under the age of ten are admitted free.

PART OF THE DEFENSE—Nick Barker, an outfielder for First Federal of Martin County, the regular season Civic League champions, stands in the on-deck circle at one of last week's practices. The All-League Defensive All-Stars were preparing for Thursday (tomorrow) night's Civic League All-Star game, sponsored in part by the Jensen Beach Mirror. Barker will start the game in the Defense outfield.

St. Lucie is fifth in World Series

After answering the skeptics with its opening-round victory, the St. Lucie County All-Stars dropped two games last week, leaving them in fifth place as the 1979 Babe Ruth League World Series concluded in Nogales, Arizona.

The localers, fielding four players from Port St. Lucie, were zapped by New Orleans Lake Shore in the winner's bracket semi-finals, 8-1, before being nipped by Honolulu (Hawaii) in the loser's bracket, 9-8.

Nevertheless, the St. Lucie squad, winners in the Southeastern Regional tournament at Fort Pierce three weeks ago, left nothing but good thoughts in the minds of some 8,000 residents in the Mexican-American twin city of Nogales, located on the border about 60 miles from Tucson.

They provided two of the most exciting games in the tournament — their 5-4 victory over Pendleton, Oregon in the first round and the one-run loss to Honolulu — before ending what turned out to be an exciting stay.

After Denny Green and Scott Whitaker handled the pitching chores in game one, Cornell Haughabook, who tossed four no-hitters in St. Lucie County regular season play, absorbed a brutal beating in the first two innings at the hands of the Louisiana squad.

The game started innocently enough, as St. Lucie took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning. Brian Stone opened the game with a walk, then scored when Kenny Lassens, who ripped the game-winning hit against Pendleton, stroked a double.

Unfortunately, New Orleans' Brian Dixon fired a two-hitter, allowing only a seventh inning single by Todd Gilmore after Lassens' shot in the first. Dixon struck out seven batters, at one point retiring 17 in a row in between a pitch that hit St. Lucie catcher Terrance McGriff and a walk issued to McGriff.

New Orleans got all the scoring they needed when Haughabook's control problems allowed them three walks and cleanup hitter Will Clark drilled a two-run single to lead off the first frame. After Octave Francis flied out to second baseman Randy Blair, George Hera blew the game wide open with a three run home run over the right-centerfield wall.

The 5-1 lead lasted only until the New Orleans hitters got another crack at Haughabook, in the second inning.

After Dixon reached on an error, Kevin Schultz singled and Pat Cuntz lined a two-run base hit, making it 7-1. New Orleans managed only one more run off a settling-down Haughabook in the final four frames, but the damage was done.

Honolulu 9 St. Lucie 8

Once again, St. Lucie ignored the odds, coming from behind in the sixth inning to take a 4-3 lead against the Pacific Southwest champs. They had scored two runs in the fourth on a unique play where the first baseman failed to tag the bag after receiving a throw from the infield, but until their sixth frame outbrust, they appeared to be the inferior team.

Whitaker opened the inning with a walk and McGriff singled. Tony Guzzetta followed with a walk, loading the bases, and when Honolulu pitcher Joey Vierra uncorked a wild pitch, Whitaker sprinted across with the tying run. Moments later, Vince Insogna, one of the Port St. Lucie products, successfully executed a suicide squeeze bunt, scoring McGriff with the go-ahead run.

But Honolulu retaliated, smacking four hits, including a three-run double by Vierra that seemingly burst the St. Lucie bubble, in a six-run barrage that left them leading 9-4 into the final canto.

Once again, the St. Lucians fought back, as they scratched out four scores and placed two more runners on base — all after the first two batters in the inning struck out!

Lassens reached on an error; Green singled him to second; McGriff ripped a single, scoring Lassens and sending Green to third; Guzzetta walked, loading the bases; Bill Chapman walked, scoring Green (9-6); and Insogna, fast becoming the hero for the localers, blasted a two-run single deep to left center, scoring both McGriff and Guzzetta and making it 9-8.

Chapman's walk and Insogna's single came off Dirk Soma, who relieved Vierra when things began to happen in the inning. But Soma relaxed long enough to strike out pinch hitter Bruce Jorgenson and give Honolulu a berth in the quarter-final round.

Football preview next week

The Mirror Newspapers will publish its 1979 Football Preview next week (September 5), it was announced by Sports Editor Donnie Wilkie.

The special preview will be contained in the sports section of The Mirror, and will include reports on every area prep and junior team, as well as a quick look at the colleges and pro teams of local interest.

In addition, The Mirror will include a special clip-out schedule section, with all of the schedules of local prep, colleges and pro teams. It was not known at press time this week whether the junior schedules would be completed in time for inclusion in the preview.

See what Fred Chase has to say about his Martin County Tigers; what Phil Farinella thinks of his Fort Pierce Central Cobras — even what Herb Seal thinks about the Jensen Beach Razorbacks Upper Division junior football team!

It's all in next week's Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie Mirrors.

Looking good!

GETTING READY–for the 1979 junior football season are Jensen Beach head coaches Frank Fitzpatrick (Lower Division Barracudas) and Herb Seal (Upper Division Razorbacks). Both are deep in concentration, as they try to prepare their players for the pre-season jamboree, held in a week-and-a-half. The Jensen Beach teams are expected to do well this year, as Seal is confident the Razorbacks can break out of a recent-seasons slump, and the Lower Division Barracudas, who have contended for the title in the past two years, look strong again. Nash Invitational to benefit youth

Nash Pontiac Cadillac and Jeep, of Fort Pierce will again sponsor the 4th Annual Nash Invitational Golf Tournament for the benefit of the Sheriffs' Boys Ranch and Girls Villa.

This one day golf tournament will be held at the Indian Hill Golf and Country Club in Ft. Pierce on Thursday, October 6.

One hundred and twenty players will be accepted on a first come basis. Deadline for registration is September 24, 1979.

In addition to a 1980 Cadillac for the first hole in one on the 185 yard 6th hole, there will be other prizes, gifts and social fun.

MORE GOLF– Frank Eller, of Jensen Beach, qualified last week to win a free trip to Scotland, as he scored a hole-in-one at the Martin County Golf and Country Club.

Eller's name will be entered in the 19th annual Rusty Nail Hole-In-One Sweepstakes, a national competition based in New York City and sponsored by the Drambuie Liqueur Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner's name will be announced early next year.

Tony Dagata part of Nyad's success

BY DONNIE WILKIE

When Diana Nyad came ashore last week between Jupiter and Juno Beach, having completed her much-publicized Bimini (Bahamas)-to-Florida marathon swim, there were many happy people.

Tony Dagata was just one of the many happy ones. Yet there were few that could claim a bigger role in her success story.

Dagata was one of three divers hired by Nyad's crew chief, Ken Gundersen of Indiantown), to help patrol the waters around the swimmer while she was making her way toward the Florida coast.

"My job was to protect her from sharks or whatever might come around and disrupt her," he said last week from his home, in Jensen Beach. Basically, we (the three divers) served as a shark-watch."

Apparently, Dagata and Company did their job quite well, because Nyad, who had failed in previous Cuba-to-Key West and Bimini-to-Florida attempts, made it to the coast in 27 hours, 38 minutes.

Even more astounding was the fact that Dagata said there "were no negative thoughts" or problems along the way.

"I didn't hear any negative tones," responded the local diver when asked if there were any real problems. "Everything I heard indicated that she was going to make it.

When the sun came up, we felt like that was it–her spirits lifted almost immediately. It was a long, long night. Even though we were still five miles away from the beach, we knew that was it."

Dagata describes Nyad as a "very nice, intelligent woman," also adding that she "has to be a remarkable person to be able to do what she did."

She is also outspoken– she says what's on her mind," said Dagata.

But the two got along well enough during the swim that Nyad has asked him to join her on her next marathon attempt, another crack at the Cuba-to-the-Keys distance.

"Basically, they told me not to talk to her too much while she was swimming," he said. "The trainers did all that because they know what to say to her. After all, when you've been going that long, someone has to know the right things to say. They have to keep encouraging her on."

But Dagata did occasionally bring a smile to Nyad's face, suggesting to her "Let's go to Florida!"

Gunderson knew of Tony through his diving in the local area, and called him just before the recent success. This was Dagata's first adventure with Nyad, but, if all goes according to plans, the next one (Cuba-to-the-Keys) will be in early October.

"Frankly, we don't know if there will be another swim," commented Dagata. "It takes a lot of money, somewhere in the neighborhood of $120,000. I don't even know if they have any of it yet, but I hope they've got it all."

Dagata explained that the swim has to go off in October, "before the currents get too bad and the weather begins to change."

Dagata lives in Jensen Beach with his wife, Barbara, and a son, Tony, Jr. He served in the U.S. Navy during the Vietnam War, and that's when he got his first experience as a diver. Now he's registered to go as deep as 285 to 300 feet.

But never did he experience anything like that Nyad swim.

"I could hardly walk for two days after that," he replied when asked just how tired he was. "My legs were all raw from the salt water and the jellyfish."

Of course, Dagata couldn't keep up with Nyad when it came to swimming, so during the trip, he held onto a line coming into the water from the crew's boat, although he did have to swim some.

"I had to swim around her and under her, making sure nothing was around," he added. "I personally saw nothing, although they said there was a shark around for awhile. We had a special Electronic Shark Shield in the water, and that would keep them away.

"It worked very well, I thought. It went down about 25 feet, and I know I felt better when it was in the water with me."

At night, though, visibility was reduced drastically.

"We had flashlights in the water, and we maybe had a visibility of 30 feet," he said, "but it's hard to say whether we would have had enough time to get her (Nyad) out of the water if a shark came right in on us."

"It's amazing, though. Ken (Gundersen) had five different possible routes planned out for her swim. Last week, we sat down and he placed her actual course over those routes, and it almost identically matched them."

FIERCE WINDS blasted downtown Jensen Beach during Hurricane David on Labor Day. The cane forced postponement of a gala Inlet Festival which Governor Bob Graham was to attend on the Stuart Causeway. Property damage was heavy, but no serious injuries were reported. Note the traffic signals blown at an angle at the corner of Indian River Drive and Commercial Street.

David lashes Jensen Beach

By Bob Fryer

Although Jensen Beach appears to be one of Florida's hardest hit communities by Hurricane David on Labor Day, there was no loss of life, and many folks are saying that we're pretty lucky not to have received more damage than we did.

Assistant county administrator Roger Nichols, who was stationed at the county's Emergency Operations Center throughout the storm, said, "We got reports of 90 mile an hour winds, but some other people say they must have been 110. Regardless, it was a comparatively mild hurricane, and the county commission is worried that the people who sat this one out without much damage will feel now that they've been through one, there's not much to fear. We're afraid they'll get a false sense of security, which could be a dangerous thing if we get a real bad one."

Apparently, the hurricane had an elliptical eye, as the National Weather Service was at times locating the storm offshore while residents in south Martin County were reporting the calm eye of the storm was over them. The eye marched up the coast, with persons in all eastern portions of the county reporting it over them at various times.

After leaving here, David swept up the coast to Vero Beach, slowed its northern movement a bit, then moved offshore on a path toward the Georgia coast.

There was surprisingly little storm surge, and county residents were fortunate in that the brunt of the hurricane hit during low tide. No major erosion problems were reported.

Preparations for the storm began for some on Saturday, when local supplies of plywood and lag bolts were depleted. Stores also sold great quantities of candles, flashlights, transistor radios, batteries, canned goods, and water.

By Sunday evening the rains came, but it was not until Monday morning that the winds got high. The most severe winds, from the north, hit between 10 a.m. and noon, just before the eye passed over the area.

The eye of the hurricane remained over some portions of the area for several hours before winds began blowing from the south.

By nightfall, winds were subsiding somewhat, but not as much as officials at the Emergency Operations Center in Martin County expected. "After the eye passed out of here, we figured it wouldn't be too long until we could send people home from the hurricane shelters. But David slowed its northern movement near Vero and it took longer for the winds here to clear out than anticipated. We advised the people in the shelters to stay there for the night, as they'd be going home in the dark and could get hurt."

David ripped off roofs, snapped hundreds of trees, downed power lines, and shredded scores of aluminum screen enclosures and awnings. It sank boats in several locations, and caused water damage in homes scattered throughout the greater Jensne Beach area.

Evacuation of Hutchinson Island went smoothly, and other than a few reports of persons with heart problems and one report of a broken hip, injuries were light.

Electricity went out in many areas Sunday night and by Monday morning, nearly every home was without power. Service was restored to most areas Tuesday morning, though some were still waiting for power that evening.

Phone service also was knocked out for many homes, and some were still without phone service Tuesday afternoon, including The Mirror office. A Perry Cable television service official said virtually all service was out, but some was being restored Tuesday.

However, she said there would be areas that may not get restoration of service for several days.

"We wait until Florida Power and Light and Southern Bell clear an area, then we move in," she explained.

PUSHING HER HOME—This couple stalled out Monday evening a short distance from Lake Manor mobile home park on Indian River Drive, then got out and pushed their car home at the park.

The damage report

Most feel we are lucky it wasn't worse

The following is an area by area report of damage, but is not by any means intended to be an exhaustive list of damage.

JENSEN BEACH

Several boats were smashed to bits and sunk at the Bait Box marina, and a few were leaning into one another atop braces at Bailey Boats. There was extensive roof damage to Seymour's Inn and minor roof damage at the Outrigger Resort restaurant, where a foot and a half of water was reported inside the restaurant on Tuesday.

The windows were blown out of Lil Bit of Beauty and also at the Jensen Beach Barber Shop. The Bandy Steel roof was partially peeled back, and a radio tower at the Jensen Beach Fire Department was downed.

Scores of trees along Indian River Drive, from north of Walton Road all the way to F.I.T. were blown over, with some blocking the road at times.

On the causeway, the ramp to the fishing pier was partially knocked out, and one pavilion was flattened. About 50 feet of seawall at the causeway was down.

Damage was relatively light at Ocean Breeze Park, but Gene Hoke, park owner, reports a tornado grabbed a carport and tossed it across Indian River Drive.

On Skyline Drive there was some damage to a number of roofs, with Joseph Carbone of 3726 N. E. Skyline reporting the worst.

"The roof started to go just before the eye came, then when the winds came form the other direction, it took out what was loosened," said Carbone, who said he had extensive water damage to two rooms.

The Indian River Drive north of Seymours Inn was littered with tree limbs and trunks, but most homes survived with light damage.

Damage to Langford Park was extensive. A separate sory in today's Mirror tells of that.

Many trees toppled at the Evinrude estate, and Rick Campbell said "We had to cut our way in and out several times."

Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano said there were reports of 10 power lines down, and he said while his men were cutting fallen trees along Indian River Drive, winds ripped into a nearby mobile home, tearing it up. The firemen took a frightened woman out of it to a neighbour's home. Luckily, there were no fires during the hurricane.

RIO

Four boats, including a large house boat, were sunk at the Anchorage Marina, and Don McLean of the Anchorage said he heard there was one boat damaged at Cans Rio boats. On Glass Avenue, James Morris reports he had about 10 trees topple. Several of those trees were massive, but the only damage the caused was two broken jalousie windows to a home next door. "The trees just sort of eased over," Morris said.

SPS in Rio received some damage, and many of the trusses to condominiums under construction at River Club toppled like dominoes. Along SR 707, power lines were downed by falling trees.

About 100 persons stayed at the Jensen Lanes hurricane shelter, and it was reported they were charged for food, rather than getting it free, as was the case at other shelters.

Peter Otovic of the Martin County Red Cross said he informed personnel at the Lanes that food would be provided, but says he was told the Lanes had food and would provide it. Otovic said he told the officials there to keep tabs of what was dispensed and the Red Cross would pay for it, but says he later got a report the food was being sold. He said he delivered Red Cross food to the Lanes on Monday evening.

Peter Otovic said the shelter housing the largest number of persons was Jensen Beach Elementary School, but he did not have a figure readily available as to how many stayed there. "All total, we had a little more than 1,700 persons in 27 shelters in the county," he said.

SAVANNA ROAD AREA

LaVaughn Tilton reports that of 300 mobile homes at Pinelake Village, only two sustained severe damage. She said those two lost some roofing when screen roofs pulled off portions of the main roof. Other than that, she said damage was limited to some screen enclosures and aluminium awnings. She said about 175 residents stayed at the park's clubhouse, which maintained lights through use of a generator. Power to the mobile homes was still reported out Tuesday afternoon.

Tropical Acres also had light damage, and in Leilani Heights, there were signs Tuesday morning of only very light damage. At Miniature Estates a fence was down and a large utility shed was overturned.

HUTCHINSON ISLAND

... Erosion of the beach was much less severe than expected, and damage to the high-rise condominiums seemed light from outward appearances. A large crane toppled at the St. Lucie II nuclear power plant, and until Tuesday morning, a portion of the island from just south of Jensen Public Beach to just north of the Elliott Museum was isolated by scored trees which fell over the road.

There was some damage to the main structure at Jensen Public Beach and several large Australian Pines blocked access to the main parking area. Those trees took power lines with them when they fell.

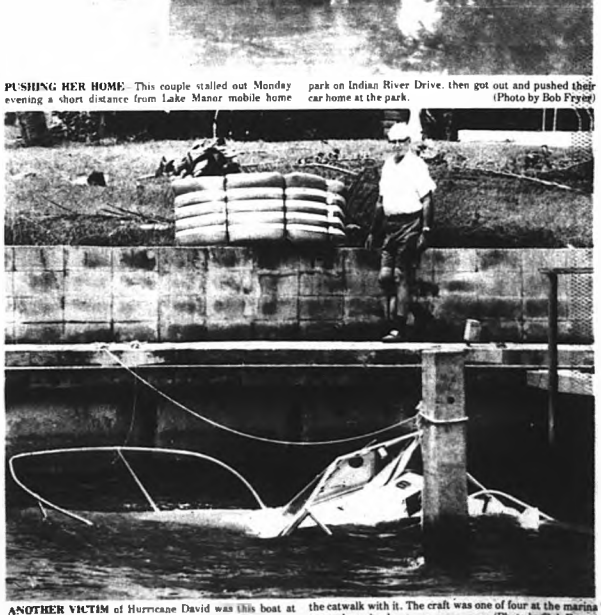
A sign readin, "David,Keep Out" was painted over a boarded up store just north of the south St. Lucie County line, but farther up the road, at the 7-11, the hurricane came inside. The windows to the 7-11 were blown out around 5:30 p.m. Monday and water was inside the store. Store manager Leonard Stein said he could not reach the store until Tuesday morning, but says there was apparently nothing stolen.

Holiday Out was hit hard. Three motor homes were blown on their sides, and scores of screen porches were blown off. At least one boat sank at the Holiday Out marina. The northwest protion of the park had the most damage.

Destruction at Outdoor Resorts of America was described as similar to that at Holiday Out.

SEWALL'S POINT

Evacuation was requested in portions of community, and apparently low-lying residents did get out. The main damage was to landscaping rather than to structures, but at the Foxfire Inn, part of the roofing came off. As of Tuesday afternoon, some parts of High Point were still without power. No boat damage was reported.



ANOTHER VICTIM of Hurricane David was this boat at the Anchorage Marina in Rio. When the boat sank, it took the catwalk with it. The craft was one of four at the marina to get deep sixed.

NOT SCRUBBED—A Frisbee golf tournament at Florida Oceanographic Society was one of only a few events that didn't get postponed Sunday when Hurricane David approached the area. Shown above are a group of spectators watching a playoff which resulted when four persons tied for first with scores of 57 on the 18 hole course. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

WOMEN compete at one of the few activities in the area which was not scrubbed Sunday by the approach of Hurricane David — a Frisbee golf tournament held at the Florida Oceanographic Society headquarters in Stuart. After two previous tourneys on FOS which were conducted for men only, the women got their chance to compete, and emerged victorious when 9 golfers on four teeshers were: Sally Ankeny, first with a score of 72; Margo Olsen, third with a 74; and Becky Worthan, fourth with 77.

WINNER—Chip Turknett of Stuart lets fly with a Frisbee during playoff competition at a Frisbee golf tournament at Florida Oceanographic Society. Chip and three others tied for first with a 57 after a regulation 18 holes of play, and he was still tied for first with Marshall Smith after a nine hole playoff. Then they went into sudden death and Turknett won on the second hole. Smith took second prize, Hollis Langhelm was third and Chuck Hobbins placed fourth. It was the fourth area tourney of its kind in the last two years, with the last three tourneys at the FOS grounds. Mark Perry of FOS is shown in the background, keeping score. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Before leaving on your carefully planned trip, be sure to find out what kind of hotel accomodations you will have. You may be sharing a room without your knowledge. If you are going to a warm place, you will want to know if the room will be air-conditioned or heated if you are visiting England, which can suddenly turn cold, even in summer months. Ask whether your room will have a private bath, or if you will have to share--and, if so, with how many people. Ask if you will have to pay extra for a single room if you are traveling alone.

MONSTER—John Mastos of Jensen Beach shows off a giant 25 and a quarter pound snook he caught last week in the surf on a live croaker. "He gave me a fit. He took the line and I didn't know when he would stop," Mastos said. He caught the fish on 20-pound test line. His fishing partner, Jimmy Wells of Jensen Beach, caught a 22 pounder a day earlier on a casting rod loaded with 20 pound test line. He too was using a live croaker. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

24 POUND SNOOK—Gary Lange landed this 24 pounder recently while fishing near the Evans Crary (10-cent) bridge. Langa said he was using a large live mullet for bait when the fish struck around 5 a.m. "He gave me a pretty good fight," said Lange, who is vacationing here from Boca Raton. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Graybush participates in Navy operation

Navy Engineman Fireman Dennis C. Graybush, son of Conrad J. and Laura Graybush of 206 W. Prima Vista Blvd., Port Saint Lucie, Fla., recently participated in the U.S 6th Fleet operation "National Week 79" in the central Mediterranean Sea.

He is a crewmember aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Albany, operating from Italy.

The week-long exercise involved 20 ships and 200 aircraft. Almost 15,000 sailors and Marines participated. "National Week" was designed to test naval warfare techniques and proficiency in a simulated multi-threat air, surface ship and submarine warfare environment.

Graybush joined the Navy in June 1976.

Intelligent driving

Why do so many people pay for turn-signals and not turn them on when they are getting ready to turn, or change lanes? It is a waste of money, and dangerous.

Why, when the auto in front of you wants to make a right turn into a street or a driveway, does the driver pull out to the left before making the turn, often crossing whatever line in the middle of the road?

It seems a waste of money to see someone pay for the turn signals and not use them... or use them properly.

Often, a motorist will turn on the left or right turn signal, make a turn, and then drive miles with the winking light offering both diversion and fear to the following motorists.

The move from the brake to the horn is another growing problem. More and more, motorists resort to a form of "chicken" by accelerating rapidly as they lean on their horn, instead of braking to offer the courtesy to an auto moving into a line of traffic, or backing out of an angle parking space.

Recently, a line of traffic over a mile long moved slowly up U.S. 1 at 30 miles an hour. Three trucks blocked the road, driving slowly, two on the inside lane and one on the outside lane. No one could pass. Several autos, in frustration, pulled out into the left turn lane to make a dangerous passing. One auto almost crashed into an unsuspecting oncoming auto.

Inconsideration is topmost on the list of driver problems.

For example, in the hysteria of concern over the approach of Hurricane David, many motorists were driving to local service stations, topping off tanks and storing five gallon cans of gasoline against potential loss of power if the hurricane moves through this area.

There have been reports of a dollar-worth of gasoline being pumped in some tanks. The motorist probably wasted that much gasoline just getting to the station and home... another waste of money.

Perhaps the street markings are not clear on Indian River Drive. Autos wanting to turn left on Ricou make that turn from the right hand lane, instead of pulling clear of through traffic into the marked left turn lane and makeing the turn form there.

The same is true on Commercial Street westbound, approaching Skyline Drive. Autos get in the right lane, pass over several right turn arrows, and then bull their way into the left through traffic lane, often cutting off autos in the proper lane.

At SR 707 and South Savanna Road, too many drivers wanting to make a left turn from SR 707 into SR 723 cut the corner so close oncoming drivers are forced to slam on their brakes. At the same intersection, drivers wanting to make a left turn into SR 707 pull over to the right, blocking west-bound traffic headed to Stuart as they wait for traffic to pass.

The situation at U.S. 1 and Commercial Street is another of danger, with courtesy thrown to the winds. The left turn signal off U.S. 1 is short, and sometimes three cars are backed up across the north-bound lane of U.S. 1 after the signal changes. People just blow horns and shake fists.

Intelligent, defensive driving is needed, and a giant measure of courtesy.

Lenny's schedule

I just finished reading Lenny Leden's schedule for September, and I think I'll take a nap.

Lenny, song and dance impresario whose tutoring has limbered up more aging limbs in Martin and St. Lucie counties than an army of chiropractors could do, is galloping his Galloping Grannies and Gramps all over the landscape.

For a start, beginning with the inlet festival, the dauntless troupe of singers and dancers this week perform for the Darcy Nursing Home in West Palm Beach -- to Orlando on the 11th and 12th where they will be showcased before an audience of thousands at Sea World, with Gov. Bob Graham's wife as chairman of the special event for senior citizens --

Then, on Sept. 19, they'll be at the Sunrise Theatre in Fort Lauderdale for a show being given for seniors, after which they take off for Key West at a Volunteers recognition party -- workers in RSVP. On Sept. 25, they'll be back in Orlando to appear before a church group.

Any two or three of which would put me back in bed for a week. Yet Lenny and his dedicated cast thrive on it. They love to see the inspired faces of the oldsters who are audiences at their lively cavortings. The Nostalgia Follies, as it was originally named is made up of people in their 60's, 70's and even some 80's, all of whom refuse to let their age demobilize them. All of them are drawn from Martin and St. Lucie Counties -- a countermingling of professionals with non-professionals who are kicking at their heels and laughing at age.

Lenny, a long-time entrepreneur and vaudeville personality, has earned the admiration and respect of not only the entertainment-minded in the Treasure Coast but all over the country. He was chosen as one of seven people to be honored in U.S. News and World Report, and has been written up by newspapers and periodicals from Maine to California for his work with the aged.

His work was regarded as such an asset to the community that he was asked by Indian River Community College to stage classes as part of the continuing education program. He has opened his Creative Expression classes for senior citizens again this fall, with a beginning enrolment of 60.

He and his Hildy, another former professional entertainer, have also been invited to give off-campus classes at the Outdoor Resorts of America on Hutchinson Island.

I learned all the latest, about the non-stop activities of my favorite song-and-dance team during a visit they paid me at my home one day last week. Over the years, since I first met them doing their thing at an area mobile home park, my admiration for them, along with an awe at seeing what they have been accomplishing has grown to immeasurable proportions. The Ladens have a way of making the process of growing older sound like fun.

What brought them to this area in the first place?

"It was nine years ago," Lenny told me. We'd been playing night spots in the Fort Lauderdale and Pompano -- the Red Carpet and the Cafe Madrid. "I ran into an old friend who said I was 'just the man' to help him out with a country club development in Stuart."

Lenny and his "Hello Burlesque" team were a popular item around Lauderdale. The show was so good, in fact, that it was scouted and observed by NBC television spies, and the whole opening of the former TV program Laugh-In stole it almost verbatim. Lenny got mad and sued. The case was finally settled out of court with a firm commitment of assured engagements at any Playboy Club in the country.

The banjo-eyed bundle of talent and energy sparkled with a gamin gleam as he recalled that particular experience, one of a raft of adventures out of his long career which included taking stars like Johnnie Weissmuel ler and others of national status on tour in five different countries. There's no doubt about it, Lenny had been around, and knows all of the cliches that breed confidence and performers at the peak of excitement.

How did they light here?

"After listening to the guy about the Stuart project, Hildy and I were headed back north when we spotted the Stuart exit," he recalled. "I said let's get off and have a long lunch, and look the place over."

They looked, and so fell in love with the area that they wound up buying a condominium the same day.

Though Lenny was drawing close to retirement age, he wasn't at all ready to sit back and relax. The country club project fizzled out, but noting the recreation -- or lack of it -- at some of the mobile home parks, he got the idea of starting song and dance classes. He shared the thought with one of the park recreation managers, and was welcomed with open arms.

Since that time, the Ladens have been in demand all over the area. The oldsters rehearse regularly, keeping themselves limber, and polishing the talents God gave them.

The Laden "kids" make their own costumes, and give their time freely wherever it is needed. They've performed at nursing homes from Lauderdale to Atlanta, cheering up oldsters without thought of pay. When they do give a show for a paying audience, the money goes to a scholar ship fund at the junior college.

Do you wonder why I stand in such awe and admiration for these two wonderful people? And it grew to an added height when, before they left, Lenny reconnected my ailing televi sion set so that it now works like a charm. Those, chums, are the kind of friends to have.

Dick Campbell

An impromptu Connolly

He looked like a Texas rancher, with silver-white hair, deep tan and muscular build, as he strolls through the side door of the Hyatt House meeting room. John Connolly is running for president. He had a few things to say.

I had heard of Connolly, and was impressed with his credentials; governor of Texas, secretary of the treasury and navy, and a long list of governmental service. He added to that impression, using an informed and articulate presentation.

The business management seminar of the Florida Press Association was in its second day at Sarasota when we learned that Connolly had no meeting room in which to hold his press conference. We agreed to adjourn a half hour early for lunch to give up our room to the press and television cameramen.

When we returned, Connolly dropped in to talk about small business and a few other things.

His comments on the problems of small business competing with big business and the government for capital, problems with getting replacement capital to modernize, and laws that prevent family-owned businesses from staying in the family were welcomed.

He felt that the government needs to change its philosophy about savings. He cited two families, one making $20,000 a year and spending it all, and the other making the same amount and saving money.

"The second family saves $3,000, they pay taxes on the $3,000, then taxes on the dividend, the corporation pays taxes on it, and then there is capital gains taxes if there is a profit on the investment," Connolly said.

"Every step of the way it is a disin ceetive."

Connolly called for a tax reform bill to permit an initial investment to have tax deferred as long as the money is kept in an account. Then, capital gains would be paid if the money is removed from the account. This would make more money available for investment to the small businessman.

He also said the tax reform bill should handle replacement cost by a scale that would allow depreciation of a building over ten years, depreciate machinery over five years, and equip ment in one year so that small business could compete with big business.

For family owned businesses, Connolly would ask for a law with a sliding scale capital gains tax to permit five percent of taxes to be eliminated each year so that the corporation stock could be passed on to the family at the end of twenty years without a substantial tax being forced on the family.

In one matter, that of estate taxes, Connolly admitted that he had not yet figured a proper plan, but added that reform of estate taxes would be high on his list of priority legislation.

The problems of government paperwork brought the comment that there was too much of it, and said that gross revenues be used for smaller businesses in an area where the cost of accounting and legal fees might be reduced.

I said that President Carter had promised just that, and was unable to accomplish it.

Connolly didn't bat an eye.

"I would insist that the Congress go back and use the appropriations committee to analyze what is being asked for from the paperwork. Also, the Office of Budget Management should be doing the same for the president, going to all agencies, compiling all the forms, and deciding the need for those forms," he said.

He added that paperwork could be cut by letting the 18 percent attrition in the work force stand, not rehiring to replace the workers leaving.

"It would reduce the work force, and could bring about a reduction in paper work."

As to whether or not he could influence Congress, where President Carter has failed, Connolly said, "They are good traders and negotiators. You must wheel and deal with them. If the president has the support of the people, the congress will listen. President Roosevelt was best at it, and he's greatest as was President Johnson, who knew the Congress the best."

His comment, "President Johnson knew something about every con gressman" drew a laugh from the journalists there.

Connolly also asked for a constitu tional change, saying "We've reached the point where I think our system is going to fail."

He felt that a president should be elected for one six year term, not able to succeed himself, that senators should be elected for an eight year term, not permitted to succeed them selves, and that representatives should be elected to two year terms, limited to no more than four terms.

How to get Congress to go along with it? Connolly said, "We'll grandfather them all into their seats. You'll find that few of them are interested in whose who would succeed them."

Getting mad's not easy

Ernie Lyons used to have a poster over his desk at The Stuart News which said, in giant red letters about two feet tall, "Get Mad!"

He said he did some of his best writing when he was mad, and that the poster was to remind him of this.

I think that's true of a lot of writers, including me. When I'm mad about something, and the righteous indigna tion swells in my breast, I can usually write a pretty good piece.

But it's not easy getting mad. At least not for me.

For some folks, getting steamed over the slightest occurrance is a common occurrance. For me, it's a rarity.

That's not to say I can't be unpleas ant or go on a binge of the crabbies. But there's a difference between being crabby and being good and mad.

When I'm crabby, I'm quick to criti cize and quick to jump on the defensive if someone makes a remark that I can in any way interpret as a criticism of me or my work. When I'm crabby, I often just don't feel like doing anything. And, just as often, can't stand doing nothing.

In short, when I'm crabby, I'm not much fun to be around.

But when I'm mad, I know exactly what I want to do and say. And, though I find absolutely nothing amusing when I'm mad, innocent bystanders have been known to say I'm amusing.

Whenever I complain of having nothing to write a column about, which generally happens once a week, I often get helpful advice.

Occasionally, I take the advice and turn it into a column. Most of the time, though, the logic suggested is more clear to the heart of the suggestor than the suggestee. And if I can't get sufficiently worked up over some thing, it usually shows in my writing.

So every week, in spite of sugges tions from well-meaning persons, I still have to go through my own pondering and agonizing before deciding what to write about. And it's that part of column writing that I hate the most.

Until it comes time to write about it in a column, there are say number of things that sound like good material for a column. For instance when I see bicyclists and pedestrians dodging cars on Indian River Drive, writing about the need for more bike paths sounds like a good column idea. But I wrote about that one and feel it was one of my real duds.

When I hear one too many barbs about uncultured Southerners from some of the silly Yankees around the Mirror office, I see the potential for writing a column. And when I see the glut of high-rises on the island where there used to be deserted beaches, or when I travel on already crowded roads and know the traffic will be five times worse in the winter, I get crabby. But not mad. At least not mad enough to elicit a column from my foul mood.

Today, while wasting the better part of the afternoon agonizing over what to write about, and wasting Lord knows how much paper on false starts, I got plenty of suggestions. They sounded good, but I just couldn't find the right words to write.

My boss, Dick Campbell, heard me complaining about the hardship of writing a column, then went to his office and dashed out a long column in about half an hour. He didn't say a word. He just paraded past my desk -- which is out of the way when going from his office to the typesetter -- and waved his column under my nose.

That did it. That got me mad. It's bad enough that he can't be sympathetic when I complain about how hard it is to write a column, but he doesn't have to flaunt how easy it is for him to write one.

I'm getting my sweet revenge though. Campbell hates columns about writing columns.

To the editor

To the Editor:

We who live along the Drive appre ciate your concern for the river front.

Your editorials of July 25th and August 22d, warning of threats to this scenic and ecologically-delicate area through improper development, have been noted and warmly applauded by local residents.

We don't have the same regard for the editorial attitude of our St. Lucie County newspaper, which comes down always on the side of the developer, the oil port, the proliferation of nuclear plants, the refinery, every thing and anything except the people.

Over-regulation boondoggles

BY CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

It seems that every time the Congress creates a new regulatory agency or gives an existing agency or department some new regulatory authority, the people responsible for carrying out that mandate quickly determine their particular task is the single most important goal of the nation.

Granted, we need officials who feel their work is important. But they must not consider their work to be the ONLY important work being conducted.

Yet, that is what we have.

We have no national plan per se to keep our economic system healthy and growing. We have no real national plan to lessen our dependence on the OPEC countries.

Instead, we have dozens of agencies, each convinced their task is the Holy Grail and each pursuing it to the detriment of everything else.

We have reached the critical juncture where all these efforts must be reconciled, where there must be some give and take. If not, we run the very real risk of seeing our economy throttled and stymied.

We must bring order out of the chaos. And chaos is what we have.

What else can you call it when the Department of Energy is calling on manufacturers to convert oil-burning plants to coal, yet the Environmental Protection Agency is forcing Dow Chemical to spend $6 million to convert coal plants to oil.

What else but chaos is it when the Department of Agriculture calls for installation of tile or stainless-steel floors in meatpacking plants, while the Occupational Safety and Health Administration warns such surfaces may increase the noise level beyond its authorized limits.

And it isn't always a case of two agencies bumping heads. Sometimes, it's the same agency ordering actions which violate its own standards. That's the case with OSHA ordering the construction industry to install beeper alarms on all moving vehicles at construction sites so workers will hear them coming and get out of the way - while at the same time ordering workers to wear ear plugs to cut down on the noise.

The end result is confusion in the market place, confusion which is passed on to the consumer in the way of higher prices.

Some of this confusion might be worthwhile if the end results were a little more pleasing. But they aren't, not all the time. A recent Senate study showed that OSHA's seven years of existence had meant little in the way of reducing the number and severity of work related accidents and illnesses. Yet that's why the agency was created.

Even EPA, whose goals of a cleaner environment will get an argument from on one, isn't doing the job it should. John Quarles, a former deputy administrator of EPA, admits the agency is out of control.

Most environmental requirements are sound," Quarles wrote in the Washington Post in May. "Yet the regulatory process is dangerously overextended.

Quarles goes on to lay the blame squarely on the Congress. All too often, the Congress merely gives the agency a goal, tacks on an unrealistic timetable, and then forgets about it-except to blame any future problems on the agency.

But the administration must shoulder its share of the blame. Because only a President can resolve conflicting regulations from two different agencies.

Regardless of where the blame lies, however, the time has come to correct the problem.

What we have now is dangerously narrow-minded regulation. And what we need are national goals and a national policy.

Power Squadron puts emphasis on safety

Facilities for a record enrollment are being provided for the boating course of the St. Lucie River Power Squadron, to open at the Martin County High School on Tuesday evening, September 18, according to Donald S. Till, Commander.

Registration is scheduled for 6:45 p.m. opening night and class will follow at 7:30 p.m. on this and subsequent Tuesday evenings for nine weeks covering all aspects of safe boating. Included are lectures on piloting, seamanship, rules of the road, aids to navigation, charting, boat trailering and use of the compass.

Aimed to teach the minimal knowledge required for safe boating, completing of the course will increase the boatman's confidence whether he owns, rents or boats with friends who, incidentally, will appreciate his nautical know-how. "It will also provide a basic foundation for the building of boating skills through further study, application and experience," Commander Till observed.

This year's class will be especially fortunate in having as Chairman, Past Brigadier General, James R. McNitt, Retired, and skipper of "Jikato" a 47 foot power boat.

"Our one mission in providing this course as a service to the community is to reduce the hazards of boating and make for a safer, more knowledgeable use of the waterways" stated Chairman McNitt.

Course material, constantly updated and modified to comply with changing government regulations, is augmented by audio-visual techniques that graphically amplify the lecture and assures a clear understanding of the material presented. The weekly open lectures will be followed by close-group teaching sessions at which more than thirty table instructors will work out assigned problems with their individual groups of six students.

To date, more than two million people have completed the free safe boating course taught by volunteers of the USPS, a self-supporting, non-profit and non-military boating fraternity founded in 1914. The local unit, the St. Lucie River Power Squadron, chartered in 1970 with 65 members, now numbers over 225.

Commander Till urges the registrants to bring their $10.00, which includes the cost of course materials, and USPS provides the rest. It could easily avoid serious injury of a threat on a life.

Photographic Society reforming

The Martin County Photographic Society will hold an introductory meeting at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, September 12 in the Stokes Memorial Room of the Martin County Public Library.

"Basic Picture Taking Techniques" and "The Beginning of Photographic Composition" are the two programs from Eastman Kodak to be presented.

Recent interest for a club has rejuvenated efforts to restart the club which has not met since 1973. All persons interested in photography should make an effort to attend the meeting or show their interest for such a club by writing to P.O. Box 2707, Stuart.

SHOULD IMPROVEMENTS BE MADE

QUESTION: I own an eight-unit apartment building which could use some work. The property is generally run down. The halls and exterior need upgrading and the apartments could use a good sprucing up. In addition, it's possible that by upgrading the kitchens I could make the apartments sufficiently attractive to get more rent. How do I determine whether to make improvements and how much should I spend?

ANSWER: One of the areas of greatest potential reward for real estate investors is that of improving income property.

As a general rule, you will only make improvements over and above those necessary to maintain the property if the rewards to you justify the outlay of capital and the risk involved.

The goal of improving property is to increase the value of the property by an amount that exceeds the expenditure.

Many professional investors will not make major physical improvements such as modernizing kitchens or bathtubs unless they anticipate an increase in the property's value equal to three to five times the expenditure.

This means that if they spend $1,000 in improvements they expect sufficient increases in rental income to justify a value increase of $3,000 to $5,000.

You'll have to set your own criteria in line with the amount of capital you can commit to such an upgrading program and your own estimate of potential value increase.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

A hindward look

BY SALLY LATHAM

You can't go home again, says Thomas Wolfe. Which, with the exception of some sleepy, static towns in the north, is true. Your old home town can become a whole new entity while your back is turned.

It was especially true for me, quite recently. Sister Jeanne, who is the current angel seeing to my well being, has a home in St. Petersburg, and had to go back for a week of hard work, taking care of medical and business matters. I went with her, to my old home town where I spent my teens, and found a whole new city, both in physical growth and character.

I'd made several flying trips to St. Pete before our mother died — over on Friday and back on Sunday, but never with enough time to test the mood — explore the haunts of the ghosts of the past encountered during those painful, fun, and friend filled days of high school and junior college. I had left a sleepy, sultry city that shut up shop during the non air-conditioned summer, and everyone was from somewhere else.

On this return, with time to look around and explore, I found a bustling, year around metropolis, filled with expensive new shopping centers, strung by new superhighways and enlivened by a flourishing culture. Gone were the green benches and other symbols that, when I was a kid, gave St. Pete the label of "the City of the Living Dead."

Our family first went to St. Pete in 1933, a deep depression year, and I entered my sophomore year at St. Pete High School. I met my first taste of left-over north-south adversarianism in my history class, when an ardent young buck named Charles Lee and I almost wound up in fisticuffs over who no really was responsible for the Civil War. Coming from the safe middle-classism of a small northern school, I also learned that millionaires' kids are neither smarter nor dumber than you are. On the whole, I made some lovely friends in those years.

One bit of sentimental journeying I couldn't resist were visits to the home of the little three story downtown building in which I attended junior college. Then with a census of a little over 300, the college, dean of which for years was old friend Mike Bennett, now has an enrollment of thousands, and sprawls all over several blocks in the Fifth Avenue area.

The little old downtown building, incidentally, began life as St. Pete High school, progressing to junior college status, and now is home for adult education. But enough of statistics. The fun came the day we visited Busch Gardens.

Normally, I am not a tourist at heart. Even in those early days after we first moved to Florida, I found the thought of standing in line to visit the botannical gardens or the alligator farm vastly boring. So, ever since my return to the state, several years ago, I'd ho-hum mightily when people told me I should visit Busch Gardens. The idea of regimented lines and jostling elbows with hordes of kids just wasn't my cup of tea.

Yet, from all I was reading and seeing on TV about the attraction, I finally decided I'd have to try it — out of self defense if nothing else. (What? You live in Florida and haven't seen Busch Gardens? It's like confessing you live on the beach and haven't swum in the Gulf.)

My escorts for the tour of the Tampa Gardens were an enthusiastic duo — a coupe of kids in the persons of sister Jeanne and her 88 year-old gentleman friend Carl Bischoff. And they ran my legs off trying to give me the most for my money.

And that they did, in style and with gusto. Busch Gardens, I found, is something not to be missed. Animals in cages are one sight I don't care for. But at the Gardens, the animals are their own bosses, roaming about in surroundings emulating as nearly as possible their native African habitat.

The giraffes, for example, are fed from high trident containers, just high enough so they have to stretch their necks in native style, zebra and the tiny swift impala run free in herds, and exotic birds live peaceably with the animals.

When you visit, you cover acres, but it's not hard on the feet. Little buses greet you at the welcome station and take you to the general area you want to start from.

We were hungry on arrival, and decided to eat first. It was a high point of the day. The Top dining room of the Swiss House is a charmed spot, and we were lucky enough to get a window seat, where below we could watch the field of giraffe, zebra, gazelles all doing their own thing.

The dinner, and a delicious one it was, is "the best buy for the money in the whole area," Carl commented. He had the sauerbraten; Jeanne a rich turkey combination, and I a shrimp salad which was the best I'd ever tasted. For the three of us, including cocktails and beer, the tab was less than $25.

There are all sorts of conveyances, some on the frightening side, to get around the park — like the air cars, the monorail, and little trains that go everywhere.

Carl and Jeanne proved to me that age is merely a state of mind. The last time they were over, Carl informed me, he and Jeanne had dared the zooming water ride, which takes you to the top of a very wet mountain in beer barrels, and whooshes you down in a flight somewhat like going over Niagara Falls. He was all for another go at it, but this timid Timotha politely declined. My barrel would be the one to lose a wave on the way down.

The bird garden is a source of sheer frustration to a silent photographer equipped only with black and white film. The riot of color — the fluffy reds, greens and chartreuses has to be seen to be believed. And here was I, helpless with black and white.

What with the variety of exotic African birds to gasp at, the kids were showing their America First ism. All around the big beer garden, where the suds are dished out free at the rate of at least a glass a second, the watery knoll is lined with kids, buying popcorn and birdseed for who else but the terns, a herd of gulls who know where to find the goodies.

The unimpressed candor of youth was also overheard from a table next to us. Said a lad to his free beer drinking mother: "C'mon, ma. I'll buy you a pint when we get back to civilization."

If, by chance, you haven't yet taken in Busch Gardens, it's worth the effort just to enjoy the artistic, well-kept atmosphere. Fountains bloom lushly around interestingly architected buildings, and the shrubbery along the winding paths make every part of the trip an adventure. With the exception of Disney World, it is the only "tourist trap" I'd like to return to again and again.

You're right, Thomas — you can't go home again. But it's fun to return to find out what's grown up in its place.

OBPers meet OBPers

Ocean Breeze

BY LETA KEITH
334-4366

We, Irvin and Leta Keith had a lovely Fiftieth Anniversary Friday, August 31. Our next door neighbors the Wittneberts and Springmans went to The Golden Corral south of Stuart for 6 o'clock dinner. Just before we left, a lovely golden rosebud corsage was delivered to me. The Springmans and June Smith excused themselves and had to leave early.

When we got home, Bunny insisted that I come over to play their large Conn organ for her company. They had a time convincing tired Irvin that he must come too. We really were surprised when we saw friends and neighbors, and a lovely Anniversary cake made by Jean Tomaszewski. Thanks to all for cards and everything!

Greetings from Nettie Dancer from Cologne, Germany. "I'm having fun with my sisters here in Germany. I will be back in October, the Lord willing."

Al Austin, nephew of Mae Cassity, left Sunday.

Earl P. Wright, born March 10, 1902 died August 14, 1979 in Loudonville, Ohio. They had spent several winters here. Earl and Loretta are wonderful people. We, friends and neighbors, in Ocean Breeze wish to extend our heartfelt sympathy to the Wright family.

Ruth and Gene Hoke took off two days and flew to the Bahamas, at West End. Took their grandson, Kelly Cavanaugh, who rode up front as co-pilot. Ruth says, "It was a short vacation but we enjoyed every minute of it. People don't realize we have a busy summer getting ready for winter.

I received the following letter from Ernie and Marion Curwen recently and would like to share it with you.

There sure is a bunch of OBPers up here, we met some and heard about others and I'll tell you about them in a minute. But, first a bit on what those wandering Curwens have been up to.

After being Campground Hosts at Lake Sherando Recreation Area, Va. for the month of July, off they went to see the sights, and to date they haven't found a nicer campground. First a week at Pipe Stem State Park, near Priceton, W.V., where they visited Senior Centers and congregate meals. Pipe Stem is a huge "spic-n-span" area with acres of manicured lawns, olympic size swimming pool, lodge, cottages and lots of doings, but the campgrounds were hardly "just so, so". West Virginia is a state that got "stood-on-edge" millions of years ago with all the roads squirming through the mountains, so with trailer on behind, it was second speed to get up, and second speed to hold back coming down.

Young Ernie, figured he could avoid some of the "ups and downs", as the map showed a limited access toll road going from Princeton to Charleston. It was a toll road all right $4.50 for 80 miles, but the 2 lane road with detours and dusty construction every few miles made the going tougher than the squirmy mountain roads, and the rest areas were so nasty with beer cans, broken bottles and discarded sandwiches that one lost their appetite for lunch. When, paying the toll, Young Ernie yold the gal collector, the road was a disgrace and they should be paid for using it. She didn't even smile, must have heard it many times before.

But, Kentucky was a different story, there the construction on U.S. 23 was for free and there was plenty of it, however once that was over with the mountainous country of eastern Kentucky was delightful. A stay at Jenny Wiley State Park was just great. There they have planned recreation, with something doing from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Trips, tours, crafts, swimming, games for kids and grandparents, movies, country music, dances, etc. (Kids were having such fun, they made their parents stay over another day for some special event.) Also, at nearby Prestonsburg they found the most plush Senior Center of all with congregate meals served at small 4 place tables covered with bright red checkered table cloths. You can see the Curwens were having a young ball for themselves. But enough of that, let's find out what other Ocean Breezers were doing up Hendersonville way.

Not knowing just where to find some OBPers, we figured, where there is shuffling, there will be OBPers, so we inquired, and found that Tom's Park was the place. Sure enough, for as soon as we got to the first of the many courts, there was a big "Hello" as Irma Fair spotted us. She and Charlie were busy shuffling with exOBPers, Trudie and Cliff Worstenholm. They were all fine and dandy and had more Ocean Breeze news from The Mirror than we had from letters, but we had an enjoyable few minutes comparing notes. That was on FRIDAY, August tenth and we were so busy for the next few days, we did not get back with the OBPers until the following Saturday, August 17th.

The interruption was caused by the Hunts, Henry and Stella blowing into the Jay Mar Travel Park where we were staying. They are also exOBPers of the 50s and now living in North River Shores. They were also "fine-n-dandy", so we did Hendersonville with them: Flat Rock Playhouse, Carl Sandburg's Home; Picnics in the Pisgah Forest near the Looking Glass Falls and Sliding rock; "doing" the ladies outlet stores for bargains in dresses, slacks and blouses was perhaps enjoyed most of all by Stella and Marion (Henry and Ernie soon found some had better sitting and standin' spots than others). So, it was a week before the rest of the OBPers could be "hooked-up".

Then, Saturday afternoon, August seventeenth, the Curwens and the Hunts got a chance to drop-in on the OBPers staying at the Hendersonville Trailer Park, where Pappy and Veronica Snyder used to go every summer along with a dozen or so of other Ocean Bree

Thanks...

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to my neighbors and friends for the many acts of kindness and love extended to me during the recent illness and death of my husband, Clinton R. King.

Special thanks to Rev. Thompson, The Aycock Funeral Home, the Drs and nurses for their concern and care given him while a patient in Martin County Hospital at Stuart, Florida.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Clinton R. King

Stuart National officials surprise bank president

Thirteen area residents, most of them Stuart National Bank officials, flew to Cincinnati, Ohio, Saturday, September 1, to make a surprise appearance at a 65th birthday party being held for Jack T. Williams, the bank's president and chief executive officer.

The surprise cocktail-dinner birthday celebration was planned and held in Cincinnati by Williams' wife, Margaret, with the help of many of his former friends and long time business associates in that area.

Prior to coming to Stuart, Williams was for many years prominent in the banking business in Cincinnati.

When his local friends and business associates found out about the party they wanted to participate and arranged to fly to Cincinnati to surprise Williams.

Organizers of the surprise were Charles Harris, president of Port Salerno National Bank; Calvin O'Brien, a director of Stuart National and Richard Smith, a vice president at Stuart National.

"This is strictly a surprise party to celebrate Jack's birthday. We're looking forward to working with him for many more years," Harris pointed out.

Williams joined Stuart National in 1961 as president and director. Since then bank assets have grown from $6 million to more than $100 million.

QUESTION
How and where does rust start?

ANSWER

Rust starts anywhere. Rust is formed by the union of oxygen in the air with iron or steel by a process called oxidation. Moisture is an important agent in producing the change. Anywhere you have unprotected metal parts, oxygen, and moisture, you can and probably will have rust, but rust may not always be evident. Rust can form inside hollow metal parts, below metal surfaces and inside hidden seams.

SUNKEN BOATS—Hurricane David's winds may have been tame in comparison to some other hurricanes, but they were fierce enough to cause several boats to smash together and sink at the marina next to the Bait Box in Jensen Beach. The boat in the foreground is one which area residents recall seeing its owner make extensive improvements to during the summer months. All that work has literally gone down the drain. The smashed houseboat in the background to the left was pushed up against another boat on the other side of it.

TELEVISION RECEPTION was knocked out for most area residents when power lines went down, but at this home, the reception will probably be poor once electricity is restored because of this twisted antenna. The house is located on Skyline Drive in Jensen Beach.

LEFT TURN ONLY—After years of waiting for a left turn signal at U.S. 1 and SR 707A, one was installed a few weeks ago. Now, in the wake of Hurricane David, that signal's there but the others were blown away.

SUNKEN BOAT—This is one of four boats that sank at the Anchorage Marina during Hurricane David. Marina operator Don McLean said the damage occurred after the eye of the hurricane passed and winds came from the south.

HOUSEBOAT DESTROYED—This houseboat at The Anchorage Marina in Rio fell victim to the winds of Hurricane David on Labor Day. the boat owners, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dean, had at one time planned to weather the storm in it. However, they decided Sunday evening to seek safe shelter.

NUCLEAR POWER PLANT—A crane at the St. Lucie II nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island was toppled by high winds during Hurricane David. A portion of the crane is shown dangling from a cable.

TOPSY TURVEY—This mobile home at Holiday Out on Hutchinson Island got blown over by Hurricane David. Had it not been for the palm tree, it may have continued rolling. The mobile home was one of three at the park to blow over.

TILT—Several boats at Bailey Boats in Jensen Beach were damaged when they were blown against each other. Surprisingly, the damage to boats there was heavier on land than in the water. Boaters in other areas were not as fortunate though, as several were smashed to bits at the Bait Box, and four sank at the Anchorage Marina.

David's damages at Langford Park could exceed $50,000

BY DONNIE WILKIE

For months, as the Jensen Beach Civic League was underway at Langford Park, softball fans watched as First Federal's junior softball pitcher, David Bocchino, zapped team after team, at one point even throwing a no-hitter in tournament play.

The same fans enjoyed one of the year's most exciting games last Thursday night at the Park, as the Civic League All Stars held their post season thriller for Muscular Dystrophy. David Bocchino was the losing pitcher on that occasion.

But Tuesday morning, David's father, Vince was cleaning up the mess left behind by another David, the hurricane that smacked squarely against the Jensen Beach coastline Monday.

Bocchino estimated that the damages incurred during the front part of the storm, where winds reached as high as 90 miles per hour, could zoom as high as $50,000, perhaps more, once the final survey is made.

In fact, there will be no sports activities at Langford Park for a period of up to a month, with football being forced to either practice during the daylight hours, practice elsewhere, or not practice at all.

A quick look around the Park tells pretty much the entire story. Two light poles on the Vince Bocchino Field, the very field used for the Civic All-Star game, snapped in the high winds.

One lies in left field, a total loss, while another is all but broken in half in center field. It merely dangles, with the lights at the bottom of the piece that swings through the air at the lightest gust of wind.

Meanwhile, at least two dugouts are in need of repair, while the outside scoreboards on the Vince Bocchino Field (#2), as well as on the usual Civic field, number one, are either down or at least in bad enough shape to require replacement.

After sitting down and figuring out the costs involved (and keep in mind that Bocchino himself admits that he's "not an estimator for the Power Company"), Bocchino guessed that the final cost of repair would be "at least $35,000, probably more."

He said that he was using what prices he could remember from the last time the fields needed repairs, "about five years ago."

"We're probably talking in the neighborhood of $50,000," he said, "but that's only what I can see on the surface. There's a good chance that when someone climbs up there, they'll find even more that's wrong."

In addition to the two poles down, there are at least three more that need to be straightened out, as the entire lighting system near home plate on Field Three (the Cow Pasture) seems to tilt, with the winds blowing them into a precarious, leaning position.

"There's also at least three sections of 20-foot fence that are bent, and I'm not sure they can be straightened out."

The right fence on Field One leans backward, making a home run more difficult to hit, if there were any games played.

"That's just the three softball and baseball fields," he said, pointing to the electrical box which dangled loosely from its position near the tennis courts.

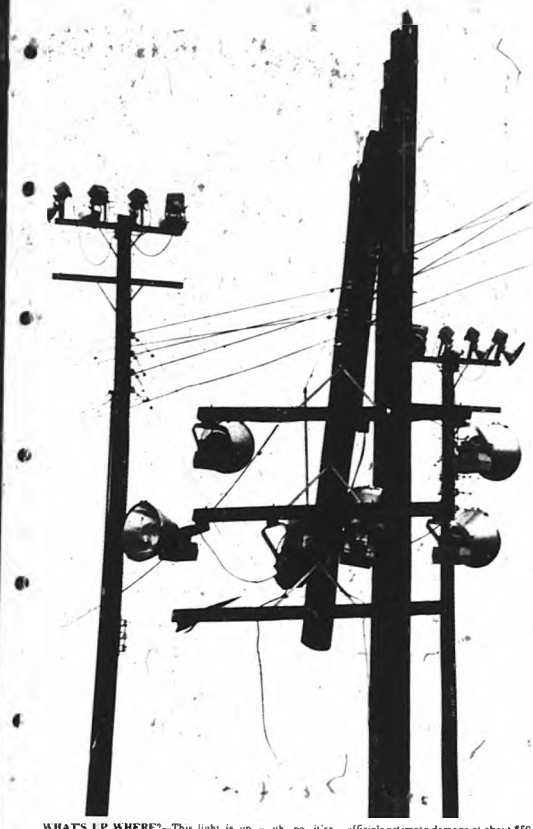
"That's going to cost almost a thousand dollars to repair," he added, reminding that he is not totally familiar with the current prices.

Bocchino's main concern Tuesday morning was the problem created by fallen trees. They littered the parcours course, almost creating a totally new obstacle course, and also were grouped near the tennis and volleyball courts.

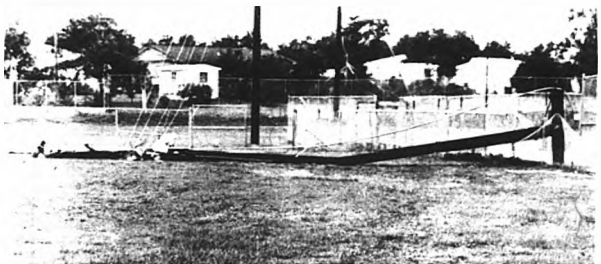
"We came down here during the eye of the hurricane," said Vince's son, Jerry, David's older brother. "All the damage was done then."

So the second part of the storm, during which winds did not even reach hurricane intensity, did no damage to the Langford facilities.

It was not known at press time whether the park's closing would last long enough to prevent Jensen Beach from opening the football season September 22, against Port Salerno.



WHAT'S UP WHERE?—This light is up — uh, no, it'sa down — well, it's half up and half down, all as a result of Hurricane David, which experts did not even regard as a major storm. One thing's for sure. It did major damage to the facilities at Jensen Beach's Langford Park, where officials estimate damage at about $50,000. "And we haven't even looked at it close yet," said Vince Bocchino Tuesday after things calmed down a bit. Two scoreboards, as well as most of the electrical systems at the park were ripped when David made his JH journey. (Photo by Donnie Wilkie)



FENCE CRASHING—This is one way to crash a fence — of course, there usually isn't a ready made light pole waiting in the wings. This was just a small part of the damage suffered at Langford Park in Jensen Beach as a result of Hurricane David, which swept through the Jensen Beach area Monday.

A NEW PARCOURS!—Jensen Beach's Langford Park looked more like one BIG obstacle course rather than just a recreation facility with a small obstacle course inside, after Hurricane David struck Jensen Beach Monday. There were at least a dozen fallen trees throughout the total circuit of the relatively new parcours course, and this was the light side of the damage as David caused the park's closing and at least $50,000 in damages.
